GOETHE.

PREFACE

THOUGH we go to press with the fifty-ninth issue of the YEAR-BOOK earlier than has been possible during the past few years, and though much remains to be done before the many problems resulting from the Great War are definitely settled, we trust it will be found that throughout we have been able to give the latest available information, either in the text or in the 'Additions and Corrections.' To the countries for which recent census returns were published in the last issue of the YEAR-BOOK, the following are added in the present issue, viz., the United Kingdom, India, the Union of South Africa, Canada, Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, the Federal States of the United States, Bulgaria, Chile, Czechoslovakia, France and several of the French Colonies and Protectorates (Algiers, Tunisia, Morocco, West Africa), Greece, the Netherlands and the Dutch East Indies, Nicaragua, Norway, Sweden, Venezuela, and Russia. The section relating to the last-named country, and that dealing with China, have been specially revised. Egypt is still retained in Part One (British Empire) only because when the announcement of its new status was made it was too late to transfer it to Part Three, where it now properly belongs. Conditions in Ireland have not yet reached the stage that would justify us in allotting to the Irish Free State a special section among the Dominions. But an account of the situation as it is at present will be found in the Introductory Section, which also furnishes information on the organisation of the League of Nations, the Imperial and Washington Conferences, and a number of surveys of world production (gold and silver, iron, steel, wool, cotton, sugar, etc.).

As in past years, Mr. A. D. Webb has again revised the British Empire section, General Sir Frederick Maurice the Armies, and Mr. John Leyland the Navies. To them as to many friends all over the world we would express our gratitude for valuable co-operation.

II.—FINANCE AND COMMERCE OF VARIOUS COUNTRIES.

The following statistics relating to the financial and commercial condition of various countries have been put together for convenience of reference, not for the purpose of comparison. Revenue and expenditure, which in some States are raised and expended by local authorities, are in others included in the national accounts. Debt in some countries is incurred for the sake of profitable investment, while in others it is unproductive and burdensome. With respect to trade, the figures in general show the special imports (or those for home consumption) and the special exports (or those of home produce and

The statistics are for the most part for the calendar year 1921, or the financial year 1921-22.

XI.—ALLIED DEBTS.

(1) ALLIED DEBTS TO THE UNITED STATES.

The total indebtedness of European countries to the United States on January 1, 1922, was estimated to be 818,276,000 dollars, out of original loans amounting to 2,587,997,000 dollars.

The issues and repayments were as follows :—

	Issued	Repaid
	Dollars	Dollars
United Kingdom	1,420,816,000	1,027,231,000
France	805,000,000	611,965,000
French Cities	131,600,000	86,000,000
Belgium	109,270,000	9,520,000
Italy	36,311,000	25,000,000
Russia	85,000,000	10,000,000

(2) ALLIED DEBTS TO THE UNITED KINGDOM.

The total amount of Treasury Bills deposited with His Majesty's Government by the various European Powers stands at £1,703,336,302, an increase of £327,070,302, as compared with the amount of Treasury Bills held at the Armistice. The amounts deposited by individual Governments are as follows:—

European Power	Face value of Treasury Bills held by H.M. Government at Armistice	Face value of Treasury Bills held by H.M. Government March, 1922	Increase
France	425,671,000	572,524,500	146,853,500
Russia	567,892,000	567,892,000	—
Italy	355,050,000	502,074,952	147,024,952
Belgium (Reconstruction)	—	9,000,000	9,000,000
„ (Belgian Congo) . .	2,451,000	3,550,000	1,099,000
Rumania	15,710,900	22,112,500	6,402,500
Greece	500,000	7,710,350	7,210,350
Portugal	8,992,000	18,472,000	9,480,000
	1,376,266,000	1,703,236,302	327,070,302

Except in the case of Belgium (Reconstruction Credit) interest due since the Armistice has been met by the deposit of additional Treasury Bills. The figures given do not include Relief Bonds or other debts due from European Powers to His Majesty's Government which are not covered by Treasury Bills.

XII.—GERMAN REPARATIONS.

On March 8, 1922, the Reparations Commission issued the return of German payments in cash, in kind, and by reason of cessations of State property from the date of the Armistice to December 31, 1921:—

I. GOLD AND FOREIGN CURRENCIES.

	Gold mark (= 1s)
(a) Direct payments made by Germany to December 31, 1921	1,041,419,000
(b) Receipt from other sources on German account:
1. Payment by Denmark for cession of part of Slesvig-Holstein . .	65,000,000
2. Destroyed war material sold	40,960,000
3. Sundry items	657,000
(c) Proceeds of Reparation Recovery Act	36,136,000
Total	1,181,172,000

II. DELIVERIES IN KIND.

	Gold marks.
(a) Supplied to Allied and Associated Powers . .	2,760,250,600
(b) Sold to Luxemburg, to Textile Alliance of the United States, etc. . .	39,092,000
Total	2,799,342,000
Total liquid receipt . .	2,983,514,000

III. CESSIONS OF STATE PROPERTIES IN CEDED TERRITORIES.

	Gold marks.
So far as can at present be estimated, and excluding the Slesvig-Holstein properties shown in item (b) I, the value of which has been realised in cash	2,504,342,000
Grand Total	6,487,856,000 (= £324,392,800)

The following notes are appended.

I. The only definite figures are those under the heading gold and foreign currencies. The other figures are provisional and subject to revision.

II. The figures in item III. do not include a valuation of the plebiscite area awarded to Poland, nor for property in Memel.

The table states that the Reparation Commission takes no account of—

1. Objects returned in restitution by Germany for which no credit is due.

2. Amounts paid by Germany to clearing offices set up under Article 296 of the Treaty of Versailles, which give rise to no credit unless and until a final balance is established in Germany's favour.

3. Paper marks paid, goods supplied, and services rendered directly by Germany to the Armies of Occupation.

4. Payments made by Germany for various commissions the expenses of which are imposed upon Germany under the Peace Treaty.

XIII.—THE WASHINGTON CONFERENCE.

XIV.—THE IMPERIAL CONFERENCE.

During the months of June, July and August, 1921, there were held in London conferences of Prime Ministers and representatives of Great Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India.

The topics dealt with had reference to Foreign Policy, Problems of the Pacific, Empire Settlement and Migration, The League of Nations, Egypt, Imperial Defence, Imperial Communications, Shipping, Wireless Telephony, Rates for Press Messages, Apportionment of Reparation Receipts and the position of British Indians in the Empire.

Several plenary meetings and several meetings of the Prime Ministers were devoted to a consideration of the question of the proposed Conference on the Constitutional Relation of the component parts of the Empire, and the following resolution was adopted:—

“The Prime Ministers of the United Kingdom and the Dominions, having carefully considered the recommendation of the Imperial War Conference of 1917 that a special Imperial Conference should be summoned as soon as possible after the war to consider the constitutional relation of the component parts of the Empire, have reached the following conclusions:—

“(a) Continuous consultation, to which the Prime Ministers attach no less importance than the Imperial War Conference of 1917, can only be secured by a substantial improvement in the communication between the component parts of the Empire. Having regard to the constitutional developments since 1917, no advantage is to be gained by holding a constitutional Conference.

"(b) The Prime Ministers of the United Kingdom and the Dominions and the Representatives of India should aim at meeting annually, or at such longer intervals as may prove feasible.

"(c) The existing practice of direct communication between the Prime Ministers of the United Kingdom and the Dominions, as well as the right of the latter to nominate Cabinet Ministers to represent them in consultation with the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom, are maintained."

For further details, see Imperial Conference Blue Book (Cmd. 1474) published in August, 1921.

XV. TREATY BETWEEN GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT

1.—Ireland shall have the same constitutional status in the Community of Nations known as the British Empire as the Dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, the Dominion of New Zealand and the Union of South Africa, with a Parliament having powers to make laws for the peace, order, and good government of Ireland, and in Executive responsible to that Parliament, and shall be styled and known as the Irish Free State.

2.—Subject to the provisions hereinafter set out the position of the Irish Free State in relation to the Imperial Parliament and Government and otherwise shall be that of the Dominion of Canada, and the law, practice, and constitutional usage governing the relationship of the Crown or the representative of the Crown and of the Imperial Parliament to the Dominion of Canada shall govern their relationship to the Irish Free State.

3.—The representative of the Crown in Ireland shall be appointed in like manner as the Governor-General of Canada and in accordance with the practice observed in the making of such appointments.

4.—The oath to be taken by Members of the Parliament of the Irish Free State shall be in the following form:

"..... do solemnly swear true faith and allegiance to the Constitution of the Irish Free State as by law established, and that I will be faithful to H.M. King George V., his heirs and successors by law in virtue of the common citizenship of Ireland with Great Britain and her adherence to and membership of the group of nations forming the British Commonwealth of Nations.

5.—The Irish Free State shall assume liability for the service of the Public Debt of the United Kingdom as existing at the date hereof and towards the payment of war pensions as existing at that date in such proportion as may be fair and equitable, having regard to any just claims on the part of Ireland by way of set-off or counter-claim, the amount of such sums being determined in default of agreement by the arbitration of one or more independent persons being citizens of the British Empire.

6.—Until an arrangement has been made between the British and Irish Governments whereby the Irish Free State undertakes her own coastal defence, the defence by sea of Great Britain and Ireland shall be undertaken by His Majesty's Imperial Forces, but this shall not prevent the construction or maintenance by the Government of the Irish Free State of such vessels as are necessary for the protection of the Revenue or the Fisheries.

The foregoing provisions of this article shall be reviewed at a conference of representatives of the British and Irish Governments to be held at the expiration of five years from the date hereof, with a view to the undertaking by Ireland of a share in her own coastal defence.

7.—The Government of the Irish Free State shall afford to His Majesty's Imperial Forces:

(a) In time of peace such harbour and other facilities as are indicated in the Annex hereto, or such other facilities as may from time to time be agreed between the British Government and the Government of the Irish Free State; and

(b) In time of war or of strained relations with a foreign Power such harbour and other facilities as the British Government may require for the purposes of such defence as aforesaid.

8.—With a view to securing the observance of the principle of international limitation of armaments, if the Government of the Irish Free State establishes and maintains a military defence force, the establishments thereof shall not exceed in size such proportion of the military establishments maintained in Great Britain as that which the population of Ireland bears to the population of Great Britain.

9.—The ports of Great Britain and the Irish Free State shall be freely open to the ships of the other country on payment of the customary port and other dues.

10.—The Government of the Irish Free State agrees to pay fair compensation on terms not less favourable than those accorded by the Act of 1920 to judges, officials, members of police forces and other public servants who are discharged by it or who retire in consequence of the change of government effected in pursuance hereof:

Provided that this agreement shall not apply to members of the Auxiliary Police Force or to persons recruited in Great Britain for the Royal Irish Constabulary during the two years next preceding the date hereof. The British Government will assume responsibility for such compensation or pensions as may be payable to any of these excepted persons.

11. Until the expiration of one month from the passing of the Act of Parliament for the ratification of this instrument, the powers of the Parliament and the Government of the Irish Free State shall not be exercisable as respects Northern Ireland, and the provisions of the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, shall so far as they relate to Northern Ireland remain of full force and effect, and no election shall be held for the return of members to serve in the Parliament of the Irish Free State for constituencies in Northern Ireland, unless a resolution is passed by both Houses of the Parliament of Northern Ireland in favour of the holding of such elections before the end of the said month.

12.—If before the expiration of the said month an address is presented to His Majesty by both Houses of the Parliament of Northern Ireland to that effect, the power of the Parliament and the Government of the Irish Free State shall no longer extend to Northern Ireland, and the provisions of the Government of Ireland Act, 1920 (including those relating to the Council of Ireland), shall, so far as they relate to Northern Ireland, continue to be of full force and effect, and this instrument shall have effect subject to the necessary modifications:

Provided that if such an address is so presented a Commission consisting of three persons, one to be appointed by the Government of the Irish Free State, one to be appointed by the Government of Northern Ireland, and one who shall be Chairman, to be appointed by the British Government, shall determine in accordance with the wishes of the inhabitants, so far as may be compatible with economic and geographic conditions, the boundaries between Northern Ireland and the rest of Ireland, and for the purposes of the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, and of this instrument, the boundary of Northern Ireland shall be such as may be determined by such Commission.

13. For the purpose of the last foregoing article, the powers of the Parliament of Southern Ireland under the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, to elect members of the Council of Ireland shall after the Parliament of the Irish Free State is constituted be exercised by that Parliament.

14.—After the expiration of the said month, if no such address as is mentioned in Article 12 hereof is presented, the Parliament and Government of Northern Ireland shall continue to exercise as respects Northern Ireland the powers conferred on them by the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, but the Parliament and Government of the Irish Free State shall in Northern Ireland have in relation to matters in respect of which the Parliament of Northern Ireland has not power to make laws under that Act (including matters which, under the said Act, are within the jurisdiction of the Council of Ireland) the same powers as in the rest of Ireland, subject to such other provisions as may be agreed in manner hereinafter appearing.

15.—At any time after the date hereof the Government of Northern Ireland and the provisional Government of Southern Ireland hereinafter constituted may meet for the purpose of discussing the provisions subject to which the last foregoing Article is to operate in the event of no such address as is therein mentioned being presented, and those provisions may include:

- (a) Safeguards with regard to patronage in Northern Ireland.
- (b) Safeguards with regard to the collection of revenue in Northern Ireland.
- (c) Safeguards with regard to import and export duties affecting the trade or industry of Northern Ireland.
- (d) Safeguards for minorities in Northern Ireland.
- (e) The settlement of the financial relations between Northern Ireland and the Irish Free State.
- (f) The establishment and powers of a local militia in Northern Ireland and the relation of the Defence Forces of the Irish Free State and of Northern Ireland respectively.

and if at any such meeting provisions are agreed to, the same shall have effect as if they were included amongst the provisions subject to which the powers of the Parliament and Government of the Irish Free State are to be exercisable in Northern Ireland under Article 14 hereof.

16.—Neither the Parliament of the Irish Free State nor the Parliament of Northern Ireland shall make any law so as either directly or indirectly to endow any religion or prohibit or restrict the free exercise thereof or give any preference or impose any disability on account of religious belief, or religious status or affect prejudicially the right of any child to attend a school receiving public money without attending the religious instruction at the school, or make any discrimination as respects State aid between schools under the management of different religious denominations or divert from any religious denomination or any educational institution any of its property except for public utility purposes and on payment of compensation.

By way of provisional arrangement for the administration of Southern Ireland during the interval which must elapse between the date hereof and the constitution of a Parliament and Government of the Irish Free State in accordance therewith, steps shall be taken forthwith for summoning a meeting of members of Parliament elected for constituencies in Southern Ireland since the passing of the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, and for constituting a provisional Government, and the British Government shall take the steps necessary to transfer to such Provisional Government the powers and machinery requisite for the discharge of its duties, provided that every member of such Provisional Government shall have signified in writing his or her acceptance of this instrument. But this arrangement shall not continue in force beyond the expiration of twelve months from the date hereof.

18.—This instrument shall be submitted forthwith by His Majesty's Government for the approval of Parliament, and by the Irish signatories to a meeting summoned for the purpose of the members elected to sit in the House of Commons of Southern Ireland, and if approved shall be ratified by the necessary legislation.

ANNEX.

1. The following are the specific facilities required :—

Dockyard Port of Berhaven.—(a) Admiralty property and rights to be retained as at the date hereof. Harbour defences to remain in charge of British care and maintenance parties.

Queenstown.—(b) Harbour defences to remain in charge of British care and maintenance parties. Certain mooring buoys to be retained for use of His Majesty's ships.

Belfast Lough.—(c) Harbour defences to remain in charge of British care and maintenance parties.

Lough Swilly.—(d) Harbour defences to remain in charge of British care and maintenance parties.

Aviation.—(e) Facilities in the neighbourhood of the above ports for coastal defence by air.

Oil Fuel Storage.—(f) Haulbowline, Rathmullen, to be offered for sale to commercial companies under guarantee that purchasers shall maintain a certain minimum stock for Admiralty purposes.

2.—A Convention shall be made between the British Government and the Government of the Irish Free State to give effect to the following conditions :—

(a) That submarine cables shall not be landed or wireless stations for communication with places outside Ireland be established except by agreement with the British Government; that the existing cable landing rights and wireless concessions shall not be withdrawn except by agreement with the British Government; and that the British Government shall be entitled to land additional submarine cables or establish additional wireless stations for communication with places outside Ireland.

(b) That lighthouses, buoys, beacons, and any navigational marks or navigational aids shall be maintained by the Government of the Irish Free State as at the date hereof, and shall not be removed or added to except by agreement with the British Government.

(c) That war signal stations shall be closed down and left in charge of care and maintenance parties, the Government of the Irish Free State being offered the option of taking them over and working them for commercial purposes, subject to Admiralty inspection and guaranteeing the upkeep of existing telegraphic communication therewith.

3.—A Convention shall be made between the same Governments for the regulation of Civil Communication by Air.

XVI.—THE IRISH FREE STATE (See also p. 7 below).

The political relations between Great Britain and Ireland, which had been in a state of continuous tension since the foundation of the Home Rule movement in 1870, at once became acute with the outbreak of the Great War. German agents were active in Ireland, and on Easter Monday, 1916, there was a rising in Dublin, the insurgents seizing the Post Office and other public buildings, and proclaiming an Irish Republic. The rebellion was abortive, but the political results were far-reaching. The old 'Home Rule' party was discredited, and its place taken by the 'Sinn Féin' or physical force party, whose nominees, at the General Election of 1918, swept the country with the exception of the six North-Eastern Counties, where the electors with equal determination declared for continued membership of the United Kingdom. To meet the difficulty a new Government of Ireland Act was passed in 1920, under which separate Parliaments were set up for Southern Ireland (26 counties), and Northern Ireland (6 counties)—the two bodies to choose a joint 'Council of Ireland,' consisting of forty members, intended as a connecting link. The Ulster Unionists accepted this scheme, and the Northern Parliament was duly elected on May 24, 1921, and opened by the King in person in the following June.

The Sinn Féin party, however, refused to work the Act, and their elected members assembled in the Dublin Mansion House and again proclaimed the Republic, with Mr. Edmond de Valera as President. A period of complete chaos followed. The British Government declared the Irish Parliament—Dail Eireann—to be an illegal body, made many arrests, suppressed newspapers, and seized the offices, books, papers and funds of the Sinn Féin Association. Sinn Féin, in its turn, formed a body calling itself the Irish Republican Army, and carried on a guerrilla war accompanied by outrage and assassination. At length, after much bloodshed and destruction of property, a truce was declared on July 7, and the British Government and the Government of the Irish 'Republic' each appointed a Delegation for the purpose of discussing a settlement. After prolonged negotiations eighteen Articles of Agreement were drawn up and duly signed on December 6, 1921, subject to their ratification by Parliament and by Dail Eireann.

To prevent the delay involved in the drafting and passing of an Act of Parliament, and the further risk of another outbreak, it was provided that the articles should be at once adopted by both bodies, and a Provisional Government set up in Ireland to carry on for a period not exceeding twelve months, until a legal Administration was ready to take its place. The discussion in the Dail was prolonged and acrimonious, but the Articles were ultimately adopted on January 7, 1922, by a narrow majority. In consequence of this vote Mr. de Valera resigned his office of President, and Mr. Arthur Griffith was elected in his place. On January 16 the Provisional Government was constituted as follows:—

Finance and General.—Micheal O Coileain (Michael Collins).

Home Affairs.—Eamon O Dugain (Edmund Dugan).

Foreign Affairs.—Gavan Duffy.

Economic Affairs.—Caoimhghin O Huigin (Kevin Higgins).

Labour.—Seosamh Mag Crait (Joseph McGrath).

Agriculture.—Padraig O Hogain (Patrick Hogan).

Education.—Fionan O Loingsigh (Finan Lynch).

Local Government.—Liam T. Maccosgair (William Cosgrave).

Secretariat.—Diarmuid O Hegarty (Dermot Hegarty).

General Post Office.—J. J. Walsh.

The old Irish Government, Lord FitzAlan as Lord Lieutenant representing the King, at once recognised the Provisional Government, handed over the public offices at Dublin Castle, and took steps for the transfer by Orders in Council of the necessary powers. The ratifying Act (the Irish Free State (Agreement) Act) required for the legal establishment of the Irish Government, and the Act embodying the terms of the new Irish Free State Constitution, will, it is expected, be passed in the course of the present year.

The Bank of Ireland has been appointed the official banker of the Irish Government.

The outline laid down in the Articles of Agreement and approved by both sides, contains the following provisions:—

Ireland to have the status 'in the community of nations known as the British Empire' of a Self-Governing Dominion and to be called the Irish Free State.

Its position in relation to the Imperial Parliament and Government to be that of the Dominion of Canada, and the representative of the crown in Ireland to be appointed in like manner as the Governor-General of Canada.

The share of the Free State in the debt of the United Kingdom and other charges to be determined, in default of agreement, by 'one or more independent persons being citizens of the British Empire.'

The Irish Free State to undertake its own coastal defence, the defence by sea of Great Britain and Ireland being undertaken by the Imperial forces: these provisions to be reviewed at the expiration of five years. The Free State to afford in time of 'war or strained relations' with other powers, such harbour and other facilities as the British Government may require. Ireland may establish a military defence force proportionate to its population.

The ports of Great Britain and of Ireland to be freely open to the ships of "the other country" on payment of the customary dues.

For one month after the passing of the Act of Parliament constituting the Irish Free State, that State to exercise no powers in respect of Northern Ireland; and if before the expiration of such month both Houses of the Parliament of Northern Ireland pass a resolution to the effect that the powers of the Free State shall not extend to Northern Ireland, then the provisions of the Act of 1920 shall continue to be of full power and effect so far as they relate to Northern Ireland, subject to any necessary modifications. In this case a Commission shall be appointed to determine "in accordance with the wishes of the inhabitants, so far as may be compatible with economic and geographic conditions" the true boundary between Northern Ireland and the Irish Free State.

NORTHERN IRELAND (See also p. 7 below).

THE Northern Parliament has already declared its intention to maintain its separate existence under the Act of 1920. Under that Act the Government of the territory comprising the six counties of Down, Antrim, Londonderry, Armagh, Tyrone and Fermanagh is entrusted to a Parliament "consisting of His Majesty, the Senate of Northern Ireland, and the House of Commons of Northern Ireland." This Parliament met for the first time in June, 1921, and a Ministry was formed, all necessary powers being transferred from the Imperial to the Local Government by Orders in Council. The Ministry is constituted as follows:—

Prime Minister.—Rt. Hon. Sir James Craig, Bt.

Finance.—Rt. Hon. H. M. Pollock.

Home Affairs.—Rt. Hon. Sir R. Dawson Bates.

Labour.—Rt. Hon. J. M. Andrews.

Education.—Rt. Hon. the Marquis of Londonderry.

Agriculture and Commerce.—Rt. Hon. E. M. Archdale.

The Lord Chief Justice of Northern Ireland is the Rt. Hon. Denis Henry.

Under the Act of 1920 the contribution of Northern Ireland to the Imperial Revenue is fixed for two years at the sum of £7,920,000 a year, subject after that to quinquennial revision by a Joint Exchequer Board. No statement of Income and Expenditure has yet (March, 1922) been presented by either the Northern or the Southern Finance Minister.

The powers of the Parliament and Government of Northern Ireland are wholly domestic. It has no power to deal with or to alter the Imperial regulations relating to such matters as naturalisation, domicile, trade with any place outside Northern Ireland, merchant shipping, coinage, legal tender, negotiable instruments, weights and measures, trade marks, copyright or patents.

The Government of the Irish Free State has all the powers of a Self-Governing Dominion.

For further information of the 1920 Act, see p. 7 below.

The League of Nations is an association of States which have pledged themselves, through signing the Covenant (i.e., the constitution of the League) [For the text of the Covenant, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1921, page xxviii], not to go to war before submitting their disputes with each other or States not members of the League to arbitration and a delay of from three to nine months. Furthermore, any State violating this pledge is automatically in a state of outlawry with the other States, which are bound to sever all economic and political relations with the defaulting member. The States members of the League have pledged themselves to co-operate over a wide range of economic, social, humanitarian and labour questions.

The League of Nations formally came into existence on January 10, 1920, through the coming into force at that date of the Treaty of Versailles. The two official languages of the League are English and French. The seat of the League is Geneva, Switzerland.

I. MEMBERSHIP.

The following 29 States became original members of the League owing to ratification of one or other of the Peace Treaties:—

AUSTRALIA	January 10, 1920	JAPAN	January 10, 1920
BELGIUM	" "	LIBERIA	June 30, "
BOLIVIA	" "	NEW ZEALAND	January 10, "
BRAZIL	" "	NICARAGUA	November 3, "
CANADA	" "	PANAMA	January 9, "
CHINA	July 16, "	PERU	" 10, "
CUBA	March 8, "	POLAND	" " "
CZECHOSLOVAKIA	January 13, "	PORTUGAL	April 8, "
FRANCE	" "	RUMANIA	" " "
GREECE	March 30, "	SERB-CROAT-SLOVENE STATE	February 10, "
GUATEMALA	January 10, "	SIAM	January 10, "
HAITI	June 30, "	SOUTH AFRICA	" " "
HONDURAS	November 3, "	UNITED KINGDOM	" " "
INDIA	January 10, "	URUGUAY	" " "
ITALY	" "

The following 23 States became original members through accession to the Covenant under the invitation contained in the annex to the Covenant:—

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC ¹	July 18, 1919	PERSIA	November 21, 1919
CHILE	November 4, "	SAN SALVADOR	March 10, 1920
COLOMBIA	February 16, 1920	SPAIN	January 10, "
DENMARK ¹	March 8, "	SWEDEN	March 9, "
HOLLAND	" 9, "	SWITZERLAND	" 8, "
NORWAY	" 5, "	VENEZUELA	" 3, "
PARAGUAY	December 26, 1919

On December 16, 1920, the first Assembly admitted the following six States to membership of the League:—

ALBANIA ²	December 16, 1920	COSTA RICA	December 16, 1920
AUSTRIA	" "	FINLAND ²	" "
BELGARIA	" "	LUXEMBURG	" "

On September 22, 1921, the second Assembly admitted the following three States to membership of the League:—

ESTHONIA ²	September 22, 1921	LITHUANIA ²	September 22, 1921
LATVIA ²	" "

¹ The League, therefore, now numbers 51 States.³

II. PRIMARY ORGANS.

(a) COUNCIL AND ASSEMBLY.

The primary organs of the League are the Council, Assembly and Secretariat. The Council consists of the Great Powers members of the League, i. e. France, Great Britain, Italy and Japan, and four other powers selected by the Assembly—at present Belgium, Brazil, China and Spain. Each power has one representative and one vote on the Council. All the members of the League have one vote and not more than three representatives in the Assembly of the League. The members of the Council and Assembly act as the representatives of their Governments. Both the Council and Assembly may deal at their meetings 'with any matter within the sphere of action of the League or affecting the peace of the world.' Members of the League must submit disputes to the Council of the Assembly.

Resolutions of the Assembly or Council must be unanimous, except on matters of procedure (voted by a simple majority), the admission of new members (two-thirds majority of the Assembly), and amendments to the Covenant (a three-fourths majority of the Assembly, including all the members of the Council). The Council must meet at least once a year, and has in practice met 16 times during the last two years of the League's existence. The first Assembly decided that the Assembly was to meet on the first Monday in every September, and the second Assembly accordingly met on September 5, 1921.

The Council and Assembly are two independent bodies, with many common and some distinct functions. The Covenant has left their relations undefined, to be adjusted in practice, but in general it may be said that the Council is an executive and initiative organ, and the Assembly a deliberative body, controlling and laying down the lines of general League policy.

The members of the Council are:

- (Temporary) M. Paul Hymans (Belgium), ex-Minister for Foreign Affairs.
- (Temporary) M. Gastão da Cunha (Brazil), Ambassador to Paris.
- (Temporary) Mr. Wellington Koo (China), Minister to London.
- (Permanent) M. Léon Bourgeois (France), President of the Senate.
- (Permanent) Sir Arthur J. Balfour, K.G. (Great Britain), ex-Prime Minister, ex-Foreign Minister, President of the Privy Council.
- (Permanent) The Marquis Imperiali (Italy), ex-Ambassador to London, Senator.
- (Permanent) Viscount K. Ishii (Japan), Ambassador to Paris.
- (Temporary) M. Quinones de León (Spain), Ambassador to Paris.

¹ The delegation of the Argentine Republic did not attend the second Assembly and withdrew from the first Assembly upon the latter's decision to refer the amendment to Article 1 of the Covenant proposed by the Argentine, for study by a committee that was to report to the second Assembly. The Argentine Government has not given notice of an intention to leave the League, and appears to regard itself as in a state of suspended or passive membership, to continue until some measure regarded as a satisfactory equivalent to the amendment proposed by the Argentine has been adopted by the League.

² Signed the treaties concerning protection of national minorities as a condition of their entry into the League.

³ The following States are not yet members of the League:—United States, Germany, Russia, Turkey, Egypt, Hungary, Ecuador, Mexico.

(b) SECRETARIAT-GENERAL.

The Secretariat-General is a permanent body of officials, appointed by and responsible to the Secretary-General, and constituting a sort of international Civil Service. The Secretariat acts as a link between the various organs of the League. The Secretariat is responsible for the archives of the League, collects the information, makes all the arrangements for, and prepares the agenda of the meetings of all League bodies, and watches over the execution of the decisions taken at these meetings. The Secretariat numbers 350 men and women. The present Secretary-General (appointed under the annex to the Covenant) is Sir James Eric Drummond, K.C.M.G., C.B. There are three Under-Secretaries-General: M. Jean Monnet (French, 1 Deputy Secretary-General), Professor B. Attolico (Italian), and Dr. Inazo Nitobé (Japanese); seven Directors of Sections: Sir Herbert Ames (Canadian), Dr. J. A. van Hamel (Dutch), Mr. F. H. Nixon (English, temporary), M. Pierre Comert and Prof. P. Mantoux (French), M. Erik Colban (Norwegian), and M. W. E. Rappard (Swiss). Three Heads of Departments: 1 French, 1 Polish, 1 Swiss, and 42 Members of Sections, of whom 1 Belgian, 1 Canadian, 1 Chinese, 2 Czech, 2 Danish, 2 Dutch, 8 English, 6 French, 1 Greek, 6 Italian, 1 Japanese, 2 Polish, 3 Spanish, 3 Swedish, 1 Swiss, 2 Yugo-Slav.

III. SECONDARY ORGANS.

The League also includes several secondary organisations, whose purpose it is to prepare and carry on (with the advice and approval of the Council and Assembly, and through the Secretariat) international co-operation in non-political fields. A list of these secondary organisations and their functions is given herewith, but does not include the temporary ad hoc agents and commissions the Council and Assembly have appointed from time to time to carry out a given piece of work or conduct some special investigation or enquiry.

(a) THE TECHNICAL ORGANISATIONS.

These organisations—(1) Economic and Financial, (2) Health, (3) Transit and (4) Labour—are in principle modelled on the League as a whole i.e. each consists of a standing commission (corresponding to the Council, even to the permanent representation on it of the four great powers, members of the League), a plenary conference (corresponding to the Assembly), and a Secretariat, which forms a section of the Secretariat-General. These organisations prepare their own agenda, convoke their own conferences, and communicate the results of their labours to the members of the League. In each instance, however, the Council must first approve the proposed agenda or conference, or communication to a member of the League, subject to an appeal to the Assembly. The Assembly is, in any case, to be informed of all questions dealt with in the interval between its meetings by the Council, either at the initiative of the Council or by request of one of its members or one of the technical organisations.

(1) Provisional Economic and Financial Organisation.

The Provisional, Economic and Financial Organisation was constituted by the first Assembly. Both the Brussels Conference and the first Assembly considered it advisable to wait before putting the work of this organisation on a permanent basis, until the economic and financial outlook of the world became a little clearer and more stable, and meanwhile to appoint a provisional commission to do essential work. This commission has as yet summoned no conference. It is divided into an economic and a financial sub-committee, whose members are respectively:—

Chairman of the Economic and Financial Commission:—

M. Gustave Ador (Switzerland).

Economic Sub-Committee.

M. J. A. BARROZA CARNEIRO (Brazil).
M. HENRI HEER (Switzerland).
M. ADOLPHE JENSEN (Denmark).
M. LE PROF. A. NECULCEA (Rumania).
M. D. SERRUYS (France).
Sir H. LLEWELLYN SMITH, K.C.B. (United Kingdom).
M. T. SEKIBA (Japan).
Dr. LUIGI DELLA TORRE (Italy).
Chevalier FERNAND DE WOUTERS
D'CLINTER (Belgium).

Financial Sub-Committee.

M. J. AVENOL (France).
Comm. C. BIANCHINI (Italy).
Sir B. BLACKETT, K.C.B. (United Kingdom).
Sen. J. FIGUERAS (Spain).
M. OMER LEFRUX (Belgium).
M. A. JANSSEN (Belgium).
M. C. E. TER MEULEN (Holland).
M. SEICHIRO ARAI (Japan).
Dr. WILHEM POSPISIL (Cz. Slov.).
Sir HENRY STRAKOSCH (S. Africa).
M. CARLOS A. TORNUST (Argentina).
M. MARCUS WALLENBERG (Sweden).
M. GLUCKSADT (Denmark).

(2) The Provisional Health Organisation

The Provisional Health Organisation was also created by the first Assembly. It was originally proposed that the members of the Health Committee should be chosen by the members of the Office International de l'Hygiène Publique, with headquarters in Paris, i.e. that the Office International should serve as the general conference of the Health Organisation. As, however, the Office International was set up in virtue of the Rome Convention of 1907, and as the Convention stipulates that any changes in its constitution or working can only take place with the unanimous consent of all the signatory powers, it was necessary first to obtain this consent. The United States, however, refused its consent, and it was therefore found impossible to carry out the original plan. Instead, the Council has appointed a Provisional Health Committee, most of whose members are also members of the Office International, thus securing the co-operation desired between the old and new international health organisations. The Health Organisation has a secretariat with a Medical Director, Dr. L. Rajchman, constituting a section of the Secretariat-General. The members of the Committee, presided over by Professor Th. Madsen, Director of the State Institute of Serotherapy, Copenhagen, are:

Sir George Buchanan—Vice-Chairman—Senior Medical Officer, British Ministry of Health, London.

Dr. Léon Bernard, Professor of the Faculty of Medicine of Paris.

Professor Calmette, Institut Pasteur, Paris.

Dr. Carozzi, Medical Director, International Labour Office.

Sir Havelock Charles, President of the Medical Board for India.

Dr. Chodzko, Minister of Health, Poland.

Dr. Lutrario, Director-General, Italian Public Health Service.

Dr. Miyajima, Kitasato Institute for Infectious Diseases, Tokio.

Dr. Pulido, President of the Royal Council of Public Health, Spain.

M. C. Velghe, Director-General of the Belgian Public Health Service.

Professor Santoliquido, League of Red Cross Societies.

(3) The Advisory Organisation on Transit and Communications

The Advisory Organisation on Transit and Communications has received its final form and been put upon a permanent basis. This organisation held a conference at Barcelona in March and April, 1920, where the Advisory Commission was elected. The elected members of this Commission (the Great Powers members of the League being permanently represented) are the representatives of Belgium, Brazil, Chile, China, Cuba, Denmark, Estonia, Holland, Poland, Spain, Switzerland. This Commission then invited a Czech railway expert to be its adviser on railway matters, and is about to invite a representative from a Danube riparian state to act in a similar capacity on waterways. The members of this Commission are:—

M. VAN EYSINGA, Professor at the University of Leyden; Member of the Central Rhine Committee. (Holland.)

M. SIEVENARD, Member of the Belgian Delegation of the Central Rhine Committee. (Belgium.)

M. MONTAKROFOS, Engineer, former Captain of the General Staff. (Brazil.)

M. FRANCISCO AMUNATEGUI, Secretary-General of the Mixed Courts of Arbitration. (Chile.)

Dr. CHOU-WEI, Civil Engineer. (China.)

M. AGUERO, Minister to Berlin. (Cuba.)

M. COLDING, Departmental Head at the Ministry of Public Works. (Denmark.)

Colonel BALDWIN, British Representative on the Waterways Commissions. (British Empire.)

M. BROCKMANN, Inspector-General of Roads and Bridges. (Spain.)

M. PUSTA, Estonian Minister to Paris. (Estonia.)

M. CHARGÉAUD, Inspector-General of Bridges and Roads, President of the Rhine Commission. (France.)

M. SINIGALIA, Chief Inspector of Railways, Italian Representative on the Waterways Commission. (Italy.)

Dr. SATAKE, former Director-General to the Ministry of Railways. (Japan.)

M. WIENIARSKI, former Professor at the University of Poznan. (Poland.)

M. HEROLD, Director of the Toggenburg Railways, Privat-Docent at the University of Zurich. (Switzerland.)

M. FERNANDEZ Y MEDINA, Uruguayan Minister to Spain. (Uruguay.)

(4) The International Labour Office

The International Labour Office is a part of the League of Nations. Its budget is controlled by the Assembly, but it has its own constitution in Section XIII of the Versailles Treaty, its own Governing Board and Secretariat, and calls its own conferences and arranges its work independently of the other League organs. It deals with all questions concerning Labour (see below).

(b) PERMANENT ADVISORY COMMISSIONS.

Under Articles 9 and 22 of the Covenant the Council of the League is charged with constituting permanent Commissions to advise it in formulating plans for the reduction of armaments and to receive and examine reports of mandatory powers and advise the Council on all matters relating to Mandates. Under Article 23, pars. (c) and (d) the Members of the League undertake to entrust the League with the general supervision over the execution of agreements with regard to the traffic in women and children, the traffic in opium and dangerous drugs, and the trade in arms and ammunition in the countries where the control of the traffic is necessary in the common interest.

(1) Permanent Military, Naval and Air Commission.

The Council accordingly set up (1) in July, 1920, the Permanent Military, Naval and Air Commission, under Art. 9 of the Covenant. The representatives of this Commission are appointed by the Governments represented on the Council, and the Commission has its own Secretariat, consisting of three officers. The Commission is to advise the Council on the military position and requirements of States seeking admission to the League (Art. 1 of the Covenant), as well as to assist in gathering information and drawing up a plan for reduction of armaments (Art. 8) and control of the traffic in arms. It also gives the Council expert advice on such questions as, e.g., the defence of Danzig, a 'port d'attache' for Poland, and the constitution and composition of the body to be set up by the League under the Peace Treaties to ascertain whether the armaments of the ex-enemy Powers conform to the conditions laid down by those Peace Treaties.

(2) Temporary Mixed Commission.

In January, 1921, a temporary mixed commission, in compliance with a resolution of the First Assembly requesting the appointment of a commission 'composed of persons possessing the requisite competence in matters of political, social and economic nature' to prepare plans for a reduction of armaments. The Council appointed six 'civilian' members to this commission. Six officers were appointed from the Permanent Military, Naval and Air Commission, two economists and two financiers from the Economic and Financial Sub-Committees, and three labour and three employers' representatives from the International Labour Office. The Commission is divided into three Sub-Committees, dealing respectively with (1) Private manufacture of munitions and war material; control of the arms traffic. (2) Right of investigation and mutual checking of the information supplied by Members of the League; draft amendments to Articles 8 and 9 of the Covenant. (3) Compilation of statistics on the armaments and money spent on armaments of all countries.

(3) Mandates Commission.

The Permanent Mandates Commission, which met for the first time in October, 1921, was appointed by the Council under Art. 22 of the Covenant, and at the suggestion of the First Assembly is composed of the representatives of 4 mandatory and 5 non-mandatory Powers. One member of the Commission is a woman, and none may hold any official position in their own countries. The Commission is to receive the annual reports of the mandatory Powers and to assist and advise the Council in its task of supervising the administration of the mandates. The members of the Commission are:—

H. E. M. FREIRE D'ANDRADE. (Portugal.)
 H. E. M. BEAU. (France.)
 The Hon. W. ORMSBY-GORE, M.P. (Great Britain.)
 H. E. M. RAMON PISA. (Spain.)
 H. E. VAN REEK. (Holland.)
 H. E. MARQUIS ALBERTO THEODOLI. (Italy.)
 MME. ANNA BUGGE-WICKSELL. (Sweden.)
 H. E. M. KUNIO YANAGIDA. (Japan.)

(4) Opium Commission.

An Advisory Commission on the regulation of the traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs, appointed by the Council in accordance with para. (c) of Article 23 of the Covenant and consisting, in accordance with a resolution of the First Assembly, of representatives of the countries chiefly concerned in the opium traffic, namely China, France, Great Britain, Holland, India, Japan, Portugal and Siam. The task of this Commission is to advise the Council in exercising supervision over the execution of International Agreements for regulating the opium and drugs traffic, as well as in initiating measures for rendering such agreements more efficient.

(a) Social Commission.

At its Meeting of January 9, 1922, the Council appointed an Advisory Commission to aid it in supervising the execution of International Agreements for the suppression of the traffic in women and children, and in initiating measures for the improvement of such agreements.

(c) INTERNATIONAL BUREAUX.

Article 21 of the Covenant declares that all International Bureaux or Commissions established by Treaties or Conventions shall be put under the auspices of the League if the signatory parties so desire. The Council has declared itself willing to treat international organisations not established by conventions in a similar manner, provided again that the Governments concerned so desire, and after an enquiry by the Secretariat. The patronage of the League in these cases means that subject to the advice and approval of the Council and Assembly on the steps contemplated, the machinery of the League is at the disposal of these bureaux for the collection and dissemination of information and for making recommendations to the Governments Members of the League. So far, three already existing International Bureaux have applied to the League. The Council is also, at the request of the Second Assembly, about to set up a Commission on Intellectual Co-operation.

(1) The International Hydrographic Bureau.

The International Hydrographic Bureau was founded in 1913 by the International Hydrographic Conference Committee in London, and came under the League on October 2, 1921. The object of the Bureau is to establish co-operation between the work of the various national hydrographic offices, by the exchange of information, standardisation of maps, lighting and buoy systems, etc.

(2) The International Relief Bureau.

The International Relief Bureau (Bureau International d'Assistance) was founded in 1907 by the International Committee of the Congresses of Public and Private Relief, with its seat in Paris, and came under the League on June 27, 1921. The Bureau (1) Works in favour of International Treaties on reciprocity in charitable relief to indigent foreigners, and (2) Co-operates with Governments with a view to ensuring that Treaties of this kind are executed.

(3) The International Institute of Commerce.

The Belgian Government has asked that the International Institute of Commerce should be recognised as an organ of the League of Nations for the collection of commercial and economic statistics and documents. The Council has invited the Economic and Financial Commission to give an opinion concerning this organisation. The Institute was founded in 1919 by the Inter-Parliamentary Commercial Conference and placed under the patronage of the King of the Belgians. The object of the Institute is to centralise, co-ordinate, and publish information regarding commercial statistics and legislation.

(4) Committee on Intellectual Co-operation.

The Second Assembly requested the Council to 'nominate a Committee to examine international questions regarding intellectual co-operation, this Committee to consist of not more than twelve members and to contain both men and women.' This Committee will study questions such as the exchange of scientific information—as e.g. the publication of the results of research in a systematic and organised manner, and intellectual exchange between nations in general.

(d) ADMINISTRATIVE ORGANISATIONS.

Under the Versailles Treaty the League is entrusted with the administration of the Saar Basin, and with the protection of the Free City of Danzig and the guarantee of its Constitution, which has been drawn up by the inhabitants of Danzig in collaboration with the League's High Commissioner, and with the advice and approval of the Council.

(1) Saar Governing Committee.

In February, 1920, the Council appointed five members of the Saar Governing Commission, which is to administer the territory of the Saar for fifteen years, after which the inhabitants will decide by a plebiscite whether they wish to return to Germany; to become French, or to retain their present status. The Saar Territory is 220 square miles in extent, and has some 700,000 inhabitants. It is an important railway centre and has large coal-mines, which are now owned by the French Government. This Government has large powers in connection with their exploitation, and the Saar Territory is subject to the French customs régime. No restriction may be imposed upon the circulation of French currency in the Territory. The inhabitants, however, retain their German nationality, and civil, linguistic, and religious liberties; German law is still the law of the Territory. The Commission has no power in these questions except in consultation with and by the approval of elected representatives of the population. With these restrictions, however, the Governing Commission is sovereign in the Territory. Its seat is at Saarbrücken, the largest town in the Territory. The Members of the Commission are appointed for one year, as follows:—

M. Rault, Chairman (French): Interior, Foreign Affairs, Commerce, Industry, Labour.

Dr. Hector (Saar): Agriculture, Health, Social Insurance.

M. Laubert (Belgium): Public Works, Railways, Postal and Telegraph Service.

Count von Moltke Huitfeldt (Denmark): Public Education, Ecclesiastical Matters, Charities, Justice.

Mr. Waugh (Canada): Food Supply and Finance.

(2) Free City of Danzig.

The present High Commissioner of the League in Danzig is the British General Haking. The High Commissioner is appointed by and responsible to the Council. His chief duty is to act as mediator in differences between Poland and the Free City, subject to an appeal to the Council, whose decision is final. The administration of the city is conducted by a Senate and an Assembly, elected by the inhabitants, on the basis of a constitution drawn up by the inhabitants in collaboration with the High Commissioner and with the advice and approval of the Council. The High Commissioner is appointed for one year.

IV. THE INTERNATIONAL COURT.

The Permanent International Court of Justice is in importance a primary organ of the League, equal to the Council, Assembly, and Secretariat-General. It is intended to be that in partial, impersonal, permanent, judicial organ, the embodiment of the idea of law, that has always been felt to be essential to any scheme for promoting international co-operation and the peaceful settlement of international disputes, as well as for the codification, enlargement, and strengthening of International Law.

The Second Assembly and Council elected eleven Judges and four Deputy Judges from a list of eighty nominees made up of candidates designated by the panels of arbiters of the States Members of the Hague Court of Arbitration, or by bodies composed in a similar manner. The mode of election requires the Council and Assembly to vote separately; a candidate to be elected must obtain an absolute majority in both the Assembly and the Council.

The Court as at present constituted has not compulsory jurisdiction, except by virtue of any existing international arrangements that may confer upon it such jurisdiction; but there is an optional clause attached to the Statute of the Court, which the United States of America and any Member of the League may accept and thereby pledge itself to compulsory jurisdiction on all or on a series of specially defined disputes of a legal nature, with States which are also parties to the optional clause.

Any question may be referred to the Court provided the States concerned agree to do so. The Council or Assembly may also refer any question to the Court for a legal opinion and States Members of the League are in any case pledged under the Covenant, as amended by the Second Assembly, to refer disputes with each other or an outside Power either to the Council or Assembly, or to arbitration tribunals set up by special agreements, or, finally to the Court. The decisions of the Court will, when necessary, be backed up by the joint authority of the Assembly and Council.

The Seat of the Court is at the Hague. The Court began a preliminary session on January 30th, 1922, while the first regular session opened on June 1st, 1922. The Judges and Deputy Judges of the Court are as follows:—

JUDGES.
Senator Rafael Altamira	Spain
Professor Dionisio Anzilotti	Italy
Senator Ruy Barbosa	Brazil
Professor Antonio S. de Bustamante	Cuba
Robert Ballantyne, Viscount Finlay, G.C.M.G., P.C., K.C., LL.D., D.L.	Great Britain
Professor Max Huber	Switzerland
Dr. B. C. J. Loder	Holland
Professor John Bassett Moore	United States
Judge Didrik Gjaltrup Gjedde Nyholm	Denmark
Dr. Yonosu Oda	Japan
Professor Charles André Weiss	France

DEPUTY JUDGES.
Judge Frederiek Waldemar Nikolai Beichmann	Norway
Professor Demetre Negulesco	Rumania
Judge Wang Chung Hai	China
Judge Michael Vovanovich	Serb-Croat-Slovene State

In addition to the Judges and Deputy Judges, the Court will have at its disposal two panels of assessors to advise it on technical points arising out of Labour, Transit, and Communications questions. (The Peace Treaties in many instances constitute the International Court the final authority with compulsory jurisdiction in disputes that may arise over the interpretation of the Labour clauses and Transit and Communications clauses these Treaties contain.) The Labour panel is constituted by the nomination by each Government Member of the League of two assessors, and by the International Labour Office of one Employers' and one Labour representative from each State Member of the League. The Transit and Communications panel is composed of persons nominated, to the number of two each, by the Governments Members of the League. The method by which the necessary number of assessors will be selected from these panels to advise on any given case will be determined by the Court, probably in its preliminary session.

The eighteen States parties to the optional clause concerning compulsory jurisdiction are: Brazil, Bulgaria, China, Costa Rica, Denmark, Finland, Haiti, Holland, Liberia, Lithuania, Luxemburg, Norway, Panama, Portugal, San Salvador, Sweden, Switzerland, Uruguay. The acceptance of e.g. Brazil is conditional upon one of the Great Powers also becoming a party to this clause.

THE INTERNATIONAL LABOUR ORGANISATION.

Presidents of the General Conference:—

- 1919 Washington.—The Hon. W. B. Wilson, Secretary of Labour, U.S.A.
 1920 Genoa.—Baron Mayor des Planches (Italy).
 1921 Geneva.—Viscount Burnham (Great Britain).

Chairman of the Governing Body—Mr. Arthur Fontaine (France).

Director of the International Labour Office.—Mr. Albert Thomas.

Deputy-Director of the International Labour Office.—Mr. H. B. Butler, C.B.

I. ORGANISATION.

Composition.—The composition of the International Labour Organisation is in principle identical with that of the League of Nations; but one State, Germany, which is not at present a member of the League, has been admitted to membership of the Organisation. At the present time there are 54 States Members of the Organisation. Only two great States are not members, Russia and the United States of America.

Constitution and Functions.—The organisation was created by the Treaty of Versailles as a necessary measure for "the establishment of universal peace" which "can be established only if it is based upon social justice." It consists of a General Conference of Representatives of the Members which meets at least annually, and has now held three Sessions, and of an International Labour Office, controlled by a Governing Body of 24 persons, nominated partly by the Governments of the States Members and partly by the employers' and workers' delegates to the Conference. The functions of the Office, as laid down in Part XIII of the Treaty, include "the collection and distribution of information on all subjects relating to the international adjustment of conditions of industrial life and labour, and particularly the examination of subjects which it is proposed to bring before the Conference with a view to the conclusion of international conventions, and the conduct of such special investigations as may be ordered by the Conference." In addition it is charged with the publication of a periodical paper and with any other duties which the Conference may assign to it.

Relation to the League of Nations.—The International Labour Office may be described as semi-autonomous. It forms an integral part of the whole organisation of the League, but it is independent of any control, except in finance. Its budget is voted by the Assembly of the League, but the contributions of the States Members of the International Labour Organisation are paid directly to the International Labour Office by the Secretariat of the League, which is responsible for their collection. The manner in which the Office and the League collaborate is referred to below.

Internal Organisation.—The Office was established in Paris in January 1920, and was then transferred to London. Mr. Albert Thomas was appointed Director. At the close of the Genoa Session of the Conference in July 1920 the Office moved to Geneva.

The organisation of the Office up to the end of 1921 may be briefly described as follows. It consisted of a Cabinet immediately under the Director, of central services such as registry, staff branch, finance, translation, typing, etc., under the Deputy-Director, and of two Divisions, the Diplomatic and Scientific Divisions. The Diplomatic Division is concerned with the preparation and organisation of the Sessions of the Conference and with the application of the decisions there made. The Scientific Division is responsible for publications and for general intelligence. In addition, there are at present eight technical services which endeavour to collect and analyse all the existing information on their special subjects. The choice of these subjects is mainly dictated either by the Resolutions of the Conference or by the Agenda of forthcoming Sessions.

II. INTERNATIONAL LABOUR LEGISLATION.

The General Conference.—The decisions of the Conference take the form either of Draft Conventions or of Recommendations. Both require for final adoption a majority of two-thirds of the votes cast. The Members of the Organisation undertake to bring decisions so adopted before "the authority within whose competence the matter lies" within one year, or in no case later than eighteen months, from the closing of the Session of the Conference. The First Session of the Conference, held at Washington in 1919, resulted in six Draft Conventions and six Recommendations; the Second Session held at Genoa in 1920, in three Draft Conventions and four Recommendations; and the Third Session, held in Geneva in October and November 1921, in seven Draft Conventions and eight Recommendations.

Washington.—(i) The most far-reaching decision of the Washington Conference is the Draft Convention limiting the hours of work in industrial undertakings to eight in the day and forty-eight in the week.

(ii) Two decisions concerning unemployment were adopted, a Draft Convention and a Recommendation. The essential points of the Convention and Recommendation are the provision of statistics, the finding of employment, the collective recruiting of foreign workers, unemployment insurance, and public works to provide against unemployment. In connection with this question the International Emigration Commission should be mentioned. It was established by a Resolution of the Washington Conference, and met in August, 1921, under the chairmanship of Lord Ullswater. Its Report was presented to the Geneva Conference. No question concerning emigration was upon the Agenda, but the Session of 1922 may be called upon to deal with the problem.

(iii) The Draft Convention concerning employment of women during the night was based upon the Berne Convention of 1906 upon the same subject, but without the limitations and exceptions which the latter permitted.

(iv) The protection of women-workers was also increased by the Draft Convention concerning the employment of women before and after childbirth.

(v) Four States have already ratified the Draft Convention fixing the minimum age for the admission of children to industrial employment and steps towards ratification have been taken by eight others.

(vi) The Draft Convention concerning the night-work of young persons employed in industry is a necessary corollary to that fixing the minimum age.

(vii) Action on the Recommendation concerning the protection of women and children against lead-poisoning has been taken by Great Britain and the Netherlands. Several other countries have introduced Bills to give effect to its provisions.

(viii) The Recommendation concerning the establishment of Government health services has also been carried out by several States and is under investigation in others.

(ix) A Convention prohibiting the use of white phosphorus in the manufacture of matches was signed by five States at Berne in 1906. By 1914 only seven other States had notified their adherence. The Washington Conference therefore adopted a Recommendation that all its members who had not done so should adhere without delay. As a result, the adherence of ten States has been notified, while Greece and Japan have passed Acts prohibiting the use of white phosphorus in match manufacture.

Genoa.—The 1920 Session of the Conference dealt solely with maritime questions, some of which concerned the application of the Washington decisions to maritime labour, including (i) the Draft Convention fixing the minimum age for admission of children to employment at sea.

(ii) The Draft Convention for establishing facilities for finding employment for seamen.

(iii) The Draft Convention concerning unemployment indemnity in case of loss or foundering of the ship.

(iv) The Recommendation concerning unemployment insurance for seamen.

(v) The Recommendation concerning the establishment of national seamen's codes.

Geneva.—The Third Session of the Conference was held from October 25 to November 19, 1921. 39 countries were represented by 118 delegates, of whom 68 represented the Governments, 25 the employers and 25 the workers.

The most important decisions of the Conference were:—

(i) The Draft Convention concerning the age for admission of children to employment in agriculture.

(ii) The Draft Convention concerning the rights of association and combination for agricultural workers places agriculture on the same footing as industry in this respect.

(iii) The Draft Convention concerning workmen's compensation in agriculture extends to agricultural workers any existing provisions for compensation of workers for accident arising out of their employment.

(iv) The remaining agricultural decisions are seven Recommendations concerning:—

The prevention of unemployment in agriculture.

The protection, before and after childbirth, of women wage-earners in agriculture.

Night-work of women in agriculture.

Night-work of children and young persons in agriculture.

The development of technical agricultural education.

Living-in conditions of agricultural workers.

Social insurance in agriculture.

(v) The Draft Convention concerning the use of white lead in painting.

(vi) Weekly rest was dealt with by a Draft Convention and a Recommendation. The Draft Convention concerning the application of the weekly rest in industrial undertakings and in commercial establishments provides for a rest of at least twenty-four consecutive hours every seven days.

(vii) The Draft Convention fixing the minimum age for the admission of young persons to employment as trimmers and stokers prohibits the employment of boys under 18 years of age as trimmers or stokers, except on training ships and in the coastal trade of India and Japan.

(viii) The Draft Convention concerning the compulsory medical examination of children and young persons employed at sea.

III. COLLECTION OF INFORMATION.

National Correspondents.—Five National Correspondents' Offices now exist, in London, Paris, Rome, Washington and Berlin, the last of which was established during 1921.

Library.—The Library of the International Labour Office was originally formed by the purchase of the library of the Basle Office set up by the International Association for Labour Legislation. The catalogue at present contains about 150,000 publications in twenty-four languages. Of these about 15,000 came from Basle.

Intelligence Section.—Information from the Press and periodicals is collected and analysed according to countries by a special service, which also distributes the information so acquired.

Statistical Section.—This Section is not yet fully constituted. It is intended not only to collect statistical information, but also to work out standard methods of presenting statistics so that their form may be internationally comparable.

Questionnaires.—In order to obtain information not otherwise accessible, the Office addresses questionnaires to Governments or to employers' or workers' associations.

The Treaty of Peace lays down that the Office shall publish a periodical in French and English. This provision is fulfilled by the following publications:—

(i) The Industrial and Labour Information, published weekly, consists of a summary of the most important current news concerning conditions of labour and other industrial questions. It appears in French and English.

(ii) The Official Bulletin contains official records of the Office and information concerning the ratification of Conventions and international labour legislation in general. It is published weekly in English, French and German.

(iii) The International Labour Review, a monthly publication, began to appear in two languages in January, 1921. It publishes articles prepared in the Office and signed articles from outside contributors, as well as periodical information concerning prices, unemployment, etc.

(iv) Irregular periodical publications are the Studies and Reports, which now number 58, classified in 13 series of subjects of immediate importance from the labour standpoint.

(v) The Legislative Series is the continuation of the publications of the Basle International Labour Office. At present it consists of 286 Acts, Decrees and Administrative Orders, issued in 34 different countries. It is published in English, French and German.

(vi) The Bibliographical Series consisted of general lists of official and non-official publications, printed weekly, or as often as desirable, and of special annotated bibliographies relating to particular subjects.

Apart from these periodical publications, the Office publishes, when necessary, as Special Reports, the results of the special enquiries, which include:—1. Trade Union Conditions in Hungary. 2. Labour Conditions in Soviet Russia. 3. Labour and Production in the Ruhr Coal Field, 1918–1920. 4. The Eight-Hour Day Act and its application to Agriculture in Czechoslovakia. 5. Enquiry concerning the application of the Eight-Hour Day Act in the French Mercantile Marine. 6. Admission of Germany and Austria to the International Labour Organization. 7. Enquiry into Production: Introductory Memorandum.

THE PARTITION OF UPPER SILESIA

On October 10, 1921, there was published the text of the documents on the Partition of Upper Silesia. The report falls into four main parts. In Annexe I the Council of the League of Nations sets out the circumstances in which it undertook its task and the general principles by which it was guided in arriving at its decision. In Annexe II the Council traces the suggested line of demarcation in detail. In Annexe III the Council enumerates the important provisions designed to secure continuity in the life of Upper Silesia after the partition and to reduce to a minimum the difficulties of the period of adaptation. Finally, in Annexe IV the Council sets out its decisions on the rights of nationality and domicile and protection of minorities in Upper Silesia.

The new frontier line traced in Annexe II is shown in the map prefaced to this volume.

In Annexe III provision is made for the administration of the Railways, water and electric power, postal services, customs, etc. The effect of these regulations is to safeguard the economic unity of Upper Silesia, despite its partition politically.

ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

UNITED KINGDOM.

Navy Estimates.—The Navy Estimates for 1922-23 provide for £68,950,000 approx. gross (reduction £22,604,869) and £61,883,700 net (reduction £17,595,300). The personnel is to be reduced to 98,500 as soon as possible.

Washington Disarmament Conference: Naval Clause.—In the schedule of the final draft of the Washington Naval Agreement full details appear of the reduction in the material of the Navy. The four improved 'Hood's' which were to have been built have been abandoned, but authority has been retained to construct two capital ships not exceeding 35,000 tons in displacement. These, according to the scheme, would be laid down in 1922, and completed in 1925, when the King George V., Ajax, Centurion and Thunderer would be scrapped. In this way the standard number of capital ships, 18, would be reached. In all, 18 'Dreadnoughts' have been or will be scrapped by the close of 1922, including the Lion, Princess Royal, Conqueror, Monarch, Orion and Erin, which mount 13·5-in. guns.

Under the agreement no further capital ships (subsequent to the two of 1922) will be laid down until 1931. These, 2 in number, would be completed in 1934, when 5 ships would be scrapped, the total strength being thus reduced to 15. The schedule shows the work intended to be done in building and scrapping ships up to the year 1942.

By other provisions aircraft carriers are to be limited in size and number, and no vessel of war, exceeding 10,000 tons (10,160 metric), other than a capital ship or aircraft carrier, is to be built or acquired, and such ships are to carry no guns exceeding 8-in. calibre. No other limitation is placed on the tonnage or armament of cruisers, flotilla leaders or destroyers. No merchant vessels are to be prepared in time of peace for the installation of warlike armaments, except that their decks may be stiffened for the mounting of guns not exceeding 6-in. calibre.

No agreement was reached on the limitation of the number of submarines. The British Government was willing to abolish the class altogether, but France and other Powers dissented and the proposal was abandoned.

British Submarines.—In pursuance of the policy of reduction the Admiralty placed a number of the older submarines on the sale list, mainly of the E., K., Q. and R. classes. The total number on this list in March 1922 was 35. About 75 boats now remain on the active list.

INDIA.

Bhopal.—This native state is to have a new constitution. An Executive, a Council of State, and a Legislative Council are to be established.

Malabar Native States.—The two States of Travancore and Cochin are to be transferred from the political control of the Madras Government to the Government of India.

Finances (p. 136).—The finances of the Central and Provincial Governments have been completely separated since April 1, 1921. The Central revenues are now mainly derived from opium, salt, customs, income tax, tributes, post office and telegraphs, railways, mint, and military services; and the Provincial revenues are derived from land revenue, stamp, excise, forests, registration, irrigation, and civil departments. Provincial Governments have to contribute to the Central Government, and the amount due for 1921-22 is 9,88 lakhs of rupees.

WU-HAI-WEI.

On February 1, 1922, at a plenary session of the Washington Conference, it was announced that the rest of the Shantung Province having been restored to the complete sovereignty of China under suitable conditions, Great Britain proposed to hand back Wei-hai-wei under like suitable conditions. At the same time, it was stated that no doubt arrangements could be made for the continued use of the place as a sanatorium or summer rest for ships of war, and that H.M. Government would be largely guided in the necessary arrangements by the example of the Sino-Japanese negotiations regarding the Kiaochow leased territory. Subsequently it was mentioned that certain matters of detail must be settled to the satisfaction of both His Majesty's Government and the Chinese Government before the transfer could be effected (p. 181).

FEDERATION OF CENTRAL AMERICA.

Present Situation (April, 1922).—On September 15, 1921, the three republics of Honduras, Guatemala, and San Salvador agreed to form the Federation of Central America by signing the Constitution of the new State. Under the Constitution of the new Republic, the city and department of Tegucigalpa, ceded free to the Union by Honduras, was to become the Federal Capital. The Constitution provided for a Legislature of two Chambers, and for the Federal Council, in which the Executive Power should be vested, to take office on February 1, 1922. But before that date both Guatemala and San Salvador withdrew from the new Confederation. It would seem, therefore, that the three signatory States have reverted back to their former sovereignty and independence.

UPPER SILESIA

THE BURGENLAND SETTLEMENT

PART THE FIRST

THE BRITISH EMPIRE

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

The British Empire consists of:—

- I. THE UNITED KINGDOM (OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND).
- II. INDIA, THE DOMINIONS,¹ COLONIES, PROTECTORATES, AND DEPENDENCIES.

Reigning King and Emperor.

George V. born June 3, 1865; son of King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra, eldest daughter of King Christian IX., of Denmark; married July 6, 1893, to Victoria Mary, born May 26, 1867, daughter of the late Duke of Teck; succeeded to the crown on the death of his father, May 6, 1910.

Living Children of the King.

- I. Edward Albert, Prince of Wales, Duke of Cornwall, Duke of Rothesay, Heir-apparent, born June 23, 1894.
- II. Prince Albert Frederick, Duke of York, born December 14, 1895.
- III. Princess Victoria Alexandra Alice Mary, born April 25, 1897; married Viscount Lascelles, K.G., D.S.O., February 28, 1922.
- IV. Prince Henry William, born March 31, 1900.
- V. Prince George Edward, born December 20, 1902.

Living Sisters of the King.

- I. Princess Louise, Princess Royal, born February 20, 1867; married July 27, 1889, to the late Duke of Fife, who died January 29, 1912. Offspring:—(1) Alexandra Victoria, Duchess of Fife, born May 17, 1891; married October 15, 1913, to Prince Arthur, son of the Duke of Connaught. (2) Maud Alexandra, born April 3, 1893.
- II. Princess Victoria Alexandra, born July 6, 1868.
- III. Princess Maud Charlotte, born November 26, 1869; married July 23, 1896, to Charles, Prince of Denmark, now King Haakon VII. of Norway. Offspring:—Olav, Crown Prince of Norway, born July 2, 1903.

Living Brother and Sisters of the late King.

- I. Princess Helena, born May 25, 1846; married July 5, 1866, to Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein (died October 28, 1917). Living offspring:—Albert John, born Feb. 26, 1869; Lena Victoria, born May 3, 1870; Marie Louise, born Aug. 12, 1872, married to Prince Aribert of Anhalt July 6, 1891; the marriage was dissolved December 13, 1900.
- II. Princess Louise, born March 18, 1848; married March 21, 1871, to John, Marquis of Lorne, who became Duke of Argyll, April 24, 1900, and died May 2, 1914.
- III. Prince Arthur, Duke of Connaught, born May 1, 1850; married March 13, 1879, to Princess Louise of Prussia, born July 25, 1860; died March 14, 1917. Living offspring:—(1) Arthur, born Jan. 13, 1883, married Alexandra Victoria, Duchess of Fife, October 15, 1913; (2) Patricia, born March 17, 1886, married Hon. Alexander R. M. Ramsay, D.S.O., R.N.
- IV. Princess Beatrice, born April 14, 1857; married July 23, 1885, to Prince Henry (died January 20, 1896), third son of Prince Alexander of Hesse. Living offspring:—(1) Alexander Albert, born Nov. 23, 1886, married Lady Irene Denison; (2) Victoria Eugénie, born Oct. 24, 1887; married May 31, 1906, to Alfonso XIII., King of Spain; (3) Leopold Arthur Louis, born May 21, 1889.

The King's legal title rests on the statute of 12 and 13 Will. III. c. 3, by which the succession to the Crown of Great Britain and Ireland was settled on the Princess Sophia of Hanover and the 'heirs of her body being Protestants.' By proclamation of May 9, 1910, under the Royal Titles Act, 1901, the title of the King is declared to be 'George V., by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India.' By proclamation of July 17, 1917, the Royal family became known as the House and Family of Windsor.

By Letters Patent of November 30, 1917, the titles of Royal Highness and Prince or Princess are (except for existing titles) to be restricted to the Sovereign's children, the children of the Sovereign's sons, and the eldest living son of the eldest son of the Prince of Wales.

The Regency Act, 1910 (10 Edw. VII. and 1 Geo. V., ch. 26) appointed Queen Mary to act as regent in the event of the demise of the King and his succession by any of his children under the age of 18 years.

Provision is made for the support of the Royal household by the settlement of the Civil List soon after the commencement of each reign. (For historical details, see YEAR-BOOK for 1908, p. 5.) By Act of 10 Ed. VII. and 1 Geo. V. c. 28 (August 3, 1910), the Civil List of the King, after the usual surrender of hereditary revenues, is fixed at £70,000¹, of which 110,000^l. is appropriated to the privy purse of the King and Queen, 125,800^l. for salaries of the Royal household and retired allowances, 193,000^l. for household expenses, 20,000^l. for works, 13,200^l. for alms and bounty, and 8,000^l. remains unappropriated. The same Civil List Act of 1910 also provides for an annuity of 70,000^l. to Queen Mary in the event of her surviving the King. Should the Prince of Wales marry, the Princess of Wales will receive an annuity of 10,000^l., and should she survive the Prince of Wales, this annuity will be raised to one of 30,000^l. Further, there is to be paid to trustees for the benefit of the King's children (other than the Duke of Cornwall) an annual sum of 10,000^l. in respect of each son (other than the Duke of Cornwall) who attains the age of 21 years, and a further annual sum of 15,000^l. in respect of each such son who marries, and an annuity of 6,000^l. in respect of each daughter who attains the age of 21 or marries. The First Commissioner of the Treasury, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the Keeper of the King's Privy Purse are appointed the Royal Trustees under this Act. Queen Alexandra, the Queen-Mother, receives the annuity of 70,000^l. provided by the Civil List Act of 1901. Civil List pensions may be granted, but are not chargeable on the sum paid for the Civil List. All these payments are charged on the Consolidated Fund, into which the surrendered hereditary revenues are carried. The King has paid to him the revenues of the Duchy of Lancaster, the payments made therefrom in 1920 being 43,000^l. for His Majesty's use.

On the Consolidated Fund are charged likewise the following sums allowed to members of the royal family:—25,000^l. a year to the Duke of Connaught; 6,000^l. to H.R.H. Helena Augusta Victoria (Princess Christian); 6,000^l. to Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll; 6,000^l. to H.R.H. Beatrice Mary Victoria Pedore; 6,000^l. to the Duchess of Albany; and 6,000^l. to each of the late King's daughters.

The Heir Apparent has an income from the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall, the payment in 1920 on his account being 10,000^l.

THE UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND.¹

Constitution and Government,

I. IMPERIAL AND CENTRAL.

The supreme legislative power of the British Empire is vested in Parliament. Parliament is summoned by the writ of the sovereign issued out of Chancery, by advice of the Privy Council, at least twenty days previous to its assembling.

The annual session used to extend from the middle of February to about the middle of August, and only occasionally later, but since 1914 the sittings of Parliament have been interrupted only by comparatively short intervals. Every session must end with a prorogation, and all Bills which have not been passed during the session then lapse. A dissolution may occur by the will of the sovereign, or, as is most usual, during the recess, by proclamation, or finally by lapse of time, the statutory limit of the duration of any Parliament being five years. The life of the last Parliament, beginning in November 1910, should have ended in January, 1916, but was, owing to the war, extended by successive Acts to November, 1918, nearly eight years' duration.

Under the Parliament Act, 1911 (1 and 2 Geo. V, ch. 13), all Money Bills (so certified by the Speaker of the House of Commons), if not passed by the House of Lords without amendment, may become law without their concurrence on the royal assent being signified. Public Bills, other than Money Bills or a Bill extending the maximum duration of Parliament, if passed by the House of Commons in three successive sessions, whether of the same Parliament or not, and rejected each time, or not passed, by the House of Lords, may become law without their concurrence on the royal assent being signified, provided that two years have elapsed between the second reading in the first session of the House of Commons, and the third reading in the third session. All Bills coming under this Act must reach the House of Lords at least one month before the end of the session. Finally, the Parliament Act limited the maximum duration of Parliament to five years instead of seven (but the duration of the last Parliament was specially extended, as stated above).

The present form of Parliament, as divided into two Houses of Legislature, the Lords and the Commons, dates from the middle of the fourteenth century.

The House of Lords consists of peers who hold their seats—(i) by hereditary right; (ii) by creation of the sovereign; (iii) by virtue of office—Law Lords, and English archbishops (2) and bishops (24); (iv) by election for life—Irish peers (28); (v) by election for duration of Parliament—Scottish peers (16). The full house would consist of about 728 members, but the voting strength (in January, 1922) was about 708.

The House of Commons consists of members representing County, Borough, and University constituencies in the three Divisions of the United Kingdom. No one under 21 years of age can be a member of Parliament. Clergymen of the Church of England, ministers of the Church of Scotland, and Roman Catholic clergymen are disqualified from sitting as members; Government contractors, and sheriffs, and returning officers for the localities for which they act, are also among those disqualified.

No English or Scottish peer can be elected to the House of Commons, but non-representative Irish peers are eligible. Under the Parliament (Qualification of Women) Act, 1918, women are also eligible, and the first woman member took her seat in December, 1919.

In August, 1911, by resolution of the House of Commons, provision was first made for the payment of a salary of 400*l.* per year to members, other than those already in receipt of salaries as officers of the House, as Ministers, or as officers of His Majesty's household. Payment began as from April 1, 1911. This provision does not extend to the House of Lords.

Under the Representation of the People Act, 1918, the franchise was revised and extended, several million women and new male voters being enfranchised. Male electors must be of full age (twenty-one years), and have resided, or occupied business premises of an annual value of not less than ten pounds, in the same parliamentary borough or county, or one contiguous thereto, for six months ending on January 15 & July 15 (in Ireland the latter date alone applies). A woman voter must be thirty years of age, and entitled to be registered as a local government elector (or, as regards Scotland, deemed to be so registered) in respect of the occupation of premises of a yearly value of not less than five pounds, or of a dwelling house; or she must be the wife of a husband entitled to be so registered: lodgers in unfurnished, but not furnished, rooms can vote, if otherwise qualified. There is also a University franchise, to be qualified for which a man must be twenty-one years of age, and a woman thirty years, and each must have taken a degree, or, in the case of a woman, have fulfilled the conditions which would entitle a man to a degree. In Scotland and Ireland other scholastic attainments are admitted as qualifications. Male persons who served in the war are entitled to be registered at the age of nineteen years, if otherwise qualified.

No person may vote at a general election for more than two constituencies, for one of which, in the case of a man, there must be a residence qualification, and, in the case of a woman, a local government qualification, her own or her husband's. The second vote must rest on a different qualification.

Disqualified for registration are (among others) infants, peers, idiots and lunatics, aliens, bankrupts; and, for five years after the war, conscientious objectors who have not fulfilled certain conditions as to the performance of war work or other work of national importance. Receipt of poor relief or other alms does not count as a disqualification.

Two registers of electors must be prepared each year, one in the spring, and the other in the autumn, except in Ireland, where only one is required; and the authorised expenses are met by local and State funds in equal parts. University registers may be made up as the governing bodies decide, and a registration fee not exceeding 1*l.* may be charged.

In university constituencies returning two or more members the elections must be according to the principle of proportional representation, each elector having one transferable vote. At a general election all polls must be held on the same day, except in the case of Orkney and Shetland, and of university elections. Provision is made for absent electors to vote, in certain cases by proxy.

Under the same Act the seats in Great Britain were redistributed on the basis of one member of the House of Commons for every 70,000 of the population. By a separate Act, redistribution in Ireland was made on the basis of one for every 43,000 of the population. The total membership of the House of Commons was thereby raised from 670 (as established in 1885) to 707. The establishment of separate governments in Ireland will in due course reduce this number.

The number of persons qualified for registration as parliamentary electors under the Representation of the People Act, 1918, was in 1920 about 21,776,000 (nearly one-half of the population). Women numbered 8,856,000. Prior to this Act the number qualified was about 8,350,000 (all males).

The following is a table of the duration of Parliaments called since the accession of Queen Victoria (for heads of the Administrations see p. 10.)—

The executive government of the United Kingdom is vested nominally in the Crown, but practically in a committee of Ministers, called the Cabinet, whose existence is dependent on the support of a majority in the House of Commons. In November, 1918, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland set up an advisory Council of seven members to advise on matters affecting Ireland.

An Act to establish a separate Parliament in Ireland was passed in 1914, but never came into force. In 1920 this was repealed and a new Act passed, the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, under which two Parliaments were provided for, one for "Northern Ireland" (comprising the parliamentary counties of Antrim, Armagh, Down, Fermanagh, Londonderry, and Tyrone, and the parliamentary boroughs of Belfast and Londonderry), and one for "Southern Ireland" (the rest of the country). The Act duly came into operation in Northern Ireland, and the first Parliament for that area was opened in June, 1921. The Parliament consists of a Senate of 2 ex-officio and 24 elected persons and a House of Commons of 52 elected members. It has power to legislate for its own area except in regard to (1) matters of Imperial concern, and (2) certain matters temporarily "reserved" to the Imperial Parliament (police, postal service, Post Office and Trustee savings banks, designs for stamps, registration of deeds, Public Record Office, land purchase). Certain funds derived from Irish taxation are allocated to the Northern Irish Exchequer, after deduction of (1) a contribution towards Imperial liabilities and expenditure (temporarily fixed at £7,920,000 a year) and (2) the cost of "reserved" services, while the Parliament has certain powers of independent taxation. The executive power is vested in the Lord Lieutenant (appointed for six years), advised by ministers responsible to Parliament. Senators hold office for a fixed term of years: the House of Commons is to continue for five years, unless sooner dissolved. The qualifications for membership of the Parliament are similar to those for membership of the Imperial House of Commons. Northern Ireland is to continue to return 13 members to the latter. In case of a disagreement between the two Houses they are to have a joint sitting and decide the question at issue by an absolute majority. For further information see introductory pages above.

There was also to be established under the 1920 Act a "Council of Ireland," consisting of 40 persons elected in equal numbers by the two Parliaments. This Council was to administer the railways and fisheries, Diseases of Animals Acts, and any powers delegated to it by identical Acts of the two Parliaments, and to consider any questions bearing on the welfare of Ireland and make suggestions in relation thereto to the two Parliaments. The latter were to have power to establish by identical Acts, in lieu of this Council, a

The state of parties in the House of Commons at the end of 1921 was as follows:—Coalition Members: Unionists, 323; Liberals, 120; National Democratic Party, 12; total Coalition, 464. Non-Coalition members: Labour, 69; Unionists, 48; Liberals, 34; Sinn Féiners, 73; Irish Nationalists, 7; others, 12: total Non-Coalition, 243.

CABINETS OF NORTHERN IRELAND AND THE IRISH FREE STATE.

Under the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, a Cabinet for Northern Ireland was appointed in June, 1921, and under the treaty between Great Britain and Southern Ireland constituting the latter a Free State, a Provisional Government was appointed in January, 1922. For the names of the members of these two bodies, and their offices, see introductory pages.

The Northern Irish Government will probably be represented in the Imperial Parliament through the Home Secretary. Meanwhile the Colonial Secretary is dealing with general questions of policy and the relations of the new Governments.

II. LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

England and Wales.—In each county the Crown is represented by H.M. Lieutenant for the county, who is generally also custos rotulorum, or keeper of the records. The recommendation of persons for appointment by the Lord Chancellor as justices of the peace rests with the Lieutenants, but local advisory committees are set up, as and when required, to advise the Lieutenants and the Lord Chancellor on these appointments. The Lieutenants are the presidents of the County Associations formed under the Territorial and Reserve Forces Act, 1907, and their duties as such relate to the organisation, equipping and maintenance of the Territorial Forces. Otherwise their duties are almost nominal. There is also a sheriff, who represents the executive of the Crown, an under-sheriff, a clerk of the peace, coroners, who are appointed and paid by the County Councils, and other officers. The licensing of persons to sell intoxicating liquors, and the administration of the criminal law—except that which deals with some of the graver offences—are in the hands of the magistrates.

For the purposes of local government England and Wales are divided into sixty-two administrative counties, including the county of London, differing in area from the old geographical counties, which, except for historical purposes, do not now exist. The new counties are administered by the justices and by a popularly-elected Council, called a County Council, who co-opt a prescribed number of aldermen, either from their own body or from outside it. Aldermen are elected for six years, half of them retiring every third year. A councillor is elected for three years. Women are eligible. The jurisdiction of the County Councils includes all the administrative work formerly performed by the justices and many new powers conferred by recent Acts of Parliament, the principal items being the making of county and police rates; levying of duties on licences for carriages and motor cars, armorial bearings, guns, dogs, killing and dealing in game; borrowing of money; licensing of houses for music and dancing, and of racecourses; maintenance and management of pauper lunatic asylums; maintenance of reformatory and industrial schools; management of bridges and main roads; regulation of fees of inspectors, analysts, and other officers; coroner's salary, fees, and district; Parliamentary polling districts and registration; contagious diseases of animals; allotments, weights and measures, sale of food and drugs.

Under Acts of 1902, 1903, and 1918 the County Councils are also the local education authorities, and other recent acts have in minor matters extended their jurisdiction. The control of the county police is vested in a standing joint committee composed of an equal number of magistrates and members of the County Council. The London Metropolitan police are, however, under the control of the Home Secretary.

The administrative counties, with the exception of the County of London, are subdivided into 'County Districts' which are either 'Urban' or 'Rural,' as the case may be. Generally speaking, an urban district comprises a town or a small area more or less densely populated, and a rural district takes in several country parishes. Women may be elected to these District Councils. The District Councils administer the Public Health and Highway Acts, and also exercise powers under the Housing Acts. Urban District Councils may also take over main roads from the County Councils; provide burial grounds, allotments, baths and washhouses, libraries, open spaces, museums, isolation hospitals, &c.; exercise powers under Provisional Orders or Private Acts for gasworks, tramways, electric light and power works, &c. Any urban district with 20,000 inhabitants may also be a local education authority. The Rural District Councils may also provide allotments, cemeteries, &c.; make arrangements for an adequate water supply; and exercise any 'Urban powers' conferred on them by the Local Government Board.

In every civil parish in a 'rural district' there is a Parish Meeting, at which every parochial elector may attend and vote. In such parishes of over 300 inhabitants there is in addition a Parish Council. Women are eligible for election. Parishes of less than 300 inhabitants may have Parish Councils if authorised by the County Council. To these Parish Councils have been transferred all the civil powers of the old Vestries, including the election of overseers, and in addition very considerable powers over charities, allotments, and other public matters. Where there is no Parish Council some of these powers, including the appointment of the overseers, are exercised by the Parish Meeting. Urban District Councils can, by petitioning the Local Government Board—which is the supreme Local Government authority—obtain part or all of the powers of a Parish Council. Only Parish Meetings may have power to adopt the Public Libraries Acts, the Baths and Washhouses Acts, the Lighting and Watching Acts, the Burials Acts, and the Public Improvements Acts.

The main central authority in London, the capital of the Empire, is the County Council, created by the Local Government Act of 1888. It has considerable powers in regard to public health, housing, bridges and ferries, asylums, street improvements, parks, main drainage, fire brigade, sanitary control, education, and numerous other matters. It is also the tramway authority for the county. The City Corporation have powers respecting sanitation, police, bridges, justice, &c., in the City of London. London comprises the ancient city with an area of one square mile, and an area of 118 square miles beyond the city, which is divided into 28 metropolitan boroughs, under the London Government Act, 1899, each with a mayor, aldermen, and councillors (women are eligible). The Councils have powers in regard to public health, highways, rating, housing, education, &c., but they are not boroughs in the statutory sense as in the rest of the Kingdom. The County Council has certain powers of control over them. It sanctions loans, approves the construction of sewers and the carrying out of local improvements, and has considerable public health duties in connection with the boroughs.

In all the great towns, local business is administered by a municipal Corporation, which derives its authority from charters granted by the Crown, as modified by the Great Municipal Corporations Act of 1837; and the Act of 1882. There are three kinds of boroughs, county boroughs, quarter session boroughs, and small boroughs of special and generally ancient jurisdiction. The County Boroughs are outside the jurisdiction of the County Councils, but in other Municipal Boroughs these Councils have certain powers and duties. A municipal Corporation consists of the mayor, aldermen, and burgesses, and acts through a Council elected by the burgesses—practically by the ratepayers. The councilors serve for three years (women are eligible), one-third retiring annually; the aldermen are elected by the Council, and the mayor, who serves for one year, also by the Council. A municipal Corporation has practically all the powers of an urban district council, and in some cases municipal boroughs have a separate commission of the peace and maintain their own police force. As to Poor Law and Education administration, see 'Pauperism' and 'Instruction.'

Scotland.—By the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1894, a Local Government Board for Scotland was constituted. It consists of the Secretary for Scotland as President, the Solicitor-General of Scotland, the Under-Secretary for Scotland, and three other members nominated by the Crown. The Local Government Act which was passed for Scotland in 1889 followed in its main outlines the English Act of the previous year. The powers of local administration in counties formerly exercised by the Commissioners of Supply and Road Trustees were either wholly or in part transferred to the new Councils, which took over their duties and responsibilities in 1890. The Act of 1894 provided that a Parish Council should be established in every parish to take the place of the Parochial Boards and to exercise powers similar to those of the Parish Councils in England. Municipal bodies exist in the towns of Scotland, as in those of England, with bailies and provosts instead of aldermen and mayors. There are in Scotland five kinds of burghs—(1) Burghs of barony; (2) Burghs of regality (no practical distinction between these two); the councils of these two classes of burghs ceased to exist in 1893 by statutory enactment; (3) Royal Burghs, representatives of which meet together annually in a collective corporate character, as the 'Convention of Royal Burghs,' for the transaction of business; (4) Parliamentary Burghs, which possess statutory constitutions almost identical with those of the Royal Burghs; (5) Police Burghs, constituted under general or local Police Acts, in which the local authority is the Police Commissioners. These two latter burghs, by Acts passed in 1879 and 1895, are enabled to send representatives to the convention.

Ireland.—The principal county authority for local government used to be the grand jury, appointed under the Act 6 & 7 Will. IV. c. 116; but, by the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, provision was made for the establishment of popularly elected Councils for counties and rural districts. Under the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1919, the councillors are elected for three years, on the system of the single transferable vote. The Council of each county and rural district, immediately after any triennial election, may choose additional members to hold office till the next triennial election. The administrative business formerly managed by the grand juries and presentment sessions has been transferred to these Councils. The Act of 1898 gave them the assessment and collection of the rates, except in urban areas, the maintenance in part of asylums and infirmaries, and the appointment of Coroners. They have functions also in respect of many other matters, such as technical instruction, school attendance and medical inspection of school children, regulation of motor car traffic, collection of licence duty on mechanically-propelled vehicles, treatment of tuberculosis and venereal disease, and the alteration of Parliamentary Polling Districts and Places. The general business relating to public health and labourers' cottages, formerly vested in the Board of Guardians, now devolves on the Rural District Council. The administration of the poor relief Acts, is exercised by Boards of Guardians. Each Board comprises the councillors of each rural district in the union, together with specially elected representatives of each urban district in the union. The cities of Dublin, Belfast, Cork, Limerick, Londonderry, and Waterford are county boroughs, and they, together with five other corporate boroughs, have a mayor, aldermen, and councillors, whose powers are regulated by 3 & 4 Vict. c. 108. The ordinary affairs of the borough, such as lighting, paving, and cleansing, are administered by the Council, which has power to levy rates for these purposes. The County Boroughs, Corporate Boroughs, and other populous centres are Urban Districts, and their Councils are the local authorities for the purposes of the Public Health, Local Government and Housing Acts. In the absence of any other form of incorporation, the Urban District Council, and not the town itself, is the body corporate. In a few small towns, the local affairs are administered by a body of Commissioners appointed under the Towns Improvement Act, 1854, who have powers to discharge certain municipal functions, and are empowered to levy rates to defray the cost of administration. Towns must have 1,500 inhabitants to enable them to obtain municipal government under this Act, and any such town may be constituted an Urban District.

Under the Local Government Act of 1898 and the Local Authorities (Ireland) (Qualification of Women) Act, 1911, women are eligible for election as members of all local government elected bodies in Ireland, in the same manner and on the same conditions as men.

The proportion of male to female births in Ireland in 1920 was 1,062 to 1,000.

2. Emigration and Immigration.

In the thirty-eight years 1815–1852, the total number of emigrants from the United Kingdom was 3,463,592. Up to 1852 the emigration returns made no distinction between British subjects and foreigners. From 1853 to 1920 inclusive, the number of passengers of British origin, to places out of Europe, was 14,140,000; and the number of foreigners, to such places, was 5,880,000, total, 20,020,000. Figures of the passenger traffic to and from non-European countries in recent years are given as follows:—

A revised form of passenger list was adopted in April, 1912, and this shows that the number of British emigrants (excluding persons only temporarily absent from the United Kingdom) to places out of Europe, and the immigrants of British nationality into the United Kingdom were as follows:—

	Emigrants.	Immigrants.
1913	390,000	86,000

1918	11,000	9,000
1919	147,000	93,000
1920	285,000	86,000

The destinations of British subjects leaving the United Kingdom for non-European countries in 1920 were mainly the United States (90,429), British North America (134,079), Australasia (49,357), British South Africa (29,019), India and Ceylon (19,326). The bulk of the aliens travelled to the United States (61,224 in 1920).

The passenger movement between the United Kingdom and European countries (including all ports in the Mediterranean and Black Seas) in recent years is given as follows:—

The number of Irish who emigrated from Ireland was in 1913, 30,967; 1914, 20,314; 1915, 10,659; 1916, 7,302; 1917, 2,129; 1918, 980; 1919, 2,975; 1920, 15,536. The total number from May 1, 1851, to the end of 1920, was 4,338,199.

Religion.

1. England and Wales.

The Established Church of England is Protestant Episcopal. Civil disabilities on account of religion do not attach to any class of British subjects. Under the Welsh Church Acts, 1914 and 1919, the Church in Wales and Monmouthshire was disestablished as from March 31, 1920, and Wales has been formed into a separate Archbishopric. Property belonging to the Church in Wales, and a sum of 1,000,000*l.* provided by Parliament, have been assigned to a temporary body not exceeding three persons, called the Welsh Commissioners, for distribution to a body representing the Church (called the Representative Body), and to certain other authorities including the University of Wales.

The King is by law the supreme governor of the Church in England, possessing the right, regulated by statute, to nominate to the vacant archbishoprics and bishoprics. The King, and the First Lord of the Treasury in his name, also appoint to such deaneries, prebendaries, and canonries as are in the gift of the Crown, while a large number of livings and also some canonries are in the gift of the Lord Chancellor.

There are 3 archbishops (at the head of the three 'provinces' of Canterbury, York and Wales) and 39 bishops, and 36 suffragan and assistant bishops in England and Wales. Each archbishop has also his own particular diocese, wherein he exercises episcopal, as in his province he exercises archiepiscopal jurisdiction. Under the bishops are about 30 deans and 100 archdeacons. Under the Church of England Assembly (Powers) Act, 1919, there is a National Assembly, called 'the Church Assembly,' in England, consisting of a House of Bishops, a House of Clergy, and a House of Laymen, which has power to legislate regarding Church matters. The first two Houses consist of the Convocations of Canterbury and York, which in turn consist of the bishops (forming an Upper House), archdeacons, and deans, and a certain number of proctors, as the representatives of the inferior clergy (forming the Lower House). The House of Laymen is elected by the lay members of the Diocesan Conference. Parochial affairs are managed by a Parochial Church Meeting and Church Council. Every measure passed by the Church Assembly must be submitted to an Ecclesiastical Committee, consisting of fifteen members of the House of Lords nominated by the Lord Chancellor, and fifteen members of the House of Commons nominated by the Speaker. This Committee reports on each measure to Parliament, and the measure becomes law if each House of Parliament passes a resolution to that effect.

The number of civil parishes (districts for which a separate poor rate is or can be made) at the census of 1911 was 14,614. These, however, in most cases, do not coincide with ecclesiastical parishes, which have lost their old importance. Of such parishes there were (1911) 14,387, inclusive of the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands. Each parish has its church, presided over by an incumbent or minister, who must be in priest's orders, and who is known as rector, vicar, or perpetual curate, according to his relation to the temporalities of his parish. Private persons possess the right of presentation to about 8,500 benefices; the patronage of the others belongs mainly to the King, the bishops and cathedrals, the Lord Chancellor, and the universities of Oxford and Cambridge. In 1918 there were about 13,000 beneficed clergy, and 6,800 curates, etc. The voluntary offerings in the Church of England in 1918 amounted to 8,853,000*l.*

Of 33,682 churches and chapels registered for the solemnisation of marriage at the end of 1919, 16,117 belonged to the Established Church and 17,568 to other religious denominations. Of the marriages celebrated in 1919, 59·7 per cent. were in the Established Church, 5·2 per cent. in the Roman Catholic Church, 11·9 per cent. were Nonconformist marriages, 0·64 per cent. were Quaker marriages, 0·5 per cent. Jewish, and 23·1 per cent. civil marriages in Registrar's Office.

The following is a summary of recent statistics of certain churches in England and Wales, Channel Islands, and Isle of Man :—

The Unitarians have about 350 places of worship, the Catholic Apostolic Church about 80, the New Jerusalem Church about 75. The Salvation Army, a religious body with a semi-military organisation, carries on both spiritual and social work at home and abroad, and had (December, 1919) about 24,600 officers and employees, 11,170 corps and outposts, and 71,400 local officers; their places of worship in the United Kingdom have about 550,000 sittings. There are about 260,000 Jews in the United Kingdom with about 200 synagogues.

Roman Catholics in England and Wales are estimated at 1,900,000. There are (1921) four archbishops (of whom one is a cardinal), thirteen bishops, and one archbishop and three bishops auxiliary; about 3,900 priests (not all officiating); and about 1,930 churches, chapels, and stations.

2. Scotland.

The Church of Scotland (established in 1560 and confirmed in 1688) is presbyterian, the ministers all being of equal rank. There is in each parish a kirk session, consisting of the minister, and of several laymen called elders. There are 84 presbyteries (formed by groups of parishes), meeting frequently throughout the year, and these are grouped in 16 synods, which meet half-yearly and can be appealed to against the decisions of the presbyteries. The supreme court is the General Assembly, which consists of over 750 members, partly clerical and partly lay, chosen by the different presbyteries, with a few representatives from royal burghs and universities. It meets annually in May (under the presidency of a Moderator appointed by the Assembly the Sovereign being represented by a nobleman known as Lord High Commissioner), and sits for ten days. Any matters not decided during this period may be left to a Commission.

The number of parishes is 1,457, and the number of churches, chapels, and stations about 1,700. Under regulations enacted by the General Assembly, the parishioners choose their own ministers. The entire endowments of the Church from all sources, including manse and glebes, amount to about 400,000*l.* per annum. The voluntary contributions of the congregations for religious and charitable purposes in 1920 amounted to 801,058*l.* The number of communicants in 1920 was about 739,000; ministers, about 1,800; lay missionaries, 105; Sunday scholars, 193,600; attending Bible classes, 56,000.

On October 31, 1900, the Free Church of Scotland and the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland (formed by secessions at various times from the Church of Scotland) constituted themselves into the United Free Church of Scotland. A minority, representing 26 congregations, regarding themselves as the Free Church of Scotland, claimed all the property and endowment funds. A Royal Commission reported that the Free Church was unable adequately to carry out all the trusts of the property. The Churches (Scotland) Act, 1905, was passed for the apportionment of the church property between the Free and the United Free churches by an Executive Commission of five, and the result was that funds amounting to 459,469*l.* were allocated to the Free Church (310,000*l.* for general provision and the remainder for College provision and various other purposes). The United Church's foreign mission was extended in 1918 to the oversight of the Basel Mission (formerly under German domination) in the Gold Coast. The foreign mission agents (including natives) number 5,001, and income 450,000*l.* The United Church had, on December 31, 1920, 1,484 congregations, and 32 preaching stations; 530,000 members, besides adherents; 2,058 Sunday schools, with 22,130 teachers and 198,000 children in attendance. The Church courts are the General Assembly, 12 synods, 64 presbyteries, and 2 continental presbyteries. Annual revenue from free-will offerings is over a million sterling. The Church has three theological colleges (at Edinburgh, Glasgow and Aberdeen) with 19 professors and lecturers. The Free Church had in 1921, 176 congregations and stations, 91 ministers and probationers, and one college. Contributions to schemes amounted to 20,599*l.*, and other income to 33,033*l.* There are in Scotland some small outstanding Presbyterian bodies and also Baptists, Congregationalists, Methodists, and Unitarians. The Episcopal Church in Scotland has 7 bishoprics, 416 churches and missions, 320 clergy, and 56,000 communicants.

The Roman Catholic Church had in Scotland (1920) two archbishops, four bishops and one bishop-auxiliary; about 600 priests, 454 churches, chapels, and stations, and about 546,000 adherents.

The proportion of marriages in Scotland according to the rites of the various Churches in 1919 was: Established, 37·9 per cent.; United Free, 22·3; Roman Catholic, 10·6; Episcopal, 3·2; others, 7·1; irregular, 18·9.

3. Ireland.

- The principal religious professions in Ireland, as recorded at the census of 1911, are as follows:—

	Leinster	Munster	Ulster	Connaught	Total
Roman Catholics . . .	990,045	973,805	690,816	588,004	3,242,670
Protestant Episcopalians	140,182	60,646	366,773	19,010	576,611
Presbyterians . . .	12,866	21,180	421,410	2,069	440,525
Methodists . . .	8,068	4,175	48,816	1,323	62,382
Other Professions . . .	10,883	2,689	53,881	578	68,031
Total . . .	1,162,044	1,035,495	1,587,696	610,984	4,396,219

The Roman Catholic Church in Ireland is under four archbishops, of Armagh, Cashel, Dublin, and Tuam, and 24 bishops, besides one bishop-auxiliary. On a vacancy the clergy of the diocese nominate a successor in whose favour they postulate or petition the Pope. The bishops of the province also present the names of two or three eligible persons to the Pope. The new bishop is generally chosen from this latter number; but the appointment virtually rests with the cardinals. The emoluments of a bishop arise from his parish, which is generally the best in the diocese, from licences of marriage, &c., and from the cathedraticum, a small contribution paid by incumbents of parishes. The incomes of all classes of the Roman Catholic clergy of Ireland arise partly from fees, but principally from Christmas and Easter dues, and other voluntary offerings. Number of priests in Ireland (1919), about 3,830.

The Church of Ireland (Protestant Episcopal) ceased to be 'established by law' by Act of Parliament (1869) 32 & 33 Vict. cap. 42. It has (1922) two archbishops, 11 bishops, and 1,500 clergymen; 1,400 churches. Previous to disestablishment its income was 600,000*l.*, and its entire capital was estimated at 14,000,000*l.* By the Disestablishment Act about 7,600,000*l.* was allotted to it by way of commutation, and 500,000*l.* in lieu of private endowments. The Church is governed by a General Synod, consisting of a House of Bishops (13 in number) and House of Representatives (208 clerical and 416 lay members). There are also 23 diocesan synods. The funds of the Representative Body on December 31, 1920, amounted to 9,787,357*l.*

The largest Presbyterian body consists of 36 presbyteries, and has 615 ministers and 561 congregations, with 105,000 members; contributions during year 1920-21, 382,177*l.*; total church income, 481,000*l.* This Church has two colleges, one in Belfast purely theological, the other (Magee College) in Londonderry with theological, literary, and scientific departments. The two together have 15 professors and lecturers.

The proportion of marriages in Ireland in 1920 according to the modes of celebration was: Roman Catholic, 68.2 per cent.; Church of Ireland, 14.7 per cent.; Presbyterian, 12.0 per cent.; civil contract, 2.5 per cent.; other denominations, 2.6 per cent.

Instruction.

University Education.

In England the highest education is given at the ancient universities of Oxford and Cambridge, the former having 22 colleges and 3 private halls, and the latter 17 colleges and 1 hall; the university of Durham, founded in 1831, with a college of medicine, and since 1871, a college of science at Newcastle; the university of London, founded in 1836 and reorganised in 1900 so as to be a teaching as well as an examining body, with 24 colleges or schools giving instruction in 8 faculties; the Victoria University (Manchester), founded in 1880; the Birmingham University, founded in 1900; the Liverpool University, founded in 1903; the Leeds University, founded in 1904; the Sheffield University, founded in 1905; and the Bristol University, founded in 1909. There are also University Colleges at Exeter, 58 lecturers, &c., 720 students, 1920-21; Nottingham (founded 1881), 122 lecturers, and 2,760 students, 1920-21; Reading (started with the establishment of art classes in 1860), 120 lecturers, &c., 1,640 students, 1922; and Southampton (founded 1850), 39 lecturers, &c., 900 students, 1921. There are special Agricultural Colleges at Carlisle, Cirencester, Glasgow, Newport (Shropshire), Kingston-on-Soar (Derby), Wye (Kent), Uckfield (Sussex), and Ripley (Surrey). The university of Wales, founded in 1903, has 3 colleges (Cardiff, Aberystwyth, and Bangor). In Scotland there are 4 universities, viz., at St. Andrews, founded 1411; Glasgow, 1450; Aberdeen, 1494; Edinburgh, 1582. The Carnegie trust, founded in 1901 with a capital of 2,000,000*l.*, has an annual income of 100,000*l.*, of which half is devoted to the equipment and expansion of the Scottish Universities and half to assisting students. In Ireland is the university of Dublin, founded 1591. In 1909 was founded in Dublin the National University of Ireland, and in Belfast the Queen's University of Belfast. The former has 3 constituent colleges, viz., the University Colleges of Cork, Galway, and Dublin. The following table gives the approximate number of professors, lecturers, &c., and students of the Universities in the United Kingdom for 1921-1922.

⁶ Estimated.

At most of the Universities and University Colleges women students are admitted on equal terms with men. There are, however, several colleges exclusively for female Students:—Bedford (69 teachers, &c., 560 students), Royal Holloway (31 teachers, 200 students) and Westfield Colleges (15 teachers, &c., 112 students) in London; Newnham (13 teachers, &c., 255 students) and Girton (24 teachers, &c., 240 students) Colleges in Cambridge; Lady Margaret Hall (6 teachers, &c., 103 students), Somerville College (9 teachers, &c., 135 students), St. Hugh's College (7 tutors, 135 students), and St. Hilda's College (7 teachers, 89 students), in Oxford. Women were first admitted to membership of Oxford University, and to take degrees, in October, 1920.

Secondary and Technical Education, &c.

In England and Wales the councils of counties, of county boroughs, of non-county boroughs with population over 10,000, and of urban districts with population over 20,000, are the local authorities for higher education. Under the Education Act, 1918, County and County Borough Councils are required (with the approval of the Board of Education, and in co-operation, if necessary, with other educational authorities) to provide for the development and organisation of education in their several areas, and in any schemes submitted for approval to the Board of Education in furtherance of this object, provision must be made to secure that children and young persons under 18 years of age shall not be debarred by inability to pay fees from receiving the benefits of any form of education from which they are capable of profiting. Continuation schools are to be established, providing courses of study, instruction, and physical training, without payment of fees, for persons under 16 years of age, and subsequently for those under 18 years of age; subject to certain exemptions, attendance at these schools is compulsory for 320 hours (in some cases 280 hours) each year.¹ The students' employment may be suspended, if required by the Education Authority, on any day during which attendance is necessary at these schools. 'Works schools' may be recognised, and must be inspected. Local education authorities may also (with the approval of the Board of Education) provide or aid the supply of holiday or school camps; centres and equipment for physical training, playing fields, school baths and swimming bath; and other facilities for social and physical training. Provision must be made for the supply and training of teachers; and teachers and students may be aided to carry on research. County and County Borough Councils must also provide for the medical inspection of children and young persons in secondary schools, continuation schools, and certain other non-elementary schools and educational institutions. To these purposes the local education authorities may apply money raised by rates, besides devoting to them the residue under the Local Taxation (Customs and Excise) Act, 1890, and they may borrow money. Grants are to be made to them by the Board of Education, amounting to not less than half the net expenditure recognised by the Board. They have power to provide scholarships, including allowances for maintenance, and to pay fees: in schools provided by them they must not pay for religious instruction; in schools not provided by them they can neither impose nor forbid religious instruction.

In 1919-20, there were in England and Wales 1,140 recognised secondary schools on the Grant List, with 308,000 full-time pupils (159,000 boys and 149,000 girls). In addition there were 206 other secondary schools recognised by the Board of Education as efficient, with about 37,000 pupils (21,000 boys and 16,000 girls). The latter numbers include 38 preparatory schools (i.e., preparatory to secondary schools proper) with 3,140 pupils. The Board also recognised a number of institutions providing technical instruction courses, and day technical classes; schools of nautical training; university tutorial classes; schools of art; and evening and other part-time schools. Examinations in science and art are held by the Board, and scholarships, exhibitions, &c., are awarded to successful competitors.

In Scotland, under the Education (Scotland) Act, 1918, the local authorities for the purposes of education are called 'education authorities,' and the 'education areas' for which they are elected are the burghs of Edinburgh, Glasgow, Aberdeen, Dundee, and Leith, and the counties, including the remaining burghs. These authorities work through 'school management committees,' representing the authority, the parents, and the teachers. Adequate provision of all forms of primary, intermediate, and secondary education in day schools, without payment of fees, must be made by these authorities. They may grant assistance, by payment of fees (in cases where fees are payable), travelling expenses, maintenance allowances, &c., to suitable persons, to facilitate their attendance at intermediate or secondary schools, or at universities, training colleges, or other educational institutions. A county education authority may also provide books for the use of the resident adult population. Continuation classes must be provided for young persons under the age of 16 years on a certain date, the age limit ultimately becoming 18 years, and attendance is required for at least 320 hours per year between the hours of 8 a.m. and 7 p.m. Exemption from such attendance may be granted in certain circumstances. In 1919-20 there were 148 grant-receiving secondary schools, with an average number of scholars on the register of 45,965.

In Ireland, under the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, the control of education was assigned to the Parliaments of Northern and Southern Ireland. In Northern Ireland an Education Department has been established. The Act remained inoperative in Southern Ireland, but education there will be controlled by the Government of the Irish Free State now being constituted. There was an Intermediate Education Board whose income was derived partly from the interest on the capital sum of one million sterling (Irish Church Funds), partly from an annual sum of 46,567*l.* provided under the Revenue Act, 1911, in lieu of the amount formerly payable under the Local Taxation (Customs and Excise Act), 1890. The income in 1921 from these and certain other sources was 86,306*l.* In addition, under the Intermediate Education Act, Ireland, 1914, the Board received from Parliament a sum of 40,000*l.*, known as the Teachers' Salaries Grant, and two further sums of 50,000*l.* each voted by Parliament, known as the Additional Grant and the Interim Grant.

The Board holds every year a general public examination for such candidates as present themselves. It pays grants to schools in respect of this examination, and also pays grants on the results of inspection. In 1921 these grants amounted to 42,040*l.*, besides exhibitions and prizes to students amounting to 5,225*l.* In that year 12,419 students (7,299 boys and 5,120 girls) presented themselves for examination, and the numbers who passed were 3,499 boys, 2,404 girls, total 5,903. Apart from these subventions, secondary education in Ireland is in private hands.

Throughout Ireland technical instruction is organised under the Councils of county boroughs, urban districts, and counties, and was controlled by the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction, with the advice of a Technical Instruction Board and a Consultative Committee of Education. In 1920-21, out of the Parliamentary grant to the Department, 77,792*l.* was paid as grants to technical schools and classes of science and art and technical instruction in non-agricultural subjects; 35,999*l.* as grants for the teaching of experimental science, drawing, manual training, and domestic economy, in day secondary schools; and 1,842*l.* as grants for drawing and manual instruction in certain primary schools. There are also an annual grant (out of the Department's Annual Endowment Fund) of 55,000*l.* for technical education in non-agricultural subjects, and a grant of 8,240*l.* for manual instruction and domestic economy in rural districts, made by the Agricultural Board. Central institutions under the Department are the Royal College of Science, Dublin, with 390 students (1920-21), the Metropolitan School of Art, with 348 pupils (1920-21), the Irish Training School of Domestic Economy, 34 students, and the Killarney School of housewifery with 25 students (1920-21). In urban and county technical schools and classes (1920-21) there were 42,293 students. Northern Ireland now has its own Education Department.

Elementary Education.

• England and Wales.—Elementary education in England and Wales is under the control of the Board of Education. The local administration is in the hands of the Councils of counties, of county boroughs, of non-county boroughs with population over 10,000, and of urban districts with population over 20,000. The last two authorities can transfer their powers to the local county councils. The education authorities work through committees (consisting of members of their own bodies, other persons with special qualifications, and women) and school managers. Schools aided, but not provided, by local authorities have 4 'foundation' managers and 2 managers appointed by Councils. Women may be managers. On July 31, 1918, the number of Local Education Authorities in England and Wales for enforcing school attendance was 318.

The local education authorities maintain all public elementary schools and control the expenditure necessary for this purpose. The only financial responsibility resting on the managers of 'non-provided' schools is to supply the buildings. In the case of schools not provided by the local authorities, their directions as to secular instruction (including the number and qualification of teachers) must be complied with; they have power to inspect the schools, and they must receive, free of charge, the use of the school-house for elementary school purposes. Education funds are derived from State grants (to the extent of at least half the net expenditure recognised by the Board of Education), local rates, &c., and the education authorities have borrowing powers. Income from endowments for such purposes of elementary education as fall within the scope of the local education authorities is paid to these authorities and applied in aid of the rates.

Elementary education is free. Attendance at school is compulsory between the ages of 5 and 14 years, and bye-laws may be made in any area requiring attendance up to the age of 15 years, either for children generally, or with certain exceptions. (For attendance at Continuation Schools, see above, p. 33.) Provision must be made for courses of advanced instruction for the older or more intelligent children; and for 'practical' instruction in cookery, laundrywork, housewifery, dairywork, handicrafts, gardening, &c. The local education authorities may supply, or aid the supply of, nursery schools and classes for children between 2 and 5 years of age, or such later age as may be approved by the Board of Education, and may make arrangements for attending to the health, nourishment, and physical welfare of such children. During 1920-21 there were 22 Nursery Schools with an average attendance of 620. Arrangements must also be made for the education of physically or mentally defective children, and epileptic children. Provision may also be made for holiday or school camps, centres for physical training, school baths, and other facilities for social and physical training. In exceptional circumstances (such as remoteness of the homes from the school) board and lodging, and other facilities, may be provided.

Provision must be made by local education authorities for attending to the health and physical condition of children in public elementary schools, and for the supply of meals.

Employment of children under the age of 12, and street-trading under the age of 14, are prohibited.

In 1920, the number of schools (public elementary, special, and certified efficient) in England and Wales for elementary education was 21,601, with accommodation for about 7,100,000 pupils. The number of scholars on the books of these schools on January 31, 1919, was: 221,862 aged under 5; 4,582,760 aged 5 and under 12; 1,113,232 aged 12 and over; total, 5,917,854. In 1920 there were 12,266 voluntary schools for ordinary public elementary education, with accommodation for about 2,370,000 pupils; and 8,705 Council schools, with accommodation for about 4,355,000 pupils; total ordinary public elementary schools, 20,971, with total accommodation for about 7,085,000. The average attendance at these schools in 1920-21 was about 5,220,000. The number of teachers in 1921 was 170,000. 'Special' schools comprised, in 1920, 59 for the blind, with accommodation for 3,260 pupils; 50 for the deaf, with accommodation for 4,620 pupils; 197 for mentally defective children, with accommodation for 15,550 pupils; 166 for physically defective children, with accommodation for 11,900 pupils; 6 for epileptic children with accommodation for 500 pupils; and 52 'certified efficient' schools. There were also 60 poor law schools, on March 31, 1920. On 31 March, 1920, there were 29 Nursery schools recognised by the Board, and about 340 play centres. In 1919-20 there were 88 training colleges for teachers for elementary schools in England and Wales, with accommodation for 13,578 students.

Scotland.—Under the Education (Scotland) Act, 1918, elementary education is controlled by specially elected 'education authorities' (see under Secondary Education, &c., p. 33). Education is compulsory up to the age of 15 years, with exemption, on certain conditions, for children over 13. 'Nursery schools' may be provided for children over 2 and under 5 years of age (or a later age, if approved by the Scottish Education Department). Existing 'voluntary' schools may be transferred to the education authorities, who must accept such transfer. After November, 1920, grants to voluntary schools, made under the Education (Scotland) Act, 1897, ceased, except in special circumstances.

Employment of children under the age of 13, and street-trading under the age of 17, are prohibited.

The number of elementary schools in receipt of grants in 1920 was 3,123, with accommodation for 963,000 pupils. The average attendance during the year ended August 31, 1920, was 675,000, and the average number of children on the register, 769,000. These figures include 104 intermediate schools; accommodation, 16,400; average number on register, 12,700.

There were, in 1920, 24,604 certificated teachers and 188 assistant teachers. In 1920-21 there were, at 4 training centres and 3 training colleges, 2,031 senior students; and 2,823 junior students, &c., at a large number of training centres. In 1920-21 there were 1,083 continuator class centres.

Ireland.—Elementary education in Ireland has been, since 1831, under the control of the 'Commissioners of National Education in Ireland.' In 1918 there were 8,002 primary schools in operation: the average number of pupils on the registers was 688,955; and the average attendance was 488,031.

The teachers receiving personal salaries from the Commissioners on December 31, 1918, numbered approximately 7,590 principal teachers, 5,770 assistants, besides 45 workmistresses and 2,380 junior assistant teachers. There are 7 training colleges, affording facilities for the training of 1,195 King's scholars.

Northern Ireland now has its own Education Department, under the Government of Ireland Act, 1920.

The expenditure under the Education Acts in 1918-19 was as follows:—

	Source of Income
	Local Rates	Parliamentary Votes & Grants	Other Receipts (fees, &c.)	Total
	£	£	£	£
England and Wales	22,385,000	18,968,600	2,321,000	43,674,600
Scotland	2,524,500	3,139,000	986,000	6,649,500
Ireland	—	2,340,000	439,000	2,779,000
Total U.K.	24,909,500	24,447,600	3,746,000	53,102,000

Justice and Crime.

England and Wales.

The Supreme Court of Judicature is the ultimate authority in all cases, civil and criminal, in England and Wales. It exercises its power through the High Court of Justice and a variety of subordinate local courts. The principal courts having criminal jurisdiction are the petty sessional courts, the general or quarter sessions, the courts of oyer and terminer and gaol delivery, more popularly known as 'assizes,' and the Central Criminal Court. Two or more justices of the peace, the Lord Mayor or any alderman of the City of London, or any metropolitan or borough police magistrate or other stipendiary magistrate, sitting in a court house, constitute a petty sessional court. The courts of quarter sessions are held four times a year by the justices of the county. Similar courts can be held at other times, and are then called 'general sessions.' Two justices constitute a court, but usually a larger number attend. Women may be magistrates. Certain cities and boroughs have a court of quarter sessions, with similar jurisdiction to the county justices in quarter sessions assembled, in which the recorder of the borough is the judge. The assize courts are constituted by Judges of the High Court (or in some cases by King's Counsel bearing His Majesty's special commission). These go on circuit twice or four times a year, visiting every county in turn, and hearing and determining all civil cases entered for trial and all criminal cases presented by the Grand Jury of the County or Riding of the County. Trials are, in general, by jury, and the jury, subject to the direction of the Judge on points of law, are the sole judges of the facts of the case. Women are liable to serve on juries. The Central Criminal Court is the court of oyer and terminer and gaol delivery for the City of London and a large surrounding district. The sessions of this court are held at least twelve times a year and more often if necessary. The Recorder and the Common Serjeant, and, if the number of the prisoners makes it necessary, the judge of the City of London Court, sit on the first two days, after which they are joined by one of the judges of the High Court on the rota, for whom the more serious cases are reserved. Criminal cases of special importance or complexity arising in any part of the country may, by direction of the Lord Chief Justice, be brought for trial in the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice before three High Court Judges, the Lord Chief Justice himself presiding. A petty sessional court deals summarily with minor offences. Cases of a more serious nature are usually investigated by a petty sessional court before being tried at the sessions or the assizes. To every sessions, assize, and to every sitting of the Central Criminal Court, the sheriff cites 24 of the chief inhabitants of the district, of whom not less than 12 and not more than 23 are sworn and constitute a grand jury, which examines the bill of indictment against the accused person, hears the evidence of witnesses for the prosecution, and if it thinks a prima facie case for trial is made out, endorses the bill 'a true bill.' All criminal trials, except those which come before a court of summary jurisdiction, take place before a judge and a petty jury of twelve persons. Appeal is allowed in criminal cases: (i.) on a point of law; (ii.) on a question of fact, or other sufficient ground if the judge certifies the case as fit for appeal, or the Court of Criminal Appeal grants leave to appeal; and (iii.) against the sentence (if not fixed by law) with the leave of the Appeal Court. On a conviction the judge can, if he think fit, reserve a question of law (but not of fact) for the Court of Criminal Appeal, which can reverse, amend, or affirm the judgment. The only other method of securing the revision of a sentence is by the Royal prerogative, exercised on the advice of the Home Secretary, by which a sentence can be modified or annulled. No man can be tried again for the same crime after a petty jury has found him 'not guilty.' Nominally all the judges are appointed by the King, but in practice the Lord Chancellor (who is a minister, ex-officio president of the House of Lords, and goes out with the ministry), the Lord Chief Justice, the Lords of Appeal, who sit in the House of Lords and on the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, and the Lords Justices of Appeal who sit in the Court of Appeal, are appointed on the recommendation of the Prime Minister, and all the other judges on the recommendation of the Lord Chancellor.

The courts having jurisdiction in civil cases are the County Courts, created in 1846, Assizes, and the High Court. Above the High Court is the Court of Appeal, and above that the House of Lords.

The authorised strength of the police force in England and Wales on September 29, 1921, was 56,908 (including 19,307 Metropolitan police). The estimated cost in 1921-22 is 18,991,000*l*.

Scotland.

The High Court of Justiciary is the supreme criminal court in Scotland. It consists of all the judges of the Court of Session, and sits more or less frequently, as the number of cases before it may require, in Edinburgh or in the circuit towns. One judge can, and usually does, try cases, but two or more preside in cases of difficulty or importance. It is the only competent court in cases of treason, murder, robbery, rape, fire-raising, deforcement of messengers, and generally in all cases in which a higher punishment than imprisonment is by statute directed to be inflicted; and it has moreover an inherent jurisdiction to punish all criminal acts, both those already established by common law or statute, and such as have never previously come before the courts and are not within any statute.

The sheriff of each county is the proper criminal judge in all crimes occurring within the county which infer only an arbitrary punishment, and if the case is tried with a jury the High Court has no power of review on the merits. Even in cases indicted to the High Court the accused is, under the Criminal Procedure (Scotland) Act of 1887, regularly asked to plead in the sheriff court, and minor objections to the indictment can be wholly or in part disposed of there. Borough magistrates and justices of the peace have jurisdiction in petty cases occurring within the burgh or county, and in a number of minor offences under various statutes.

The Court of Session exercises the highest civil jurisdiction in Scotland, with the House of Lords as a Court of Appeal.

The police force in Scotland at the end of 1919 had an authorised strength of 6,124.

Ireland.

In Ireland persons charged with crime are as a rule brought before a court of petty sessions. In most cases one magistrate is sufficient to form a court to try a case to be decided at petty sessions: in some instances two are requisite. Offences are divided into two classes, those in which justices have a 'summary jurisdiction,' in which cases they hear and determine the complaint, the Criminal Justice Administration Act, 1914, providing for an appeal in practically every case. The second class is 'indictable offences.' In these cases the justice merely takes the depositions and returns the case for trial to the next court having jurisdiction to try it—quarter sessions or assize court as the case may be. In the event of the prosecution failing to make out a case against the accused, the magistrates refuse informations. The Attorney-General may send up a bill at assizes, even without the preliminary magisterial investigation, or in a case in which a magistrate has wrongly refused informations. There is this difference, however, between quarter sessions in Ireland and in England: in England they are presided over by an unpaid chairman, who need not be a lawyer and who is elected by his fellow justices of the peace for the county; while in Ireland they are presided over by a paid official, who must be a practising barrister of ten years' standing, appointed by the Crown, and who is also judge of the county court (which corresponds to the English county court). The criminal jurisdiction of a county court judge is very extensive, and the Recorder of Dublin has practically the same criminal jurisdiction as a judge of the High Court. The assizes are presided over by one of the common law judges of the High Court of Justice. In the quarter sessions, recorder's court, and assizes the trial is by jury in all cases save appeals from petty sessions. In addition to the ordinary unpaid justices there are paid resident magistrates. The Criminal Law and Procedure Act contains special provisions for dealing with crime in certain cases. Nearly all the clauses of the Criminal Law and Procedure Act, however, require a proclamation of the Lord-Lieutenant in Council before they come into force. In the city of Dublin, the divisional magistrates for the police district of Dublin metropolis deal with all summary cases arising within their jurisdiction, and their jurisdiction is somewhat more extensive than that of the ordinary county justices.

Under the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, there was to be a Supreme Court of Judicature, consisting of two divisions, the High Court of Justice and the Court of Appeal in Southern Ireland, and similar courts in Northern Ireland, and also a High Court of Appeal for the whole of Ireland. An appeal from the latter Court to the House of Lords was provided for in certain circumstances. The High Court for Northern Ireland came into existence on October 1, 1921, but the Act remained inoperative in Southern Ireland. The administration of justice in the latter area will be taken over by the Irish Free State.

The number of police on March 31, 1919, was 10,754.

National Insurance.

Under the National Insurance Acts, 1911 to 1921, provision is made for compulsory insurance against loss of health, for the prevention and cure of sickness, and for compulsory insurance against unemployment.

(i) National Health Insurance.—This is administered by the Ministry of Health in England and Wales and corresponding Departments in Scotland and Ireland; by other specially constituted authorities; and by approved friendly societies, trade unions, &c. The persons who are compulsorily insured, known as employed contributors, comprise, with certain exceptions, all males and females aged 16 and under 70, whether British subjects or not, employed under contract of service express or implied, whether paid by time or piece. Among persons excluded are those employed otherwise than in manual labour at a rate of remuneration exceeding 250*l.* per year. Insured persons who are not members of an Approved Society must contribute to a Post Office Fund and are known as deposit contributors; their benefits are limited. Special provisions exist for married women, the army, navy, and air force, mercantile marine, and certain other classes. Certain persons not compulsorily insured may become voluntary contributors. The funds are provided by the employer (5*d.* per week per employed person), the worker (5*d.* per week by males and 4*d.* by females), and the State. Special rates are applicable in cases of voluntary insurers, and low wage-earners, and the rates in Ireland are 1*d.* lower for contributors and ½*d.* lower for employers than in Great Britain. Contributions cease at the age of 70 when the Old Age Pension Acts (q.v.) come into play. The benefits include medical treatment, sanatorium treatment, payments during sickness (ordinary rate 15*s.* per week for men, and 12*s.* for women), and disablement (7*s.* 6*d.* per week), and (in the case of women) a payment of 40*s.* on confinement. Other benefit are also possible if funds permit.

The number of insured persons under the Health Insurance Scheme in 1919 was about 15½ millions. The total income in 1918-19 was about 30½ million £ (including 8½ million £ contributed by the State), and the total expenditure 20½ million £.

(ii) Unemployment Insurance.—This is administered by the Board of Trade through the Employment Exchanges, Trade Unions, and Friendly Societies. Under the Unemployment Insurance Acts, 1920 and 1921, substantially all persons covered by the Health Insurance scheme are compulsorily insured against unemployment, except out-workers and persons employed in agriculture and private domestic service. Employees of local authorities, railways, and certain other public utility undertakings, and persons with rights under statutory superannuation schemes, are also exempted where the Minister of Labour certifies that they are employed under conditions which make the National Insurance unnecessary. The contributions are: Men of 18 and over, 8*d.* per week from employer and 7*d.* from employee; women of 18 and over, 7*d.* from employer and 6*d.* from employee; boys between 16 and 18, 4*d.* from employer and 3½*d.* from employee; girls between 16 and 18, 3½*d.* from employer and 3*d.* from employee. The State contributes, in addition, one-fourth of the aggregate amount of the contributions paid by employers and employees. The benefit consists of a weekly payment of 15*s.* for men, 12*s.* for women, and half these amounts to contributors under 18, during a maximum period of 26 weeks per year, subject to certain conditions, but 44 weeks' benefit is allowed in the period from March 1921 to June 1922. At the age of 60 insured contributors may, under certain conditions, obtain a refund of their own contributions, less any benefits paid, together with interest. Industries may, with the approval of the Minister of Labour, contract out of this scheme by setting up suitable schemes of their own.

The number of persons covered by the unemployment scheme is estimated to be about 12,000,000 (8½ millions men and 3½ millions women). Total income, 1918-19, 4½ million £ (including 1½ million £ from State funds), and expenditure 600,000*l.*

Old Age Pensions and War Pensions.

Under the Old Age Pensions Acts, 1908 to 1919, every person over 70 years of age who has been a British subject for at least 10 years up to the date of the receipt of pension; who, if a natural-born British subject, for twelve out of the twenty years, and if not a natural-born British subject, for twenty years up to the date of receiving a pension has resided in the United Kingdom (residence abroad is allowed to count in certain circumstances); and whose yearly means do not exceed 49*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*, is entitled to a pension: provided he is not in receipt of indoor poor relief (medical and surgical relief for three months does not disqualify), or is not a lunatic in an asylum. The minimum age for blind persons has been reduced to 50 years. An existing pensioner may in certain circumstances be disqualified for receiving further pensions. For every borough and urban district with a census population of at least 20,000,¹ and for every county (excluding borough and district areas) a local pension committee (who may appoint sub-committees) is appointed by the borough, district, or county council. Pension officers (to investigate and report to the committees) are appointed by the Treasury. The central pension authority is the Local Government Board. The weekly amount of the pension is 10*s.* if the yearly means of the pensioner do not exceed 26*l.* 5*s.* If the yearly means exceed 26*l.* 5*s.*, the weekly pension decreases by 2*s.* for every 5*l.* 5*s.* by which this limit is exceeded, up to 47*l.* 5*s.*, when the rate becomes 1*s.* per week. If the yearly means exceed 49*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* no pension is payable. On March 25, 1921, there were 1,002,342 pensions payable in the United Kingdom (353,794 to men and 648,548 to women). The total amount paid in pensions in 1920-21 was 25,087,000*l.*

¹ In Scotland the population limit does not apply; in Ireland the limit is 10,000 instead of 20,000.

The number of war pensions or allowances paid by the Ministry of Pensions in November, 1921, was approximately 3,200,000, and the estimated cost in 1921-22 was 107,000,000*l.* (exclusive of 4,000,000*l.* for administration expenses).

Pauperism.

There is a Poor Law, under a variety of statutes, applicable to the three Kingdoms, by which paupers, under certain conditions, are to be relieved in their own houses or lodged in workhouses or poor-houses built for the purpose. The law is administered by the Local Government Board, through Boards of Guardians elected for the purpose. England and Wales, including the Metropolis and the municipal boroughs, are divided into 653 poor law unions, for each of which there is elected a Board of Guardians. In urban districts and in the Metropolis guardians are separately elected, but in rural districts the rural district councillors act as guardians for the parishes they represent on the district council. Guardians are elected on the same popular franchise as district councillors. Women are eligible. In every civil parish overseers are appointed whose duty it is to make and collect the poor rate.

Amount expended in poor-relief for year ended March 25 for England and Ireland, and May 15 for Scotland. For Scotland, the amount includes expenditure on buildings and loans repaid and interest:—

The aggregate expenditure by local authorities in England and Wales, which is ordinarily classed as relating to the relief of the poor, during the period of 80 years ended March 25, 1914, was approximately 676,000,000*l.*

² Pre-war year.

An Excess Profits Tax of 50 per cent. upon the excess of profits over pre-war standards was introduced in 1915, and produced 187,846*l.* in 1915-16. The rate was later increased to 60 per cent.; then to 80 per cent. for 1917 and 1918; for 1919 the rate became 40 per cent. and on and after January 1, 1920, 60 per cent. The yield is shown in the above table.

The gross amount of income brought under the review of the Inland Revenue Department in the year ended April 5, 1919, in the United Kingdom, was 2,445,655,000*l.*; in 1913-14 it was 1,167,184,000*l.*; in 1920-21 it was estimated to be approximately 3,000,000,000*l.* The income on which tax was actually received in 1918-19, after allowing for exemptions and abatements, was 1,287,278,000*l.* The estimated number of incomes above 130*l.* a year in 1918-19 is 5,747,000: the number actually chargeable with tax is estimated at 3,547,000, of which 2,590,000 did not exceed 300*l.*

Prior to April 6, 1915, incomes of and below 160*l.* per year were exempt from income tax. From April, 1915, to April, 1920, the limit was 130*l.* per year. In the case of taxable incomes, abatements were made, and also allowances for children, wife, and insurance premiums, on the lower range of incomes. The rates of tax per £ of taxable income varied as follows:—

	Earned Income.			Unearned Income
	s.	d.	s. d.	s.	d.	s. d.
1913-14	0	9	to 1 2	1	2
1914-15	1	0	„ 1 8	1	4	to 1 8
1915-16	1	9½	„ 3 0	2	4½	„ 3 0
1916-17	2	3	„ 5 0	3	0	„ 5 0
1917-18	2	3	„ 5 0	3	0	„ 5 0
1918-19 and 1919-20	2	3	„ 6 0	3	0	„ 6 0

From April, 1920, exemption is allowed to bachelors with earned incomes below 150*l.* (or unearned below 135*l.*), and to married persons with earned incomes below 250*l.* (or unearned below 225*l.*) There are abatements and allowances (for children, dependent relatives, life assurance premiums, &c.), on higher incomes. The "standard" rate of tax is 6*s.*, but on the first 225*l.* of a person's "taxable" income the rate is 3*s.*

The gross income and income on which tax was received in 1918-19 were distributed as follows:—

	Gross income £	Income taxed £
Profits from the ownership of Lands	51,980,000	175,832,406
" " Houses	235,422,757
" " Other property	1,296,300

Total	2,445,655,311	1,287,278,171

The gross income from the ownership of land and houses in 1918-19 was distributed as follows:—

	England £	Scotland £	Ireland £	United Kingdom £
Land	36,700,000	5,580,000	9,700,000	51,980,000

The amount of super-tax received was 2,891,345*l.* in 1910-11; 3,018,388*l.* in 1911-12; 3,599,706*l.* in 1912-13; 3,339,008*l.* in 1913-14; 10,121,023*l.* in 1914-15; 16,787,654*l.* in 1915-16; 19,140,411*l.* in 1916-17; 23,278,704*l.* in 1917-18; 35,560,083*l.* in 1918-19; 42,404,597*l.* in 1919-20. The estimated aggregate income of the super-tax payers in 1919-20 was 410,000,000*l.*, the estimated yield 46,000,000*l.*, and the estimated number of persons chargeable, 56,000. Super-tax is payable by persons with incomes exceeding 2,000*l.* per year (prior to 1914-15, 5,000*l.* per year; from 1914-15 to 1917-18, 3,000*l.* per year, and in 1918-19 and 1919-20, 2,500*l.* per year).

In accordance with various Acts passed between 1888 and 1911, there are paid out of the Consolidated Fund to the Local Taxation Accounts of England, Scotland, and Ireland sums equivalent to the proceeds (in some cases, of the year, 1903-9, and in other cases of the current year) of certain excise licence duties, part of the beer and spirit duties, and part of the probate and estate duties. Certain other grants are also payable.

The payments actually made to the Local Taxation Accounts in 1920-21 are given as follows:—

	On account of beer and spirit duties	On account of licence duties	On account of estate duties	Other grants, &c.	Total

The estimated expenditure of the London County Council (exclusive of revenue-producing undertakings) for the year ending March 31, 1921, amounted to 20,040,299*l*. Of this amount 11,725,508*l*. was to be raised by rates. The debt of the Council and the London Borough Councils at March 31, 1920, was 98,367,563*l*., and of the City of London, 4,780,421*l*.

At the end of the financial year 1915-16, the outstanding local debt of England and Wales amounted to 564,506,000*l*.; that of Scotland to 66,719,000*l*.; of Ireland to 26,289,000*l*.; total, 657,514,000*l*. (including 49,948,000*l*. outstanding in respect of loans taken over or raised by the Metropolitan Water Board, and 27,110,000*l*. outstanding in respect of loans accounted for by the Port of London Authority). The local debt of England and Wales outstanding in March, 1920, was 556,000,000*l*.

Defence.

During the later years of the Great War important questions of naval and military policy were determined by the War Cabinet, which developed from an amalgamation of the Cabinet with the Committee of Imperial Defence. In 1920 the Committee of Imperial Defence was revived, and again became responsible, as it was before the war, for the co-ordination of naval, military, and air policy. Of this Committee the Prime Minister is ex-officio President, and he has power to call for the attendance at its meetings of any naval or military officers, or of other persons, with administrative experience, whether they are in official positions or not. The usual members are the Secretaries of State for Foreign Affairs, for War and Air, the Colonies, India, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the First Lord of the Admiralty, the First Sea Lord, the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, the Chief of the Air Staff, the Directors of the Intelligence Departments of the War Office and the Admiralty.

I. ARMY.

The land forces of the United Kingdom consist of the Regular Army, the Territorial Army, and the Reserve Forces. The British troops of the Regular Army serve both at home and overseas and are commonly referred to as the British Army in contradistinction to the Indian Army or Native Army, and to the Local Forces in certain British Colonies and Dependencies, the personnel of which is native with a proportion of British officers.

The Regular Army, whether at home or abroad, except India, is paid for by the Imperial Exchequer (although certain Dominions pay contributions towards its upkeep); India pays a contribution towards the cost of troops at home owing to these serving as a dépôt for the regular troops in India. The Imperial Exchequer pays for Indian and Colonial troops serving outside their own countries. The Territorial Army serves only at home in peace time, but as the destruction of the German fleet and the supreme position of the British Navy in Home Waters has practically eliminated all risk of invasion, members of the Territorial Army are now asked to accept liability for service overseas in time of war, subject to the consent of Parliament. The rank and file for both Regular Army and Territorial Army are obtained by voluntary enlistment. The Reserve Forces consist of the Army Reserve, the Militia and the Channel Islands and Colonial Militia, and the Territorial Reserve. The Army Reserve is composed of men who have completed their period of colour service with the Regular Army; its strength in 1921-22 was 86,800. The Militia, which is intended to serve as a supply source to the Regular Army after the Army Reserve is exhausted, is in process of reconstruction. The Channel Islands and Colonial Militia consist of the Channel Islands Militia, the Malta Militia, the Bermuda Militia, and the Isle of Man Volunteers. The Territorial Reserve is in process of formation.

After the Armistice of November 11, 1918, was concluded with Germany the War Office issued a scheme of extended service for soldiers then serving, by which men were invited to re-engage for 2, 3, or 4 years. As soon as sufficient men had been obtained by this means to reconstitute a certain number of regular formations for service overseas, the normal pre-war terms of service were reintroduced. By these terms service is for 12 years, with permission to extend to 21 years in certain circumstances. Of the original 12 years, from 3 to 9 are spent 'with the colours,' i.e., on permanent service, and the remainder of the time in the Army Reserve; the majority of the men serve for 7 years with the colours and 5 years in the Army Reserve, which is the rule for infantry other than the Foot Guards. Men enlist between 18 and 25 years of age.

The Peace establishment of the various formations has not yet been fixed, but the normal rule is that formations serving at home are on a low establishment, while the establishment abroad is higher, and in India peace and war establishments are practically identical. On mobilisation for war the ranks are brought up to war establishment, after eliminating recruits and young soldiers, by calling up men from the Reserve.

For purposes of training and command the fighting troops are for the most part organised in divisions, which consist of 3 infantry brigades, divisional artillery and engineers, together with the necessary auxiliary services. The cavalry is organised in brigades. The infantry brigades are composed of 4 battalions, the cavalry brigades of 3 regiments. The organisation of the Territorial Army is analogous to that of the Regular Army, and it consists of 14 divisions, composed of infantry, artillery, engineers, and auxiliary services, and of the mounted brigades, chiefly composed of yeomanry.

For purposes of command the United Kingdom is divided up into seven 'commands' and the London District. The commands are (1) Aldershot of very limited area, (2) Eastern, including the eastern and southern counties, (3) Irish, (4) Northern, including the northern midlands and north-eastern counties, (5) Scottish, (6) Southern, including the southern midlands and south-western counties, (7) Western, including Wales, Lancashire and north-western counties. These commands (except the Aldershot command) are divided up into Territorial Recruiting districts for the Regular Army. The Eastern, Northern, Scottish, Southern, and Western commands and the London District each include from 1 to 4 Territorial mounted brigades, and 2 or 3 Territorial divisions. There are normally two Regular divisions each in the Aldershot and the Irish command, one Regular division in the Eastern and one in the Southern command, but in 1921 owing to the increase in the garrison of Ireland and to the dispatch of troops to Upper Silesia, none of these divisions in England were complete. At the head of each command is a general officer (styled the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief). He is assisted by a general officer of lower rank who is responsible for questions of administration apart from training and defence questions.

The land forces are administered by an Army Council which is composed of the Secretary of State for War, who is its President; the heads of the seven departments into which the War Office is primarily divided, namely, the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, who is responsible for drawing up plans of attack and defence, for military training, for intelligence work, and for education; the Deputy Chief of the Imperial General Staff who is the first assistant of the Chief and represents him in his absence on the Army Council; the Adjutant-General, who is responsible for recruiting, interior economy, discipline, and for the medical service; the Quartermaster-General, who is responsible for equipment, supply, transport, and remounts; the Master-General of the Ordnance, who is responsible for armament and works; the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, who is the Vice-President of the Council and is responsible for the Territorial Army; the Finance Member, who is responsible for finance; and the two permanent Secretaries of the War Office. The Territorial Army is to a large extent administered by County Associations over which the War Office merely maintains a general control as regards expenditure.

The principal military educational establishments are the Royal Military Academy, educating youths to be officers in the artillery and the engineers, the Royal Military College where officers are obtained for cavalry and infantry, and the Staff College, which trains officers for the staff. The Officers' Training Corps in two divisions representing respectively the universities and public schools, is intended to provide officers for the Territorial Army.

The gross estimated expenditure for the army for the year 1921-22 amounted (March, 1921) to 118,915,000*l.*, and appropriations in aid to 12,600,000*l.*, leaving a net expenditure of 106,315,000*l.* Owing to the increased pay, and to the increase in the price of food, clothing and equipment, the cost of the individual Regular soldier is approximately three times what it was in 1914.

The total personnel charged to British votes in 1921-22 was 341,000, of whom 201,127 were British troops, 55,600 were men temporarily borne on the strength as consequence of the war (war-time sick and wounded and awaiting demobilisation), and 84,200 were Indian and Colonial troops. There were in India 75,896 British troops, so that the actual establishment of the Regular Army in 1921-22 was $201,127 + 75,896 = 277,023$.¹ The garrison of Constantinople, Egypt, Palestine, and Mesopotamia included a number of Indian troops. The strength at January 1, 1922, was: regulars (excluding India), 193,000; territorials, 135,000.

The distribution of this establishment was as follows:

dying out, and that of pre-Jutland and post-Jutland ships coming in. Of the last-named class the British Navy is destitute, though the Hood was modified in the light of war experience. The following summary shows the position before the Washington Conference.

¹ Owing to the sweeping reductions which were in progress in these classes of vessels, in 1920 and 1921, it was impossible to give any useful figures. The flotilla leaders are included in the total number of destroyers. Ships and vessels of the Dominions are included in the above table. See notes following the ship lists.

There were 37 monitors in 1919, but all have now been removed from the fleet. Two new classes of river gunboats have been added (640 and 98 tons), 12 of each class.

In the following tables the ships are grouped in classes according to type. The dates of the Naval Estimates under which they were sanctioned are given.

Battleships and Battle-Cruisers (Dreadnought Type).

The Colossus, Collingwood (both now training ships), Hercules, Neptune, St. Vincent, Temeraire, Bellerophon and Superb have recently been removed from the effective list. As a result of the Washington Conference, all ships down to and including the Australia (except the Thunderer) are to be scrapped.

³ Royal Australian Navy, flotilla leader.

There are also cruisers and other vessels employed as depôt ships, store-ships, repair ships, mine-sweepers, fleet sweeping sloops and otherwise as auxiliaries.

The destroyers of the post-war Fleet are of the following classes: flotilla leaders, 1670–1800 tons, 34–36·5 knots 15, including one Australian; V class, 1325 tons, 65; S class, 930–1075 tons, 65 (including 5 Australian); MR class, 1085 tons, 8; R class, 900–1065 tons, 46; Paramatta class (Australia) 4; M class (Canada), 2; total number 205. Also about 60 torpedo-boats.

The submarines were of successive classes. E class (660–800 tons) 14; H class (440–500 tons) 23; K class (1880–2650 tons) 7; L class (890–1070 tons) 32; M class (not described—one 12in. gun) 3; R class (420–500 tons) 10; total number 89; in addition 8 Dominion submarines. The E and other classes are being reduced, and the total number (excluding Dominion) will be about 70.

Dominion Navies.—Lord Jellicoe made a tour of the Dominions with the object of arriving at an understanding with the Governments on the naval defence of the Empire. His report presented to the Government of Australia emphasized the desirability of the Commonwealth becoming self-contained in regard to shipbuilding and the manufacture of guns, mountings, explosives, and aircraft. He considered that the interests of the Empire were likely to demand within the next five years a Far Eastern Fleet comprising vessels of the Royal Navy, the East Indian Squadron, and the Australian, Canadian, and New Zealand Navies. This Fleet would consist of at least 8 modern battleships, 8 battle-cruisers, 10 light cruisers, 40 destroyers, and 36 submarines. The total cost for maintenance was estimated at 19,750,000*l.* The Imperial Cabinet (July, 1921) left on record its view that co-operation among the constituent parts of the Empire is necessary, but that the details must be left to the Dominion Parliaments and recommendations be deferred until after the Washington Conference.

The Royal Australian Navy, in addition to the ships named in the lists above, has 4 destroyers of the River class and 5 of the S class, 6 S class submarines and various sloops and other vessels.

The New Zealand Navy, in addition to the Chatham, has the Laburnum, Sloop, and the Philomel as a training ship.

The Royal Canadian Navy, in addition to the Aurora, has 2 M class destroyers and 2 H class submarines.

III. AIR FORCE.

In May, 1912, the Royal Flying Corps first came into existence. It was then divided into two wings, the Royal Naval Air Service and the Royal Flying Corps, administered by the Admiralty and War Office respectively, while a joint Air Committee was formed, consisting of representatives of both services, to secure co-operation. The powers of this body were limited, and it failed to secure its object. A second Committee, formed in February, 1916, was equally unsuccessful. It was followed by an Air Board in May, 1916, and by a second Air Board in January, 1917. Both of these had inadequate powers. On January 2, 1918, an Air Ministry was formed, and the control of the Royal Air Force was vested in an Air Council analogous to the Army Council. The Air Minister was given the status of a Secretary of State and became President of the Council. In April, 1918, the naval and military wings were amalgamated, under the Ministry of the Air, as the Royal Air Force. From April, 1919, to April, 1921, the Secretaryship of State was held by a Minister who also filled another office, and the direct charge of the Air Ministry was placed in the hands of an Under-Secretary of State, who became Vice-President of the Air Council. In April, 1921, a separate Secretary of State for Air was appointed.

The Air Council is composed of the Secretary for Air, who is President, the Under-Secretary for Air, who is Vice-President, the Chief of the Air Staff, the Controller-General of Civil Aviation, the Director-General of Supply and Research, two additional Members of Council, and the Secretary of the Air Ministry. Under the direction of the Secretary for Air, the Under-Secretary for Air is responsible for Finance and the control of landed property of the Ministry; the Chief of the Air Staff is responsible for plans of operations, for the collection and distribution of intelligence, for the training and organization of the Air Service, for personnel, equipment, and medical services; the Director-General of Supply and Research is responsible for design, research, armament, the supply of aircraft, and aeronautical inspection; the Controller-General of Civil Aviation is responsible for the control and development of civil aviation, for the organization of air routes and for Meteorological information.

The Force consists of the Royal Air Force, the Air Force Reserve, and the Territorial Air Force. The establishment of the Royal Air Force for the year 1921-22 is 30,880 exclusive of those serving in India, who are paid for by the Government of India. The Air Force is organised into commands as follows:—

I. United Kingdom: (a) Inland Area, (b) Coastal Area, (c) Irish Wing, (d) Cranwell, (e) Halton.

II. Overseas: (a) Middle East Area, (b) India, (c) Mediterranean Group, (d) Rhine.

Areas are subdivided into groups and wings, a certain number of squadrons being allotted to each group or wing. Squadrons are subdivided into flights.

The Air Estimates for 1921-22 amount to gross 18,926,500% ; appropriations in aid 621,500% ; net 18,305,000%. Estimates for 1922-23 amount to 10,000,000%. The Royal Air Force is assisting in the garrisoning of Irak and Palestine.

From the opening of Civil Aviation in May 1920 down to December 1920, British Aircraft had flown 1,556,000 miles. The total number of passengers carried was 106,712 and the goods carried weighed 167 tons. The number of accidents was 48 but 20 of these did not involve injury. The rate of passengers killed was 0.10 per 1,000 and of injured 0.15 per 1,000.

² Excluding Ireland.

For the quantities of cereals and live stock imported, see under Commerce.

The live stock in Ireland in 1921 numbered: Horses, 555,000; mules and jennets, 27,000; asses, 230,000; cattle, 5,197,000; sheep, 3,708,000; pigs, 977,000; goats, 261,000; poultry (1918), 24,424,000.

The number of holdings in Great Britain (from 1 acre upwards) is given as follows for 1921 :—

Size of Holdings, 1921	England and Wales	Scotland	Great Britain
1— 5 acres . . .	81,217	17,374	98,591

The Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908, makes the County Councils and the Councils of County Boroughs responsible for the provision of small holdings (each covering from one to 50 acres, or even more), and allotments (each up to five acres in area). Up to the end of 1914 the total quantity of land acquired for small holdings by the various local authorities in England and Wales was 198,104 acres, let to 13,327 individual tenants and 5 associations; and the land acquired for allotments was 33,522 acres, let to 120,526 individual tenants and 52 associations. On the 1st May, 1918, there were estimated to be about 1,400,000 allotments in England and Wales. Before the war there were about 500,000.

The above figures are not comparable with those published for years prior to 1910. In many cases farms in Ireland extend into two or more townlands, and in former years that portion of a farm in each townland was enumerated as a separate holding. The total number of holdings published was therefore somewhat too large. A change was made in the method of enumeration in 1910, and the present figures are believed to be a very close approximation for the year 1918.

Of the holdings in 1918, 372,815 were owned and 199,170 rented. The 571,985 holdings in 1918 were in the hands of 561,807 separate occupiers.

The Irish Land Acts are of two classes—The Fair Rent Acts, and the Land Purchase Acts. The Fair Rent Acts commenced with Mr. Gladstone's Land Law (Ireland) Act, 1881, which gave the Irish Tenant the '3 Fs'—Fair Rent, Free Sale and Fixity of Tenure. Under this Act, the great body of agricultural tenants had Fair Rents judicially determined. The rent is fixed by the Land Commission for terms of 15 years, and, on the expiration of each term, a new rent may be fixed for another term. Up to March 31, 1920, the number of Fair Rents fixed under the Irish Land Acts for a First Statutory Term was 382,975, with an average reduction of 20·7 per cent. on previous rents; for a Second Statutory Term, 144,094, with an average reduction of 19·3 per cent. on first term rents; and for a Third Statutory Term, 6,032, with an average reduction of 9·1 per cent. on second term rents.

The Land Purchase Acts commenced with the 'Bright Clauses' of the Act of 1870, but the system was greatly extended by the 'Ashbourne Act' of 1835, under which 3,992,536*l.* cash was advanced for Land Purchase. A new system was adopted under Mr. Balfour's Act of 1891, which created a special Land Stock for Land Purchase purposes. Under the Irish Land Act of 1903 cash advances are made to enable tenants to purchase their holdings under the supervision of three Estates Commissioners, the money for advances being raised by the issue of Land Stock bearing interest at 2½ per cent. The State is secured by a Guarantee Fund which consists of the various Funds voted by Parliament for Irish Local purposes. The Land Stock could not be issued except at a large discount, and the Land Act of 1909 provided that for future purchasers the money may be raised by the issue of a 3 per cent. stock, and in making advances the Treasury may give the vendor such stock instead of paying cash. Under this Act the Congested Districts Board was reconstituted, the area of its work extended and its income increased. Compulsory powers of purchase were also given to the Estates Commissioners and the Congested Districts Board.

The total amount of the purchase money for which advances have been made under the Irish Land Purchase Acts, 1870 to 1909, up to March 31, 1920, was 108,795,258*l.*, of which 106,933,839*l.* was advanced, and 1,861,419*l.* was lodged in cash by purchasers. In addition, 4,609,131*l.* was advanced to that date by the Land Commission to Rural District Councils, for the erection of labourers' cottages, under the Labourers (Ireland) Acts.

In England and Wales, the Board of Agriculture make grants for, and, to some extent, supervise vocational education and scientific research in agriculture. In 1916-17 these grants totalled 76,177*l.* (against 98,646*l.* in 1915-16), largely from the Development Fund (see below). The Board of Agriculture for Scotland dispenses certain grants for the development and improvement of agriculture, including agricultural education and research, in that country. In Ireland the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction provides itinerant lecturers who give instruction in agriculture, horticulture, bee-keeping, butter-making, poultry-keeping, &c. There are 3 agricultural stations where farm apprenticeships are provided, and numerous agricultural schools and colleges. There are also winter agricultural classes and schools of rural domestic economy.

Under the Development and Road Improvement Funds Acts, 1909 and 1910, there are eight "Development Commissioners," appointed to advise the Treasury in the administration of a national fund for the development of agriculture, fisheries, forestry, and analogous resources of the United Kingdom. The total sum guaranteed to the Fund was 2,900,000*l.*; interest on investments, and other receipts, up to 31 March, 1920, made the total available funds, 3,541,000*l.* In 1920-21 a further 1,000,000*l.* was voted to the Fund, but was surrendered back to the Exchequer. The balance in the Fund on March 31, 1921, was 795,457*l.*, against which were outstanding liabilities estimated at 550,000*l.* leaving 250,000*l.* for annual advances to meet the cost of existing schemes (estimated at 250,000*l.* to 300,000*l.*), and for any new schemes.

Forestry.—The woodland area of Great Britain in 1908 was 2,781,963 acres (England, 1,720,330; Wales, 186,723; and Scotland, 874,910). Included in these figures are 127,509 acres of plantations, i.e., land planted within the preceding 10 years (England, 72,008; Wales, 11,355; and Scotland, 44,146).

In Ireland in 1918, 289,944 acres were under woods and plantations.

The metals obtainable from the ores produced in 1920 were :—Copper, 127 tons, value 13,664*l.*; iron, 3,952,692 tons, 50,182,532*l.*; lead, 10,961 tons, 419,030*l.*; silver, 76,344 oz., 19,583*l.*; tin, 3,065 tons, 907,483*l.*; zinc, 1,655 tons, 74,847*l.*; total value, 51,617,286*l.*

The total number of persons ordinarily employed at all mines under the Coal and Metalliferous Mines Regulation Acts during 1920 was 1,270,000. The number of mines at work was 3,349. 1,003,000, persons (males) worked underground, and 258,000 males and 9,000 females above ground. The number employed at quarries under the Quarries Act was 68,000 (excluding persons occasionally employed), of whom 44,000 (including 89 females) worked inside the quarries, and 24,000 (including 256 females) outside. The number of quarries at work was 5,479.

Professor H. S. Jevons has estimated the resources of British coal in 1915, within 4,000 feet of the surface,* at 197,000 million tons. Coal raised in the United Kingdom, and coal, coke, and patent fuel exported (the figures in the following tables, for the war period, exclude coal exported from Government stores, etc.):—

¹ Not included in exports. Bunkers for ships in foreign and coastwise trade, and Admiralty shipments totalled 38½ million tons in 1917 and 34½ million tons in 1918.

² There was a stoppage of coal mining during the three months April to June, 1921.

In the year 1920, the coal available for home consumption is estimated to have been 185,800,000 tons, some of the principal uses being : Railways, for locomotive purposes, 13,837,000 tons ; gas works and coke ovens, 37,409,000 tons ; manufacture of pig-iron, 2,062,000 tons (plus 10,071,000 tons of coke) ; colliery engines and miners, 23,793,000 tons ; bunkers for ships in coasting trade, 1,705,000 tons.

IV. TEXTILE INDUSTRY.

(The following information is furnished by Mr. Thomas R. Ellison of Liverpool).

The progress made by each branch of the textile industry since 1829 is shown in the subjoined statement of the weight of raw material used and the value of yarns and goods exported:—

The home production of wool in 1921 is estimated at 102 million lbs. ; and that of flax at 22 million lbs. Exports in 1921 were : piece goods, &c. ; cotton, 2,927 million yards ; woollen, 126 million yards ; linen, 40 million yards. Yarn : cotton, 147 million lbs. ; woollen, 30 million lbs. ; and linen, 5 million lbs.

Commerce.

The principal imports on which customs duties are levied are beer, chicory, cinema films, clocks and watches, cocoa, coffee, dried fruits, matches, motor cars and motor cycles, musical instruments, spirits, sugar, tea, tobacco, and wine—spirits, sugar, tea, tobacco, and wine yielding the bulk of the entire levies. In 1919 the imports free of duty (exclusive of bullion and specie and diamonds) amounted to 1,381,634,807*l.*, 84·9 per cent., and those subject to duty to 244,521,405*l.*, 15·1 per cent. of the total imports.

¹ From the outbreak of War in August, 1914, until the second half of 1917, certain goods belonging to the British and Allied Governments were excluded from the returns of imports and exports. From July, 1917, merchandise imported and exported in public ownership is included, except exports for the use of H.M. forces on active service. In the six months July to December, 1917, such imports (included in the above table) amounted to about 107,000,000*l.*, and British exports to 9,500,000*l.* In 1918 such imports amounted to about 250,000,000*l.*, British exports to 18,500,000*l.*, and re-exports to about 3,000,000*l.*

The value of goods imported into the United Kingdom is generally taken to be that at the port and time of entry, including all incidental expenses (cost, insurance, and freight) up to the landing on the quay. For goods consigned for sale, the market value in this country is required and recorded in the returns. This is ascertained from the declaration made by the importers, and is checked by the expert knowledge available in the Customs Department, with the help of current price-lists and market reports. For exports, the value at the port of shipment (including the charges of delivering the goods on board) is taken. Imports are entered as from the country whence the goods were consigned to the United Kingdom, which may, or may not, be the country whence the goods were last shipped. Exports are credited to the country of ultimate destination as declared by the exporters.

Imports by air in 1920 amounted to 677,000*l.* and exports to 339,000*l.* The trade was mainly in clothes and furs.

The total estimated value of the imports and exports of Ireland (including the trade with Great Britain) is given by the Irish Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction, as follows:—

³ Including 23·3 million passengers in 1919 carried 'free' on behalf of the Government, and 1·9 million in 1920. The equivalent number of annual tickets representing season ticket holders in 1919 was 923,000, and 1,033,000 in 1920.

The financial figures for 1913 are not comparable with those for 1919 onwards because, in the later years, there are certain small variations in the list of undertakings, capital figures have been adjusted in respect of duplication, and gross receipts and working expenses include the figures of non-working companies. From August, 1914, to August, 1921, most of the railways were controlled by the Government, and complete statistics for the years 1914–18 inclusive are not available. Under the Railways Act, 1921, the railways of Great Britain are to be grouped into four systems, namely: Southern; Western; N.-Western, Midland and W. Scottish; and N.-Eastern, Eastern and E. Scottish.

Tramways.—In 1919-20 there were in the United Kingdom 2,729 miles of tramways and light railways open for public traffic, of which 2,647 miles were operated by electric traction; 1,754 miles were worked by local authorities, and 975 miles by companies. The total number of passengers carried in 1919-20 was 4,987,526,000.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The sovereign weighs 123·274 grains, or 7·9881 grammes, ·916 (or eleven-twelfths) fine, and consequently it contains 113·001 grains or 7·3224 grammes of fine gold. The shilling weighs 87·27 grains or 5·6552 grammes, and down to 1920 was ·925 (or thirty-seven-fortieths) fine, thus containing 80·727 grains or 5·231 grammes of fine silver, but under the Coinage Act, 1920, the fineness has been reduced to ·500 (one half). Bronze coins consist of a mixture of copper, tin, and zinc. The penny weighs 145·83 grains, or 9·45 grammes. The standard of value is gold. Silver is legal tender up to 40 shillings; bronze up to 12*d*., but farthings only up to 6*d*.. Bank of England notes are legal tender in England and Wales, except at the Bank itself (3 and 4 Will. 4, cap. 98). The 1*l*. and 10*s*. Treasury Notes issued since the outbreak of the War are also legal tender. The note circulation at February 22, 1922, was: currency notes and certificates, 296,597,000*l*.; Bank of England notes, 145,380,000*l*.; total, 441,977,000*l*. The amount of currency in June, 1914, is estimated at 128,000,000*l*. in circulation, and 75,000,000*l*. in banks; total, 203,000,000*l*. In December, 1919, the amount is estimated at 393,000,000*l*. in circulation, and 191,000,000*l*. in banks; total, 584,000,000*l*. The silver circulation at the end of 1920 was estimated at about 60,000,000*l*.

Standard units are: of length the standard yard, of weight the standard pound of 7,000 grains (the pound troy having 5,760 grains), of capacity the standard gallon containing 10 pounds avoirdupois of distilled water at 62° F., the barometer at 30 inches. On these units all other legal weights and measures are based.

ISLE OF MAN.¹

The Isle of Man is administered in accordance with its own laws by the Court of Tynwald, consisting of the Governor, appointed by the Crown; the Legislative Council, composed of the Lord Bishop of Sodor and Man, two Deemsters, the Attorney-General, two members appointed by the Governor, and four members elected by the House of Keys, total 11 members, including the Governor; and the House of Keys, a representative assembly of 24 members chosen on a property qualification for 5 years by the 6 'sheadings' or local sub-divisions, and the 4 municipalities. Women have the franchise as well as men. Number of voters 1921-22, 35,214. The island is not bound by Acts of the Imperial Parliament unless specially mentioned in them.

Lieut.-Governor.—Major-General Sir W. Fry, K.C.V.O., C.B.

The principal towns are Douglas (population in 1921, 20,192), Ramsey (4,121), Peel (2,455), Castletown (1,860). Births (1921), 845; deaths, 797. In 1921 there were 45 elementary schools, 41 being board schools. The enrolled pupils numbered 6,001, and the average attendance 5,271. The expenditure of school boards and of non-board schools for the year, 1921, amounted to 42,976*l*. There were, in 1921, 1 secondary school (548 registered pupils), 9 supplementary classes (193 registered pupils), and 7 evening classes (461 registered pupils). The expenditure of higher education boards in 1921 was 14,575*l*. On December 31, 1921, 931 persons received poor-relief (103 indoor and 828 outdoor). In 1921 the police force numbered 74; in the year there were 1,042 persons convicted.

Revenue is derived mostly from Customs. In 1920-21 the revenue amounted to 311,602*l*.; and expenditure to 266,562*l*., of which 10,000*l*. was paid to the Imperial Exchequer as contribution from the Customs revenue. Public debt (1921) 119,127*l*.

The principal agricultural produce of the island consists of oats, barley, turnips and potatoes, and grasses. The total area of the island, excluding water, is 140,986 acres; the total area of arable land in 1921 was 66,117 acres and of permanent grass, 17,583 acres. The total acreage under corn crops in 1921 was 21,681 acres, including 20,822 under oats, 230 under wheat, and 529 under barley or bere. There were also 7,012 acres under turnips and swedes, 2,403 under potatoes, and 32,730 under clover, sainfoin and grasses under rotation. The number of agricultural holdings in 1921 above 1 acre in size was 1,536. The live stock in 1921 consisted of 6,029 horses; 19,662 cattle; 74,466 sheep; and 4,308 pigs. The chief mineral products in 1920 were clay, 2,200 tons; ganiister, 971 tons; igneous rocks, 19,851 tons; lead ore, 78 tons; limestone, 1,951 tons; slate, 648 tons; zinc ore, 529 tons; brine salt, 3,976 tons. The registered shipping (1921) comprised 21 sailing vessels (990 net tons) and 54 steamers (8,200 net tons); total tonnage 9,190 net tons. The tonnage of vessels arrived at ports of the island in 1921 was 678,139 net tons (675,670 tons coastwise), and departed 716,722 net tons, (715,070 tons coastwise). The railways have a length of 46½ miles, and there are 25 miles of electric railways.

The Channel Islands are administered according to their own laws and customs. Jersey has a separate legal existence; it is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor appointed by the Crown, and a Bailiff also appointed by the Crown. The Bailiff presides in the States, which consist of 12 Jurats elected by the ratepayers for life, 12 rectors of parishes, 12 constables or mayors of parishes, and 17 deputies; the constables and deputies being elected for 3 years. The Lieutenant-Governor has a veto on legislation. He may address the States but not vote. The 2 Crown officers may speak and vote. The qualification for a vote is the possession of a minimum value of 80*l*. real or 120*l*. personal property. The Royal Court consists of a tribunal of first instance and an appeal court. Guernsey, Alderney, and Sark are under one

Lieutenant-Governor, but Guernsey and Alderney have a government of their own, and Sark is a dependency of Guernsey and under its jurisdiction. The States for deliberation and legislation consist of a Bailiff, 12 Jurats, 10 Rectors, 2 Crown officers, 15 delegates of parishes, and 18 deputies for parishes elected by the ratepayers. The sheriff and jurats are chosen by indirect election. On May 19, 1905, a law was passed for the Island of Guernsey requiring the approval of the Lieut.-Governor and of the Royal Court of the Island previously to the acquisition, or leasing, or occupation of immovable property by aliens or alien companies, registration and liability to local rates, &c., being also provided for. The Channel Islands are not bound by Acts of the Imperial Parliament unless specially named in them.

INDIA, THE DOMINIONS, COLONIES, PROTECTORATES, AND DEPENDENCIES OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

In the following pages the various sections of the British Empire outside the United Kingdom are arranged in alphabetical order under the divisions of the world to which they belong:—1. Europe; 2. Asia; 3. Africa; 4. America; 5. Australasia and Oceania.

The term 'Dominion' is used officially as a convenient abbreviation of the complete designation 'self-governing Dominion.' The Dominions are Australia, Canada, Newfoundland, New Zealand, and South Africa. The term 'Colony' is an abbreviation of the official designation 'Colony not possessing responsible Government,' and includes all such Colonies whether or not they possess an elective Legislature, but does not include Protectorates or Protected States. The term 'Crown Colonies' is properly applicable only to those Colonies in which the Crown retains control of legislation. It is under consideration (Autumn, 1921) to revise the constitution of some of the Crown Colonies, and to devolve upon specially appointed High Commissioners some of the functions now centred in the Colonial Office.

Under the recent Peace Treaties certain ex-German and ex-Turkish territories are to be administered by parts of the British Empire under mandates approved by the League of Nations. These territories include Samoa, New Guinea, Mesopotamia, Palestine, and parts of the former German Colonies in Africa.

The Colonial Office is divided into four branches, the first of which, called the Dominions Department, deals with business connected with the self-governing colonies, and is linked with the secretariat of the Imperial Conference. The Second Department, called the Crown Colonies Department, deals with the administrative and political work of the Crown Colonies and Protectorates. The Third or General Department, which is also a Legal Department, deals with matters common to all Crown Colonies, such as currency, banking, posts and telegraphs, education, &c. Connected with this department are standing committees to deal with promotion, railways and finance, concessions, and pensions. The fourth Department was established in March, 1921, to deal with the "Middle East" (Palestine and Mesopotamia, and also questions of policy in other Arab areas within the British sphere of influence).

EUROPE.

GIBRALTAR.

Governor.—General Sir Horace L. Smith-Dorrien, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., D.S.O., salary, 5,500*l.* with 2,000*l.* allowances. Appointed June 22, 1913. Colonial Secretary.—Major C. W. J. Orr, C.M.G.

The Rock of Gibraltar is a Crown colony, situated in 36° 6' N. latitude and 5° 21' W. longitude, in the Province of Andalusia, in Spain, commanding the entrance to the Mediterranean. The Governor, who is also Commander-in-Chief, exercises all the functions of government and legislation. Area, 1½ square mile; greatest elevation, 1,396 feet. Expenditure	82,077	119,570	119,636	133,387	136,432	372,994

Chief sources of revenue, 1920:—Customs, 135,342*l.*; post office, 15,741*l.*; rents of Crown property, 12,674*l.*; fees and re-imbursements in aid, 32,246*l.*; port, harbour, and wharf dues, 42,876*l.*; interest on investments, 31,224*l.*; licences and internal revenues, 6,143*l.* Chief branches of expenditure, 1920:—Establishments, 93,925*l.*; public works, 74,934*l.*; pensions, 5,338*l.* ecclesiastical grants, 1,000*l.* Contribution by Home Government, nil. Public debt, nil. Total net assets, 210,512*l.* Industries unimportant. The trade of the port is chiefly transit trade, and the supply of coal to ships. There are import duties on malt liquors, wine, spirits, and tobacco, and on these articles the duties are low.

Government savings-bank, with 5,137 depositors, had 57,177 pesetas and 192,688*l.* deposits at the end of 1920.

Gibraltar is a naval base and position of great strategic importance, which is now largely increased in strength and stability. There is a deep harbour of 260 acres, which suffices for all the wants of the Mediterranean fleet. The merchant vessels registered at the port were (1920) 57 steamers of 3,296 tons net and 10 sailing vessels of 1,512 tons; total, 67 vessels of 4,808 tons. Vessels entered, 1920, 6,496; tonnage, 11,614,187; cleared, 5,552; tonnage, 11,489,533. Three miles of internal telegraph under military and about one mile under the Eastern Telegraph Company. Postal communication daily with England. Letters and post-cards in 1920, 2,361,567; newspapers and book packets, 432,848. There is cable communication with the Continent, Tangier, the Mediterranean Eastern ports, and England, via Eastern Telegraph Company's lines.

A regular carriage service connects Gibraltar with Linea, a neighbouring town, and a road connects Linea with the village of Campamento.

The legal currency is that of Great Britain; but Spanish money continues to circulate freely. Since the outbreak of the great war there are also currency notes issued by the local Government. There are four private banks.

MALTA.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Field-Marshal Lord Plumer, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O.; appointed 1919. Salary, 3,000*l*.

Lieut.-Governor and Chief Secretary to Government.—W. C. F. Robertson, C.M.G.

Malta was blockaded by the British Fleet, aided by the Maltese, from 1798 to 1800, and was finally annexed to the British Crown by the Treaty of Paris in 1814. It is one of the most important ports of call in the world, and is the base and resort for repair and refitment of the British fleet in the Mediterranean. Its harbour, as a naval station, is too small for the fleet. A breakwater was constructed in 1909.

Under the Malta Constitution Letters Patent, 1921, there is an elected Legislature to control purely local affairs, consisting of a Senate (partly nominated) of 17 members, and a Legislative Assembly of 32 members. Elections are on a proportional representation basis. There is a responsible ministry, appointed October, 1921, as follows: Prime Minister and Treasury—Mr. Joseph Howard; Justice—Dr. Buhagiar; Public Works—Dr. Said; Public Instruction—Mgr. Ferris; Chamber of Commerce—Dr. Hugh Mifsud; Charitable Institutions and Public Health—Dr. Carmelo Mifsud. Certain 'reserved' matters, including control of naval, military and air forces, Imperial interests, external trade, coinage, immigration, treaties, and relations with foreign States, are dealt with by the Governor, assisted by a nominated Executive Council, consisting of the Lieutenant-Governor, a legal adviser, and an officer of the navy, army, and air force.

English is the official language of the Colony, Maltese being allowed in the elementary schools, and Italian the official language of record in the Law Courts.

Malta is 17 miles long; area, 91½ square miles; and the neighbouring island, Gozo, 26 square miles; total area (with Comino), 118 square miles. Population, according to Census taken on April 2, 1911, 228,534. Civil population on April 2, 1911, 211,864; estimated civil population on April 1, 1920, 224,859. Births, 1919-20, 6,787; deaths, 4,586; number of marriages, 2,038. Chief town and port, Valletta.

Education—102 public schools, with 22,222 pupils on the rolls at the beginning of the scholastic year, 1919-20; a university with 6 faculties and 221 students; a lyceum with 807 students; 2 secondary schools, one for boys with 54 pupils, and one for girls with 186 pupils; and 7 technical manual schools. Expenditure on elementary education, 1919-20, 33,310*l.*; secondary, 4,985*l.*; university, 6,590*l.* There are 63 unaided private schools with 4,580 pupils.

In 1919-20, 3,977 persons were committed to prison; 164 persons were convicted of serious crime and 18,592 summarily. Police numbered 515 officers and men on March 31, 1920.

The revenue and expenditure in 5 years were:—

Chief source of revenue: Customs (332,605*l.* in 1919-20). Contribution from Home Government, nil. Chief branches of expenditure, 1919-20:— Establishments, 408,750*l.*; interest and burthens, 29,461*l.*; pensions, 26,581*l.*; public works, 85,998*l.* Public debt, 79,081*l.* Savings bank (1920) had 8,216 depositors, and deposits, 786,980*l.*

Chief products: wheat, meslin, barley, potatoes, onions, grapes and other fruits, cotton. Total value of agricultural produce 1920-21, 719,000*l.* Area cultivated (1920-21), 42,891 acres in about 11,100 holdings, on leases of 4 to 8 years. Cotton is grown (605 acres in 1920-21; production, 106,480 lb.). Manufactures: lace, cotton, filigree, and cigarettes. Chief industry, farming; in 1919-20, horses, mules and asses numbered 6,393; horned cattle, 3,183; sheep, 17,853; goats, 17,141. The fishing industry occupied 940 boats, and about 3,500 persons (1919-20).

There are specific import duties on beer, spirits, spirit varnishes, wine, tobacco, sugar, wheat, flour, living cattle, pigs and sheep, horses and mules, fresh, frozen, and preserved meat, oils, petroleum, potatoes, biscuits, and vinegar. 'Ad valorem' duties of from 5 per cent. to 20 per cent. are levied on certain other imports.

Transhipment trade is excluded. Principal imports, 1919-20: wheat, 308,620*l.*; flour, 339,935*l.*; sugar, 154,360*l.*; edible oils, 148,243*l.*; tobacco, 153,851*l.*; cotton goods, 165,141*l.*; wines, 180,017*l.*; petroleum, 168,282*l.*; cattle foods, 295,005*l.*; coal, 410,153*l.*

Of the total imports in 1920, 2,672,787*l.* came from the United Kingdom, 322,624*l.* from British possessions; and 2,794,015*l.* from foreign countries.

Vessels entered (1919-20), 1,519 of 1,893,850 tons; cleared, 1,514 of 1,680,602 tons. Of the total entered, 498 vessels of 1,292,888 tons were British. Belonging to the port of Valletta on January 1, 1920, were 12 sailing vessels of 854 tons, and 29 steamers, of 2,331 tons; total, 41 vessels of 3,185 tons.

Railway, 8 miles of metre gauge (belonging to and worked by the local government); telephones, 735 miles of wire. The Post-office traffic in 1919-20 was: Inland letters and postcards, 2,615,685; newspapers, &c., 662,836; foreign correspondence, received, letters, 1,758,689; postcards, 140,421; newspapers, &c., 1,077,344; dispatched, letters, 2,559,027; postcards, 146,989; newspapers, 309,135; parcels, received 61,103; dispatched 12,002.

British coins and Government currency notes are the legal tender. The amount of British Treasury currency notes in circulation on March 31, 1920, was roughly estimated at 880,000*l.*, but the amount of British gold, silver, and bronze coins in circulation on that date cannot be ascertained. The notes of the Anglo-Maltese Bank and the Banco di Malta are in circulation; but as the Banks are not under statutory control and do not publish balance sheets the amount of the note circulation is not known.

ASIA.

ADEN, PERIM, SOKOTRA, AND KURIA MURIA ISLANDS.

ADEN is a volcanic peninsula on the Arabian coast, about 100 miles east of Bab-el-Mandeb. It forms an important coaling-station on the highway to the East, and is strongly fortified. The settlement includes Little Aden, a peninsula very similar to Aden itself, and the settlement and town of Shaikh Othman on the mainland, with the villages of Imad, Hiswa, and Bir Jabir.

In April, 1905, after demarcation of the frontier, Ottoman and British Commissioners signed an agreement which determines the boundary of the hinterland from Sheikh Murad on the Red Sea to Bana river, and thence north-east to the great Desert. By the Anglo-Turkish Convention of 1914, the boundary was prolonged through the desert to a point on the coast opposite Bahrein in the Persian Gulf. The settlement also includes the island of Perim at the entrance to the Red Sea, and is subject to the Bombay Government. The Government is administered by a Political Resident (who is also General Officer Commanding the troops) with four assistants. The India Office has hitherto exercised internal administrative control (through the Government of India); the Foreign Office has been responsible for political questions, and the War Office for military questions, but it is under consideration (March, 1921) to transfer Aden to the Colonial Office.

Political Resident and General Officer Commanding.—Major-General T. F. Scott, C.B., C.I.E., D.S.O.

First Assistant Resident.—Major B. R. Rielly, O.B.E.

The only Government revenue is from duties on liquor, opium, and salt, and from income tax, court fees and judicial fines; local taxes go to the Aden Settlement Fund. There is a Port Trust. The gross revenue of the settlement in 1919-20 was 1,694,121*l.*

Area 75 square miles; including the Protectorate, about 9,000 square miles; of Perim, 5 square miles. Population of Aden and Perim in 1921, 54,923

(36,878 males and 18,045 females), against 46,165 in 1911. Imports (1920-21), by sea, 5,775,443*l.*; by land, 171,499*l.*; treasure (sea and land), 547,896*l.*; total imports, 6,494,838*l.* (total, 1919-20, 7,124,078*l.*) Chief imports: Cotton piece goods, grain, hides and skins, tobacco, coal, coffee, sugar, fruits, vegetables, and other provisions. Exports, by sea, 4,119,419*l.*; by land, 198,355*l.*; treasure (sea and land), 1,049,237*l.*; total exports, 5,367,011*l.* (total, 1919-20, 6,517,004*l.*) Chief exports: Coffee, gums, hides and skins, cotton goods, tobacco, grain and pulse, provisions, sugar. These statistics are exclusive of government stores and treasure. In 1920-21, 1,119 merchant vessels of 3,196,243 tons (net) entered the port of Aden, of which 599 were British; in the same year 952 country (local) craft of 36,367 tons entered. At Perim 361 vessels entered, of which 44 were Government vessels. Aden itself produces little, its chief industries being the manufacture of salt and cigarettes. The trade is largely a transhipment one, and is divided into foreign, Indian, and inland. There is a branch of the National Bank of India, Limited, and there is also one firm of private bankers.

A railway was begun in 1915, for military purposes, from Aden to Lahej, 25 miles, and has now been extended a few miles beyond that oasis. The gauge is one metre.

The island of Sokotra off the coast of Africa is under British protection, and the Kuria Muria islands, off the coast of Arabia, are attached to Aden. Area of former, 1,382 square miles. Population about 12,000, mostly pastoral and migratory inland, fishing on the coast. Religion, at one time Christian, Mohammedan since the end of the 17th century. The island came under British protection in 1876, by treaty with the Sultan. Chief products, dates and various gums; sheep, cattle, and goats are plentiful; butter is exported. The Kuria Muria Islands, five in number, were ceded by the Sultan of Muskat for the purpose of landing the Red Sea cable.

BAHREIN ISLANDS.

Group of islands in the Persian Gulf, 20 miles off the coast of El Hasa, in Arabia. Bahrein, the largest, is 27 miles long by 10 wide; Muharrak, to the north-east of Bahrein, 4 miles long, $\frac{1}{2}$ mile wide. Other islands are, to the east, Sitra, 3 miles long and 1 mile broad, half its area being fertile; Nabi Saleh, about 2 miles in circumference, very fertile; Jezeyra, a small islet with a date plantation; to the west are three rocky and uninhabited islets, Um Nahsan, Jidi, and Raka. The regular population of the islands is put at about 110,000. Manama, the capital and commercial centre, extends 3 miles along the shore and has 35,000 inhabitants. Muharrak on the island of that name has about 20,000 inhabitants. Other towns are Budaiya on Bahrein Island and Hadd on Muharrak Island. There are about 100 villages in the islands. There are thousands of tombs in the shape of conical mounds situated in the interior of the islands. They vary considerably in size, some of them being as much as 100 yards in diameter, and 40 feet in height, entailing vast labour of construction. Inside are regular masonry burial chambers. No certainty as to their origin yet exists owing to want of inscriptions, but they are undoubtedly extremely ancient.

The ruling family, Al Khalifa, and most of the townsmen are Mohammedans of the Sunni (Maliki) sect. The town population consists of Arabs who have come from Nejd within the last 200 years, and negroes. The agricultural population and the Bahrein pearl divers are mostly of the Shiah sect. There is a large Persian (mostly Shiah) community, and a number of Indian (mostly Hindu) merchants and tradesmen live in Manama. The present chief of Bahrein is Sheikh Sir Isa bin Ali Al Khalifah, K.C.I.E., C.S.I. His uncle, Mahomed, was deposed by the British in 1837, and Sheikh Ali, his father, installed in his place. In 1869 Ali was killed, and Sheikh Isa succeeded to power.

The great industry is the pearl fishery, in which over 1,000 boats, of from 8 to 60 men each, from Bahrein alone, are engaged. The Bahrein Islands also produce dates, and a remarkably fine breed of white donkeys. Sail cloth is manufactured extensively, and also reed mats. In 1919-20, imports amounted to 1,414,423*l.*; exports, 946,344*l.* There are 5 per cent. ad valorem import duties. The importation of arms and ammunition is subject to the consent of the British Government.

The chief imports in 1920-21 were: specie, 14,793*l.*; rice, 524,064*l.*; coffee, 50,974*l.*; ghee, 54,697*l.*; sugar, 55,985*l.*; tea, 24,192*l.*; piece goods, 177,387*l.* The chief exports were: rice, 218,322½*l.*; coffee, 21,612*l.*; sugar, 12,311*l.* Owing to its situation, harbour, and good service of steamers, the port is largely used as a place of transhipment for mainland goods.

In 1920-21 there entered the port of Bahrein 74 British ships of 141,249 tons, and 1 American ship of 3,170 tons. The greater part of the trade of Najd and Hasa passes through Bahrein, where transhipment between steamers and dhows takes place.

There is a British Post office which is worked as an Indian Inland office with the exception of insurance. Letter rates between Great Britain and Bahrein are the same as between Great Britain and India. There is a wireless station.

The principal coins in use are Indian rupees, Austrian (Maria Theresa) dollars worth from 41*d.* to 48*d.*, and Turkish lire worth from 20*s.* to 20*s.* 5*d.* according to the rate of exchange. The rupee is the coin in general use. The Persian double kran, value about 1*s.* 1*d.* is also used. The measure employed is the dhirau of 18½ inches. The weights are: the miscal shirazi of 72 grains; the miscal bar of 720 grains; the rubai of 4·114 lbs. avoirdupois; the mann of 57·6 lbs. avoirdupois; and the rafaa of 576 lbs. avoirdupois.

The political relations between the Government of India and the Chief of Bahrein are conducted through the Political Resident in the Persian Gulf and a Political Agent, who tries all cases in which British or Foreign subjects are concerned.

BORNEO (BRITISH).

British North Borneo.—Governor.—A. C. Pearson, C.M.G.

British North Borneo occupies the northern part of the island of Borneo. The interior is mountainous, Mount Kina Balu being 13,455 feet high.

Area, about 31,106 square miles, with a coast-line of over 900 miles. Population (1911 census) 208,183, consisting mainly of Mohamedan settlers on the coast and aboriginal tribes inland. The Europeans numbered 355; Chinese, 26,002; Malays, 1,612; East Indians, 5,511; Sulus, 5,700. The number of natives cannot be more than approximately estimated, but is placed at about 170,000. The most numerous are the Dusuns, about 88,000; the Muruts, 25,300; and the Bajans, 22,600. Chief towns, Sandakan (population 8,256), on the east coast, and Jesselton, on the west coast.

The territory is under the jurisdiction of the British North Borneo Company, being held under grants from the Sultans of Brunei and Sulu (Royal Charter in 1881). The territory is administered by a Governor (appointed with the approval of the Secretary of State) in Borneo, and a Court of Directors in London, appointed under the Charter. On May 12, 1888, the British Government proclaimed a formal protectorate over the State of North Borneo. In 1898 certain border lands were acquired from the Sultan of Brunei, and more recently certain inland territories have been occupied. For administrative purposes the whole country is divided into five Residencies, which are sub-divided into Districts. In December, 1904, an area of about 200 square miles was transferred to Sarawak in exchange for rights over coal mines on Brunei Bay.

There are Protestant and Catholic missions. The laws are based on the Indian Penal, Criminal, and Civil Procedure Codes, and local Ordinances. There is an Imam's Court for Mohamedan law. Native and Indian constabulary, 800 men under European officers.

The revenue includes sums realised by land sales, and the expenditure includes sums spent on capital account.

Sources of revenue: Opium, birds' nests, court fees, stamp duties, licences, import and export duties, royalties, land sales, &c. No public debt.

Most of the trade is carried on through Singapore and Hong Kong with Great Britain and the colonies. The chief products are timber, sago, rice, coconuts, gums, coffee, many fruits, nutmegs, cinnamon, pepper, gambier, gutta-percha, rubber, camphor, rattans, tapioca, sweet potatoes, and tobacco, which is being planted on a large scale. Coal, iron, gold, and mineral oil have been found. The exports comprise the products mentioned, with birds' nests, seed pearls, bêche-de-mer, &c. A railway, 127 miles, runs from Jesselton on Gaya Bay to Melalap in the interior, with a branch from Beaufort to Weston on Brunei Bay. Borneo is now connected by cable with the outer world. There is a telegraph line from Menumbuk, where the cable reaches land, to Jesselton via Beaufort. At the latter station a branch line leads to Tenom in the Interior. Communication between Jesselton and Sandakan, Kudat and Tawau is maintained by wireless telegraphy. A land line extends from Sandakan to Lahad Datu. Telephone exchanges are operated at Sandakan and Jesselton, while an elaborate system of telephone lines maintains communication between smaller stations and bigger Government centres.

At Jesselton and Sandakan there are agencies of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, the Chinese Commercial Bank, and the Bank of Taiwan. A State Bank has been established, with Head Office in Sandakan and a branch at Jesselton.

The Government issues its own copper coinage (cents and half-cents); nickel coinage of 1, 2½ and 5 cents; also notes of one, five, ten, and twenty-five dollars, and of 25 and 50 cents. Accounts are kept in dollar currency.

Brunei.—In 1888 the neighbouring territories on the north-west coast of Borneo, Brunei and Sarawak, were placed under British protection. On January 2, 1906, by treaty, the Sultan of Brunei handed over the general administration of his State to a British Resident. The Sultan, Sir Mohamed Jemalulalam, K.C.M.G., born in 1889, succeeded his father in May, 1906. He receives an allowance of 1,400L. a year from State funds, and his two principal ministers 700L. a year each. Area about 4,000 square miles, and population, 1921 Census, 25,454 (Europeans, 35; Malays and Bornean races, 23,928; Chinese, 1,434; Indians, 37). The chief town is Brunei (pop. 10,000). The old town is built over the water on the Brunei river, and a new town has developed on the mainland since 1910. Police force, 1921, 38 non-commissioned officers and men. Average annual rainfall is a little over 100 inches. The principal products are cutch (mangrove extract), coal, rubber, jelutong, and sago. There are vernacular schools at Brunei, and in some out-districts. Revenue 1920, 23,500L.; (Customs, 7,400L., monopolies, 4,100L., licences, 2,400L.; land revenue, 2,800L., cession moneys, 2,300L.) and expenditure, 26,000L. Public debt, Dec. 31, 1920, 50,100L.

Imports 1920, 84,300L. (mainly rice, 36,000L., tobacco, 9,400L., pieces goods, 21,700L., sugar, 5,800L., kerosene oil, 4,500L.); exports, 136,900L. (cutch, 41,800 cwt., 41,500L., coal, 17,000 tons, 34,500L., rubber, 25,000L., jelutong, 13,600L., sago, 10,000L., dried prawns, 7,200L.). The post office dealt with 28,972 articles in 1920.

There is a central Wireless Station at Brunei, and a subsidiary station at Labuan, which enables telegraphic communication to be maintained with Labuan and thence by cable with Singapore and Europe. There is another Wireless Station in the Temburong District.

The distance from Labuan is about 43 miles. Communication by steam launches is regularly maintained. Between Labuan and Singapore there is a weekly communication by steamers of the Straits Steamship Company, Limited. The passage between Singapore and Labuan takes about 4 days.

Sarawak: Area about 42,000 square miles, coast line 400 miles, many rivers navigable. The government of part of the present territory was obtained in 1842 by Sir James Brooke from the Sultan of Brunei. Various accessions were made between 1861 and 1890. Under an agreement of 1888 Sarawak is recognised as an independent State under the protection of Great Britain. The Rajah, H.H. Charles Vyner Brooke, son of the late Rajah, born Sept. 26, 1874, succeeded May 17, 1917. Population estimated at about 600,000, Malays, Dyaks, Kayaks, Kenyahs, and Muruts, with Chinese and other settlers. The chief towns are the capital, Kuching, about 23 miles inland, on the Sarawak River, Sibu, 60 miles up the Rejang River, which is navigable by large steamers, and Miri, the headquarters of the Sarawak Oilfields, Ltd. At Kuching are Church of England and Catholic missions with schools. The revenue is derived chiefly from Customs, the opium, gambling, arrack and pawn farms, exemption tax payable by Malays, and from Dyak and Kayan revenue. There are import duties on tobacco, salt, kerosene oil, wines, spirits, firearms, jars, liquid fuel, benzine, methylated and other spirits; export duties on sago, gambier, pepper, all jungle produce, dried fish, copra, cutch, tuba root, nipa sugar. The revenue in 1918 was 224,229*l.*; expenditure, 169,830*l.*; 1919, revenue, 295,311*l.*; expenditure, 200,888*l.*; 1920, revenue, 308,728*l.*; expenditure, 274,435*l.* Public debt, nil. Coal exists in large quantities. A considerable oil field is being developed at Miri. Foreign trade: 1919: imports, 2,364,208*l.*; exports, 2,795,095*l.*; 1920: imports, 1,712,725*l.*; exports, 2,107,833*l.* The chief exports (1920) included sago flour, 267,990*l.*; pepper, 83,083*l.*; gold, 71,421*l.*; plantation rubber, 332,143*l.*; gutta jelutong, 233,828*l.*; cutch, 56,301*l.*; benzine, kerosene, and liquid fuel, 777,070*l.*; birds' nests, 15,288*l.*; gutta percha, 16,317*l.*; fish, 30,000*l.*; damar, 42,483*l.*; vegetable tallow nuts, 38,356*l.*; nipa sugar, 13,542*l.* The trade is mostly with Singapore. Shipping entered and cleared in the foreign trade, 1919, 309,488 tons.; 1920, 310,226 tons. There are military and police forces, consisting of about 700 men, principally Dyaks and Malays, under British army officers. Round Kuching are about 45 miles of roads, besides bridle paths. There are 23 post offices. The Government offices have a telephone system extending over Kuching and Upper Sarawak, and there is communication by wireless with Singapore, &c. There are also wireless stations at Sadong, Sibu, Miri, and Goebilt, Distance from London, 8,700 miles; transit, not less than 30 days, generally more. Telegrams are sent by wireless from Singapore.

CEYLON.

Constitution and Government, &c.

Ceylon, the ancient Taprobane (Tamraparnu, the island of "dusky leaves"), is an island in the Indian Ocean, off the southern extremity of Hindustan, lying between 5° 55' and 9° 50½' N. lat., and 79° 42' and 81° 53' E. long.; its extreme length from north to south, i.e., from Point Palmyra to Dondra Head, is 271 miles; its greatest width 139 miles, from Colombo on the west coast to Sangemankande on the east. Its area is 25,481 square miles, or about equal to Holland and Belgium.

The climate of Ceylon, for a tropical country, is comparatively healthy; the heat in the plains, which is nearly the same throughout the year, is much less oppressive than in Hindustan. Along the coast the annual mean temperature is about 81° Fahr., at Kandy, 1,665 feet above sea level, it is 76° Fahr. At Colombo the average monthly temperature varies from a mean minimum of 71° Fahr. in January and February, to a mean maximum of 90° Fahr. in March and April. The highest temperatures are experienced in the district to the north of the hills, and to the north-east, but it is only in a very few days in the year that a temperature of 100° Fahr. or over is experienced. The average annual rainfall varies from 40 to 50 inches in the dry zones to the north-west and south-east of the island, to above 200 inches at certain places on the south-west slopes of the hills. The rainy season extends from April to June and from September to November, but there is hardly a month without some rain, and the result is the luxuriant vegetation for which this island is famous.

The authentic history of Ceylon begins in the fifth century B.C., when an invasion of Hindus from Northern India established the Sinhales dynasty. As a result of many generations of warfare the northern districts were occupied by Tamils from South India, and the population of these districts is almost wholly Tamil, and mainly Hindu in religion. Buddhism was introduced from India in the third century B.C., and is still the religion of the majority of the inhabitants, especially in the southern part of the island.

In 1505 the Portuguese formed settlements on the west and south, which were taken from them about the middle of the next century by the Dutch. In 1795-96 the British Government annexed the foreign settlements to the Presidency of Madras; in 1801 Ceylon was erected into a separate colony. In 1315, the districts of the interior, which had maintained their independence under the Kings of Kandy, were acquired by Great Britain as the result of a rebellion against the king, and the whole island was thus united under British rule.

According to the terms of the Constitution established in 1833, modified on various occasions, and now embodied in the Order in Council dated August, 1920, the administration is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council of seven members—viz., the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Colonial Treasurer, the Government Agent of the Western Province, and three unofficial members nominated by the Governor, and a Legislative Council of 37 members (14 official and 23 unofficial) exclusive of the Governor, who presides. Of the unofficial members, 11 are elected to represent territorial divisions, 2 to represent the Europeans, 1 the Burgher Community, 1 the Chamber of Commerce, 1 the Low Country Products Association. The remaining 7 are nominated by the Governor as follows: 2 Kandyan, 1 Mohammedan, 1 Indian, and 3 to represent Special Interests.

Governor.—Brigadier-General Sir William Henry Manning, G.C.M.G., K.B.E., C.B. (appointed April 30, 1918). Salary 5,500*l.*, and 1,500*l.* allowance.

Colonial Secretary.—Sir Graeme Thomson, K.C.B.

For purposes of general administration, the island is divided into nine provinces, presided over by Government Agents, with assistants and subordinate headmen. There are three municipalities and twenty-one local boards mainly for sanitary purposes.

Area and Population.

The population of Ceylon (exclusive of the military and the shipping) at the Census held on March 18, 1921, showed an increase of 9·5 per cent. since 1911. The distribution by Provinces, and the average number of persons per square mile in each Province, are shown provisionally in the following table:—

Provinces	Area: English sq. miles	Population, 1921		Provinces	Area: English sq. miles	Population, 1921
		Total	Per sq. mile			Total	Per sq. mile
Western	1,432	1,246,811	871	Uva	3,271	233,811	71

The race distribution of the population at the census of 1921 and the increase per cent. since 1911, are provisionally as follows:—

Races	Population, 1921, exclusive of military and shipping, etc.	Increase per cent. since 1911	Military, shipping, and miscellaneous Population
Europeans	8,421	10·9	908
Burghers	28,923	8·4	118

Veddahs	4,402	—17·4	—
Others	20,503	61·2	2,559
	4,497,599		6,684

Occupational statistics based on the results of the 1921 census are not yet available. In 1911, of the 4,106,350 persons (exclusive of the military and the shipping) at the census of 1911, the occupation of 2,631,622 or 64·1 per cent. (of whom 1,096,301 were earners and 1,535,321 dependents) was returned as agriculture; 442,011 or 10·7 per cent. (191,130 earners, 250,881 dependents) industrial occupation; 323,568 or 7·9 per cent. (136,259 earners, 187,309 dependents) trade.

The population on the principal estates, mainly consisting of immigrant Tamils from Southern India, numbered, at the census of 1921, about 569,000, and formed 12·6 per cent. of the total population.

Marriages registered, 1920, 21,821¹; births registered, 163,719² (83,556 males and 80,162 females); deaths registered, 132,955.

The urban population is about 15 per cent. of the total population. The principal towns and their population (exclusive of the military, shipping, and estates), according to the census of 1921, are:—Colombo, 241,100; Galle, 39,000; Jaffna, 42,400; Kandy, 32,000.

² Inclusive of a hermaphrodite.

Religion and Instruction.

At the census of 1921 the provisional numbers of adherents to the principal religions were:—Buddhists, 2,770,000; Hindus, 982,000; Muhammedans, 302,000; Christians, 414,000.

Buddhism in Ceylon (unlike that in Tibet, China, and Japan) is, in its philosophy, materialistic and atheistic, and in popular usage has a large admixture of the doctrines and practices of popular Hinduism and of the aboriginal wild tribes.

Education is under a separate Government department with a Director, an assistant Director, an office assistant, and a staff of Inspectors.

The number of vernacular schools in 1920 was: Government schools, 895 (attendance, 91,139 boys and 33,338 girls); Aided schools, 1,868 (attendance, 123,752 boys and 73,888 girls); Unaided schools, 1,350 (27,709 children). There were also 278 English and Anglo-vernacular schools, attended by 37,730 boys and 10,397 girls.

The total sum spent by Government on vernacular education during 1919-20 was 110,853*l*.

Education is free in vernacular schools, fees are charged in English schools. The Royal College and the Government Training College with the English school attached to it are Government institutions. The other English schools are grant-in-aid schools. The total grants to English schools in 1919-20 amounted to 41,131*l*. The Government also gives three scholarships of 300*l*. a year, each tenable for three years, with outfit allowances of 50*l*. each and free passages, to enable the best two students of each year to complete their course of education in England, and other scholarships are given locally. The Cambridge school certificate examinations, and examinations of the London University up to and including the final bachelor's degree in arts, science and law, are held annually in Ceylon by arrangement. Technical education is given in the "Technical Schools" (446 students in 1920). There are 84 industrial schools.

Justice, Crime, and Pauperism.

The law is Roman-Dutch, modified by colonial ordinances. Kandyan Law is to a certain extent in force in the Kandyan Provinces, and special systems of personal law are recognised for the Mohammedan community, and for the Tamils of the Jaffna District. The criminal law has been codified on the principle of the Indian Penal Code. There are a Supreme Court, police courts and courts of requests, and district courts, intermediate between the latter and the Supreme Court. Village councils deal with petty offences. In 1920 the number of cases instituted in the police courts and municipal magistrates' courts was 92,495. The number of "true" cases of cognisable crime was 10,889, and the convictions, 5,348. 14,429 convicted persons were sent to prison. Police force, December 31, 1920, 2,422 of all ranks.

There is no poor law, though a few old persons receive a charitable allowance from the Government, varying from Rs. 1 to Rs. 12·50 each per mensem.

The net public debt on September 30, 1920, was 4,767,393*l.*, incurred entirely for public works, such as the construction of railways, harbour works, waterworks, etc.

Defence.

The harbour of Colombo, on the west, is protected.

In normal times Ceylon pays three-fourths of the cost of the Imperial garrison. At present the defence of the Colony is almost entirely in the hands of local troops. Compulsory service for Europeans was introduced in 1917.

Production and Industry.

The area of the colony is 16,212,000 acres, of which it is estimated that about 3,106,000 acres are under cultivation, and about 1,000,000 acres pasture land. The approximate areas under the principal products in 1920 were: paddy, 757,043 acres; other grain, 154,900 acres; cacao, 31,750 acres; cinnamon, 34,662 acres; tea, 502,645 acres; coconuts, 945,057 acres; rubber, 400,000 acres. In 1920, the exports of tea were 185 million lbs., of which 120 million lbs. were sent to the United Kingdom. The exports of desiccated coconuts were 519,000 cwt., copra, 1,358,000 cwt., and coconut-oil, 507,500 cwt. In the same year, 88,552,000 lbs. of rubber were exported, of which 44,674,000 lbs. went to the United Kingdom, 39,368,000 lbs. to America. In 1920, 10,069 acres of crown land were sold and settled. Live stock (1920), 3,210 horses, 1,598,833 horned cattle, 57,497 sheep, 59,070 pigs, and 155,570 goats. There is a Government Dairy, possessing over 200 head of cattle, imported from Scinde. Plumbago mines working at end of 1920, 101. The exports of plumbago in 1920 were 184,000 cwt. Other minerals, such as gold, thorium, and monazite, exist, but, except the last-named, so far have not been found in quantities of commercial importance. There are some hundreds of small-gem quarries, from which sapphires, rubies, moonstones, catseyes, and other gems are obtained. Native manufactures, which are at present of very minor importance, are weaving, basket work, tortoise-shell boxes, &c., earthenware, jewellery, metal work, lacquer work, carving, &c. Manufactures on any large scale are confined to the products of agriculture, such as the production of coconut oil. In 1920 there were 1,270 registered factories, including 1,146 tea and rubber factories, 115 coconut fibre, oil, &c., factories, 50 engineering and saw mills, 22 aerated water, ice, &c., factories.

The values of imports and exports are declared, and represent the wholesale values at the place of import or export. Declarations are subject to scrutiny and penalty. The Chamber of Commerce, as representing the trade of the island, assists by supplying the value on which a rated duty is levied. Quantities of imports are ascertained from invoices or by actual examination; of exports, from declarations and by examination of the shipping documents, shippers being liable to penalties for misstatement. The origin and destination of goods are also obtained from the shipping documents. In some cases, however, goods intended for transhipment abroad are so entered, e.g. to New York, via London. The transit trade includes all goods transhipped direct in port, as well as goods landed into transhipment warehouses. The transit trade of Colombo has largely increased of late years, but, as no bills of entry are required in respect of transhipment goods, the returns as to quantity are only approximately correct, and no returns as to value can be prepared.

Principal exports in 1920.—Cacao, 167,687*l.*; cinnamon, 143,141*l.*; coir (and manufactures), 170,434*l.*; copra, 1,893,685*l.*; coconut oil, 1,324,307*l.*; tea, 5,385,436*l.* (184,770,231 lbs.); plumbago, 140,007*l.*; coconut, fresh, 61,941*l.*; coconut, desiccated, 1,221,984*l.*; areca nuts, 194,921*l.*; rubber, 5,997,407*l.* (790,648 cwt.); citronella oil, 76,102*l.*

According to Ceylon returns the total imports from the United Kingdom in 1920 amounted to 5,164,066*l.*, and exports thereto, to 8,244,031*l.*

In 1920 (British Board of Trade Returns) the value of tea imported into the United Kingdom from Ceylon was 7,924,000*l.* (quantity, 123,349,000 lbs.). Other imports in 1920 were: rubber, 4,658,000*l.* (48,002,000 lbs.); coconut oil, 1,204,000*l.*; coconut, desiccated, 1,134,000*l.*; nuts and kernels, 374,000*l.* The principal exports of United Kingdom to Ceylon in 1920 were; cottons goods, 1,710,000*l.*; iron and steel goods, 1,039,000*l.*; machinery, 357,000*l.*; spirits, 112,000*l.*; tobacco, 182,000*l.* Total imports into United Kingdom (British Board of Trade Returns), 1921, 10,658,000*l.*; total exports of British produce to Ceylon, 3,941,000*l.*

Shipping and Communications.

Shipping entered and cleared, 1920, 18,215,605 tons (British, 7,565,929¹ tons). In 1919, the total tonnage was 17,708,617, and British, 13,131,162. On January 1, 1921, 122 sailing vessels of 10,877 tons, and 7 steamers of 737 tons net, total vessels 129 of 11,614 tons net, were registered as belonging to Ceylon.

728 miles of railway were open at September 30, 1920, and several extensions are under construction.

In 1920 there were 561 post offices of various classes; money order offices, 195; telegraph offices, 160; postal packets or postcards passed through the post office, 49,000,000 (exclusive of parcels). 7,558 miles of telegraph wire; telegrams dispatched, 1,463,012.

¹ Excluding vessels which called to coal.

Money and Credit.

Seven banks have establishments in Ceylon: the Mercantile Bank of India, the Imperial Bank of India, the National Bank of India, the Bank of Colombo, the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, and the Eastern Bank. The Ceylon Savings Bank on December 31, 1920, had 40,670 depositors, and deposits amounting to Rs. 4,293,805; and the Post Office Savings Bank, 126,089 depositors, and deposits, Rs. 4,190,659.

The weights and measures of Ceylon are the same as those of the United Kingdom. The currency consists of:—Copper: Ceylon 1-cent and $\frac{1}{2}$ -cent pieces, 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ cents being equivalent to 1*d.* English. Nickel: Ceylon 5-cent piece. Silver: Indian rupee (=100 cents), equivalent (by Ordinance No. 6 of 1903) to 1*s.* 4*d.* English; and Ceylon 50-cent, 25-cent, and 10-cent pieces. Ceylon Government currency notes of Rs. 1,000, 100, 50, 10, 5, 2, and 1. On September 30, 1920, the value of currency notes in circulation was Rs. 47,190,289.

Dependency.

The Maldivé Islands, 400 miles west of Ceylon, are governed by an elected Sultan, who resides in the island of Male, and pays a yearly tribute to the Ceylon Government. Next to the Sultan is the first Wazir, or Prime Minister, then the Fandiari, the head priest or judge, and besides them 6 Wazirs or Ministers of State. The Maldives are a group of 13 coral islets (atolls), richly clothed with cocoa-nut palms, and yielding millet, fruit, and edible nuts. Population over 70,000 Mohammedans. The people are civilised, and are great navigators and traders.

The island is the third largest in the Mediterranean, 40 miles from the coast of Asia Minor and 60 from the coast of Syria. It was administered until November 5, 1914, by Great Britain, under a convention concluded with the Sultan of Turkey at Constantinople, June 4, 1878, but on the outbreak of hostilities with Turkey on November 5, 1914, the island was annexed. The High Commissioner has the usual powers of a Colonial Governor. There is an Executive Council, consisting of the Chief Secretary, the King's Advocate, the Treasurer, with three locally resident additional members. The Legislature consists of eighteen members, six being office holders, including the Chief Secretary, the King's Advocate, and the Treasurer, and twelve elected (for five years), three by Mohammedan and nine by non-Mohammedan voters. The voters are all male British subjects, or foreigners twenty-one years of age, who have resided five years, and are payers of any of the taxes known as 'Verghis.' Municipal councils exist in the principal towns, elected practically by all resident householders and ratepayers. Those eligible to the council must be voters rated upon property of the annual value of from 10*l.* to 20*l.*, according to population.

Area 3,584 square miles. Population, Census 1911 :—159,383 males, 134,725 females; total, 274,108 (including 144 military population). Mohammedans (Ottoman Turks) 56,428; Christians (Autocephalous Church of Cyprus), 214,480; others, 3,200. Inhabitants per square mile, 76.48. Preliminary Return of 1921 Census: 310,808. Birth-rate, 1920, 28.7 per 1,000; death-rate, 23.2.

The principal towns are Nicosia (the capital), 18,461; Larnaca, 10,652; Limasol, 11,843; Famagusta and Varoshia, 6,127; Paphos and Ktema, 3,946; Kyrenia, 1,986. There are six administrative districts named after these towns.

The system of elementary education is designed so that each race in the island has its own schools. Besides elementary schools there were in 1920-21 3 Gymnasiums, a commercial Lyceum, 2 'Greek high schools' for boys and a 'high school' for girls, a Priests' Training School, and two Moslem High Schools, one for boys and one for girls. The Government contributed (1920-21) 17,770*l.* to education. Total expenditure on elementary and secondary education, 80,000*l.* Total number of elementary schools in 1919-20, 739 (501 Greek-Christian, 231 Moslem, 3 Armenian and 4 Maronite); teachers, 964 in elementary schools, of whom 674 were Greek-Christian and 278 Moslem. Total enrolment in elementary schools, 42,397, comprising 7,130 Moslem, 35,000 Greek-Christian, 170 Armenian, and 130 Maronite. There are 11 weekly newspapers in Greek.

The law courts consist of (1) a supreme court of civil and criminal appeal; (2) six assize courts, having unlimited criminal jurisdiction; (3) six district courts, having limited criminal jurisdiction and unlimited civil jurisdiction; (4) six magisterial courts with summary jurisdiction; (5) ten village judges' courts. In all, except supreme court, native (Christian and Mohammedan) judges take part. There are also 4 Sheri Courts, for Mohammedans only, which administer the Moslem Sheri or ecclesiastical law. In the year 1920-21 the number of offences was 12,948, and the number of persons committed to prison was 2,587. Strength of police force, March 31, 1921, 27 officers and 807 men; total, 834.

The revenue and expenditure for five years, ended March 31, exclusive of Grant-in-Aid, and share of the Turkish debt charge, were:—

Chief sources of revenue, 1920-21:—Tithes, 164,102*l.*; excise, 74,665*l.*; customs, 110,391*l.*; sheep, goat, and pig taxes, 12,793*l.*; verghis, 29,012*l.*; court receipts and stamps, 31,467*l.*; port dues, &c., 10,021*l.*; railway, 32,777*l.* Customs revenue: 1916-17, 44,425*l.*; 1917-18, 50,434*l.*; 1918-19, 42,368*l.*; 1919-20, 80,294*l.*; 1920-21, 110,391*l.*; Cyprus share of Turkish national debt, 92,800*l.* per year (excluded from above table).

Public debt, 1920-21, 221,434*l.*, for harbour, railways, and irrigation. Annual grant from imperial funds to revenue (not included above), 50,000*l.* per year.

Cyprus is essentially agricultural. Chief products in 1920: wheat, 2,425,000 kiles; barley, 2,145,000 kiles; vetches, 173,000 kiles; oats, 209,000 kiles; olives, cotton. Grapes are produced in large quantities. Other products are raisins, carobs (locust beans), fruit, linseed, silk, cheese, wool, hides, and (by the Department of Agriculture) origanum oil. In 1921 there were 300,415 sheep, and 217,883 goats. One-third of cultivable land is under cultivation. There are irrigation works for the storage and distribution of rain-water. The Forest Department has done much for the preservation and development of the forests existing at the time of the British occupation, and for the re-afforestation of denuded districts. The area of delimited forest is 700 square miles. Sponge fisheries are carried on, the take in 1920 being about 11,000 sponges (70 lbs). Gypsum, terra umbra and marble are found in abundance; mining for copper has commenced; asbestos is mined, 21,386 cwt. being exported in 1917; 4,556 cwt. in 1918; 26,613 cwt. in 1919, and 17,924 cwt. in 1920.

The commerce, and the shipping, exclusive of coasting trade, for five calendar years were:—

HONG KONG.

Constitution and Government.

THE Crown Colony of Hong Kong was ceded by China to Great Britain in January, 1841; the cession was confirmed by the treaty of Nanking, in August, 1842; and the charter bears date April 5, 1843. Hong Kong is the great centre for British commerce with China and Japan, and a military and naval station of first-class importance.

The administration is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, composed of the General Officer Commanding the Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Treasurer, the Secretary for Chinese Affairs, and the Director of Public Works (the last two being special appointments), and three unofficial members. There is also a Legislative Council, presided over by the Governor, and composed of the General Officer Commanding the Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Treasurer, the Director of Public Works, the Director of Education, the Secretary for Chinese Affairs (the last three being special appointments), and six unofficial members—viz., four nominated by the Crown (two of whom are Chinese), one nominated by the Chamber of Commerce, and one by the Justices of the Peace.

Governor—Sir R. E. Stubbs, K.C.M.G. Appointed 1919. Salary 6,000*l.*, including 1,200*l.* allowance.

Area and Population.

Hong Kong is situated at the mouth of the Canton River, about 90 miles south of Canton. The island is an irregular and broken ridge, stretching nearly east and west about 11 miles, its breadth from 2 to 5 miles, and its area rather more than 32 square miles; separated from the mainland by a narrow strait, the Lyceemoo Pass, about half a mile in width. The opposite peninsula of Kowloon, on the mainland, was ceded to Great Britain by treaty in 1861, and now forms part of Hong Kong. The city of Victoria extends for upwards of five miles along the southern shore of the beautiful harbour. By a convention signed at Peking on June 9, 1898, there was leased to Great Britain for 99 years a portion of Chinese territory mainly agricultural, together with the waters of Mirs Bay and Deep Bay and the island of Lan-tao. Its area is 356 square miles, with about 94,000 inhabitants, exclusively Chinese. Area of Old Kowloon is 3 square miles. Total area of colony, 391 square miles. A scheme was begun at the end of 1916 for reclaiming 12 million square feet of land from the sea in Kowloon Bay, and erecting thereon a model town.

The population of Hong Kong, excluding the Military and Naval establishments, was estimated to be in the middle of 1920 as follows:—Non-Chinese civil population, 14,000; Chinese civil population: City of Victoria (including Peak), 342,000; villages of Hong Kong, 18,050; Kowloon (including New Kowloon), 104,000; New Territories (land), 100,800; population afloat, 69,300; total Chinese population, 634,150: total civil population, 648,150; 1921 Census returns: 12,856 Non-Chinese, 612,310 Chinese; total 625,166.

The registered births and deaths for five years were as follows:—

Year	Births	Deaths	Births per 1,000 ¹	Deaths per 1,000 ¹
1914 . . .	3,001	9,585	7·3	23·3
1917 . . .	2,400	10,433	5·3	23·4
1918 . . .	2,321	13,714	4·1	24·4
1919 . . .	2,194	11,647	4·3	23·2
1920 . . .	2,420	12,419	4·36	21·19

¹ Birth and death rates are calculated only on the population of Hong Kong and Kowloon, there being no jurisdiction by the sanitary authorities over the New Territories (except New Kowloon).

In 1916 the number of Chinese emigrants was 117,653, and the number of immigrants 72,405; in 1917, 96,298 and 98,232; in 1918, 43,830 and 74,109; in 1919, 59,969 and 136,020; and in 1920, 105,258 and 122,438 respectively.

Instruction.

Education is not compulsory, but all schools are State-inspected, and required to maintain a certain standard of efficiency. There are 3 secondary Government schools for children of British parentage, with an average attendance of 163 (1920), and 9 Government schools for Chinese boys and one for Chinese girls, with a total average attendance of 2,665. There is one school for Indians, with an average attendance of 101 (1920). There are also numerous schools in receipt of grants. The total number of pupils in all schools in 1920 was 28,707. The University Matriculation Examination serves the purpose of a leaving examination. The total expenditure on education in 1920 was 444,150 dollars, net.

The Hong Kong University was formally opened in March, 1912, and during the session 1919–20 the number of students was 230, mostly Chinese. Faculties of Medicine, Engineering and Arts have been established, with a large staff of British professors and lecturers. There are well-equipped scientific laboratories, and recent additions are schools for instruction in physiology, pathology, and tropical medicine. The engineering laboratories have been equipped with machinery presented by various firms who are interested in technical education. It is the only British University in the Far East.

Justice and Crime.

There are Courts of Justice consisting of a Supreme Court, the second court or Court of Summary Jurisdiction, and a third court or Appeal Court, a police magistrate's court, and a marine magistrate's court. In 1920, 1,999 were committed to Victoria gaol for criminal offences; in 1919, 2,552. The daily average of prisoners in gaol was 756 in 1919, and 755 in 1920. There is a police force in the colony numbering 1,341 men, of whom 135 are Europeans, 430 Indians, and 796 Chinese.

Finance.

The public revenue and expenditure of the colony were as follows in five years. The dollar of Hong Kong is of variable value; for 1913 it is here taken at 2s., for 1916 at 2s. 1½d., for 1917 at 2s. 7½d., for 1918 at 3s. 2½d., for 1919 at 3s. 8½d., for 1920 at 4s. 5d.

Year	Revenue	Expenditure
1913 (pre-war)	851,230	865,801
1916	1,155,388	1,165,700
1917	1,960,690	1,834,743
1918	3,013,676	2,624,027
1919	3,081,220	3,340,574
1920	3,243,960	3,199,785

The revenue is derived chiefly from land-taxes, licences, quarry rent, liquor and tobacco duties, and an opium monopoly. A large portion of the expenditure has to be devoted to the maintenance of a strong police force. Expenditure on establishments in 1920, 5,829,484 dollars. The estimates for 1921 are: revenue, 15,336,350 dollars; expenditure, 17,349,150 dollars.

Public debt, 341,800L, raised in 1887 and 1893 for public works. Another loan, 1,143,933L in Inscribed Stock at 3½ per cent., was raised in 1906 for purposes of railway construction, also a 6 per cent. War Loan of 3,000,000 dollars was authorised. On December 31, 1920, the balance of assets over liabilities was 4,490,266 dollars.

Defence.

The military contribution payable to the Imperial Government was 2,761,280 dollars for 1920. The Defence Corps cost 27,926 dollars for 1920. Hong Kong is the headquarters of the China Squadron.

Industry, Commerce, Shipping, and Communications.

The chief industries of Hong Kong are sugar refining, ship-building and repairing, rope-making, tin refining, tobacco manufacture, the manufacture of cement, and the manufacture of knit goods. Deep-sea fishing is important, especially for the New Territories.

The commerce of Hong Kong is chiefly with Great Britain, India and Ceylon, Australia, United States, China, Japan, Indo-China, and Siam. Hong Kong is a free port (except as regards the importation of intoxicating liquor and tobacco). There were no complete official returns of trade prior to 1918, but complete trade and shipping returns are now officially compiled and published quarterly and annually. Hong Kong is the centre of trade in many kinds of goods. Among the principal are sugar and flour, rice, cotton, cotton yarn and cotton piece goods, silk, hemp, leather, tin, wolframite, bulk and case oil (kerosene), oils and fats, peanuts, Chinese medicines, fish and fishery products, tea, coal, cement, condensed milk, matches. The Chinese tea and silk trade is largely in the hands of Hong Kong firms.

Imports into Hong Kong in 1920 : from the British Empire, 32,816,008*l*. (United Kingdom only, 15,818,927*l*.); from foreign countries, 102,870,928*l*.; total imports, 135,686,936*l*. Exports from Hong Kong in 1920 : to the British Empire, 26,030,333*l*. 21,631 vessels, including 10,885 junks and 2,498 steam-launches, representing altogether 12,123,705 tons, entered in 1920, and 21,733 vessels, including 10,981 junks and 2,530 steam-launches, representing 12,070,308 tons, cleared in 1920.¹ The number of fishing and other boats frequenting the harbour and bays of Hong Kong in 1920 may be estimated at about 20,000.

There is an electric tramway of 9½ miles and a cable tramway connecting The Peak district with the lower levels of Victoria. The British section of the Hong Kong-Canton Railway was begun in 1907, and opened to traffic on October 1, 1910. The branch line from Fanling to Sha Tau Kok was completed and opened to traffic in April, 1912.

There were 17 post offices in Hong Kong in 1920; Revenue, postal and telegraphic, 541,295 dollars; expenditure, 268,713 dollars. Telegraph lines, including cables, 1920, 283 miles; telephone wires, excluding military lines, 16,454 miles. There is a wireless telegraph service under the Post Office, besides a military and naval wireless station.

Money and Credit.

The British banking institutions in the Colony are the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, whose head office is at Hong Kong, the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, and the Mercantile Bank of India, Ltd. There are also several Chinese and foreign banks.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The currency of the Colony consists of the notes of the above-mentioned banks, and of British, Hong Kong, and Mexican dollars, besides subsidiary coins. The British Dollar is of 416 grains of silver 900 fine, as compared with 417·74 grains of 902·7 fineness of the Mexican dollar.

Subsidiary coins are 50 cent pieces (209·52 grains 800 fine), 20 cent pieces (83·81 grains 800 fine), 10 cent pieces (41·90 grains 800 fine), 5 cent pieces (20·95 grains 800 fine), and 1 cent copper pieces of 115·75 grains of copper or mixed metal.

The circulation of foreign copper coin was prohibited in 1912, and similar action is being taken with regard to foreign silver and nickel coins and bank notes.

Weights and Measures are :

The Tael	=	1½ oz. avoirdupois.
„ Picul	=	133½ lbs.
„ Catty	=	1½ „ „
„ Chek	=	14½ inches.
„ Cheung	=	12½ feet.

Besides the above weights and measures of China, those of Great Britain are in general use in the Colony.

INDIA AND DEPENDENCIES.

INDIA, as defined by Parliament (52 and 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 18), comprises all that part of the great Indian Peninsula which is directly or indirectly under British rule or protection. In a popular sense it includes also certain countries such as Nepal, which are beyond that area, but whose relations with India are a concern of the Foreign and Political Department of the Government, whose agent resides in the country concerned. These countries will be found included in the third part of the YEAR-BOOK among Foreign Countries. The term British India includes only the districts subject to British law, and does not include Indian States. The term is so used, unless otherwise stated, in the tables, &c., that follow. The symbol Rx. stands for ten rupees. Rx. 1 = Rs. 10.

Government and Constitution.

The present form of government of the Indian Empire is established by various Parliamentary Statutes which are now consolidated in the Government of India Act, 1915, as amended by the Government of India (Amendment) Act, 1916, and the Government of India Act, 1919. All the territories originally under the government of the East India Company are vested in His Majesty, and all its powers are exercised in his name; all revenues, tributes and other payments, are received in his name, and disposed of for the purposes of the government of India alone. Under the Royal Titles Act, 1876, the King of Great Britain and Ireland has the additional title of Emperor of India.

It is the declared policy of Parliament to provide for "the increasing association of Indians in every branch of the administration and the gradual development of self-governing institutions with a view to the progressive realisation of responsible government in India as an integral part of the British Empire."

Government in England.—The administration of the Indian Empire in England is entrusted to a Secretary of State for India, assisted by a Council of not less than eight and not more than twelve members, appointed for five years by the Secretary of State. At least one-half of the members must be persons who have served or resided ten years in India, and have not left India more than five years previous to their appointment. A member may be removed by His Majesty upon an address from both Houses of Parliament, and the Secretary of State may for special reasons, to be recorded in a minute signed by him and placed before both Houses of Parliament, reappoint a member of the Council for a further term of five years. No member can sit in Parliament. The duties of the Council, which has no initiative authority, are to conduct the business transacted in the United Kingdom in relation to the government of India. The expenditure of the revenues of India, both in India and elsewhere, is subject to the control of the Secretary of State in Council, and no appropriation can be made without the concurrence of a majority of votes of the Council. The Secretary of State regulates the transaction of business. The existence of a Legislative Assembly in India with a large elected majority renders it desirable that the Secretary of State should intervene only in exceptional circumstances in matters of purely Indian interest, where the Government and Legislature of India are in agreement.

Power is given by the 1919 Act for the appointment in the United Kingdom of a High Commissioner for India, to whom may be delegated powers of the Secretary of State respecting contracts, and to whom other duties may be assigned.

The salary of the Secretary of State, under the 1919 Act, must, and the cost of the India Office for other than agency services may, be borne by the British, and not, as formerly, by the Indian Exchequer.

Central Indian Government.—The supreme executive authority in India is vested in the Governor-General in Council, often styled the Government of India. The Governor-General, or Viceroy, is appointed by the Crown, and usually holds office for five years. The Capital of the Empire and the seat of government was moved from Calcutta to Delhi in 1912, the latter being formed into a separate territory under a Chief Commissioner.

Viceroy and Governor-General of India.—His Excellency the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Reading, P.C., G.C.B., G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., K.C.V.O. (April, 1921).

The salary of the Governor-General is Rs. 2,56,000 a year.

The following is a list of the Governors-General of India, with the dates of their assumption of office:—

Warren Hastings	1774	Lord Canning	1856
Sir John Macpherson	1785	Earl of Elgin	1862
Earl (Marquis) Cornwallis	1786	Sir John (Lord) Lawrence	1864
Sir John Shore (Lord Teignmouth)	1793	Earl of Mayo	1869
Marquis Wellesley	1798	Lord (Earl of) Northbrook	1872
Marquis Cornwallis	1805	Lord (Earl) Lytton	1876
Sir Geo. H. Barlow	1805	Marquis of Ripon	1880
Earl of Minto	1807	Earl (Marquis) of Dufferin	1884
Earl of Moira (Marquis of Hastings)	1813	Marquis of Lansdowne	1888

Sir H. (Lord) Hardinge	1844	Viscount Chelmsford	1916
Earl (Marquis) of Dalhousie	1848	Earl of Reading	1921

Until 1834 these were Governors-General of Fort William in Bengal, not of India.

There is an Indian Legislature consisting of the Governor-General and two Chambers, the Council of State and the Legislative Assembly. The Legislature was formally opened on February 9, 1921. The Council of State consists of not more than 60 members, of whom not more than 20 are officials. The Legislative Assembly contains 144 members, of whom 26 are official members and 103 are elected. The life of the Council of State is five years, and of the Assembly three years, but dissolution may occur sooner, or the period may be specially extended by the Governor-General. Joint sittings of the two Chambers may be held for the settlement of differences between them. The Legislative Assembly is presided over by a President appointed by the Governor-General. This Legislature has power, subject to certain restrictions, to make laws for all persons within British India, for all British subjects within the Native States, and for all native Indian subjects of the King in any part of the world. The Governor-General, with the assent of His Majesty, conveyed after copies of the proposed enactment have been laid before both Houses of the British Parliament, may enact certain measures against the wish of the Council or Assembly.

The various departments of Government are in charge of the Governor-General's Executive Council. This body has no fixed number of members (there were eight, in Dec. 1921), but at least three of them must have had ten years' service in India, and one must be a barrister or pleader of not less than 10 years' standing. There are (1921) eleven departments—Home, Foreign and Political, Finance, Army, Public Works, Revenue and Agriculture, Commerce, Legislative, Education and Health, Railways, and the Board of Industries. At the head of each, except Railways, is one of the secretaries to the Government of India. The President of the Railway Board is the head of the Railway Department, and he is authorised to act as if he were a Secretary to the Government of India. The Foreign and Political Department is under the immediate superintendence of the Governor-General.

India is now divided into fifteen administrations, as follows:—

Madras : Governor, Rt. Hon. Baron Willington of Ratton, P.C., G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., G.B.E. (1919); salary, Rs. 1,20,000 per year. Area, 142,000 square miles; population, at 1921 census, nearly 42½ millions, mainly Hindus.

Bombay : Governor, Sir G. A. Lloyd, G.C.I.E., D.S.O. (1918); salary, Rs. 1,20,000 per year. Area, 123,000 square miles; population in 1921, nearly 19½ millions, mainly Hindus.

Bengal : Governor, Rt. Hon. the Earl of Lytton (1922); salary, Rs. 1,20,000 per year. The province was reconstituted from April 1, 1912, and has an area of 78,700 square miles, and a population (1921 census) of over 46½ millions, mainly Hindus and Mahomedans in almost equal proportions.

United Provinces of Agra and Oudh : Governor, Sir S. H. Butler, K.C.S.I., C.I.E.; salary, Rs. 1,20,000 per year. Area, over 107,000 square miles, and population at 1921 census, over 45½ millions.

The Punjab : Governor, Sir E. D. Maclagan, K.C.S.I., K.C.I.E.; salary, Rs. 1,00,000 per year. Area, 99,000 square miles; population (1921), over 20½ millions.

Burma¹ : Lieut.-Governor, Sir R. H. Cradlock, K.C.S.I. (1918); salary, Rs. 1,00,000 per year. Area, nearly 231,000 square miles; population (1921), over 13 millions, mainly Buddhists.

Bihar and Orissa : Governor, Sir Henry Wheeler (1922); salary, Rs. 1,00,000 per year. The province was constituted from April 1, 1912, out of Bengal, and contains the three great sub-provinces of Bihar, Orissa, and Chota Nagpur. Area, over 83,000 square miles, and population (1921), nearly 34 millions, mainly Hindus.

Central Provinces and Berar : Governor, Sir F. G. Sly, K.C.S.I. (1920); salary, Rs. 72,000 per year. Area, nearly 100,000 square miles; population (1921) nearly 14 millions, mainly Hindus.

Assam : Governor, Sir William Morris, K.C.S.I., K.C.I.E. (1921); salary, Rs. 66,000 per year. The province was separated from Eastern Bengal and reconstituted from April, 1912. Area, 53,000 square miles; population (1921), over 7½ millions, over half being Hindus, and over a quarter Mahomedans.

¹ Burma is to be constituted a "Governor's province," i.e. it will come under the dyarchical system applied to other provinces under the Government of India Act, 1919.

N.W. Frontier Province: Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor-General, Sir A. H. Grant, K.C.I.E., C.S.I., (1919); salary, Rs. 48,000 per year. Area, 13,400 square miles; population (1921) nearly 2½ millions, mainly Mahomadians.

Ajmer-Merwara: Agent to the Governor-General, Rajputana, and Chief Commissioner, The Honourable Mr. R. E. Holland, C.S.I., C.I.E. (1919); salary, Rs. 48,000 per year. Area, 2,700 square miles; population (1921), about 500,000, mainly Hindus.

Coorg: Chief Commissioner, The Honourable Mr. W. P. Barton, C.S.I., C.I.E. (1920); salary, Rs. 48,000 per year. Area, 1,580 square miles; population (1921), 165,000, mainly Hindus.

Baluchistan: Agent to the Governor-General and Chief Commissioner, The Honourable Lt.-Col. Sir A. B. Dew, K.C.I.E., C.S.I., (1919); salary, Rs. 48,000 per year. Area, over 54,000 square miles; population (1921), over 420,000, mainly Mahomadians.

Delhi: Chief Commissioner, The Honourable Mr. C. A. Barron, C.S.I., C.I.E. (1919); salary, Rs. 36,000 per year. The province was constituted from October 1, 1912, and consists of a small enclave in the Punjab. Area, 557 square miles; population (1921), about 487,000.

Andaman and Nicobar Islands: Chief Commissioner, Lt.-Col. H. C. Beaulon, C.I.E., I.A. (1920); salary, Rs. 36,000 per year. Area, 3,140 square miles; population (1921), nearly 27,000.

High Commissioner in England.—Sir Wm. Meyer, G.C.I.E., K.C.S.I. (appointed October, 1920), 42, Grosvenor Gardens, London.

Provincial Government.—The Government of India Act, 1919, which came into operation in December, 1920, and January, 1921, effects important constitutional changes, more particularly in the government of the Provinces. The various functions of government are classified as Central and Provincial subjects, the latter being practically definitely committed to the Provincial Governments, while for purposes of convenience, certain Central subjects, such as the collection of income tax, may be dealt with by the Provincial Governments as the agents of the Central Government. The Governor-General in Council retains unimpaired powers of control over the Provincial Governments in their administration of 'reserved' subjects, but in 'transferred' subjects will only be competent to intervene where it is necessary to safeguard Central subjects or to decide questions where two or more Provinces are concerned, or to safeguard the due exercise and performance of any powers and duties possessed by or imposed on the Governor-General in Council in regard to the High Commissioner, to the raising of loans by local Governments, or under rules made by the Secretary of State in Council. The list of subjects transferred to Indian Ministers, with certain reservations, includes local self-government, medical administration, public health and sanitation, education, public works, agriculture, fisheries, co-operative societies, excise, registration, development of industries, adulteration, weights and measures, and religious and charitable endowments. Certain sources of revenue are definitely allocated to the Provinces, which are required to contribute to the Central Government certain annual sums which are to be the first charge on their revenues.

The new Provincial Governments are based upon a scheme of diarchy, or dualised form of government, and consist of the Governor-in-Council and the Governor acting with Ministers. The Ministers, who are elected members of the Legislative Council, have charge of certain Departments of Government known as 'transferred subjects,' while others, the 'reserved subjects,' are administered by the Governor-in-Council. Thus each side has its share in the conduct of the Government, with responsibility for its own work, while co-ordination is achieved by the influence of the Governor, who is associated with both sections.

The Governor's Executive Council consists of not more than four members, one qualified by twelve years' public service in India. The Legislative Council contains not more than twenty per cent. of official members and at least seventy per cent. elected members, and, in addition to its legislative functions, votes all expenditure, subject to certain specified exceptions and to the power of the Local Government to incur expenditure, on reserved subjects without the Council's assent if the Governor certifies such expenditure to be necessary. The normal duration of the Legislative Council is three years, but it may be dissolved sooner by the Governor, or its term specially extended for one year. The Ministers who assist the Governor in the administration of transferred subjects are not to be officials. The Governor may not be a member of the Legislative Council, but may address the Council. (In Madras the franchise has been extended to women).

The Provinces to which this new form of government is applied are Bengal, Madras, Bombay, Bihar and Orissa, United Provinces, Punjab, Central Provinces, and Assam. The minimum number of members in each Legislative Council is: Madras, 118; Bombay, 111; Bengal, 125; United Provinces, 118; Punjab, 83; Bihar and Orissa, 98; Central Provinces, 70; Assam, 53. The numbers may be increased, and in several provinces increases have already been made. It has been decided to apply the new form of government to Burma.

The provinces are usually formed into divisions under Commissioners, and then divided into districts, which are the units of administration. At the head of each district is an executive officer (collector and magistrate, or deputy-commissioner), who has entire control of the district, subject to the control of his official superior district officer. Subordinate to the magistrate (in most districts) there are a joint magistrate, an assistant-magistrate, and one or more deputy-collectors and other officials. There are 267 of such districts in British India.

Government of Indian States.—The control which the Supreme Government exercises over the Indian States varies considerably in degree; but they are all governed by the Indian princes, ministers, or councils. The princes have no right to make war or peace, or to send ambassadors to each other or to external States; they are not permitted to maintain a military force above a certain specified limit; no European can be employed by them without special sanction; and the Supreme Government can exercise control in case of misgovernment. Within these limits the more important princes are autonomous in their own territories. Some, but not all of them, are required to pay an annual fixed tribute. The total number of Indian States is about 700, ranging from Hyderabad, with an area of over 82,000 square miles and a population of 12½ millions, to small States consisting of only a few villages.

In recent years the Princes have met in conferences at the invitation of the Viceroy, but in February, 1922, a Council of Princes was established as a permanent consultative body to discuss matters relating to treaties, or affairs of Imperial or common concern.

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

There were at the end of 1919-20, 739 municipalities, with a population of over 17 millions. The total number of members of the municipal bodies was 10,187, of whom 5,886 were elected. The municipal bodies have the care and lighting of the roads, water supply, drainage, sanitation, medical relief, vaccination, and education, particularly primary education; they impose taxes, enact bye-laws, make improvements, and spend money, with the sanction of the Provincial Government. Their aggregate income in 1919-20 was about 11,410,000*l.*, exclusive of loans, sales of securities, and other extraordinary receipts amounting to 9,574,000*l.* The aggregate expenditure was 11,293,000*l.*, excluding extraordinary and debt expenditure of 9,673,000*l.* By the Local Self-Government Acts of 1883-84, the elective principle was extended, in a large or small measure, all over India. In all larger towns, and in many of the smaller towns, the majority of members of committees are elected by the ratepayers; everywhere the majority of town committees consists of Indians, and in many committees all the members are Indians. In many municipalities women have the right to vote, and in a few they are eligible for election. For rural tracts, except in Burma, there were 732 district and sub-district Boards, and 588 Union Panchayats in Madras, 385 Union Committees in Bengal, and 49 in Bihar and Orissa, with 17,496 members in 1919-20, 8,054 being elected. These Boards are in charge of roads, district schools, markets, public health institutions, &c. Their aggregate income in 1919-20, excluding debt items, was 9,295,000*l.*, and expenditure (excluding debt items), 8,735,000*l.* (Rs. 10=1*l.*)

Baroda.—This consists of five or six larger, and a considerable number of smaller separate areas. Ruler, H.H. Sir Sayaji Rao Gaekwar, G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., Maharaja of Baroda. There is an executive council of the principal officers of State, and, since 1908, a legislative council of 17 members. Educational policy is progressive, and education is largely free and compulsory. The gross receipts in 1917-18 were about 1,66,10,000 rupees, and the disbursements about 1,49,05,000 rupees.

Central India Agency.—This includes some 150 States. The bulk of the population are Hindus. The Indian Government is represented by an Agent at Indore, and under him are Political Agents for Baghelkhand, Bundelkhand, Bhopal, Southern States of Central India, and Malwa. The territories of the different States are much divided and intermingled, and their political relations with the Indian Government and with one another are very varied. Most of the ruling princes and chiefs exercise authority through a Diwan or Minister. Education is progressing, but varies greatly in different States. The annual revenue of the whole group is approximately 600,000*l*.

Gwalior.—Ruler, Lieut.-General H. H. Maharaja Sir Madho Rao Scindia, G.C.S.I., G.C.V.O., G.B.E. The State is in direct relations with the Government of India through a Resident. The administration is carried on by His Highness with the assistance of a State Council. The bulk of the population are Hindus. The revenue of the State in 1919-20 was approximately Rs. 19,000,000.

Hyderabad.—Ruler, Lieutenant-General H.E.H. Sir Usman Ali Khan, G.C.S.I., G.B.E., Nizam of Hyderabad. This is the largest and most populous of the internal States. The administration is carried on, subject to the order of H.E.H. the Nizam, by an executive council. A Legislative Council was established in 1893, and consists of about 20 members. The British Government is represented by a Resident. The bulk of the population are Hindus, but the ruling family is Muhammadan. European officers and experts control and supervise some of the more important branches of administration. The annual revenue is approximately 3,000,000*l*.

Kashmir.—This State occupies most of the northernmost portion of India, and is administered by Lieutenant-General H.H. Maharaja Sir Pratap Singh, G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., G.B.E., Maharaja of Jammu and Kashmir, with the assistance of ministers, the Indian Government being represented by a Resident. The revenue in 1917-18 was 903,000*l*., and the expenditure 859,000*l*. The bulk of the population are Muhammadans, though the ruling family is Hindu.

Mysore.—Ruler, Colonel H.H. Maharaja Sri Sir Krishnaraja Wadiyar Bahadur, G.C.S.I., G.B.E., Maharaja of Mysore. The administration is carried on under him by the Diwan or Prime Minister, assisted by two Councillors. The Indian Government is represented by a Resident. There is a Representative Assembly dating from 1881, elected by the leading ryots, merchants, and local bodies. It meets for a few days annually for discussion, but has no powers. A Legislative Council was formed in 1907 consisting of from 13 to 18 members. The bulk of the population are Hindus. The education system is on a high level. Primary education was made free in all schools in 1908. The revenue in 1919-20 was 3,34,64,000 rupees.

North West Frontier Province.—Only about one-third of this is British territory, lying along the Punjab border. Between this and the Afghan frontier is the tribal territory. The British Government exercises the minimum of interference. The region is divided into five Political Agencies: Northern Waziristan, Southern Waziristan, the Kurram, the Khyber, and Dir, Swat, and Chitral. Only in the last can anything approaching an organised State be said to exist. Free primary education was introduced in April, 1912.

Rajputana Agency.—Rajputana includes 21 States surrounding the British province of Ajmer-Merwara. The Indian Government is represented by an Agent at Abu, and under him are three Residents (for Mewar, Jaipur, and W. Rajputana), and three Political Agents (for E. Rajputana, S. Rajputana, Kotah and Jhalawar, and Haraoti and Tonk). The bulk of the population are Hindus. The administration varies considerably from State to State, but generally the central authority is in the hands of the ruling prince or chief who is usually assisted by a Council or by a Diwan or Kamdar. Education is generally backward. The approximate annual revenue of the whole of the States is about 2,500,000.

(Baluchistan and Sikkim are dealt with elsewhere.)

Ajmer-Merwara	30·04	27·8	28·67	25·7

¹ The rates for the two years are calculated on the 1911 census population.

The registered deaths in 1920 numbered 7,355,654, of which cholera accounted for 130,140; plague, 99,368; fevers, 4,931,202; dysentery and diarrhoea, 218,784. The total deaths from plague in all India (British and native) from 1896 to the end of 1920 exceeded 10 millions, averaging nearly half a million per year.

The number of coolie emigrants from India was in 1915-16, 4,290; in 1916-17, 6,339; in 1917-18, 869. The bulk went to Demerara, Trinidad, Jamaica, Fiji, and Surinam. The emigration of unskilled labour has been prohibited, and it has been decided not to revive indentured emigration. The question of the introduction of a system of assisted emigration is under consideration.

¹ This number falls short of the total population of British India by 1,739,315 persons enumerated in tracts where literacy was not recorded.

The persons with a knowledge of English numbered 1·7 millions.

Educational institutions in India are of two classes :—(a) those in which the course of study conforms to the standards prescribed by the Department of Public Instruction or by the Universities, and either undergo inspection by the Department, or regularly present pupils at the public examinations held by the Department or Universities. These institutions are called “Public,” but may be under public or private management. (b) Those that do not fulfil these conditions. These are called “Private.” As regards public institutions, the system of education operates, in general, through (i) the Primary Schools, which aim at teaching, through the vernacular languages, reading, writing, and other elementary knowledge; (ii) the Secondary Schools, in which the instruction does not go beyond the matriculation or school-leaving certificate standard. The schools are divided into English or vernacular, and also into high and middle schools; (iii) the Colleges, the students in which, having passed matriculation, are reading for a degree. The colleges are affiliated to six federal universities—Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, the Punjab, Allahabad, and Patna. There are also three unitary teaching and residential universities—Dacca, Lucknow and Rangoon; two denominational universities—the Hindu University at Benares, and the Muslim University at Aligarh; and two universities in Indian States—Mysore and Hyderabad (Deccan). Some statistics for the universities in 1920 are given in the following table :—

(a) No examinations in M.Sc. or B.Sc. or I.Sc.

(b) There is a School Final Examination also.

NOTE.—Candidates from Indian States and Ceylon are not included in the above table.

134 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—INDIA AND DEPENDENCIES

There are in addition, various institutions of a special character, such as technical schools teaching arts and industries, engineering, &c.; law schools; medical schools and colleges; and training colleges and normal schools for the training of teachers.

The following table gives the number of institutions and scholars in 1919-20 in British India, including Ajmer-Merwara, British Baluchistan, and Civil and Military Station of Bangalore:—

	Institutions for		Scholars
	Males	Females	Males	Females

A system of State Scholarships exists by which it is possible for a boy to pass from the village school to the University. There are also State Scholarships, awarded by local Governments, to enable the holders to study in the United Kingdom for two or more years.

Notwithstanding the recent great progress of education, the proportion able to read and write is still very small.

During 1918 the following newspapers and periodicals were published: in Madras, 254; Bombay, 140; Bengal, 353; United Provinces, 359; Punjab, 261; Burma, 35; Bihar and Orissa, 59; Central Provinces and Berar, 29; Delhi, 28. They were published in the following languages or dialects: English, Bengali, Hindi, Uriya, Kanarese, Sindhi, Sanskrit, Burmese, Chinese-Urdu, Persian, Gujarathi, Marathi, Karen, Pwo-Karen, Sagau-Karen, Tamil, Telegu, Malayalam, Arabic, Hindustani, Khasi, Lushai, Ajmer, Merwara, and Gurinukhi. (The figures include bilingual and polylingual publications.)

Justice and Crime.

The Presidencies of Madras, Bombay, and Bengal, and also the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the province of Bihar and Orissa, and the provinces of the Punjab and Delhi, have each a supreme high court, with 12, 8, 15, 9, 3, 7 and 8 judges, respectively, in 1920. There is appeal to the Privy Council in England. The Central Provinces and Berar, Oudh, North-West Frontier Province, Coorg, Sind, Upper Burma, and Chota Nagpur have judicial commissioners. Lower Burma has a chief court with five judges (in 1920). For Assam the high court of Calcutta is the highest judicial authority. Below these courts are, for criminal cases, Courts of Session, and below these, Courts of Magistrates (first, second, and third class). The inferior civil courts are determined by special acts or regulations in each province. The most extensive system consists of the sessions judge acting as a 'District Judge'; subordinate judges; and below them 'Munsifs'. There are also numerous special courts to try small causes. Side by side with the civil courts there are revenue courts, presided over by officers charged with the duty of settling and collecting the land revenue.

The number of officers exercising civil and criminal jurisdiction on December 31, 1919, was as follows :—

Courts	Civil	Criminal	Total
Provincial	96	198	294
District	731	929	1,660
Subordinate	1,581	7,883	9,464

136 THE BRITISH EMPIRE :—INDIA AND DEPENDENCIES

Nearly all the civil judges, and the great majority of the magistrates, in the courts of original jurisdiction are natives of India; in Bengal, Madras, and Bombay the proportion of natives in the appellate court is considerable.

The following table gives certain details of criminal cases (in thousands):—

¹ The revenue retained by the Government in India for its own purposes and for meeting the expenditure incurred by the Secretary of State in England is described as 'Imperial,' while that assigned to the 'local Governments is 'Provincial.' The expenditure is similarly classified. The 'Imperial' revenue is at present mainly derived from land revenue, opium, salt, stamps, excise, customs, income-tax, tributes, post office and telegraphs, railways, irrigation, mint, military services, &c. The 'Provincial' revenue is mainly derived from land revenue, stamps, excise, income-tax, forests, registration, irrigation, civil departments

From 1900-01 to April 1920, accounts were kept on the basis of £1 = 15 rupees, and since April 1920 the rate has been £1 = 10 rupees. The estimates in the following table, therefore, have been prepared on the latter basis. The table shows, in thousands of rupees, the items of revenue and expenditure for 1920-21 (revised estimate) and 1921-22 (budget estimate). The figures relate to the revenue and expenditure of the Central Government only, according to the new financial arrangements and classification, and do not, as in former years, include Provincial accounts.

In addition to the above, there is an estimated capital expenditure on State railways and irrigation works in 1920-21 of 23,157,000, and 1,242,000. initial expenditure on the new capital at Delhi. The estimated amounts in 1921-22 are 17,847,000. and 1,069,000. respectively. There was also a capital charge of 100,000,000. in 1917-18, representing India's financial contribution to the war, which was met partly by making over to the British Government the proceeds of the Indian war loans raised in 1917 and 1918, and partly by taking over a portion of the British Government's war debt.

The following table shows the receipts from the most important sources of revenue in recent years.

² The salt duty was raised from March 1, 1916.

⁵ Includes the proceeds of a super-tax imposed in 1917.

⁷ Includes the proceeds of an excess profits duty imposed in April, 1919.

Land Revenue.—The most important source of public income is the land. The land revenue is levied according to an assessment on estates or holdings. In the greater part of Bengal, and Bihar and Orissa, about one-fourth of Madras, and some districts of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the assessment was fixed permanently at the end of the 18th century; while it is fixed periodically at intervals of from twelve to thirty years over the rest of India. In the permanently settled tracts the land revenue falls at a rate of 13as. 10p. per acre of cultivated land. In the temporarily settled tracts, excluding areas under partial assessment or free from assessment, the land revenue averages R1 13as. 4p. per acre of cultivated land, and in the case of privately owned lands, represents something less than one-half of the actual or estimated rental. For details as to the nature of the different tenures of land that prevail in India see the YEAR-BOOK for 1886, p. 799. See also under AGRICULTURE.

The land revenue was estimated to be contributed in 1919-20 as follows:—

Administrations	Rs.	Administrations	Rs.
India, General	19,19,000	Burma	3,79,47,000
N.W. Frontier Province	20,70,000	Bihar and Orissa	1,62,03,000
Madras	6,06,53,000	Central Provinces and Berar	2,19,03,000
Bombay	5,64,37,000	Assam	89,74,000
Bengal	2,95,60,000
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh	6,60,56,000	Total	33,13,61,000
Punjab	2,96,39,000		(22,090,800.)

Opium.—In British territory the cultivation of the poppy for the production of opium is practically confined to the United Provinces, and the manufacture of opium from this region is a State monopoly. The bulk of the opium exported is supplied direct to the Governments of consuming countries in the Far East, while a certain quantity is also sold by auction in Calcutta at monthly sales. Opium is also grown in many of the Native States of Rājputāna and Central India, which have agreed to conform to the British system.

Army Expenditure.—The expenditure in recent years is given as follows (Rupees converted at 15 = £1 down to 1919-20, thereafter 10 = £1):—

Year ended March 31	—	Year ended March 31	—
1914 (pre-war)	1,789,239	1919	42,807,293
1916	21,893,200	1920	55,325,000
1917	24,260,003	1921 (Revised Est.)	67,123,000
1918	28,043,904	1922 (Budget Est.)	60,317,000

Debt.—The debt of British India, bearing and not bearing interest, was 464,877,138*l.* at March 31, 1920, comprising 272,241,582*l.* in India, and 192,635,556*l.* in England.

Out of India's contribution of 100,000,000*l.* to the cost of the war, 77,274,000*l.* representing the proceeds of the Indian War Loans raised in 1917 and 1918 have been paid to the British Government.

Finance of Separate Governments, and Local Finance.—The revenue and expenditure of each Government in 1918-19 were as follows:—

	Revenue	Expenditure
	Rs.	Rs.
India (General)	62,46,57,667	88,18,55,702
North-West Frontier Province	66,26,856	1,55,04,868

The above excludes the revenue and expenditure of municipalities and of district and local boards. The income of the former is derived mainly from rates, octroi, taxes on houses, lands, vehicles and animals, tolls, and assessed taxes; and of the latter from leases on land. The revenue for 1918-19 of all municipalities which bank with Government treasuries was 7,082,939*l.* The expenditure was 6,658,408*l.* The revenue of district and local boards was 6,161,328*l.*, and the expenditure 5,524,534*l.* The following table shows the amounts for the chief administrations in 1918-19 (in thousands of rupees):—

Defence.

The military forces in India consist normally of the British Regular forces, the Native Army, the Auxiliary force, and the Imperial Service troops. They are administered by the headquarters staff and the Army and Marine department, both under the supreme control of the Commander-in-Chief, who is a member of the Viceroy's Council. The headquarters staff comprises the branch of the Chief of the General Staff, the Adjutant General's branch, the Quarter-Master-General's branch, the Military Secretary's branch, and the Ordnance branch. The Army and Marine department deals with supply and finance. The Commander-in-Chief is assisted in this department by an Advisory Council analogous to the Army Council and composed of the heads of branches of the headquarters staff, with the addition of the Director-General Indian Medical Services, the Secretary to the Government of India in the Army Department, the Financial Adviser, and the Air Officer commanding Royal Air Force. For purposes of inspection and training the forces are organised into the Northern, Southern, Eastern and Western Commands, and the Burma independent district; the Commands each contain a number of divisions and independent brigades, whose commanders deal with army headquarters direct on most questions of administration.

The British Regular forces in India are paid by the Indian exchequer. They are organised in brigades and divisions with the native army, the normal proportion being 1 British battalion to 3 native; the horse, field and garrison artillery, the Tank Corps and Royal Air Force being wholly British.

The Auxiliary force is organised under the Auxiliary Forces Act, 1920. Under this Act registration is voluntary and confined to those of British extraction. Preliminary training for infantry is 32 days, and 40 days for the other arms. The Auxiliary force is intended to serve as a second line to the Regular Army in India. An Indian Army reserve of officers has been formed and is at present composed of British officers who served in the Great War and have been demobilised.

The Imperial Service troops are raised and maintained by Native States, and are trained under the supervision of British officers. During the war great assistance in raising troops was afforded by the Indian Princes, many of whom themselves served overseas. The Imperial Service troops were largely augmented; the Nepal Durbar in particular supplied 200,000 recruits for the Indian Army, 20 battalions of infantry, and maintained a reserve of 20,000 men in training.

The composition of the forces in India was, in September, 1921, except for Imperial Service troops, as follows:—

	Cavalry Rgts.	Horse Artillery Batteries	Field Artillery Batteries	Pack Artillery Batteries	Garrison Artillery Batteries	Engineer Corps.	Infantry Battalions	Signal Service Companies	Tank Corps Companies	Railway Battalions

Totals . . .	51	5	44	23	38	29	188	15	4	19

The supply and transport services of the army in India are provided by the Supply and Transport Corps. The medical services of the British troops are provided by the Royal Army Medical Corps, and those of the native army by the Indian Medical Service.

Units of the Indian army serving outside India and paid by the British exchequer were in September, 1921, as follows:—

Mesopotamia—4 ca. rgts.; 6 pack batteries; 27 bns.

Egypt and Palestine—3 pack batteries; 3 bns.

Constantinople—4 bns.

Colonial stations—1 bn.

These garrisons are in process of reduction.

In accordance with the reform of the constitution of the government of India, a number of substantive commissions in the Indian army are now granted to Indian officers who have done distinguished service during the war, while honorary commissions are also given to Indian officers, who, though they have rendered distinguished service, are not eligible for substantive commissions through age or lack of education. Forty Indian gentlemen are now nominated annually to the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, to enable them to qualify for commissions in the Indian army, while 44 candidates are appointed to the training college at Indore, where they are able to qualify for temporary commissions.

The Royal Air Force in India consists of 8 squadrons organised in 1 wing of 4 squadrons and 1 wing of 2 squadrons; the remaining 2 squadrons, the Air Force School, Aircraft Depot and Factory are administered by R.A.F. Headquarters, India. The Air Force in India is commanded by an Air-Commodore.

Agriculture and Industry.

Agriculture, Land Tenure, &c.—The chief industry of India has always been agriculture. The total number of the population supported by agriculture, including forestry and raising of livestock, was, according to the census of 1911, nearly 225 millions (178 millions in British India and 47 millions in the Native States) out of a total population of 313 millions (244 millions in British India and 69 millions in the Native States). In every province of India there is a Department of Land Records and a Department of Agriculture. There are staffs of experts in the provinces and there is an Imperial staff of experts with a fully equipped central station, Research Institute and College for post graduate training of those who have completed the Agricultural Course in provincial colleges. There is also a Civil Veterinary Department for the prevention and cure of cattle diseases and for the improvement of the breeds of cattle, horses, &c. There is an Imperial Laboratory for research and the preparation of sera and antitoxins.

In provinces where the zamindari tenure prevails (i.e., where single proprietors or proprietary brotherhoods possess large estates of several hundreds or thousands of acres), the State land revenue is assessed at an aliquot part (usually about one half) of the ascertained or assumed rental. The revenue is payable on each estate as a whole, the assessment remaining unchanged for the period of settlement. In the greater part of Bengal, and Bihar and Orissa, and in parts of the United Provinces and Madras the settlement is a permanent one and not liable to revision. In provinces where the raiyatwari (or ryotwari) tenure prevails (i.e., where each petty proprietor holds directly from the State, as a rule cultivates his own land, and has no landlord between himself and the Government), the revenue is separately assessed on each petty holding, and land revenue becomes payable at once

(or after a short term of grace in the case of uncleared lands) on all extensions of cultivation. The raiyyatwari proprietor may throw up his holding, or any portion of it, at the beginning of any year after reasonable notice, whereas the zamindar or large proprietor engages to pay the revenue assessed upon him throughout the term of the settlement.

The following table shows the land surveyed under the two types of tenure, and the land revenue assessed in 1919-20 :—

The total area cropped in British India in 1919-20 was 254,990,536 acres, and the net area (deducting areas sown more than once) was 222,825,487.

Of the total area under irrigation in 1919-20, 23,197,000 acres were irrigated by canals; 7,337,000 acres by tanks; 12,692,000 acres by wells; and 5,737,000 acres by other sources. State irrigation works accounted for 25 million acres in 1918-19, and the estimated value of crops grown on this area during the year amounted to about 92·6 millions sterling. In the case of irrigation works (as distinct from navigation canals), for which capital accounts are kept, the net revenue apart from charges for interest was 3,756,600*l.* in 1918-19.

Livestock, in British India, census 1919-20: oxen, 117,428,000; buffaloes, 28,493,000; sheep, 21,984,000; goats, 24,134,000; horses and ponies, 1,699,000; mules, 75,000; donkeys, 1,372,000; camels, 408,000.

Forests.—The lands under the direct control of the State Forest Department are classified as 'Reserved Forests' (forests intended to be permanently maintained for the supply of timber, &c., or for the protection of water supply, &c.), 'Protected Forests,' and 'Unclassed' forest land. The following table shows the extent of these areas in 1919-20:—

The net revenue from the State forests in 1919-20 was about 2,192,000*l.* (i.e., taking Rs. 10 to the 1*l.*, or at Rs. 15, 1,461,000*l.*).

Industries.—The most important indigenous industry, after agriculture, is the weaving of cotton cloths. Other important indigenous industries are silk rearing and weaving, shawl and carpet weaving, wood-carving and metal-working. One of the most important industries connected with agriculture is the tea industry, the number of persons employed being about 843,000. The area under tea plucked in 1920-21 was about 647,300 acres, distributed as follows: Assam, 392,600; Bengal, 162,800; Madras, 30,000; Punjab, 9,600; Agra, 6,700; Bihar and Orissa, 2,100; Upper Burma, 1,700; and the Travancore State, 41,800. The production in 1920-21 was about 345 million pounds, against about 377 million pounds in 1919-20. The exports of Indian tea from British India (including the State of Travancore) in 1920-21 were:—to United Kingdom, 249,111,000 lb.; Canada, 7,996,000 lb.; China, 30,000 lb.; Australasia, 6,521,000 lb.; Ceylon, 3,275,000 lb.; Asiatic Turkey, 5,446,000 lb.; United States, 3,147,000 lb.; elsewhere (including exports across the land frontier), 11,999,000 lb.; total,

382,034,000 lb.; against 326,646,000 lb. in 1918-19. (The production figures for 1919-20 are provisional.)

Some statistics of mills, factories, &c., in 1921, are given as follows for British India (works or factories employing generally 50 persons or more are included in the statistics):—

148 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—INDIA AND DEPENDENCIES

Of the exports of merchandise in 1920-21 Rs. 228,30,34,018 represented the products of the country. Rs. 18,04,31,866 were re-exports of imported foreign merchandise.

The returns of quantities and values of imports and of exports are based on the bills of entry and shipping bills respectively. The value is the wholesale value at the place of import or export, less trade discount, duty not being included in the value of dutiable goods. The accounts present the countries from which the goods have been consigned to India and the countries for which goods shipped from India are intended. No distinction is maintained between general, special, and transit trade; but goods of foreign origin, when re-exported, are shown in detail separately from those of Indian origin.

The gross amount of import duty collected in 1920-21 was Rs. 24,55,70,218, and export duty Rs. 4,83,23,868. Import duties are derived from cotton goods, Rs. 6,69,20,796, liquors, Rs. 1,88,05,534, metals, chiefly iron and steel, Rs. 1,48,12,825, oils, Rs. 83,72,201, salt, Rs. 1,47,92,409, sugar, Rs. 1,12,67,427, tobacco, Rs. 1,31,25,591, carriages and carts, including motor cars and cycles, Rs. 1,12,83,308, hardware and cutlery, Rs. 85,96,348, paper and stationery, Rs. 71,08,862, and silk and silk goods, Rs. 58,74,370, in 1920-21; export duties are levied on rice, tea, and jute, also raw hides and skins (from September 11, 1919).

In many cases the Native States of India impose Customs duties on goods imported from other parts of India.

The imports and exports, excluding Government stores and Government treasure, were distributed as follows in six years:—

² Exclusive of 188·25 miles of serviceable fair-weather and temporary roads 1,598·00 miles of bridle paths.

In several provinces certain of the large canals which are primarily intended for irrigation are also used for navigation by country boats and barges of shallow draught. The length of navigable channel in the several provinces is :—Madras, 1,318 miles; United Provinces, 412 miles; Punjab, 259 miles; Bengal, 590 miles; Bihar and Orissa, 519 miles; Burma, 91 miles.

An estimate has recently been sanctioned for the proposed Grand Trunk Canal in Bengal, which will form a very important addition to the navigable waterways of the Province. The canal will be 22 miles in length, and will connect the Hooghly River at Calcutta with the navigable rivers of Eastern Bengal.

Inland steamer navigation is almost exclusively confined to Burma and to the Ganges-Brahmaputra-Megna group of waterways, which connect Bengal with Bihar and Orissa on the one side, and with Assam on the other.

A limited number of vessels ply on the Indus River, but this will probably cease when the large irrigation canals in the Punjab and Sind, at present under investigation, are constructed.

in 1920-21, against 6,963,817*l.* in 1919-20. The railway staff in 1920-21 numbered 6,901 Europeans, 11,699 Anglo-Indians, and 733,152 Indians; total, 751,752.

India and Ceylon have been connected by rail and steamer ferry combined, the steamers plying between Dhanushkodi Point on Rameswaram Island and Talaimannar in Ceylon. A project has also been prepared for replacing the ferry by a railway, to be constructed on a causeway laid over the reef known as Adam's Bridge.

III. POSTS, TELEGRAPHS, AND TELEPHONES.

In 1920 there were 69,441 post-offices and letter-boxes, against 753 in 1856.

In the fiscal year ended March 31, 1920, the number of letters, post-cards, and money-orders passing through the post-offices was 1,225,047,599; of newspapers 61,918,287; of parcels 11,389,643; and of packets 68,384,861; being a total of 1,366,740,393. The following table gives statistics for five years:—

Year ended March 31	Number of Letters, Newspapers, &c.	Post Offices	Letter Boxes	Total Revenue	Total Expenditure
1916	1,082,984,058	19,328	49,684	2,459,883	2,110,253
1917	1,120,235,120	19,409	49,763	2,622,493	2,114,737
1918	1,147,922,768	19,410	49,749	2,774,015	2,361,631
1919	1,229,355,641	19,445	49,838	3,020,187	2,643,965
1920	1,366,740,393	19,439	50,055	3,550,973	2,995,903

The following are statistics of the Government telegraphs for five years:—

Year ended March 31	Number of Miles of Wire	Number of Miles of Line	Revenue Receipts	Revenue Charges	Number of Paid Messages
1916	337,720	86,067	1,238,517	948,452	18,129,748
1917	343,487	87,480	1,385,499	911,601	19,297,692
1918	347,906	87,714	1,645,683	848,197	19,897,787
1919	357,472	87,814	2,157,348	980,821	21,314,943
1920	369,273	88,417	2,515,321	1,435,324	20,275,352

There were 10,440 telegraph offices in India on March 31, 1920.

There are several wireless telegraph installations under the Government of India.

The telephone system is in the hands of the Post and Telegraph Department, but telephone exchanges have been established in Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Ahmedabad, Karachi, Rangoon, and Moulmein, by private companies, under licences from the Government. At the end of 1919 there were 13 telephone exchanges, with 17,810 connections, established by companies, and 245 exchanges, with 8,975 connections established by the Department.

Money and Credit.

The total value of the silver, nickel, copper, and bronze coined in British India from 1835-36 to 1919-20 inclusive was Rs. 7,53,29,03,895, including Rs. 50,14,78,068, the value of 221,003,960 British dollars; Rs. 8,02,68,091, the value of 35,374,555 Straits dollars; Rs. 92,74,505 and Rs. 23,17,847, the value of subsidiary silver coinage for the Straits Settlements and Ceylon respectively; Rs. 2,43,47,157, the value of coinage for the Egyptian Government; Rs. 10,10,700, the value of pennies and halfpennies for the Australian Commonwealth; Rs. 74,86,572, representing the value of cents and fractions thereof. The heaviest coinage in any one year was struck in 1918-19. The value of money coined at the Calcutta and Bombay Mints in the last five years was as follows :—

Yearended March 31	Silver	Nickel	Copper	Bronze	Total
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1916	1,62,02,199	4,79,390	—	1,83,900	1,68,65,489

1920	38,00,77,755	2,50,24,650	2,500	32,96,281	40,84,01,192

An Act providing for the closing of the Indian Mints to the unrestricted coinage of silver for the public was passed in 1893. Provision was made (1) for the receipt of gold coin and bullion at the Mints in exchange for rupees at a ratio of 1s. 4d. per rupee; (2) for the receipt of sovereigns and half-sovereigns in payment of Government dues; and (3) for the issue of currency notes in Calcutta and Bombay in exchange for gold coin or bullion. By a Notification of the 11th September, 1897, sovereigns and half-sovereigns were also received at the Reserve Treasuries, at the rate of Rs. 15 for the sovereign.

An Act (XXII. of 1899) declared the sovereign legal tender, 15 rupees to the sovereign. No gold was coined in India down to 1917, but the question of such coinage was examined by a Royal Commission appointed in 1912. The recommendations made by the Royal Commission are under the consideration of the Government of India. In view of the strain imposed by war conditions on India's metallic money, a branch of the Royal Mint was established at Bombay, at the end of 1917, for coining into sovereigns the gold bullion and foreign coin received into the Paper Currency Reserve, in order to make the metallic part of this Reserve available as legal tender. Power was also taken by legislation for the coining in India of a 15-rupee gold coin (gold mohur), of the same size, weight, and fineness as the sovereign, and a number of these coins was struck at the Bombay Mint from May to August 1918. Sovereigns were minted between August and December 1918, but since April 1919 the Branch Mint has been closed.

Owing, however, to the rise in the value of the rupee, which began in 1917, it was decided early in 1920 to fix its value, after a transitional period, at Rs. 10 to the gold sovereign, in accordance with the recommendations of the Indian Currency Committee (1919). By a communique dated the 2nd February, 1920, the Finance Department Notification of the 11th September, 1897, mentioned above, and a notification dated 11th December, 1906, authorising the receipt of sovereigns and half sovereigns at the Mints, were cancelled. Bills were passed in September, 1920, amending the Indian Coinage and Paper Currency Acts and fixing the legal tender value of the sovereign and half sovereign at Rs. 10 and Rs. 5 respectively.

The Coinage Act of 1906 provided for the introduction of a subsidiary nickel one-anna piece and the substitution of a bronze currency for the existing copper coins. The coinage of copper was accordingly discontinued with effect from August 1, 1906. The issue of the nickel one-anna piece was commenced with effect from August 1, 1907. In the Indian Coinage Amendment Act of 1918 (IV. of 1918), provision was made for the coinage of a new nickel two-anna piece, and coins of this denomination were issued from April, 1918. The issue of four-anna and eight-anna nickel pieces was authorised by the Indian Coinage (Amendment) Act, 1919 (XXI. of 1919).

Since 1900, rupees have been coined as required to meet public demands. The entire profit accruing to Government on the coinage up to March 31, 1907, and during the year 1912-13, and half such profit for the years 1907-08 and 1908-09 were placed to the credit of a separate fund termed the Gold Standard Reserve, with the object of ensuring the stability of the currency policy of Government. Any profit arising from this source is at present credited entire to the Gold Standard Reserve. On August 31, 1920, the Reserve amounted to 37,179,136*l*.

On July 16, 1861, an Act was passed by the Government of India providing for the issue of a paper currency through a Government department of Public Issue, by means of promissory notes. Circles of issue were established from time to time, as found necessary, and the notes were made legal tender within the circle for which they were issued, and rendered payable at the place of issue, and also at the capital city of the Presidency. Subsequent legislation has relaxed the rigidity of the circle system. Notes of the values of one, two-and-a-half, five, ten, fifty, and a hundred rupees are now legal tender throughout British India, and the limitation of currency to the circle of issue is confined to notes of higher denominations. There are now seven circles of issue with their headquarters at Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, Rangoon, Cawnpore, Lahore, and Karachi.

Total values of notes in circulation on March 31 in six years, including the notes held in government treasuries and the Presidency banks :—

	Rs.		Rs.
1913-14	66,11,75,935	1917-18	99,79,37,599
1915-16	67,73,34,540	1918-19	1,53,46,47,790
1916-17	86,37,51,735	1919-20	1,74,52,45,960

Banks.—The three Presidency Banks of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay, constituted under the Presidency Banks Act of 1876, act as bankers for the Indian Government.

The following table shows the 'Capital,' 'Reserve,' 'Public and other Deposits,' at the three banks at the close of the calendar year 1919.

—	Bank of Bengal	Bank of Madras	Bank of Bombay
Paid-up Capital	1,333,000	500,000	667,000
Reserve	1,333,000 ¹	300,000	733,000
Public Deposits	2,700,000	698,000	1,752,000
Other Deposits	21,694,000	8,104,000	18,378,000

¹ Includes 167,000*l*. set aside as a reserve against depreciation of investments.

The number of Joint Stock Companies registered as engaged in banking or loan operations in India on March 31, 1918, was 542. Most of these companies consist of societies with a relatively small capital.

Statistics of the Post Office Savings banks for four years :—

—	Depositors	Balance at end of Year
		Rs.
1915-16	1,860,000	15,32,12,000
1916-17	1,647,000	16,59,53,000
1917-18	1,637,000	16,58,46,000
1918-19	1,677,000	18,82,44,000

Currency, Weights, and Measures.

The money, weights, and measures of India, and the British equivalents are now as follows:—

The Pis	= $\frac{1}{4}$ Farthing.
3 "	= 1 Pice = $1\frac{1}{4}$ Farthing.
4 Pice , or 12 Pis	= 1 Anna = $1\frac{1}{2}$ Penny.
16 Annas	= 1 Rupee = 2s.
10 Rupees	= 17.

Prior to September, 1920, 15 rupees = 17.

The rupee weighs one tola (a tola = 180 grains), '916 fine.

Nickel 4 and 8 anna pieces have been introduced into India (1919).

The sum of 1,00,000 rupees is called a 'lakh,' and of 1,00,00,000 a 'crore of rupees. A 'lakh' of rupees is now equivalent to 10,000*l*.

The Maund of Bengal of 40 *scr*s . . . = 82 $\frac{1}{2}$ lbs. avoirdupois.

" " Bombay = 28 lbs. nearly.

" " Madras = 25 lbs. nearly.

" Tola = 180 gr.

" Guz of Bengal = 36 inches.

An Act to provide for the ultimate adoption of a uniform system of weights and measures of capacity throughout British India was passed by the Governor-General of India in Council in 1871. This Act, however, has never been brought into operation. The matter was again considered by a Weights and Measures Committee, appointed in 1913, and the evidence was generally in favour of a uniform system, provided there is not a too radical change from the existing practice. The report of the Committee is under the consideration of the Government of India.

BALUCHISTAN.

Government, &c.—A country occupying the extreme western corner of the Indian Empire, approximately between lat. $24^{\circ} 54'$ and $32^{\circ} 4' N.$, and between long. $60^{\circ} 56'$ and $70^{\circ} 15' E.$; extreme length from E. to W. about 550 miles; breadth about 450; area, 134,638 square miles; population (1911 census), 834,703. Bounded on the N. by Afghanistan and the North-West Frontier Province, on the E. by Sindh, the Panjáb, and a part of the Frontier Province, on the S. by the Arabian Sea, on the W. by Persia, the boundary disputes with which were settled in 1905. The main divisions constituting an area of 134,638 square miles are: (1) British Baluchistan proper, with an area of about 9,096 square miles, consisting of tracts assigned to the British Government by treaty in 1879; (2) Agency Territories, with an area of about 45,132 square miles, composed of tracts which have from time to time been acquired by lease, or otherwise brought under control, and placed directly under British officers; and (3) the native States of Kalát and Las Bela, with an area of about 80,410 square miles, the former consisting of a confederation of tribes under the Khan of Kalát, and stretching westwards to Persia, while the latter occupies the alluvial valley between the Pab and Hálá ranges from the sea to Bela.

British and Administered Territory.—British Residents were appointed to the courts of the Kháns of Kalát from the middle of the nineteenth century, and British expeditions passed through the Bolán on their way to Kandahár and Afghanistan, but up to 1876 the country was considered independent. In 1875 Sir Robert Sandeman, the founder of the Baluchistan Province, first entered the country; in 1877 the cantonment of Quetta, which is now the headquarters of the Administration, was occupied by British troops, and in 1879 the administration of the district was taken over on behalf of the Khán of Kalát. After the Afghán war, 1878-81, the districts of Peshin, Shorárúd, Duki, Sibi, and Sháhrig were assigned to the British and in November, 1887, were formally constituted as British Balúchistán. In 1888, the districts of Quetta and Bolán were made over by the Khán to the British on an annual quit-rent of 25,000 rupees and 30,000 rupees respectively. In 1886, the Bori valley, in which is now the cantonment of Loralai, was occupied. In 1887, the Khetrán country, now known as the Bárkhán tahsil, was brought under British control; in 1889 British authority was established in the Zhob valley and Kákar Khurásán; in 1896 Chágai and Western Sinjrání were included in administered territory; in 1899, the Nuskhi Niabat was made over by the Khán of Kalát on an annual quit-rent of 9,000 rupees; and in 1903 the Nasirábád tahsil was acquired from the Khán on an annual quit-rent of 117,500 rupees. The area of British and administered territory, including tribal areas, is 54,228 sq. miles, and the population (1921) 421,679 (males 255,566, females 166,113). The head of the civil administration is the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor-General. The area under his direct administration is divided into 6 districts, each in charge of a Political Agent as follows: Quetta-Pishin, Sibi, Zhob, Loralai, Bolán Pass, Chágai. The Political Agent in charge of the Bolán Pass is also Political Agent for Kalát and Las Bela. The revenue administration of the Province is entrusted to an officer who is styled the Revenue and Judicial Commissioner.

In the directly administered territory the chief items of revenue are: Land revenue, excise, court fees and stamps, and judicial fines. In some places the land revenue is levied in money in accordance with a fixed assessment, but generally it is levied in kind. This is usually one-sixth of the crop; but in the Sibi tahsil it is two-ninths, and on the lands of the Shebo and Khushdil irrigation canals, constructed by the Government, the proportion is one third. In Nasirábád the assessment per acre of the cultivated area varies from 8 annas to Rs. 4 according to the crops raised and means of water-supply. For revenue purposes each district is divided into tahsils, each of which is in charge of an Indian official known as a Tahsildar, who has a Naib-Tahsildar, Kanungos and Patwáris subordinate to him. The revenue from all sources in 1919-20 was Rs. 20,01,948: and in 1920-21, Rs. 23,34,888.

Almost all cases in which local men are concerned are referred to 'councils of elders' (locally called jirga) for settlement along the well-tried lines of the ancient customary and tribal law. This system of settlement of cases forms an integral and essential part of the machinery for the administration of Civil and Criminal justice in Balúchistán. Appeals from, or rather applications for revision of, the jirga decisions when confirmed by the district officers, lie to the Agent to the Governor-General and Chief Commissioner in Balúchistán. Cases in which aliens are concerned are settled by Regular Courts and the highest court of appeal in such cases is the Judicial Commissioner in Balúchistán.

Regular troops are cantoned at Quetta, Chaman, Fort Sandeman, and Loralai, and detachments are stationed at different places, principally in the Zhob and Loralai Districts, for the preservation of law and order. There is also a police force, supplemented by levies and the Zhob levies, Makrán and Chágai Levy Corps. The latter are recruited from the local tribes, and have their own leading men as officers.

The medical work of the Province is under the Residency Surgeon and Chief Medical Officer, and there are Civil Surgeons at Quetta, Sibi, Loralai, Fort Sandeman and Chaman, and Civil Assistant-Surgeons at Quetta, Sibi, Kalat and Panjgur, and Railway Assistant-Surgeons at Shahrig and Mach.

The Native States of Kalát and Las Bela.—The leading chief of Kalát is His Highness Sir Mír Máhmúd Khán, G.C.I.E., Beglar Bégi Khán or Wali of Kalát, who succeeded on the abdication of his father, the late Mír Khudádád Khán, in November, 1893.

The Khán of Kalát is the head of a confederacy of chiefs, but the extent of his control has now been considerably reduced. In all important matters he is amenable to the advice of the Agent to the Governor-General in Balúchistán, who also arbitrates in disputes between the Khán and minor chiefs. The area of Kalát State, including Mikrán and Khárán, is 73,278 square miles, and the population 328,802 (1921 census).

The Khán's revenue, including the subsidies and rents for the leased areas paid by the British Government, amounts to about 12,00,000 rupees annually. The Khán has an irregular force of 279 cavalry, infantry, and artillery, and 12 guns. He also maintains a body of Imperial Service Troops numbering 150 men. The chief towns in the State are Kalát, Mastung, Bhág, Candáwá, Dádhar, Turbat, and Panjgur.

The ruling chief of Las Bela has the title of Jám. Jám Mír Khán, the great-grandfather of the present chief, succeeded in 1840; Jám Ali Khán, his grandfather, succeeded in 1889; Jám Mír Kamál Khán, C.I.E., his father, succeeded in 1896, and Mír Ghulam Muhammad Khan, the present chief, in March, 1921. The area of the State is 7,132 square miles; population, 50,697 (1921 census); revenue varies from 3 to 4 lakhs. The Jám has an irregular force of 58 infantry and 3 guns; military police force, 61 men. Before the British occupation the ruler of Las Bela was a feudatory of the Khán of Kalát, but in recent times the connection has almost entirely ceased. The State is under the control of the Political Agent in Kalát.

General.—The most numerous races in Balúchistán are the Brahúí, Pathan and Baloch, 554,800. The Brahúís occupy the centre of the country stretching through Chágai to meet the Baloch of Western Sanjrání, and southwards to the Lásís and the Baloch of Makrán. The Pathans are chiefly contained within British and administered territory. The Baloch are distributed through the southern regions in the Marri and Bugti country, the Kachhi plain; the Nasirábád tahsil, the Domóki, Umrání, and Kahéri country, and Makrán. The Lásís (28,000), are almost wholly confined to Las Béla, the term Lási being of modern invention. The other inhabitants are either scattered, as the Chuttás and Saiads, or are subject races and occupational groups such as the Jat cultivators of the Kachhi plain, the Dehwar cultivators of the uplands, the Darzádahs and Naqíbs of Makrán, and the Ghuláms who are of servile origin. There are also indigenous Hindus (15,000) living under the protection of the tribes and carrying on the trade of the country.

Religion and Instruction.—The religion of the native population is either Mussulmán, in general of the Sunni sect, or Hindu. The Mussulmáns numbered (1911) 782,648; Hindus, 37,602; Christians, 5,085; Sikhs, 8,390; others, 978. At the close of 1919-20 there were 76 Government and aided and unaided schools in the province; 7 of these were for girls, and one was a European school for boys and girls. Of the 3,606 pupils 622 were girls. Nearly half the pupils were Hindus, children of men from Sind and the Panjab in trade, or in Government service. Besides these there were 202 private schools with 2,651 pupils.

Production and Industry.—The country consists largely of barren mountains, deserts and stony plains; its climate is subject to the extremes of heat and cold, and the rainfall is uncertain and scanty. Here and there the mountains are tree-clad, and cultivation is carried on wherever water is found. An attempt is being made to bud the wild olive trees of the country with buds from cultivated European olives. The experiment seems to show that the olive cultivation is very lucrative in the Harnai Valley, and the present Forest officer intends to extend it. An olive-oil industry may be subsequently established. The agricultural products are wheat, barley, millet, lucerne, rice, maize, and potatoes; while grapes, apricots, peaches, apples, and melons are grown in abundance. Panjgûr in Makrân is famous for its dates. Among wild animals are the markhôr, urial (wild-sheep), Sind ibex, ravine-deer, bear, and panther, and the chief domestic animals are the camel, horses, oxen and cows, and donkeys.

Little is yet known of the mineralogy of the country. Iron and lead are found near Khuzdâr; coal is worked at Khost on the Sindh-Pishin railway, and in the Sor hills near Quetta. Asbestos and chromite have been found in Zhob, and chromite also in the Quetta Pishin district. There are oil springs at Khattan in the Marri country, but these are not now worked. Sulphate of iron has been found in Kalât and sulphate of aluminium in Châgâi. Salt is manufactured in Pishin, in the Zhob district, and in the Kalât State. Promising deposits of salt were discovered in 1917-18 in the Châgâi district, development of which is under consideration. Local manufactures are unimportant. A few matchlocks and other weapons are made, and various kinds of ironwork for agricultural purposes. The nomad tribes make felts, rough blankets, and rugs. Brahûi women are famous for their needle-work. Leather-work and pottery are manufactured in Kachhi. There is a brewery as well as a government distillery for the manufacture of country spirit at Quetta, and also mills for grinding flour, pressing chaff, manufacturing patent coal-fuel, and ice. A museum at Quetta was opened in 1906. The Indian Staff College was opened at Quetta in 1907.

Commerce.—The land traffic with India passes either by railway or by the routes from Kalât and Las Bela to Sind, and through the Loralai district, to the Punjâb. The value of the trans-frontier imports (excluding purely transit trade between places in Balûchistân, and the trade by road between Karachi and Kalât and Las Bela) from Kalât and Las Bela into India in 1918-19 was Rs. 14,46,561, and of the exports from India to Kalât and Las Bela, Rs. 5,51,355. (This trans-frontier trade is regarded since April 1, 1919, as internal traffic, and statistics are discontinued.) The chief exports from the Province are fruit, drugs, fish, mats, and wool; imports consist of piece-goods, chiefly of Indian manufacture, metal ware, tea, sugar, and canned goods.

Over-sea trade is carried on through ports on the Makrân coast with India, the exports consisting of dates, matting and dried fish, and the imports chiefly of piece-goods and food grains. The greater part of this trade is with the Bombay Presidency.

The principal imports into Balûchistân from foreign countries, viz., Afghanistan and Persia, are fruit, ghee, wool, sheep, horses and ponies. Piece-goods in large quantities, indigo, tea, sugar, and metals are sent to these countries through Balûchistân.

Communications.—Good roads connect the more important centres in the directly administered places. There are 976 miles of metalled and partly metalled roads and 2,130 of unmetalled roads and paths.

The North-Western railway, which has the standard gauge of 5ft. 6in., enters Balûchistân near Jhatpat and crosses the Kachhi plain to Sibi, where it bifurcates, one branch going by Hafnai and the other by Quetta, and reunites at Bostān, whence the line runs to Chaman. A line of railway to Nushki 82½ miles long, which cost about 7,000,000 rupees, was opened for traffic in 1905, and an extension of the railway line from Nushki up to Duzdap on the Persian border, and also a short line from Khanai to Hindu-bagh, a distance of about 45 miles, were completed in 1917.

There is a complete and frequent postal service in British and administered territory, extending to Kalāt and through Duzdap to Scistan and Meshed.

A network of telegraph wires covers the north-eastern portion of the Province and extends to Kalāt, and westwards via Nushki to Killā Robāt, where it connects with the Indo-European system, while a further line laid down in 1907 connects India with Persia and Europe, via Las Bela, Panjgur, and Nok Kundi.

SIKKIM.

An Indian State in the Himālayas, bounded on the N. by Tibet, on the E. by the Tibetan district of Chumbi, and by Blutān, on the S. by the British district of Darjiling, and on the W. by Nepāl. Extreme length from N. to S. 70 miles; extreme breadth, 50 miles; area, 2,818 square miles.

In March, 1890, a treaty was signed by the Viceroy of India and the Chinese representative, by which the British protectorate over Sikkim is recognised by China. The British Government has direct and exclusive control over the foreign relations. The present Mahārājā is H. H. TASHI NAMGYAL, C.I.E., who succeeded on December 5, 1914. His Highness and the members of the Council carry on the administration, full powers having been granted to him in April, 1918.

Population in 1921, 81,722. The inhabitants are Blutias, Lepchas, and Nepalese, the last-named being now the most numerous. Principal towns are Gangtok, the capital, Rhenok, Pakyong, Rangpo, Lachen, and Lachung. The State religion is Buddhism, but the majority of the people are Hindu.

The gross revenue is about 46,900*l.* per year. The landlords exercise a limited jurisdiction within their districts; important cases being referred to the Sikkim chief court.

Sikkim produces rice, Indian corn, and other millets, cardamoms, oranges, apples, and woollen cloth. Fruit gardens are maintained by the State. There are extensive forests in the State and wide tracts of unoccupied waste. The principal trade route from Bengal to Tibet passes through Sikkim. Imports into Sikkim from, and exports from Sikkim to, India :—

	£	£	£	£	£
Imports from India	108,606	74,022	84,002	166,654	150,800
Exports to India	201,385	187,843	218,300	513,471	559,400

The chief imports into Sikkim are cotton piece goods, oils, provisions, salt, manufactured silk, sugar, tea, tobacco, and rice; the chief exports from Sikkim food grains and vegetables, hides and skins, raw wool, and timber.

ANDAMAN AND NICOBAR ISLANDS.

The Andaman Islands lie in the Bay of Bengal, 590 miles from the mouth of the Hugli, 120 miles from Cape Negrais in Burma, the nearest point on the mainland. Five large islands closely grouped together are called the Great Andaman, and to the south is the island of Little Andaman. There are some 200 islets, the two principal groups being the Andaman Archipelago and the Labyrinth Islands. The total area is 2,260 square miles. The Great Andaman group is about 219 miles long and, at the widest, 32 miles broad. The group, densely wooded, contains many valuable trees, the best known of which is the paduk or Andaman redwood (Pterocarpus dalbergioides). The islands are hilly, the highest point, Saddle Peak, being 2,402 feet, and Mount Harriet, 1,196 feet in height. The islands possess a number of harbours and safe anchorages, notably, Port Blair, Port Cornwallis, and Stewart Sound, the last being most favourably situated for forest trade. The climate is tropical, the rainfall irregular and often excessive. The aborigines, 1,317 (628 males and 689 females) in 1911, (against 1,882 in 1901), live in small groups over the islands; they are savages of a low Negrito type. The total population of the Andaman Islands in 1921 was 26,833 (20,393 males and 6,440 females). In 1919-20 the forest sales, the result of convict and free labour, amounted to 7,65,007 rupees. The coconut, rubber (Hevea brasiliensis), Manila hemp (Musa textilis), and Bahamas aloe (Agave sisalana) are successfully cultivated. In 1921 there were 9,941 head of cattle. Wireless telegraphy with Burma was established in 1904. A mail steamer connects Port Blair with Calcutta, Rangoon, and Madras. The islands are used by the Government of India as a penal settlement for life and long-term convicts. The settlement possesses about 22,472 acres of cleared land and 85 square miles of reserved forest. There were, in 1921, 11,532 convicts (including 373 women) in the place, of whom some 1,168 were on ticket-of-leave in the settlement supporting themselves. Of the women, 129 are on ticket-of-leave, and married to convicts. The Andaman Islands are under the Government of India, and the Officer in Charge is the Chief Commissioner. The Civil, Military and convict population of Port Blair in 1921 was 15,713.

The Nicobar Islands are situated to the South of the Andamans, 75 miles from Little Andaman. The British formally took possession in 1869. There are twenty-one islands, nine uninhabited; gross area, 635 square miles. The islands are usually divided into three groups, Southern, Central and Northern, the chief islands in each being respectively, Great Nicobar, Camorta with Nancowry, and Car Nicobar. There is a fine land-locked harbour between the islands of Camorta and Nancowry, known as Nancowry Harbour. The Nicobarese inhabitants, numbering 9,260 (5,238 males and 4,022 females) in 1921, are a variety of the Malay (more probably Takaling) race. They are known to have eagerly pursued the coconut trade for at least 1,500 years. English and Hindustani are understood in most villages. The coconut production is estimated at 15 million nuts per annum, of which some 6 million are sold by barter and exported in small native craft and Chinese junks in the form of copra. The climate is tropical and, except, perhaps, at Car, unhealthy for Europeans. The Government is represented by a permanent Assistant Commissioner and a Tahsildar. The islands are attached to the Chief Commissionership of the Andamans and Nicobars.

LACCADIVE ISLANDS.

A group of 14 islands (9 inhabited), about 200 miles off the west or Malabar coast of the Madras Presidency. The northern portion is attached to the collectorate of South Kanara, the remainder to the administrative district of Malabar. Population 10,600, nearly all Muhammadans. The language is either Malayalam or Mahl. The staple product is the fibre known as coir.

THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

Constitution and Government.

THE Straits Settlements, a Crown colony, which comprises Singapore, Penang (including Province Wellesley and the Dindings), and Malacca, were transferred from the control of the Indian Government to that of the Secretary of State for the Colonies on April 1, 1867. The Cocos Islands were placed under the Straits Settlements in 1886, and Christmas Island in 1889. Christmas Island was annexed to the Settlement of Singapore in 1900, and the Cocos Islands in 1903.

By a proclamation dated October 30, 1906, the boundaries of the Colony were extended so as to include the Colony of Labuan, with effect from January 1, 1907.

The administration of the colony is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, composed of the General Officer commanding the troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Resident Councillor of Penang, the Attorney-General, the Treasurer, and the Colonial Engineer. There is a Legislative Council, presided over by the Governor, of ten official and eight unofficial members, nominated by the Crown.

Governor.—Sir Laurence N. Guillemard, K.C.B., K.C.M.G.

The governor is also High Commissioner for the Federated Malay States of Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang, High Commissioner of Brunei, and British Agent for North Borneo and Sarawak.

There are municipal bodies in each settlement, the members of which are appointed by the Governor.

Area and Population.

Singapore is an island about twenty-seven miles long by fourteen wide, with an area of 217 square miles, separated from the southern extremity of the Malay Peninsula by a strait three-quarters of a mile in width. A number of small islands adjacent form part of the settlement. The seat of government is the town of Singapore, at the south-eastern point of the island. Penang is an island of 108 square miles, off the west coast of the Malayan Peninsula, and at the northern entrance of the Straits of Malacca. On the opposite shore of the mainland, distant from two to ten miles, is Province Wellesley, a strip of territory forming part of the Settlement of Penang, averaging eight miles in width, and extending forty-five miles along the coast, including ten miles of territory to the south of the Krian; total area 280 square miles. The chief town of Penang is George Town. Off the coast of Perak is the small island of Pangkor, which, together with a strip of the mainland, is British territory, the whole being known as the Dindings. Malacca is on the western coast of the peninsula between Singapore and Penang—about 110 miles from the former and 240 from the latter; it is a strip of territory 42 miles in length, and from eight to 24 miles in breadth.

The population, according to the census of 1911, was 714,069 (467,374 males and 246,695 females). The estimated population for 1920 and the census population in 1921, inclusive of the military, are as follows:—

170 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS

In 1918 there were in the Settlements about 274,574 Malays, 432,764 Chinese, and 94,213 natives of India.

Births, 1920, 25,623; deaths, 28,710. Figures for 1919:—

—	Singapore	Penang	Dindings	Province Wellesley	Malacca	Labuan	Total
Births	10,233	4,603	274	4,361	5,934	219	25,624
Deaths	12,590	6,366	358	3,533	4,970	140	27,957

In 1920 there were 126,077 immigrants from China, and 95,220 from Southern India.

Education.

By an Ordinance passed in 1909, an Education Board was established, consisting of official and unofficial members, under the chairmanship of the Director of Education, and provision was made for an Education Rate. Vernacular instruction is provided for Malays free of charge, and attendance is compulsory. Instruction in English for all nationalities is provided in Government and numerous aided schools, and fees are charged. All the Government schools are unsectarian. There is a reformatory in Singapore for juvenile offenders and vagrants, where industrial instruction is provided.

The numbers of schools and scholars in 1920 were as follows:—

—	No. of Schools	Enrolment	Attendance
Government English schools (boys and girls)	10	4,243	3,903
Grant-in-aid English schools (boys and girls)	32	13,359	12,295
Government Vernacular schools (boys and girls)	195	12,979	11,502
Grant-in-aid Vernacular schools (boys and girls)	11	425	358
Total	248	30,906	28,158

The expenditure on the schools was 70,600%.

There is a training college for Malay teachers in Malacca.

Justice and Crime.

The law in force is contained in local ordinances and in such English and Indian Acts and Orders in Council as are applicable to the colony. The Indian Penal Code, with slight alterations, has been adopted, and there is a Civil Procedure Code based on the English Judicature Acts. There is a Supreme Court which holds assizes at Singapore and Penang every two months, and quarterly at Malacca, civil sittings monthly at Singapore and Penang, and once a quarter at Malacca.

There are, besides, district courts, police courts and marine magistrates' courts. Convictions before the Superior Courts in 1919 were 599; before the other courts, 38,201 persons. Police force, 3,224 in 1921. Criminal prisoners admitted to the gaols in 1920, 3,847.

Finance.

Public revenue and expenditure for six years (1 dollar = 2s. 4d.):—

Commerce.

The Straits ports are free from customs duties, and their trade, centred at Singapore, is a transit trade. Excise duties are levied on wines, petroleum, and tobacco. The chief exports comprise tin, pepper, nutmegs, mace, sago, tapioca, buffalo hides and horns, rattans, gutta-percha, rubber, gambier, gun, copra. The cultivation of rice is giving place to rubber and coconuts.

Imports and exports for six years (inclusive of treasure and inclusive of trade with the Federated Malay States), including the trade of Labuan and Christmas Island :—

174 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—FEDERATED MALAY STATES

Singapore. The estimated population in 1918 was 832. (Census population, 1911, 749).

Christmas Island is 200 miles S.W. of Java and 700 miles E. of the Cocos Islands. It is 9 miles long and about 9 miles wide. The estimated population in 1918 was 2,180, most of the inhabitants, except the District Officer and his staff, being employed directly or indirectly by the company which works the enormous phosphate deposits which the island contains. Revenue, 1919, 4,255*l.*; expenditure, 1,220*l.* Imports, 1919, 28,186*l.*, chiefly machinery, tools, railway material, locomotives, and lorries; exports, 153,008*l.* The sole source of wealth of the Island is phosphate of lime; 81,197 tons were exported in 1919, and 53,370 tons in 1918. Tonnage entered and cleared, 1919, 81,197 tons; 1918, 71,926 tons. There is a railway in the island.

The island of Labuan lies about 6 miles from the north-west coast of Borneo, and since January 1, 1907, it has been incorporated with Singapore. Area 28½ sq. miles; the estimated population in 1918 was 6,848, mostly Malays from Borneo, with some Chinese traders and about 30 Europeans. Capital, Victoria, which has about 1,500 inhabitants. Revenue, 1919, 11,848*l.* expenditure, 10,357*l.* Shipping entered and cleared, 1919, 141,686 tons.

THE FEDERATED MALAY STATES.

The Federated Malay States of Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang, which occupy a large portion of the Malay Peninsula, are under British protection. The officer administering the Government of the Straits Settlements is ex officio H.M.'s High Commissioner for these States and the other Malay States in the British sphere.

High Commissioner.—Sir Lawrence Nunn Guillemard, K.C.B., K.C.M.G.

Chief Secretary to Government.—W. G. Maxwell, C.M.G.

The following are the Rulers and Residents of the four States:—

Ruler of Perak.—Paduka Sri Sultan Iskandar Shah, K.C.M.C., ibni Idris.

Resident.—Major C. W. C. Parr, O.B.E.

Ruler of Selangor.—H. H. Sultan Ala'ud-din Sulaiman Shah, K.C.M.G., ibni Almerhum Raja Muda Musa. Resident.—O. F. Stonor.

Ruler of Negri Sembilan.—H. H. Muhammad, K.C.M.G., ibni Antah Yang di Pertuan Besar, Negri Sembilan. Resident.—E. S. Hose (acting).

Ruler of Pahang.—Almuktasam Billah Al-Sultan Abdullah. Resident.—F. A. S. McClelland (acting).

In Perak, Selangor, and Sungai Ujong, which State was subsequently amalgamated with other States to form the Confederation of Negri Sembilan, Residents were appointed in 1874, with a staff of European officers whose duty was to aid the native rulers by advice, and to exercise executive functions. The supreme authority in each State is vested in the State Council, consisting of the Sultan, the Resident, the Secretary to the Resident, and some of the principal Malay chiefs and Chinese merchants. The Residents are under the control of the Chief Secretary and the High Commissioner.

In 1883 the relations of the Straits Settlements with the small Native States on the frontir of Malacca were consolidated. These States were confederated in 1889, under the name of Negri Sembilan (signifying Nine States). In January, 1895, Sungai Ujong (including Jelebu, which had been administered by a Collector and Magistrate under the Resident of Sungai Ujong since 1888) and Negri Sembilan were placed under one Resident; and in July, 1895, a treaty was signed by which the administrations were amalgamated. The new federation, which retains the ancient name of Negri Sembilan, comprises the States of Sungai Ujong, Johol, Jelebu, Rembau and five smaller States. In 1887, by agreement with the Raja of Pahang, the control of his foreign relations, &c., was surrendered to the British Government. This was followed by a further agreement in 1888 with the Raja (now styled Sultan), under which Pahang was taken under British protection, on the same terms as the Protected Native States on the west coast of the peninsula. Pahang is situate on the east coast, within 200 miles by sea from Singapore. In July, 1896, the treaty between the four Protected Native States, Perak, Selangor, Pahang, and Negri Sembilan, and the British Government came into force by which the administrative federation of these States under a Chief Secretary is provided for, and the States agree to furnish a contingent of troops for service in the Colony should His Majesty's Government be at war with any foreign nation.

The areas of these States, in square miles, are approximately:—Perak, 7,800 sq. miles; Selangor, 3,156 sq. miles; Negri Sembilan, 2,550 sq. miles; Pahang, 14,000 square miles; total, 27,506 sq. miles. Perak, by agreement with Siam, has been extended by about 1,000 square miles (included in the figures given above).

Population, census 1911: Perak, 494,057 (344,238 males and 149,819 females); Selangor, 294,035 (220,939 males and 73,096 females); Negri Sembilan, 130,199 (87,651 males and 42,548 females); Pahang, 118,708 (72,234 males and 46,474 females); total 1,036,999, (725,062 males, and 311,937 females). The population contained 420,840 Malays, 433,244 Chinese, 172,465 natives of India, 3,284 Europeans and Americans, and 2,649 Eurasians. The preponderance of males over females is due to the number of Chinese immigrants. Estimated population, 1919, 1,315,700. The largest town in the States is Kuala Lumpur (in Selangor) with about 60,000 inhabitants. Births, 1919, 32,335; deaths, 38,645.

The police force, with European officers, consists of an Indian and a Malay contingent. The actual strength at the close of 1920 was: British officers, 96; Malay inspectors, 9; subordinate uniformed ranks, Malays, 1,901; Indians, 1,462; others, 252; total, 3,720. Finger-print registration of all criminals in British Malaya is carried out under the direction of a Federated Malay States Police officer stationed in Kuala Lumpur.

In Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang, in 1920, there were 40 English schools (29 for boys, 11 for girls) maintained or assisted by Government, with an average enrolment of 7,117 boys and 1,944 girls, and an average attendance of 6,558 and 1,791 respectively; and 400 (346 for boys and 54 for girls) Malay Vernacular schools, with an average enrolment of 20,319 scholars, and an average attendance of 16,984. The total number of schools (1920) was 560 with an average attendance of 28,728. There are several Chinese Vernacular schools. Expenditure on education (excluding buildings) in 1920, 158,570l.

The laws in force in each State of the Federation are contained in enactments passed by the State Councils, up to December, 1909, and from that date, where more than one State is affected, by the Federal Council.

This Council consists of the High Commissioner as President, the Chief Secretary, the Sultans of Perak, Selangor, and Pahang, the Yang di per Tuau Besar of Negri Sembilan, the four British Residents, the Legal Adviser, Financial Adviser and six unofficial members, and in addition to legislation deals with the annual estimates of revenue and expenditure. All legislative enactments are submitted to the High Commissioner and the Secretary of State for the Colonies. The courts in the States are:—(1) The Supreme Court, comprising the Court of a Judicial Commissioner and the Court of Appeal. (2) The Court of a Magistrate of the first class. (3) The Court of a Magistrate of the second class. (4) The Court of a Kathi and the Court of Assistant Kathi. (5) The Court of a Penghulu. The Court of Appeal consists of two or more Judicial Commissioners, the chief Judicial Commissioner being President. There is a final appeal in civil matters to the Privy Council.

The number of cases of murder, homicide, robbery, &c., reported in 1919 was 1,002, discovered 299; in 1920, reported 1,032, discovered 312. The number of prisoners in gaol on December 31, 1920, was 1,489.

Efficient Government hospitals are established in all districts, with separate hospitals for Europeans. A very complete Institute of Medical Research has been established at Kuala Lumpur.

The revenue of the States in 1920 was 8,432,334*l.* (1919, 8,415,758*l.*), and the expenditure, 11,717,238*l.* (1919, 8,215,645*l.*).

Leading items of revenue in 1920 were—customs, 2,401,815*l.*; licences, 2,114,507*l.*; fees of court or office, 237,566*l.*; municipal, 253,283*l.*; railways, 2,020,262*l.*; interest, 571,125*l.*; land revenue, 376,436*l.*; war taxes (1919 arrears) 11,545*l.*; and of expenditure—railways, 4,501,738*l.*; public works, 1,601,518*l.*; miscellaneous services, 2,529,872*l.* (includes 1,458,333*l.* part adjustment of loss on rice purchases); personal emoluments, 1,306,018*l.*; other charges, 1,340,529*l.*; pensions, 131,047*l.*; military expenditure, 74,667*l.*; interest on loans and advances, 105,000*l.* Public debt (raised and contributed to Imperial Government for war purposes) 1,750,000*l.*

The staple cultivations of the Federated Malay States are coconuts, rice, rubber, sugar, tapioca, pepper, gambier, and nipah palms. The chief industrial enterprises are the cultivation of rubber, and the mining of tin. The Krian irrigation works in Perak irrigate 70,000 acres of rice (padi) land and supply drinking water to the district. The canal is 21 miles long with 16½ miles of branches and 188½ miles of distributory channels. The total area of rubber estates of over 100 acres at the end of 1915 was 499,500 acres (78,284 tons were exported in 1918 and 106,453 tons in 1919), and coconut estates, 54,800 acres (the total acreage under coconuts was 182,000 acres). The forests produce many excellent timbers, besides gutta-percha, oils, resins, and canes. In 1920 the total quantity of timber of all kinds taken from the forests, on which payment was made, was 961,851 tons, in addition to a large quantity used free of royalty by the native Malay population and the tin miners. The gross revenue of the Forest Department for 1920 amounted to 235,634*l.* The duty on the export of tin forms the largest item of the revenue of the States on the West Coast. In 1920 the tin export amounted to 34,935 tons. Duty paid in 1920, customs, 1,423,759*l.*, war-tax, 383*l.* In 1920, 12,283 ounces of gold, and in 1919, 16,402 ounces were produced in the Federated Malay States. Besides gold and tin, many minerals are found, including lead, iron, copper, mercury, arsenic, manganese, wolfram (exports 1920, 113 tons), scheelite (exports 1920, 120 tons), plumbago, silver, zinc, and coal, but with the exception of coal, they have not so far been discovered in workable form. The exports of tungsten ore in 1920 were 233 tons. The labour force engaged in mining at the end of 1920 was 89,557.

The trade (excluding bullion and specie) was as follows in 1920 and 1919:—

—	Perak	Selangor	Negri Sembilan	Pahang	Total 1920	Total 1919
Imports .	6,245,631	11,418,980	1,563,738	665,890	10,894,248	13,866,412

Chief items of import, 1920 : Rice, 4,575,061*½* ; opium, 543,890*½* ; tobacco, cigars, and cigarettes, 1,083,389*½* ; cotton piece goods, 1,052,088*½* ; sugar, 530,701*½* ; milk, condensed, 394,406*½* ; live animals, 571,694*½* ; spirits, 359,117*½* ; petroleum, including benzine, 706,070*½* ; ironware, 486,435*½* ; machinery, 1,000,687*½*. Chief exports, 1920 : Cultivated rubber (101,330 tons), 20,851,324*½* ; copra, 1,075,268*½* ; tin and tin ore, 10,345,188*½* ; metals, 27,115*½* ; timber, 47,771*½* ; hides, 30,679*½*. Imports (excluding bullion and specie), 1920, from U.K., 3,617,071*½*. Exports to U.K., 5,436,860*½*. Bullion and specie imported 1920, 629,369*½* ; exported, 46,237*½*.

Shipping, 1920 (excluding native craft) : entered, 3,771 vessels, 1,792,703 tons ; cleared, 3,788 vessels, 1,792,796 tons. Native craft, entered and cleared, 12,245 vessels, 361,643 tons.

There were in the 4 States in 1920, 2,395 miles of metalled cart roads, 167 miles of unmetalled roads, and 1,826 miles of bridle roads and paths. There were also 771 miles of paths maintained by the Forest Department. The Government has made, purchased, leased, or is making, the railway systems of the whole peninsula south of the Siamese boundary, including the railway on Singapore Island. When the system is complete, there will be a main trunk line throughout the peninsula, diverging at Gemas in Negri Sembilan into West Coast and East Coast lines, and linking up with the Southern Siamese railway system on the Perlis-Siam and Kelantan-Siam boundaries respectively. The two Siamese lines converge at Haad Yai, in Singora, and thence a single line continues north to Bangkok. On the West Coast, the line is open for traffic from Singapore to Padang Besar (Perlis Siamese boundary), 596 miles, and on the East Coast from Singapore to Padang Tungku (in Pahang). A section in Kelantan from Tumpat to Tanah Merah (32 miles), and one from Pasir Mas to Golok (Kelantan-Siam boundary) (12 miles) are also open. The Siamese line from the Golok to Haad Yai was opened on November 1, 1921, thus making through rail communication between Kelantan and the rest of the Peninsula. The section in Johore, from Johore Bahru to Gemas (120 miles), is leased from the Johore Government. The total mileage open for traffic was 1,003 miles in 1920. The lines under construction (1921) were about 48 miles, besides 2 miles of Hill Railway, in Penang, and doubling of lines in Singapore (16 miles) and in neighbourhood of Kuala Lumpur (37 miles). A causeway, carrying a double line of railway and a roadway, is now being constructed (1921), connecting Singapore with the mainland across the Johore Straits. An extensive scheme of deep-water wharves at Prai, on the mainland, opposite Penang, is also in progress.

There were, in 1920, 98 post offices and 39 other places for postal business. In 1920, 25,996,098 postal packets (registered letters, 782,942, and parcels, 212,314) were received and delivered. In 1920 there were 2,502 miles of telegraph and telephone line (12,396 miles of wire) under the Post Office department. The net revenue collected by the department amounted to 124,220*½*, and expenditure to 212,134*½*. Savings Banks : 11,682 depositors and 148,246*½* deposits on December 31, 1920. The current money consists of Straits Settlements dollars with subsidiary silver and copper coins. In February, 1906, the value of the dollar was fixed at 2s. 4d. or 60 dollars = 7½. Currency notes and bank notes also circulate, and the sovereign is legal tender for any amount at the above rate. Weights and measures (as well as currency) are as in the Straits Settlements.

THE MALAY STATES NOT INCLUDED IN THE FEDERATION.

The Malay States not included in the Federation are five in number, namely, Johore, Kedah, Perlis, Kelantan, and Trengganu.

The relations of Johore with Great Britain are defined by a treaty dated December 11, 1885; and, by an amendment to this treaty made on May 12, 1914, the Sultan agreed to accept, and to act upon the advice of, a British officer called the General Adviser. The Sultan is assisted in the administration of the State by an Executive Council, and by a Legislative Council consisting of official and unofficial members.

The rights of suzerainty, protection, administration and control of the other four States were transferred from Siam to Great Britain by the Anglo-Siamese treaty of March 10, 1909. In all four States the Rulers are assisted in the administration by State Councils, and by British Advisers appointed by the British Government.

In these States the currency, weights and measures are the same as in the Straits Settlements and the Federated Malay States. Their trade is almost entirely carried on with the Straits Settlements.

The religion of the Malays is Muhammadanism.

Johore (area 7,500 square miles, population in 1921, 282,244, of whom 158,144 were Malays, 96,888 Chinese, and 24,278 Indians) lies at the southern extremity of the Malay Peninsula. Births registered (1920), 8,999; deaths, 10,761. There were (1920) 3 English schools and 71 vernacular schools, and an English College (with 54 boys in residence).

Revenue (1920), 11,389,755 dollars; expenditure, 13,070,883. The public debt of 3 millions was extinguished in 1918. Imports (1920), 42,577,896 dollars (foodstuffs, drinks, and narcotics, 29,732,061; raw materials, 3,810,651; manufactured articles 7,405,747; coin and bullion 52,561 dollars). Exports 68,685,787 dollars (rubber, 47,332,635; gambier, 710,955; pepper, 208,950; copra, 7,321,176; areca-nuts, 3,713,418; tin, 3,996,000; tapioca, 2,039,671; forest produce, 933,940 dollars). Rubber output, 1920, 26,824 tons.

During 1920, 17½ additional miles of road were opened to traffic, and 29 miles were under construction. At the end of 1920, 432 miles of metalled road had been constructed. The railway from Penang to Singapore traverses Johore for a distance of 120 miles. The Johore section has been leased to the Federated Malay States Government for a term of years. Rubber estates are situated on either side along practically the whole length, and thus, with the help of roads and navigable rivers, good communication is available.

An efficient medical service and eight public hospitals are maintained by the Government.

The Postal revenue (1920) was 75,116 dollars. Letters, parcels, &c., received, 1,856,296; despatched, 1,165,866.

Ruler.—His Highness Sultan Ibrahim, G.C.M.G., K.B.E.

General Adviser.—Hayes Marriott.

Kedah. On the west coast of the Peninsula, and north of Province Wellesley and Perak, has an area of 8,000 square miles. The population (census 1921) is 388,544, of whom 237,048 are Malays, 59,408 Chinese, 33,019 Indians, 300 Europeans, 75 Eurasians, and 8,704 other races. The capital is Alor Star on the Kedah River, about sixty miles from Penang by sea or rail. Owing to the Sultan's ill-health, the head of the Government is the Regent. There are (1921) 34 Europeans in the Government service, principally in the Public Works, Survey and Police Departments. The police force, distributed in 50 stations, had a strength (December, 1921) of 670 men (principally Malays). There were at the end of 1920, 63 Government schools (about 6,000 pupils), 10 telegraph offices, and 17 post offices. A telephone system extends throughout the State, the wire mileage in 1920 being 1,144. The railway connecting the Federated Malay States and Siam passes through the State. A metalled road (89 miles) connects Alor Star with Perlis, and with Singora frontier (Siam), and a metalled road (48 miles) connects it with Province Wellesley. Another metalled road (45 miles) connects Baling with Upper Perak in one direction and with Province Wellesley in the opposite direction. The total mileage of metalled road (1921) is 260. 183 miles of canal were maintained in 1921. The revenue of the State for the year 1920 (Muhammadian year 1338-9) was 6,650,000 dollars, including Chandu monopolies, 2,977,000; export duty, 756,000; lands, 819,000; and liquor, 24,000 dollars; and the expenditure, 4,305,000 dollars. The principal produce of North Kedah is rice. There are rubber (output 1920, 8,665 tons), coconut, and tapioca estates in South Kedah. About four or five steamers ply between Penang and the various ports of Kedah. Kedah-Penang trade (1920): imports, 6,024,474 dollars; exports, 6,848,092 dollars. Postal and telegraph revenue, 1920, 63,378 dollars; expenditure, 99,116 dollars. Postal articles dealt with, 1,649,000.

Ruler.—H. H. Sultan Sir Abdul Hamid Halim Shah, K.C.M.G. (succeeded in 1881).

Regent.—H. H. Tunku Ibrahim.

British Adviser.—M. S. H. McArthur.

Perlis, on the west coast of the Peninsula and north of Kedah, has an area of about 316 square miles and a population (1921 census) of 40,091. Malays numbered 34,167 of the population, Chinese 2,705, Indians 806, and other races 1,503. Police force 58 n.c.o.'s and men. Fourteen schools were maintained in 1920; average attendance, 1,100. The principal products are rice, tin, and coconuts. There are tin (output of tin-ore in 1919, 113 tons) and guano deposits. There are 17 miles of metalled, 11 miles of gravelled road, and 21 miles of earth road in the State. The revenue for 1920 was 443,442 dollars, and the expenditure 277,994 dollars. Public debt, 1920, 495,394 dollars.

Ruler.—H. H. Syed Alwi.

British Adviser.—E. W. N. Wyatt (Acting).

Kelantan, on the east coast of the Peninsula, has an area estimated at 5,870 square miles and a population (1921 census) of 309,293, including 12,799 Chinese. Kota Bharu, the capital, has a population of about 11,000. There are 19 Government elementary schools in the State. The High Court, the Central Court, and the Small Court are at Kota Bharu, and there are District Courts at Kuala Krai, Pasir Puteh, Pasir Mas, and Tumpat respectively. The revenue of the State in 1920 amounted to 1,328,955 dollars (licences, excise, &c., 467,323 dollars; customs, 429,397 dollars; land revenue, 286,788 dollars), and the expenditure to 1,403,208 dollars. Public debt (1920) 2,781,481 dollars.

The chief industry is agriculture. About 350,232 acres were under cultivation in 1920. Chief products: rice (157,325 acres), coconuts (8,230 acres), betel-nuts, rubber (88,899 acres), resin and gharu, rattan, bamboo, pepper, tapoca, sugar-cane, and maize. A large part of the State is covered with jungle comprising numerous kinds of serviceable timber. The State supports cattle (estimated at 118,152 head), buffaloes (28,186), sheep, goats, and poultry. The almost unworked mineral resources are believed to comprise gold, galena, pyrites, and tin. Large planting and mining concessions are held by British companies. The principal manufacturing industries are silk-weaving, boat-building, and brick-making. In 1920 total exports, 6,992,642 dollars; total imports, 5,679,510 dollars (1919, 5,467,424 and 3,876,679 dollars respectively). Chief exports, 1920: betel-nuts, 481,073 dollars; fish, 1,195,622 dollars; copra, 1,180,511 dollars; Para rubber, 3,766,552 dollars. Chief imports, 1920: cattle, 39,915 dollars; fish, 62,321 dollars; rice, 109 dollars; wheat and flour, 56,804 dollars; milk, 89,611 dollars; sugar, 154,526 dollars; tobacco, 277,699 dollars; salt, 25,565 dollars; gambier, 47,954 dollars; petroleum, 272,939 dollars; cotton goods, 1,385,174 dollars; silk goods, 102,741 dollars; timber, 90,924 dollars; cement, 163,387 dollars; machinery and metal goods, 1,108,697 dollars; opium, 189,936 dollars.

Tonnage of steamships inwards and outwards, 1920, 98,191 tons (88,616 tons in 1919). Over 5,900 are registered. There is regular steamship communication with Bangkok and Singapore. Roads (except for the Kota Bharu-Pasir Puteh road, 26 miles) extend only a few miles from the capital; communication inland is by the rivers. There is bi-weekly connection by rail and steamer between Tumpat and Kuala Lebri 60 miles up river. Kota Bharu is in direct telegraphic communication with Bangkok and Penang, and possesses a telephone service. There were (1920) 4 post offices and 3 sub-post offices in the State.

Ruler.—H. H. Sultan Ismail, K.C.M.G.

British Adviser.—H. W. Thomson.

Trengganu, with an area of about 6,000 square miles, and a population, at the census 1921, of 153,092, lies on the east coast between Pahang and Kelantan. The capital is Kuala Trengganu, with a population of 14,000. There are four Malay schools and one Chinese school. Trengganu was the last British possession to tolerate slavery for debt. The practice has been abolished by an enactment passed in 1919

180 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—UNFEDERATED MALAY STATES

Police force, 1920, about 240. There are about 11 miles of metalled cart road at the capital, and a telephone exchange, but no trunk roads, railways, or telegraphs. Communication with the interior is by rivers, and good native paths. Steamers connect regularly with Singapore and Bangkok, and locally-built motor-boats maintain passenger services along the Trengganu coast. The industries are similar to those of Kelantan, and the country is of the same general character. Revenue, 1920, 970,451 dollars; chiefly from farms, 77,410 dollars; chandu, 464,513 dollars; export duty on tin and wolfram, 98,023 dollars; other export duties, 219,855 dollars. Expenditure, 1920, 757,646 dollars. Debt, 1920, nil. The total imports in 1920 were 1,571,789 dollars, and the total exports about 3,544,905 dollars. Chief exports, 1920: dried fish, 1,499,965 dollars; tin ore, 813,683 dollars; copra, 366,815 dollars; black pepper, 118,867 dollars; wolfram ore, 102,582 dollars. Chief imports: Rice, 253,089 dollars; cotton piece goods, 177,380 dollars; tobacco, 79,676 dollars; petroleum, 83,487 dollars; sugar, 40,156 dollars. The above figures relate to trade with Singapore only.

Ruler.—H. H. Sultan Sleman bin Zenalabidin. He is assisted by a State Council on the Johore model.

British Adviser.—J. L. Humphreys.

WEIHAIWEI.

Weihaiwei, in the Chinese province of Shantung, with the adjacent waters was, by a Convention with the Chinese Government, dated July 1, 1898, leased to Great Britain. The territory leased comprises, besides the port and bay, the island of Liu Kung, all the islands in the bay, and a belt of land 10 English miles wide along the entire coast-line of the bay. The boundary has been demarcated and regulations settled for the management of frontier affairs. The area of about 285 square miles contains (1911 census) 147,177 inhabitants, including 3,000 on the island of Liu Kung. The native city of Weihaiwei is a walled town with about 2,000 inhabitants. Within the limits of the territory Great Britain has sole jurisdiction, except that within the walled city Chinese officials may exercise such jurisdiction as is not inconsistent with the defence of the territory. In addition, within a zone extending east from the meridian 121° 40' east of Greenwich, and comprising an area of 1,500 square miles, Great Britain has the right to erect fortifications or take any measures necessary for the defence of the territory, and to acquire sites necessary for water supply, communications and hospitals. As a result of the Shantung settlement at Washington (January 1922) Great Britain will in due course restore Weihaiwei to China.

Under an Order in Council of July 24, 1901, the territory is administered by a Commissioner. Legislation is by Ordinances. The seat of government is at Port Edward on the mainland. There is a High Court for both civil and criminal cases, subject to appeal to the Supreme Court at Hong Kong, and provision is made for courts of district magistrates. There are 4 European inspectors of police. There are 8 Chinese sergeants, 6 corporals and 109 warders, detectives, and constables. In the numerous villages the headmen system is maintained. At the Government Free School there were in 1920 118 pupils, and about half-a-dozen Mission schools have 177 pupils. There is also a private school (30 pupils in 1920) in which the sons of Europeans are educated. There are 284 Chinese primary schools within the territory, with an actual average attendance of 4,669 scholars, and with a teaching staff of 307 teachers. About 6 per cent. of the inhabitants can read and write.

Revenue is derived from (1) a land tax and a road tax; (2) junk registration, shipping dues, wine monopoly; (3) fines and miscellaneous sources. For 1920-21 the net revenue was 164,973 dollars,¹ and the net expenditure was 235,445 dollars, the deficit being partly met from savings. For 1919-20 the amounts were 176,450 dollars and 207,141 dollars respectively. The grant in aid for 1918-19 was 4,000*l.*; for 1919-20, 7,900*l.*; and for 1920-21, 20,000*l.*

The station is used as a flying naval base and as a depôt, exercising ground, and sanatorium for the China squadron, which assembles at Weihaiwei during the summer. No troops are stationed permanently in its territory, the Chinese regiment having been disbanded during 1906. The prevalence of brigandage, since 1918, in the Chinese districts bordering on the Territory, has, however, rendered it necessary to keep a small detachment of Indian troops stationed at Port Edward.

The leased territory, consisting of rocky hill ranges with fertile valleys, is most picturesque; it is well populated, and the inhabitants are in general well-to-do. Cereals, vegetables and fruits (apples, grapes and apricots) are grown, and oak-fed silk is produced. Mulberry cultivation is being experimented with. Seedlings of fir trees, acacias, willows, and plane trees have done well. Those of the inhabitants who are not farmers are mostly fishermen. Some rope and line-making, boat-building, and stone-cutting are carried on. The territory contains gold, but, so far as is known, not in workable quantities. The trade is carried on by junks and steamers. In 1920, 515 steamers of 480,287 net tons entered the port, exclusive of Admiralty colliers and government transports. 2,874 junks entered and cleared, as against 4,535 in 1919. The chief imports, 1920: bean-cakes, $102,170; Chinese wine, $146,982; cigarettes, $72,480; coal, $72,554; cotton yarn, $641,240; raw cotton, $190,830; dyes, $12,326; fish, salt and dried, $92,874; ground-nut kernels, $574,188; ground-nut oil, $55,560; flour, $142,427; gunny bags, $83,850; kerosene oil, $109,280; matches, $12,429; paper, $64,996; piece goods, $205,400; salt, $66,891; treasure, $422,370; sugar, $121,605. Chief exports, 1920: fish, salt and dried, $139,744; ground-nut kernels, $1,290,966; ground-nut oil, $52,809; old iron, $25,049; sasson, $27,430; salt, $913,566; sugar, $62,415. Weihaiwei is a duty-free port.

Good roads have been made round the coasts and into the interior of the Territory. The value of land is rising, which is a sign of the increasing prosperity of the place. There is a regular weekly mail service to and from Shanghai. Many Europeans visit the place in summer on account of the excellence of the climate, which is unsurpassed in the Far East.

AFRICA.

ASCENSION ISLAND.

ASCENSION is a small island of volcanic origin, of 34 square miles, in the South Atlantic, 700 miles N.W. of St. Helena. It is entirely under the control and jurisdiction of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty and is fortified. There is an excellent sanatorium up Green Mountain (2,820 ft.) for crows of ships visiting the island, whose health is impaired from service on the coast. There are 10 acres under cultivation, producing vegetables and fruit for the garrison. The population was estimated (August 1, 1918) at about 250, consisting of officers, their wives and families, seamen and marines, kroomen, members of the staff of the Eastern Telegraph Co., and servants. Garrison station, Georgetown, on north-west coast.

The island is the resort of the sea turtle, which come in thousands to lay their eggs in the sand annually between January and May. In 1914, 113 were taken from 500 to 800 lbs. in weight; they are stored in ponds, and eventually killed and distributed among the people, a few being sent to the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty. Rabbits, wild goats, and partridges are more or less numerous on the island, which is, besides, the breeding ground of the sooty tern or "wideawake," these birds coming in vast numbers to lay their eggs about every eighth month. The island is included in the Postal Union, and is connected by the Eastern Telegraph Company with St. Helena, St. Vincent, Sierra Leone, and Buenos Aires; with England and with the Cape of Good Hope by telegraph.

Commandant.—Major H. G. Grant, R.M.L.I.

BRITISH EAST AFRICA.

British East Africa consists of a large area on the mainland, together with the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba. For details as to international agreements, &c., with regard to the British sphere in East Africa, see the STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1907, pp. 216 and 217.

KENYA COLONY AND PROTECTORATE.

Government.—The Kenya Colony and Protectorate extends from the Umba to the Juba River, and inland as far as the borders of Uganda. Kenya Protectorate (so named by Order in Council dated August 13, 1920) includes certain mainland dominions of the Sultan of Zanzibar, viz., a strip, extending 10 miles inland along the coast from the German frontier to Kipini, the islands of the Lamu Archipelago, and an area of 10 miles round the fort of Kismayu, these territories having been leased to Great Britain for an annual rent of 17,000*l*. The colony and protectorate were formerly known as the East Africa Protectorate. On April 1, 1905, this was transferred from the authority of the Foreign Office to that of the Colonial Office. By an Order in Council dated November 9, 1906, the Protectorate was placed under the control of a Governor and Commander-in-Chief. By Order in Council the Protectorate (except the Sultan of Zanzibar's dominions) was annexed to the Crown, as from July 23, 1920, under the name of the Kenya Colony, and thus becomes a "Crown Colony." An Order in Council of October 22, 1906, constituted an Executive and a Legislative Council, the former consisting of 4 members, in addition to the Governor, the latter of 8 official and 4 unofficial members. Under an Ordinance of July, 1919, the Legislative Council is to consist of 11 elected representatives of the European community, three nominated members, two representing the Indian population and one the Arabs, and a sufficient number of official members to give a majority in the Council. Legislation is by Ordinances made by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council. In 1908 foreign consular jurisdiction in the Zanzibar strip of coast was transferred to the British Crown. There are 8 provinces and a tract of territory partially organised lying to the north. The provinces are as follows: Seyidie (capital Mombasa), Ukamba (capital Nairobi), Tanaland (capital Lamu), Jubaland (capital Kismayu), Kenya (capital Nyeri), Naivasha (capital Naivasha), the Nyanza Province (capital Kisumu), Northern Frontier District (capital Moyale). For administrative purposes the Colony is to be divided into white-settled areas under Resident Magistrates, and native reserves under Native Commissioners.

Area and Population.—The territory has an area of 245,060 square miles; population estimated at 2,630,000, including 9,650 Europeans and 36,000 Asiatics. On the coast the Arabs and Swahilis predominate; further inland are races speaking Bantu languages, and non-Bantu tribes such as the Masai, the Somali, and the Gallas. Mombasa is the largest town; population about 40,000, of whom 656 are Europeans. The harbour is situated on the eastern side of an island of the same name, and is the terminus of the Uganda Railway. Kilindini harbour on the south-western side of the island is the finest land-locked and sheltered harbour on the east coast of Africa and is accessible to vessels of deep draught. There is good warehouse accommodation and a pier connected with the Uganda Railway. The two principal rivers in the North are the Tana and Juba which flow into the Indian Ocean. They are both navigable for about 400 miles by shallow-draught steamers. Nairobi, the capital and the headquarters of the administration, has 24,300 inhabitants, of whom about 2,930 are European and 8,000 Indian. There are also 590 European farmers and 50,000 natives in the immediate neighbourhood of Nairobi.

Religion, Instruction, Justice.—The prevailing religious beliefs are Pagan; but on the coast Mohamedanism has made great progress. There are many Christian mission societies, British, French, Italian, Swedish, and American, several being Roman Catholic. There were seven (including 3 European) Government schools in operation in 1919-20, with an average enrolment of 733 pupils; and a large number of mission and native schools. Total expenditure, 1919-20: 294,000 rupees. The Supreme Court is at Mombasa, and sessions are held at Nairobi, Naivasha, Kisumu, and other places. District Courts presided over by magistrates are held in each district. In native cases local ideas and customs are considered. The legal status of slavery has been abolished throughout East Africa.

Finance.—Revenue and expenditure for 6 years (Rs. 15 = 1*l.* down to 1919-20; 1920-21, Rs. 10 = 1*l.*):—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1913-14	1,1 8,798	1,115,899	1918-19	1,548,703	1,570,705
1916-17	1,533,783	1 197 396	1919-20	1,726,435	2,024 861
1917-18	1,368,329	1,490,571	1920-21	2,978,786	2,976 961

In 1920-21 the expenditure included 16,045*l.* for Protectorate share of war expenses; grant-in-aid, nil. Of the revenue for 1920-21, customs accounted for 403,769*l.*; licences and internal revenue, 853,474*l.*; posts and telegraphs, 139,349*l.*; Government railways, 1,114,344*l.*; rents, 60,093*l.*; fees of court and other fees, 117,584*l.* Public debt, 1,147,655*l.*

Agriculture and Mining.—The agricultural products in the low-lying areas, where rainfall is sufficient, are rice, cocoanuts, cotton, simsim, groundnuts, cassava, sugar cane. A large field for development exists in such areas, but there is a paucity of population in some districts. In the Highlands of the Colony where the temperature is moderate and the rainfall good pawpaw, banana, wheat and barley may be grown. The acreage under maize is assuming large dimensions; flax is an established crop; coffee is popular and profitable; sisal growing, on large estates, is fully established. The potentialities of the country are great and await further development.

Livestock thrive well on the Highlands, and losses from rinderpest and tick-borne diseases are kept well under control. The Dairying industry gives promise of success and extension. The Bacon industry has already supplied the needs for local consumption and an export trade has been started.

The forest area extends over 3,200 square miles, of which the tropical forest covers about 183 square miles, the remainder being upland or highland, containing valuable timber trees. Near the coast are mangroves, and various rubber trees, besides ebony, copal, and other trees. The Taveta forest is supposed to contain useful timber. The Scrub forest which covers a large lowland area is capable of being turned to useful purposes. The Tana and Juba rivers are bordered by trees of tropical growth, and the Witu forest timber trees and furniture woods. But the valuable forests are within the highland area to the west and north of Nairobi. The Kenya forests of about 625 square miles contain cedar, yellow woods, camphor, olive, and many other useful species. The Aberdare forests (about 750 square miles) contain abundance of similar trees. The Mau forest (about 1,200 square miles) is incompletely surveyed, but is known to contain many excellent timber trees. The forest on Mount Elgon (about 50 square miles) is little known.

The mineral resources are not yet fully explored. There are large deposits of natron in the Rift Valley, particularly at Lake Magadi. Diatomite also occurs in large quantities in the same region. Gold has been discovered in the Masai Reserve, but has not yet been proved. Graphite and marble are found in the metamorphic rocks in various localities, and limestone is worked at various places for building purposes. Manganese is found in the sandstones near the coast; opals have been found in some of the streams on the west side of the Rift Valley, but up to now have not been considered of commercial importance. Cassiterite, galena, copper, bitumen, kaolin and agate have been reported in various parts of the country, but have not been fully investigated. Mica occurs south of Mount Kenya, and during the War about ten tons were exported for the Minister of Munitions. No activity now exists in this direction.

Commerce, Shipping, Communications, &c.—Imports (excluding government stores and treasure) and exports (including those also of Uganda and the Congo), and the gross tonnage entered and cleared (excluding coasting trade) (before 1920–21, Rs. 15 = £.; 1920–21, Rs. 10 = £.) :—

Years	Imports	Exports	Customs	Tonnage entered and cleared
1913–14	2,147,937	1,482,876	196,197	3,565,795
1916–17	3,024,123	1,613,853	311,496	1,441,877
1917–18	2,809,681	1,741,939	254,256	1,170,472

Of imports, 1920-21, 3,516,075*l.* came from the United Kingdom; 1,824,303*l.* from British Possessions; 577,976*l.* from the United States of America; 241,909*l.* from Holland, and 100,745*l.* from France.

Of exports, 1920-21, 2,957,304*l.* went to the United Kingdom; 1,497,677*l.* to British Possessions; 257,412*l.* to France; 55,399*l.* to Italy; 75,712*l.* to the United States.

Tonnage entered and cleared, 1919-20, 911,018. Communication between the port of Kenya is kept up by small steamers owned by Messrs. Cawaji Dinshaw Brothers at Aden.

The Mombasa-Victoria (Uganda) Railway is a State railway, length 618 miles, gauge 39·33 inches. The construction cost to March 31, 1921, was 7,099,705*l.* A line is projected from Nakuru, on the Uganda Railway, to Tuobo, on the Uasin Gishu plateau, a settlement 100 miles north of the main railway line. There is a telegraph along the line, and ten steamers on the Lake in connection with the railway. In 1920-21 258,997 tons of goods, exclusive of railway material, and 708,668 passengers were carried; revenue, 1,114,826*l.*; expenditure, 958,909*l.* The country is fairly well provided with roads and tracks.

The Post Office of the Colony and Protectorate (exclusive of the Uganda Post Office, which is worked by the Kenya Post Office) received and despatched 4,914,000 letters, packets, &c., and 319,000 telegrams during the year 1920-21. The telegraph system has 3,952 miles of wire (exclusive of Uganda). A cable connects Mombasa with Zanzibar.

The currency is controlled by the East African Currency Board, London, who maintain a stable rate of sterling exchange. Until recently the Indian rupee was in use, but it has been demonetised and a shilling (20 = 1*l.*) introduced as the standard coin, which is legal tender for any amount. There are subsidiary silver 50 and 25 cent pieces, and 10, 5, and 1 cent pieces of other metals. British sovereigns and notes are not legal tender. Notes issued in Zanzibar are not interchangeable with those issued in Kenya nor are German rupees, in use in the late German East Africa, legal tender.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Major-General Sir E. Northey, K.C.M.G., C.B.

Chief Secretary to the Government.—Sir C. C. Bowring, K.B.E., C.M.G.

TANGANYIKA TERRITORY (LATE GERMAN EAST AFRICA).

Government.—German East Africa was conquered in 1918. As the conquest of the Territory proceeded, Civil Administration was established pari passu and the whole Colony passed under the effective control of the present Administration in the beginning of 1919, when the forces engaged in military operations were finally evacuated. The country has been divided between the British and Belgians, and is to be administered under mandates approved by the League of Nations. The official designation of the sphere under British occupation is now "Tanganyika Territory" with headquarters at Dar-es-Salaam.

Under an Order in Council, dated July 22, 1920, the Territory is administered by a Governor, who is assisted by an Executive Council, all of whose members will be nominated. There is no provision for the representation of white settlers, but the Governor is enjoined to respect native laws and custom unless they are opposed to justice or morality. Rights in or in relation to any public lands vest in the Governor, but the Secretary of State for the Colonies may appoint, if he sees fit, another trustee or trustees to exercise such right.

Area and Population.—The Sultan of Zanzibar's rights over the narrow strip of coast territory were acquired by Germany in 1890 for a payment of 4,000,000 marks. Estimated area, 365,000 square miles. The country has a coast line of about 500 miles, extending from the mouth of the Umba to the mouth of the Rovuma River. Dar-es-Salaam is the capital.

The native population consists mostly of tribes of mixed Bantu race, and was enumerated for the whole area formerly under German administration at 7,659,898 (January 1, 1913), the coloured population (other than native) being 14,898. The thickly populated provinces of Ruanda and Urundi are now under Belgian administration, so that the native population of Tanganyika Territory is approximately 4,000,000. According to German law every native born after 1905 is free, but a mild serfdom was continued under German rule. The total white population is 2,447.

Education.—The work of educational reconstruction began in 1919, and the appointment of a Director was made in 1920. There are now some 45 Government schools in the Territory, attended by about 3,500 children under 71 native teachers. There are no European teachers at present on the staff. There are both Protestant and Roman Catholic missionary societies working in the Territory.

Defence.—Three battalions of the King's African Rifles are stationed in the Territory.

Resources.—The forests of the Tanganyika Territory are most numerous in the north on the shores and islands of Lake Victoria Nyanza, in the north-east on Mount Kilimanjaro and other mountains in the Arusha district, in the east along the Pare and Usambara ranges in the Uluguru and Nguu mountains, and in the coast districts of Rufiji, Kilwa, and Lindi. The total area under forest is approximately 2,700,000 acres, of which about 2,170,000 acres are included in the Government forest reserves. The number of timber producing species is large and includes the following—Conifers: Cedar, juniperus procera, and two species of yellow wood. Hard woods: Chlorophora excelsa (resembling Burma teak), ocotea usambarensis, pterocarpus bussei, parinarium holstii, pygeum africanum, and afzelia cuanzensis. Ebony is plentiful near the coast, and gum copal and wild rubber exist. Bamboo and baobab forests are found, and may prove suitable for the manufacture of paper-pulp.

There are a number of plantations of coco-palms, coffee (on the higher lands), caoutchouc, sugar, cotton, cardamom, cinchona. Fibre plants, especially sisal, are successfully cultivated.

In 1912 there were 43,617 cattle and 41,647 sheep and goats in the possession of Europeans, and 3,950,250 cattle and 6,398,300 sheep and goats in the possession of natives. Present numbers, about 3,000,000 cattle and 5,000,000 sheep and goats.

Minerals known to exist within the Protectorate are: Coal, iron, gold, lead, copper, mica, and salt. Agates, topaz, moonstones, tourmalin, and quartz crystals are found, and garnets in large quantities.

Finance.—The revenue of the Territory for the year ending March 31, 1921, was 1,262,844*l.* (made up of ordinary revenue 246,844*l.*, and grant-in-aid 316,000*l.*), and the expenditure was 1,389,354*l.* The revenue of German East Africa for the year 1914 was put at 825,500*l.*, and the expenditure at 1,188,500*l.*

Trade and Shipping.—The imports in 1919–20 were valued at 1,158,000*l.*, and in 1920–21, at 1,728,714*l.*; the exports were valued at 1,426,000*l.* in 1919–20, and at 1,282,459*l.* in 1920–21. The chief exports in 1920–21 were: Sisal (11,984 cwt., 364,448*l.*), cotton (1,147,912 lbs., 119,255*l.*), hides (14,726 cwt., 66,844*l.*), skins (2,738 cwt., 29,634*l.*), copra (69,834 cwt., 103,772*l.*), coffee (33,086 cwt., 88,683*l.*), ghee (14,966 cwt., 58,137*l.*), wax (4,772 cwt., 23,583*l.*), ground-nuts (67,377 cwt., 79,536*l.*), grain (1,227,476 cwt., 153,171*l.*), simsim (17,912 cwt., 26,494*l.*), rubber (2,897 cwt., 13,771*l.*), ivory (189 cwt., 18,254*l.*). The chief imports in 1920–21 were: Cotton piece-goods (762,923*l.*), rice (8,692*l.*), other foodstuffs (193,599*l.*), kerosene (39,789*l.*), cigarettes (41,739*l.*), tobacco (38,612*l.*), spirits (38,702*l.*), wines and beer (20,100*l.*).

In 1920–21, 129 steamers (exclusive of coastal boats) of 408,632 tons, and 1,915 vessels (dhows) of 40,093 tons, entered the various ports from places beyond the Territory.

The chief seaports are Dar-es-Salaam, Tanga, Bagamoyo, Pangani, Kilwa, Lindi, and Mikindani, but few of these are accessible to ocean-going vessels, though gradual improvements are being introduced.

Communications.—Motor transport is at present possible on only a few good roads, but the expansion of trade will, in course of time, necessitate the construction of roads suitable for motor traffic and the establishment of motor transport services to act as feeders to the railways.

There are two railway lines in the Protectorate—the Tanga railway from Tanga to New Moshi (220 miles), commenced in 1905 and completed in February, 1912, and the Central Railway (780 miles) from Dar-es-Salaam to Kigoma, completed in February, 1914. The ports of Lake Victoria are served by the steamers of the Uganda Marine; those on Lake Nyasa by the Nyasa Government steamers; and a Belgian service, together with a small steamer belonging to the Tanganyika Territory Government, maintains communications on Lake Tanganyika. Dar-es-Salaam is in telegraphic communication with the coast towns, Zanzibar, Mombasa, and many inland centres.

There are 43 post offices and telegraph stations.

The German rupee (10 = 1*l.*) is current. Four banks, with numerous branches, are operating.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief—Sir H. A. Byatt, K.C.M.G.

Chief Secretary—A. C. Hollis, C.M.G., C.B.E.

THE UGANDA PROTECTORATE.

The territories now comprised within this Protectorate came under British influence in 1890, and a portion of them was for a time administered by the Imperial British East African Company. In 1894 a British Protectorate was declared over the kingdom of Uganda and some of the adjoining territories. The present limits are approximately as follows:—On the north, the Uganda-Sudan boundary; on the east, a line drawn down the middle of Lake Rudolf, and along the west boundary of the Colony of Kenya and the eastern shores of Lake Victoria; on the south by Tanganyika Territory (late German East Africa); and on the west by the eastern boundary of the Belgian Congo. Within these boundaries lie part of the Victoria Nyanza, part of Lake Edward, the whole of Lake George, half of Lake Albert, the whole of Lake Kioga, the whole of Lake Salisbury, part of Lake Rudolf, and the course of the Nile from its exit from Lake Victoria to Nimule, where the Egyptian Sudan commences. Total area 110,300 square miles, including 10,169 square miles of water. For administrative purposes it is divided into 5 provinces: (1) the Eastern Province, comprising the districts of Busoga, Bukedi, Teso, Lango, Karamoja, and Lolor; (2) the Rudolf Province, comprising the districts of Turkwel, Turkana, and Dabossa (this province is at present only partially administered, and the question of its transfer to the administration of Kenya Colony is under consideration); (3) the Northern Province, comprising the districts of Bunyoro, Gulu, Chua, and West Nile; (4) the Western Province, comprising the districts of Toro, Ankole, and Kigezi; and (5) Buganda Province, with islands in Lake Victoria, comprising the districts of Mengo, Masaka, Mubendi, and Entebbe. Owing to sleeping sickness the islands of Lake Victoria were entirely depopulated, and the inhabitants, numbering about 20,000, settled on the mainland in fly-free districts. After extensive clearing operations the work of repopulating these islands has been commenced.

With the exception of the Rudolf Province, the whole Protectorate is now under direct administration; but the native kings or chiefs, whose rights are in some cases regulated by treaties, are encouraged to conduct the government of their own subjects. The province of Buganda is recognised as a native kingdom under a "Kabaka," with the title of "His Highness"; the present Kabaka being H. H. Daudi Chwa, grandson of the celebrated Mutesa. He is assisted in the government by three native ministers and a Lukiko, or native assembly. In Buganda, and in Bunyoro, Ankole and Toro, also ruled over by native "Kings," purely native matters are dealt with by the various Lukikos, but in serious cases there is an appeal to higher courts. For Europeans and non-natives justice is administered by his Majesty's courts. The principal British representative is the Governor, who makes Ordinances for the administration of justice, the raising of revenue, and other purposes.

There are local and special courts of justice, and a High Court with civil and criminal jurisdiction. The appeal court consists of the judges of the High Courts of the Colony of Kenya, Uganda, Nyasaland, and Zanzibar. In 1920, there were 2,780 criminal cases tried, 116 of which were cases of serious crime. There is an armed constabulary force, under a British Commissioner of Police and British officers. There is also a volunteer reserve of Europeans.

The total population of Uganda (December, 1920) was estimated as 3,071,608, composed as follows: Natives, 3,064,735; Asiatics, 5,604; Europeans, 1,269. Among the natives approximately 785,000 belong to the intelligent, civilised Baganda, a race converted to Christianity by British and French missionaries. Educational work is undertaken by the various Missionary Societies, who receive grants towards scholarships, &c., for students and teachers. The attendance at the Mission Schools in 1920 was 55,500 boys and 24,100 girls. About 1,700,000 natives speak Bantu languages; there are a few Congo pygmies living near the Semliki river; the rest of the natives belong to the Masai, Nilotic, and Sudanese groups.

Cotton is the principal product, and is grown almost entirely by natives.

The area under cultivation in 1920 was estimated at about 207,100 acres. Other products are coffee, Para rubber, cocoa, oil-seeds. There are valuable forests.

In 1919-20 total exports, 1,828,537*l.*; in 1920 (9 months), 4,134,136*l.*; the import figures are now merged in those of the Colony of Kenya. The export trade, which is increasing, is mainly in cotton, 3,773,931*l.*, in 1920: coffee, 90,362*l.*; chillies, 10,361*l.*; oil seeds, 59,604*l.*; rubber, 23,767*l.*; ivory, 61,452*l.*; hides and skins, 93,008*l.* The trade is chiefly with Great Britain, the United States, and India.

The revenue and expenditure for 6 years were:—

Year	Revenue	Grant-in-aid	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Grant-in-aid	Expenditure
	£	£	£		£	£	£
1913-14	256,559	35,000	290,180	1918-19	351,834	—	323,691
1916-17	315,453	—	235,072	1919-20	495,548	—	465,117

The headquarters of the British Administration is at Entebbe; the native capital of Buganda is at Mengo, Kampala. Nile steamers from Khartum ply to Refaj, which is about eight days march from Nimule, the Sudan port of the Lake Albert Marine Service. A regular steamer service is maintained by the Uganda Railway Administration between Kisumu, the railway terminus, and Entebbe, Port Bell, and Jinja, the principal Uganda ports on Lake Victoria. The Busoga Railway Marine, which, with the Busoga Railway, is controlled by the Uganda Railway, deals with the traffic on Lake Kioga. There are two steamers and a large number of lighters on that waterway. An additional steamer and subsidiary craft ply on Lake Albert and the Nile between Butiaba, Nimule and the Belgian Port of Kasenye at the South of Lake Albert. The Busoga Railway of the same gauge as the Uganda Railway, 62 miles in length, runs from Jinja (on Lake Victoria) to Namasagali, a point on the Nile below the rapids. It was formally opened for business on January 1, 1912. This railway was built to deal with the cotton output in the regions round Lake Kioga, and connects that lake with Lake Victoria. There is a railway from Port Bell to Kampala, 7½ miles in length. There is a fleet of government motor vans.

In June, 1912, East Africa received a loan of 500,000*l.* from the Imperial Government. Uganda's share amounted to 125,000*l.* and was devoted to the construction of the Port Bell-Kampala railway, and to the improvement of communications in the Eastern Province, with a view to dealing more effectively with cotton transport.

Mail services by motor and relays of runners radiate from Entebbe, Kampala and Jinja. Money and postal orders and parcel post exchange systems are working in most districts. The Sudan-Egyptian telegraph and telephone system is established to Refaj. The Uganda telegraph line is extended to Mutir and to Nimule, 89 miles from Refaj. The length of telegraph line in the Protectorate is (1920) 1,233 miles, with 25 telegraph offices. Telephone exchanges are installed at Entebbe, Kampala, and Jinja.

The currency was based on the rupee (originally valued at 1*s.* 4*d.*, but in 1920 at 2*s.*), and consisted of silver rupees, with a subsidiary coinage of silver 50 and 25 cent pieces, and nickel 10 cent, 5 cent, 1 cent, and ½ cent pieces. The shilling has been introduced and standardised. Both florins (2*s.*) and rupees are current for the present. E. Africa Government currency notes of 500, 100, 50, 20, 10, 5, and one florin, are also in circulation. New cental coins were issued during 1907-08. The Savings Bank had 10,513½ deposits and 588 depositors on December 31, 1920. The National Bank of India (Limited) has branches at Entebbe, Kampala, Jinja, and the Standard Bank of South Africa has opened branches at Kampala and Jinja.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Sir R. T. Coryndon, K.C.M.G.
Chief Secretary.—E. B. Jarvis, C.M.G.

ZANZIBAR.

Situation and Area.—The Island of Zanzibar is situated in 6° S. latitude, and is separated from the mainland by a channel 22½ miles across at its narrowest part. It is the largest coralline island on the African coast, being 48 miles long by 15 broad, and having an area of 640 square miles. To the north-east, at a distance of some 30 miles, lies the Island of Pemba in 5° S. latitude. It is smaller than Zanzibar, being 40 miles long by 10 broad, and having an area of 380 square miles.

Constitution and Government.—The Sultan, Seyyid Khalifa bin Harub, K.C.M.G., K.B.E. (born 1879), succeeded on the abdication of his brother-in-law, Ali bin Hamoud bin Mahomed, December 9, 1911. The Government is administered by a High Commissioner and a British Resident, who are appointed by commissions under His Majesty's Sign Manual and Signet, and exercise their functions under the Zanzibar Order-in-Council, 1914.

Legislation consists of certain British and Indian Statutes and also of Decrees of His Highness the Sultan, which latter are binding on all persons when countersigned by the British Resident under the Order-in-Council.

There is a Council for the Protectorate, which exercises functions of an advisory and consultative nature, and consists of his Highness the Sultan as President, the British Resident as Vice-President, and three official and four unofficial members.

It was during the sixteenth century that the Arabs of the East Coast sought the assistance of the Imams of Muscat to drive out the Portuguese. On the ruins of the Portuguese power arose that of the Imams of Muscat. The allegiance to Muscat, however, was of a more or less nominal character until Seyyid Said, after having subdued his enemies on the mainland, transferred his capital to Zanzibar in 1832. On his death in 1856 the African possessions were, under an arbitration by Lord Canning (then Governor-General of India), declared independent of the parent state. In 1890 the supremacy of the British interests in the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba was recognised by France and Germany, and they were declared a British Protectorate in accordance with conventions by which Great Britain waived all claims to Madagascar in favour of France and ceded Heligoland to Germany. In the same year the mainland possessions which extended over the coast of East Africa. Warsheikh in 3° N. latitude to Tunghi Bay 10° 42' S. latitude, were ceded to Italy, Great Britain, and Germany, respectively, Great Britain and Italy paying rent for the territories under their protection, while Germany acquired the Sultan's rights by the payment of a sum of 200,000*l.* At a later date Italy also acquired similar rights by payment of a sum of 144,000*l.* In 1891, a regular Government was formed for Zanzibar with a British representative as first minister. In 1906 the Imperial Government assumed more direct control over the Protectorate and reorganised the Government. On July 1, 1913, the control of the Protectorate was transferred from the Foreign Office to the Colonial Office, legal effect being given to the change in the following year. In July, 1920, the Sultan's coast dominions were named 'Kenya Protectorate.'

Population, Religion, Education, &c.—The population of Zanzibar and Pemba, according to the Census of 1910, was 196,733. Zanzibar, 113,624; Pemba, 83,109. The registered birth rate in 1920 was 27 per 1,000 for Zanzibar and 23 for Pemba; and the death rate 27 and 17 respectively. The Arabs, about 10,000, are the principal landlords and employers of labour. The black population is mostly Swahili, but there are representatives of nearly every African tribe. There are about 270 Europeans, most of whom are English, and about 12,800 British Indian subjects, through whose hands almost the whole trade of East Africa passes. Zanzibar town has a population of 35,000.

Most of the natives are Mohammedans (Sunnis of the Shafi school); the Sultan and relatives are of the Ibadhi sect. There are 3 Christian Missions: the Universities Mission to Central Africa (Church of England), the Catholic Mission (Roman Catholic), and the Friends' Industrial Mission.

There are Government schools mainly for Moslems, with a course of instruction extending over seven years. Education is voluntary and free. There are a number of mission schools, Indian schools supported by different communities for the children of their sects, private schools and a non-sectarian school. The total number of children attending these schools in 1920 was 2,241.

There are two Government hospitals, one for Europeans and one for Government subordinate employees and poor natives, in Zanzibar, and one in Pemba.

Justice.—For the administration of justice in Zanzibar, one Court, his Britannic Majesty's, consisting of a Judge and one or more Assistant Judges, deals with all actions to which a British, or British protected, person or the subject of a foreign Power is a party, and others, the Sultan's Local Courts, deal with cases in which the subjects of the Sultan are alone concerned. The total number of convictions in 1920 was 2,436 (1,682 in 1919).

Appeal lies to H.M.'s Court of Appeal for Eastern Africa, many of the cases tried being cases affecting British Indians, in whose hands is a large proportion of the trade of Zanzibar. The British Court has also certain Admiralty jurisdiction by virtue of the Zanzibar Order in Council, 1914.

The Sultan's Courts, under the general superintendence of H.M. Judge, administer justice in the town of Zanzibar by two European Magistrates assisted by Arab Kathis. In Pemba, and the country districts, criminal or civil cases are tried by a Magistrate or a District Commissioner, or Assistant District Commissioner. The final appeal, in all cases, lies to the British Judge sitting as Sultan's Judge.

Finance.—The revenue and expenditure for 6 years were as follows:—

Besides Customs, the chief sources of revenue in 1920 were: interest on investments, 83,180*l.*; railway and electricity department, 18,855*l.*; agricultural department, 17,078% ; court fees, fines, etc., 54,635% ; rent, British East Africa, 11,000% ; shipping, 13,840% ; rent of Government property, land and houses, 10,030% . The chief heads of expenditure in 1920 were : public works department, 69,384% ; shipping, 38,187% ; police and prisons, 17,195% ; railway and electricity department, 22,002% ; judicial department, 12,231% ; agricultural department, 24,611% ; district offices, 15,362% ; medical, 25,968% ; pensions, 15,000% .

Public debt at end of 1920, 100,000% ; sinking fund, 63,913% .

Production and Industry.—The clove industry is by far the most important in the Protectorate, the islands of Zanzibar and Pemba yielding the bulk of the world's supply. It is estimated that there are in both islands about 48,000 acres under cloves and about 4½ million trees in bearing, the average output of recent years being 14 million lbs. The exports in 1920 were 77,000 cwts. The large plantations are chiefly owned by Arabs, but many natives possess small holdings. The coconut industry ranks next in importance after cloves, the conditions in both islands being favourable to the growth of the tree and its nut-bearing properties. It is estimated that there are about 55,000 acres under cultivation and 2½ million trees in both islands. The export of copra, which is steadily increasing, amounted in 1920 to 12,654 tons. Much is produced by the small grower or trader, neither of whom possesses proper drying facilities, with a result that the quality of the product compares unfavourably with that of Cochin and Ceylon.

The manufactures are pottery, coir fibre and rope, soap, oil (coconut and simsim), jewellery, and mats. There are no mines in the Protectorate.

Commerce.—The total imports, exports, and shipping for 6 years, were :—

Shipping and Communications, &c.—The port of Zanzibar is one of the finest in Africa and was for long a main centre of commerce between India, Arabia, and the mainland. Of late years, however, the importance of Zanzibar as a port of transhipment and distributing centre has largely decreased owing to the development of the mainland, to the opening up of the coast ports to direct steamship service with Europe, and to the transfer to Aden of the seat of trade with the Benadir Coast. Recent figures, nevertheless, tend to indicate that the Island will continue by reason of its geographical position to retain control of the local traffic.

The British India Steam Navigation Company and the Union Castle Steamship Company maintain monthly services between London-Zanzibar-Durban and Southampton-Zanzibar-Durban respectively, the Clan-Ellerman-Harrison Line between Glasgow-Liverpool-Zanzibar-Beira (cargo only), the Compagnie des Messageries Maritimes between Marseilles-Zanzibar-

Madagascar, the Italian Royal Mail Service (fortnightly) between Genoa-Zanzibar-Durban, and the Portuguese Government (periodical services) between Lisbon and their East and West African Colonies, via Suez Canal and the Cape, and there is also the Scandinavia East Africa Line. The British India Steam Navigation Company also maintain a service twice a month between Bombay-Zanzibar-Durban, and there are local services between Zanzibar-Mombasa-Aden and the Benadir Coast. The Government possesses two steamers which maintain regular weekly connection with Pemba, as well as making calls at Mombasa, Tanga, Dar es-Salaam, and Mafia.

Ocean-going shipping dealt with in 1920, 926,753 tons (172 vessels); coastwise, 100,810 tons (163 vessels); dhows, 91,243 tons entered and 90,990 tons cleared.

There is cable communication with Europe either via Aden or via Durban.

There are 75 miles of roads throughout the Island of Zanzibar suitable for motor traffic. A light railway runs north from the town to Bububu seven miles distant.

The Government maintains wireless stations in Zanzibar and Pemba, and a telephone system in the town of Zanzibar, which is connected with the District and Agricultural stations in the country. There are seven post-offices in the two islands. Total number of articles dealt with at the post office in 1920 was 637,729 (letters, 480,818); in 1919, 565,648 (324,792 letters). The Post Office Savings Bank was started in 1907. At the end of 1920 there were 1,135 depositors, with 7,510*l.* on deposit.

The British Indian rupee is universally current; currency notes of 5 to 500 rupees are in circulation. The value of notes in circulation on December 31, 1920, was 35,57,490 rupees. Seyyidieli copper pice are legal tender up to 64 pice (= one rupee). A frasia (or frasila) of cloves is equivalent to 35*lbs.* av.

MAURITIUS.

Constitution and Government.

Mauritius, acquired by conquest in 1810, was formally ceded to Great Britain by the Treaty of Paris of 1814. Under Letters Patent of 1885, 1901, 1904, and 1912, partially representative institutions have been established. The government of the Colony, with its dependencies, Rodrigues, Diégo Garcia, &c., is vested in a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, consisting of the officer in command of His Majesty's troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Procureur-General, the Receiver-General, and of such other persons holding office in the service of the Government of the Colony as the Governor, through instructions from the Secretary of State, may from time to time appoint. There is also a Council of Government, consisting of the Governor and twenty-seven members, ten being elected under a moderate franchise, eight ex-officio, and nine nominated by the Governor. The official councillors comprise the four Executive members, the Collector of Customs, the Protector of Immigrants, the Director of Public Works and Surveys, and the Director of the Medical and Health Department.

Governor of Mauritius.—Sir H. Hesketh Bell, K.C.M.G.; salary, Rs. 70,000.

Area, Population, &c.

Mauritius, in the Indian Ocean, 500 miles east of Madagascar, has an area of about 720 square miles. According to the census of 1911, the population of the island, including Dependencies (6,690), Military (1,602), was 377,083, consisting of general population, 115,146, Indian population, 258,251, Chinese population, 3,686.

Population, 1921 Census, 376,108. Birth-rate (exclusive of Indians) in 1920, 34·5, Indian birth-rate, 35·3 per thousand; death-rate (exclusive of Indians) in 1920, 32·8, Indian death-rate, 32·1 per thousand. Immigrants in 1920 (Indian), nil; emigrants, 36. Population of Port Louis, the capital, 39,300 (1920) with its suburbs.

In 1911 there were 122,424 Roman Catholics, 6,946 Protestants. State aid is granted to both Churches, amounting in 1919–20 to Rs. 152,636; the Indians are mostly Hindus.

The greater part of Port Louis has in recent years passed from European to Indian or Chinese hands.

Primary education is gratuitous but not compulsory. At the end of 1920 there were 56 Government and 91 aided schools. Average attendance at Government schools, 1920, 6,706 (10,879 on roll); at State-aided schools, 9,213 (14,549 on roll, of whom more than three-fourths were in Roman Catholic schools). For secondary education there is a Royal College (with many scholarships and exhibitions) with (1920) 324 pupils, and 13 aided secondary schools for boys and girls, 1920. The total Government expenditure in 1919–20 on education was Rs. 975,836.

The total number of convictions at the inferior courts in 1920 was 18,842, and at the Supreme Court 15.

NYASALAND PROTECTORATE (BRITISH).

The Nyasaland (until 1907 British Central Africa) Protectorate, constituted on May 14, 1891, lies along the southern and western shores of Lake Nyasa, and extends towards the Zambezi. It is administered under the Colonial Office by the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, assisted by an Executive and a Legislative Council, both consisting of nominated members, and the Governor having the right of veto (Order in Council of September 4, 1907). The Laws consist of local Ordinances duly enacted, with such British Acts as are of general application.

Area, 39,573 square miles, divided into eighteen districts, each administered by a Resident and his assistants. Population, 1921, 1,427 Europeans (mostly in the Shire Highlands), 561 Asiatics, and 1,199,531 natives. The chief settlement is Blantyre, in the Shire Highlands; others are Zomba (the seat of Government), Port Herald, Mlanje, Limbe; on Lake Nyasa are Fort Johnston, Kota-Kota, Bandawe, Chintechi, Nkata, Likoma, and Karonga. Good roads are being made in all directions, and life and property are safe. There are no Government schools, native education being undertaken by various missionary societies. Eleven Christian missions are at work; in 1919-20 there were 2,030 schools, with about 120 European teachers, 117,638 pupils and 70,198 in average attendance. Ten of the missions divide 1,000£. Government aid for their schools.

Justice is administered in the High Court, which has jurisdiction in civil and criminal matters, and also as a Court of Admiralty. Subordinate courts are held by magistrates and assistant magistrates in the various districts. Appeals from decisions of the High Court are heard in H.B.M's. Court of Appeal for Eastern Africa, sitting at Mombassa. In 1919-20, 3,401 offences were reported, 24 being cases of serious crime.

Within the Shire province coffee is cultivated; in 1916-17, 131,390 lbs.; in 1917-18, 2,774 lbs.; in 1918-19, 188,865 lbs.; in 1920, 64,362 lbs. were exported. Tobacco exported, after local demands were supplied, in 1916-17, 4,304,124 lbs.; in 1917-18, 2,025,372 lbs.; in 1918-19, 5,805,396 lbs.; and in 1920, 4,963,130 lbs. The area under tobacco in 1920 was 14,218 acres. Cotton cultivation is very promising. Crop in 1915-16, 3,065,248 lbs.; in 1916-17, 3,462,500 lbs.; in 1917-18, 1,779,200 lbs.; in 1918-19, 2,670,834 lbs.; and in 1920, 1,149,904 lbs. Tea-growing is tried on estates aggregating about 4,290 acres; in 1916-17, 420,685 lbs.; in 1917-18, 155,338 lbs.; in 1918-19, 700,455 lbs.; and in 1920, 496,836 lbs. were exported. Cattle in the Protectorate (1920), 88,696; sheep, 42,339; goats, 137,545; pigs, 18,769; horses, mules, and asses, 207, mostly belonging to the natives.

The trade ports are Port Herald (Lower Shire), Kota-Kota, Karonga, and Fort Johnston (Lake Nyasa).

There are military, volunteer reserve, and civil police forces. A European police force has been created. There is a Marine Transport Department on the Upper Shiré River and on Lake Nyasa, consisting of three vessels. For ordinary traffic there are small steamers, besides small sailing vessels.

There is communication with the coast at Chinde by river steamers. Chinde is situated on the only navigable mouth of the Zambezi, and the Portuguese Government has granted a small piece of land, called the 'British Concession,' where goods in transit for British Central Africa are free of customs duty, and in addition a large area for residential purposes styled 'the Extra Concession.'

There are 26 post offices through which, in 1919-20, 2,284,568 postal packets passed. A postal savings bank was opened on July 1, 1911. Depositors at end of 1920, 409; deposits, 5,981*l.* A railway, of 3 ft. 6 in. gauge, from Chindio on the Zambezi in Portuguese East Africa to Blantyre has been constructed (174 miles). A railway from Chindio to the Port of Beira in Portuguese East Africa is under construction and is expected to be opened for traffic early in 1922. It is under contemplation to extend the railway system northwards to Lake Nyasa. There is a telegraph line through the Protectorate to Tanganyika and Ujiji connecting with Cape Town, with a branch to Fort Jameson. At Zomba there is a water-power electric light installation which provides for the whole settlement.

At Blantyre and Zomba there are branches of the Standard Bank of South Africa and of the National Bank of South Africa. The currency consists of British coin, gold, silver, and bronze. There is no note circulation.

³ Including specie, but excluding government stores.

The revenue from customs in 1920 was 4,425*l.*

Public debt, nil. But the Colony's liabilities at December 31, 1920, exceeded the assets by 422*l.*

The principal export in 1920 was fibre and tow, 38,795*l.* for 838 tons.

Savings-bank deposits on December 31, 1920, 11,073*l.*, belonging to 141 depositors.

Fruit trees, Norfolk pines, eucalyptus, and cedars flourish in St. Helena. Cattle do well, but there is no outside market for the meat. The flax (phormium) industry is now established, and a Government mill commenced operations in 1908. There are three private mills. At the four mills 183 males and 59 females were employed at the end of 1918. The area of land under flax is estimated at 1,000 acres (1918). A lace-making industry has been started. The number of vessels that called at the Island in 1920 was 37 (32 British).

The Post Office traffic from St. Helena in 1920, 99 bags of mails, 519 parcels, 2,122 registered articles. The Eastern Telegraph Company's cable connects St. Helena with Cape Town and with St. Vincent. There are telephone lines, with 40 miles of wire.

St. Helena is an Admiralty coaling station. About two of the Cape of Good Hope Squadron visit St. Helena every year.

Tristan da Cunha, a small group of islands in the Atlantic, half-way between the Cape and S. America, in 37° 6' S. lat. 12° 1' W. long. Besides Tristan da Cunha and Gough's Island, there are Inaccessible and Nightingale Islands, the former two and the latter one mile long, and a number of rocks. The population consists mainly of the families of shipwrecked sailors and wives from St. Helena, and numbered 105 at the end of 1916. There is no form of government. Education is almost totally neglected. Potatoes grow well, but grain crops are destroyed by rats. Apple and peach trees are productive. Bullocks, sheep, and geese are reared. Fish are plentiful.

SEYCHELLES.

Seychelles and its Dependencies consist of 90 islands and islets with a total estimated area of 156 square miles. The principal island is Mahé (55½ square miles), smaller islands of the group being Praslin, Silhouette, La Digue, Curieuse, and Félicité. Among dependent islands are the Amirantes, Alphonse Island, Bijoutier Island, St. François, St. Pierre, the Cosmoledo Group, Astove Island, Assumption Island, the Aldabra Islands, Providence Island, Coetivy, Farquhar Islands, and Flat Island. The Seychelles were formerly administered from Mauritius, but in 1888 the office of Administrator was created, an Executive Council of 2 ex-officio members and 1 nominated member was appointed and a Legislative Council of 3 official and 3 unofficial members, the Administrator being president of both Councils and having an original and casting vote in the Legislative Council. In 1897 the Administrator was given full powers as Governor, and in November, 1903, he was raised to the rank of Governor.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—His Excellency

The population at December 31, 1920, was estimated to be 24,523; census of April 24, 1921, 24,811 (12,282 males and 12,529 females). The death-rate for 1920 was 14·72; the birth-rate 29·81; marriages, 109. Number of births, 735; deaths, 363. The capital is Victoria, which has a good harbour and is a coaling station. There were in 1920, 20 grant-in-aid schools. In addition, there are a Government free school, a Catholic secondary school for boys, and one for girls. Total number of children attending school in 1920 was 2,282; average attendance, 60%. In 1920, 273 persons were convicted in the Supreme Court. The police force numbered 88 of all ranks (1920).

Revenue, expenditure and debt for 6 years:—

Year.	Revenue.	Expenditure.	Debt.
1913 (pre-war)	37,144	37,245	13,269
1916	27,998	30,350	11,348
1917	31,103	29,033	10,692
1918	27,256	29,416	9,978
1919	38,243	41,796	9,265
1920	45,240	41,061	11,865

The surplus funds invested on December 31, 1920, amounted to 7,208*l*.

Chief items of revenue, 1920 : Customs, 19,879*l*. ; Crown lands, 2,263*l*. ; licences, excise, and internal revenue, 3,081*l*. ; taxes, 7,516*l*.

Chief products, coconuts (over 23,000 acres under cultivation : 23,000,000 coconuts produced in 1920) and vanilla (3 tons exported in 1920) ; on some islands mangrove-bark is collected and phosphate deposits are worked. A good deal of attention is being given to the distillation of oil from the leaves of the cinnamon tree, which grows profusely in the island. Live-stock at end of 1920 : Cattle, 1,000 ; goats, 500 ; sheep, 200 ; horses, 200. Fishing is actively pursued, chiefly for local supply, but will probably be extended.

Shipping entered and cleared (1920), 172,059 tons, mainly British, exclusive of coasters trading between Mahé and the dependencies. The British India steamers call once a month from Bombay on their way to Mombassa, and every two months on their way from Mombassa to Bombay. There is fairly regular communication between the islands.

There is a good road system in Mahé, and further road-making is in progress in Mahé and in Praslin and La Digue. In 1920 the post office despatched and received 125,000 letters and post cards, 109,500 newspapers, &c., and 4,394 parcels. There is telegraphic communication with Mauritius and Europe, but no internal telegraph service.

On December 31, 1920, the Savings Bank deposits amounted to 5,496*l*. to the credit of 398 depositors.

Current money in the islands consists of rupees and notes.

SOMALILAND PROTECTORATE.

The Somali Coast stretches from Lahadu, west of Zeyla, to Bandar Ziyada 49° E. long. After 1884, when Egyptian control ceased, the territory was administered by the Government of India, but was taken over by the Foreign Office on October 1, 1898, and was transferred to the Colonial Office on April 1, 1905.

By an arrangement with Italy in 1894 the limits of the British Protectorate were defined; but in 1897, by an arrangement with Abyssinia, a fresh boundary as required by that country was determined, and about 15,000 square miles were ceded to Abyssinia. An agreement for the regulation of Anglo-Italian relations in Somaliland was concluded on March 19, 1907. The area is about 68,000 square miles; population about 300,000—Mohammedan, and entirely nomadic, except on the coast, where considerable towns have sprung up during the British occupation.

The chief town, Berbera, had, at the 1911 census, 30,000 inhabitants in the trading season; Zeyla, 7,000; and Bálhar, 7,300. There are 3 Government schools: average attendance, 1920, 123. Police, 510 officers and men on March 31, 1920. Convictions in 1920, 758. The revenue in 1920-21 was 58,991*l.* (81,870*l.* in 1919-20), mainly from customs duties (48,284*l.* in 1920-21); the expenditure, 208,400*l.* (322,989*l.* in 1919-20). The grant in aid for 1920-21, 210,000*l.* (199,000*l.* in 1919-20). Imports (1920), Zeyla, Berbera, and Bálhar, 356,838*l.* (503,213*l.* in 1919-20), exports (1920), 231,011*l.* (183,853*l.* in 1919-20). Bullion and specie are excluded. The imports are chiefly rice (72,552 cwt.), textiles, dates (45,894 cwt.), sugar (8,927 cwt.), and specie; the exports, skins and hides, gum and resins, ghee, cattle and sheep, and specie. Tonnage entered in 1920, 58,243; cleared, 58,758. The rupee is the basis of the currency, and is of the same value as in India. Bank of England and Government of India notes are also in circulation. Transport is by camels; there are no porters. Besides ordinary telegraphs there are wireless telegraph stations at Berbera, Burao, Hargeisa, and Las Khorai. A wireless station in Aden is also maintained from Protectorate funds.

The Protectorate forces now comprise a Camel Corps of 400, including 1 Indian Company, and 500 Police.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—His Excellency Sir G. F. Archer, K.C.M.G. Appointed May, 1914.

SOUTH AFRICA.

BASUTOLAND.

Basutoland, an elevated but rugged plateau, forms an irregular parallelogram on the north-east of the Cape of Good Hope Province. The provinces of the Orange Free State, Natal, and the Cape of Good Hope form its boundaries. Area, 11,716 square miles. The territory, which is well watered and has a fine climate, is stated to be the best grain-producing country in South Africa, and the abundant grass enables the Basutos to rear large herds of cattle.

Basutoland has been directly under the authority of the Crown since 1884. The Paramount Chief is Griffith, brother of Letsie, the late chief. Griffith was installed on April 11, 1913. The territory is governed by a Resident Commissioner under the direction of the High Commissioner for South Africa, the latter possessing the legislative authority, which is exercised by proclamation. The country is divided into seven districts, namely: Maseru, Leribe, Mohale's Hoek, Berea, Mafeteng, Quthing, and Qacha's Nek. Each of the districts is subdivided into wards, mostly presided over by hereditary chiefs allied to the Moshesh family.

In 1891 the population consisted of 578 Europeans and 218,324 natives. The census of 1911 gave a total of 403,111 natives and 1,396 Europeans; and that of 1921 (approximately) 497,696 natives, 1,615 Europeans, 155 Indians, and 1,078 coloured. European settlement is in general prohibited, and is more or less limited to the few engaged in trade, government, and missionary work. Maseru, the capital and largest town, has a population of 2,319 natives and about 400 Europeans.

The productions are wool, wheat, mealies, and Kaffir corn. There are indications of iron and copper, and coal has been found and is used in some parts. Stock, &c. (1911): 433,000 cattle, 86,600 horses, 22,800 ploughs, 1,722 waggons.

There were over 400 native elementary schools with over 32,500 pupils at the end of December, 1920; expenditure in connection with education amounted during the year ended March 31, 1920, to 26,745*l*. There are some Normal and Industrial schools (aided). There is also a large and well-fitted Government native industrial school at Maseru. There are 6 white schools with 144 pupils.

The police force numbered, 1920, 14 white officers and 8 European constables and 288 men (natives).

The imports consist chiefly of blankets, ploughs, clothing, iron and tin ware, and groceries, and the exports of stock, grain and wool. Basutoland is in the South African Customs Union. The total trade in recent years was: Imports, 1917, 901,332*l*.; 1918, 882,339*l*.; 1919, 1,137,037*l*.; 1920, 1,219,388*l*. Exports: 1917, 812,031*l*.; 1918, 1,007,612*l*.; 1919, 1,380,119*l*.; 1920, 937,038*l*.

The currency is exclusively British. The revenue arises mainly from the Post Office, native tax, licences, and customs rebate from neighbouring territories. Under the new Native Tax Law every adult male native pays 1*l*. 5*s*. per annum, and if he has more than one wife by native custom he pays 1*l*. 5*s*. per annum for his wives up to a maximum of 3*l*. 15*s*. An Income Tax has been recently enacted on the lines of that existing in the Union of South Africa, but collections have not yet commenced.

There are no navigable waterways, the rivers being low in winter and generally flooded in summer. The roads in the country are now in fair condition for any kind of transport.

There are telegraph offices at the various magistracies in connection with the systems of the Cape Province and Orange Free State.

A railway built by the C.S.A.R., 16 miles, connects Maseru with the Bloemfontein-Natal line at Marseilles Station.

BECHUANALAND PROTECTORATE.

The Bechuanaland Protectorate comprises the territory lying between the Molopo River on the south and the Zambezi on the north, and extending from the Transvaal Province and Matabeleland on the east to South-West Africa. Area is about 275,000 square miles; population, according to the census of 1921, 152,983, of whom 1,743 were Europeans. The most important tribes are the Bamangwato (35,000), under the chief Khama, whose capital is Serowe (population 17,000) 40 miles west of the railway line at Palapye Road; the Bakhatla (11,000) under Lenchwe; the Bakwena (13,000) under Sebele II.; the Bangwaketse (18,000) under Tshosa, acting paramount chief during minority of Bathoesh, a boy of 13 years of age, the eldest son of the late chief Gaseitsiwe; the Batawana under Mathibe; and the Bamaletse (4,500) under Seboko Mokgosi, who assumed the Chieftainship on July 9, 1917. In 1885, the territory was declared to be within the British sphere; in 1889 it was included in the sphere of the British South Africa Company, but was never administered by the company; in 1890 a Resident Commissioner was appointed, and in 1895, on the annexation of the Crown Colony of British Bechuanaland to the Cape of Good Hope, new arrangements were made for the administration of the Protectorate, and special agreements were made in view of the extension of the railway northwards from Mafeking. Each of the chiefs rules his own people as formerly, under the protection of the King, who is represented by a Resident Commissioner, acting under the High Commissioner.

208 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—BECHUANALAND PROTECTORATE

The headquarters of the Administration are in Mafeking, in the Cape Province, where there is a reserve for Imperial purposes, with ample buildings. There are assistant commissioners for the southern and northern districts of the Protectorate; the former is also Government Secretary, residing at Mafeking, and the latter at Francistown. There is a tax of 1*l.* on each hut and 3*s.* for a Native Fund established by virtue of Proclamation No. 47 of 1919, for education, &c. Licences for the sale of spirits are granted only at certain railway stations.

Cattle-rearing, and agriculture to a limited extent (production of maize and Kaffir corn), are the chief industries, but the country is more a pastoral than an agricultural one, crops depending entirely upon the rainfall. Cattle numbered on May 7, 1911, 323,900 head, sheep and goats, 358,000. During the year 1920-21, 32,450 head of cattle were exported. The police force consists of 58 Europeans and 116 Basutos, and 86 local natives as messengers. Education is provided (there were 7 European, 1 coloured, and 59 native schools, 1920-21), with Government assistance (2,156*l.* being granted in 1919-20), in the London Missionary Society, Church of England, Dutch Reformed Church, and other schools. There are schools for Europeans, subsidised by the Government, at Francistown, Serowe and Magalapye, and at Lobatsi, Hildavale, Pitsani, and Molopolole. Total Government expenditure on education, 1920-21, 2,317*l.*

Gold and silver to the total value of 20,175*l.* were mined in 1920-21.

Revenue and expenditure for six years:—

There is no public debt. Excess of assets over liabilities on April 1, 1921, 3,399*l.*

The Protectorate was within the South African Customs Union, and when the Union of South Africa was completed, an agreement was made with the Union Government under which duty on all dutiable articles imported into the Protectorate is collected by the Union Customs Department and paid into the Union Treasury, a lump sum representing a certain portion of the annual Customs Revenue of the Union being paid over to the Protectorate. Under this arrangement figures relating to imports and exports are not available.

The telegraph from the Cape of Good Hope to Rhodesia passes through the Protectorate and is owned by the British South Africa Company. Similarly the railway extending northwards from the Cape of Good Hope traverses the Protectorate. It is the property of the Rhodesia Railways, Limited. In the Protectorate are 15 post offices; receipts, in 1920-21, 9,620*l.*; expenditure, 4,259*l.* Postal business, 1919-20, 337,765 letters, 5,980 postcards, 4,472 newspapers, 2,184 book packets, samples, and circulars, and 1,196 parcels.

The currency is British money. There is no bank in the Protectorate.

Resident Commissioner.—J. C. Macgregor, C.M.G.

Government Secretary.—J. Ellenberger.

RHODESIA.

Under the title of Rhodesia is included the whole of the region extending from the Transvaal Province northwards to the borders of the Congo State and the late German East Africa (now Tanganyika Territory), bounded on the east by Portuguese East Africa, Nyasaland, and the Tanganyika Territory, and on the west by the Congo State, Portuguese West Africa, and Bechuanaland. The whole territory is under the administration of the British South Africa Company, which holds a Royal Charter dated October 29, 1889. The region south of the Zambezi (Matabeleland and Mashonaland) is called Southern Rhodesia; that north of the Zambezi is known as Northern Rhodesia.

The administrative system of the Company in Southern Rhodesia is prescribed by Orders in Council, the last dated 1916. To assist the Company's Administrator there is an Executive Council consisting of not less than three members appointed for three years by the Company with the approval of the Secretary of State. There is also a Legislative Council, which consists of the Administrator (president), six nominees of the Company approved by the Secretary of State, and twelve members elected by the registered voters. Women have the vote. The duration of each Legislative Council is three years, unless it be sooner dissolved. Ordinances passed by the Legislative Council when assented to by the High Commissioner take effect immediately, but within a year may be disallowed by the Secretary of State. There is a Resident Commissioner appointed by the Secretary of State, with a seat on both the Executive and Legislative Councils, but without a vote. For the administration of justice there is a High Court with civil and criminal jurisdiction. In the districts there are Magistrates' Courts. There is a chief Native Commissioner, with subordinate Superintendents of Divisions, Native Commissioners and Assistant Native Commissioners, and, except with respect to arms, ammunition, and liquor, natives and Europeans are under the same conditions.

The grant of responsible government to Southern Rhodesia, or, as an alternative, incorporation into the Union of South Africa, is under discussion (January, 1922).

Land has been set apart for tribal settlements ("native reserves"), the mineral rights being reserved to the Company. It has been decided that the ownership of the unalienated land vests in the Crown, but the Company, so long as it is responsible for the government of the country, may dispose of such land in the due course of administration.

Southern Rhodesia has an area of 149,000 square miles. According to the census taken in May, 1921, the European population was about 33,500. The native population of Southern Rhodesia is estimated (1921) at about 770,000. There are also approximately 3,000 Asiatics and other coloured persons. The chief towns are Salisbury (the capital of Southern Rhodesia), Bulawayo, Victoria, Umtali, Gwelo, Enkeldoorn, Melsetter, Hartley, Selukwe, Gwanda, and Gatooma.

The schools in Southern Rhodesia for Europeans numbered, at the end of 1920, 77 public and 4 aided. The pupils in 1920 numbered 5,056, and the total expenditure on education was 171,831*l*. There were also 28 private schools, with 93 pupils in 1920. In addition there were 696 native schools, the number of pupils enrolled being 39,381.

The country is rich in gold reefs and other minerals, and is well adapted for agriculture and European settlers. Live stock (1920): cattle, 1,500,000; sheep, 372,059; goats, 762,132. Acreage under crops (1920): European, 211,094; native, 1,223,915. Tobacco acreage (1920): 7,504; yield, 2,926,560 lbs. estimated. Large fruit orchards have been planted, and nearly all fruit trees thrive, the cultivation of oranges and lemons constituting a rapidly expanding industry. Regular shipments of oranges are now being made to the United Kingdom, and have realised satisfactory prices. In March 1920 the British South Africa Company completed the construction of an important dam across the Mazoe River, the storage capacity of which, in a normal season, is approximately 4,000 million gallons, equivalent to 15,000 acre feet, or sufficient to supply 6,000 acres with 2½ feet of water per acre per annum. An adequate supply of water will be assured for the irrigation of the Company's orange groves on the Mazoe Estate, and negotiations are at present taking place with regard to the sale of surplus water to other landowners in the Mazoe Valley. The sale of dairy produce is a profitable industry in the neighbourhood of the towns. Creameries, a bacon factory, an oil-expressing plant, and a meat-canning factory have been successfully established.

A Land Bank makes loans to settlers on easy terms of repayment, for the purpose of improving and developing their agricultural holdings, and numerous companies have been formed with the purpose of developing land and minerals.

The total output of gold from 1890 to December 31, 1921, is valued at 51,401,615*l*. The gold output (1919) was 593,222 oz., valued at 2,499,498*l*. (1920), 552,495 oz., 3,056,549*l*. The output of other minerals in 1920 was: silver, 158,982 oz., valued at 58,178*l*; copper, 3,108 tons, valued at 333,111*l*; chrome ore, 60,269 tons, valued at 245,378*l*; coal raised, 587,492 tons, value 252,220*l*; asbestos, 18,823 tons, valued at 459,572*l*; mica, 97 tons, valued at 25,153*l*; arsenic, 437 tons, valued at 16,510*l*. Small amounts of wolframite, scheelite, and antimony, together with 243 carats of diamonds, were also produced. The total mineral output for 1920 was valued at 4,450,988*l*.

The total value of imports into Southern Rhodesia in 1920 was 5,262,318*l*, the chief being: living animals, 103,135*l*; food and drink, 865,613*l*; textile goods, wearing apparel, boots, etc., 1,420,239*l*; machinery, 227,672*l*; railway and tramway materials, 190,568*l*. The value of the exports of South African produce, including gold, was 5,158,890*l*, the chief being: asbestos, 355,728*l*; maize, 415,130*l*; blister copper, 425,211*l*; animals, 312,599*l*; hides and skins, 187,592*l*; tobacco, 152,495*l*. Imports of merchandise from the United Kingdom (1920), 2,491,272*l*.

The Rhodesian Railway system begins at Vryburg in the Cape Colony, and extends northwards to the Congo State border, a through communication from Cape Town to the Congo border (2,149 miles), and north-east from Bulawayo to Salisbury, and thence to the port of Beira on the Indian Ocean. There are also several branch lines in Southern Rhodesia. The total mileage of the Rhodesian Railway Systems (including the Beira Railway) at the end of 1920 was 2,468.

On December 31, 1920, there were in Southern Rhodesia 103 post offices, 35 of which are money order and savings bank offices. During the year ended December 31, 1920, 7,895,290 letters and post-cards were despatched. The total of newspapers, books, and parcels despatched was 2,353,964, and registered articles 121,316. The postal revenue for the year was 67,380*l.*, and the expenditure, 54,579*l.* Telegraphic revenue, 68,665*l.*, expenditure, 63,617*l.*

On January 1, 1905, a Post Office Savings Bank was established, and on December 31, 1920, the deposits amounted to 115,526*l.*

On December 31, 1920, the mileage of the Rhodesia telegraph system was 8,175. There were 112 telegraph offices open. In Southern Rhodesia during the year 1920, 803,451 telegrams were received and despatched. There is an extensive telephone system in operation.

Administrative revenue of Southern Rhodesia, 1918-19, 961,671*l.* (mainly from customs and excise, 298,092*l.*; native tax, 238,367*l.*; posts and telegraphs, 100,505*l.*; stamps and licences, 69,527*l.*; income tax and excess profits duty, 60,278*l.*); administrative expenditure, 858,063*l.*; (mainly administration, 224,954*l.*; defence, 196,082*l.*; posts and telegraphs, 77,861*l.*; education, 110,892*l.*; hospitals, 77,595*l.*; agriculture and veterinary, 58,643*l.*). Administrative revenue, 1919-20, 1,031,282*l.*; expenditure, 1,061,905*l.*

Northern Rhodesia.—By an Order in Council, dated May 4, 1911, the two provinces of North-Eastern and North-Western Rhodesia were amalgamated under the title of Northern Rhodesia, the amalgamation taking effect as from August 17, 1911. The limits of the territory, as defined by the Order in Council, are 'the parts of Africa bounded by Southern Rhodesia, German South-west Africa (now South-west Africa), Portuguese West Africa, the Congo Free State, German East Africa (now Tanganyika Territory), Nyasaland, and Portuguese East Africa.'

Northern Rhodesia has an area of about 291,000 square miles, and consists for the most part of high plateau country, covered with thin forest. Much of the country is suitable for farming and contains large areas carrying good arable and grazing land. The permanent European population in 1920 was 3,500. The native population is estimated at about 928,000. The territory is divided into ten magisterial districts. The administrative headquarters are at Livingstone, on the Zambezi. The most important centres are Fort Jameson, Fife, Abercorn, Fort Rosebery, Broken Hill, Ndola, and Lealui. The police force, called the Northern Rhodesia Police, is composed of natives, with European officers and non-commissioned officers.

Agricultural products are maize, cotton, tobacco, wheat, and European fruits. Rubber is also produced. There is plenty of timber of various kinds. There are gold, copper, zinc, and lead mines in the territory; and coal has been discovered. Lead mined in 1920, 16,354 tons, 335,000*l.* Total lead produced to 31st December, 1920, 47,509 tons, 824,859*l.*

The trunk line of the Rhodesian railway system traverses Northern Rhodesia from Livingstone to the Congo border. The Zambezi, Kafue, Chambesi, and other rivers of Northern Rhodesia are navigable for a considerable portion of their extent.

In Northern Rhodesia there are 39 post offices, 12' being money order offices. There is a telegraph line alongside the railway from Livingstone to the Congo border. The African Transcontinental telegraph system extends to Abercorn, Fife, and Fort Jameson.

The Northern Rhodesia Order in Council (May 4, 1911), provides for the appointment of an Imperial officer, styled the Resident Commissioner, who may be the officer holding the same position in Southern Rhodesia, and of an Administrator appointed by the British South Africa Company with the approval of the Secretary of State. The Administrator has an Advisory Council of five members, chosen by the white settlers, for consultative purposes.

Revenue, 1918-19, 152,099*l.* (native tax, 83,485*l.*; customs, 36,421*l.*; posts and telegraphs, 9,679*l.*; stamps and licences, 7,571*l.*; medical, 6,547*l.*; fines and fees, 2,764*l.*); expenditure, 199,170*l.* Revenue, 1919-20, 169,625*l.*; expenditure, 260,107*l.* Imports, inclusive of specie, 1920, 677,448*l.*; exports, 539,239*l.*, including living animals, 90,493*l.*, copper ore, etc., 5,341*l.*; pig lead and ingot, 221,624*l.*; corn, grain, and flour, 94,779*l.*; hides, skins, and horns, 24,376*l.*

The capital of the Company was originally 1,000,000*l.*; in 1908 it amounted, by successive additions, to 9,000,000*l.*; amount issued and paid up at March 31, 1917, 8,937,533*l.*; debentures (5 per cent. free of tax), 1,250,000*l.*

Administrator of Southern and Northern Rhodesia.—Sir Drummond Chaplin, K.C.M.G.

Deputy-Administrator of Northern Rhodesia.—R. A. J. Goode, C.B.E.

Resident Commissioner.—C. Douglas Jones, C.M.G.

SWAZILAND.

Swaziland, at the South-eastern corner of the Transvaal, was, by the Convention of 1894, placed under the administration of (but not incorporated with) the South African Republic; the British Government has now the control of the territory. The paramount chief, Sobhuza, son of the late paramount chief Bunu, is about twenty-two years of age, and the chief regency is in the hands of his grandmother, Nabotsibeni, widow of Mbandeni. On June 25, 1903, an Order in Council was issued conferring on the Governor of the Transvaal authority over Swaziland, and by Order in Council of December 1, 1906, this authority was transferred to the High Commissioner for South Africa. The numerous mineral and land concessions and monopolies granted by Mbandeni, many of which carried exemption from customs dues or invested private individuals with powers properly exercisable by the Crown, rendered any satisfactory form of Government difficult. A Proclamation, therefore, provided for the constitution of a Commission to inquire into the question of these concessions. Under this Proclamation the High Commissioner has exercised the power to expropriate monopolies conferring exclusive rights, compensation for which has been made out of loans raised for the purpose. The agricultural and grazing rights of natives have been safeguarded, and delimited; a general survey of the territory in connection with concession claims has also been carried out.

Gold is subject to a tax of 10 per cent. on profits; base metals to a royalty of 2½ per cent. on output, in addition to any rentals now payable, plus 5s. in the £ Excess Profits Tax.

A Special Court, having the full jurisdiction of a Superior Court, and Assistant Commissioners' Courts have been established. A local Swaziland police force was created in 1907. Authorised strength (1921) 24 Europeans and 172 natives. During the year ended March 31, 1921, there were 2,076 summary convictions, and 98 convictions in the Superior Court.

Native chiefs continue to exercise jurisdiction according to native law and customs in all civil matters between natives, subject to a final appeal to the Resident Commissioner.

The present seat of the administration is at Mbabane; altitude 3,800 feet.

Area, 6,678 square miles. Population (census 1921): Natives (of Zulu type), 111,106; Asiatics, 7; coloured persons, 456; Europeans, 2,200. Total population, 133,563. The Government maintains 11 European schools at different centres, and 1 native school at Zombode, the kraal of the Regent. The Government also subsidises other native schools and a school for coloured children.

Since 1904, 177,412*l.* has been spent on the expropriation of monopolies and in connection with the Swaziland Concessions Commission and the Partitions of Concessions. The public debt of Swaziland amounts (1921) to 92,500*l.*

The agricultural products are tobacco, maize (the staple product), millet, pumpkins, ground-nuts, beans, and sweet potatoes, grown in insufficient quantities for local supply. Attempts are being made to introduce cotton-growing. Stock numbers approximately (1920): horses, 600; cattle, 230,000; native sheep and goats, 250,000; pigs, 9,000. Approximately 350,000 sheep are brought into Swaziland from the Transvaal each year for winter grazing. The territory is reported to be rich in minerals, but it has not yet been systematically prospected. Alluvial tin is being mined and shipped. In 1920-21 the output of tin was 406·7 tons, valued at 45,258*l.* There are several gold mines, but only four were worked on a small scale in 1920-21, the output being 127 oz. valued at 620*l.* By agreement (dated June 30, 1910) with the Union of South Africa, Swaziland is treated for customs purposes as part of the Union and receives a pro rata share of the Customs dues collected. Separate returns of Swaziland imports and exports are not available. The exports consist almost entirely of cassiterite tin.

There is tri-weekly communication by motor between Bremersdorp, Mbabane and Carolina. Elsewhere communication is by small carts or runners. Post offices working in 1920-21, 14. There are telegraph offices at Mbabane, Pigg's Peak, Bremersdorp, and Ezulweni. Post Office Savings Banks deposits, 2,610*l.* on March 31, 1921, belonging to 207 depositors.

The currency is British coin and coins of the late South African Republic, which are of similar denomination to the British. The National Bank of South Africa, Ltd., has branches at Mbabane and Hlatikulu, and sub-branches at Mahamba and Bremersdorp. The deposits on March 31, 1921, amounted to 30,709*l*. This bank also conducts savings bank business—124 depositors, 1921, total deposits 2,473*l*.

THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.

Constitution and Government.

The Union of South Africa is constituted under the South Africa Act, 1909 (9 Edw. 7, Ch. 9), passed by the Parliament of the United Kingdom on September 20, 1909. Under the terms of that Act the self-governing Colonies of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal, and the Orange River Colony were united on May 31, 1910, in a legislative union under one Government under the name of the Union of South Africa, these Colonies becoming original provinces of the Union under the names of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal, and the Orange Free State respectively. Under the Act constituting the Union, the Sovereign appoints a Governor-General, who, with an Executive Council (of which the members are chosen and summoned by him), administers the executive government of the Union as the Governor-General in Council. Departments of State have been established, the Governor-General appointing not more than ten officers to administer them. Such officers are King's Ministers of State for the Union and members of the executive Council.

Legislative power is vested in a Parliament consisting of the King, a Senate, and a House of Assembly. The Governor-General has power to summon, prorogue, and dissolve Parliament, either both Houses simultaneously or the House of Assembly alone; but the Senate may not be dissolved within 10 years of the establishment of the Union. There must be a session of Parliament every year.

The Senate consists of forty members. For ten years after the establishment of Union eight (four being selected mainly for their acquaintance with the reasonable wants and wishes of the coloured races) are nominated by the Governor-General in Council and thirty-two are elected, eight for each Province. The first election was made prior to the establishment of the Union by the two Houses of each of the Colonial Legislatures sitting as one body, and a vacancy is filled by the choice of the Provincial Council in respect of whose Province a vacancy occurs. The Constitution of the Senate after ten years may be provided for by Parliament, but if no such provision is made the arrangements made in the South Africa Act are to hold good. Each senator must be a British subject of European descent, at least 30 years of age, qualified as a voter in one of the provinces, and resident for five years within the Union; an elected senator must be a registered owner of property of the value of 500*l*. over any mortgage. Result of elections in February, 1921: S. African Party, 17; Nationalists, 13; Labour, 2.

The House of Assembly consists of 134 members chosen in Electoral Divisions in numbers as follows:—The Cape of Good Hope, 51; Natal, 17; Transvaal, 49; Orange Free State, 17. Parliamentary voters must have the qualifications as existing in the several colonies at the time of the Union.

Each electoral district in each province returns one member, who must be a British subject of European descent, qualified as a registered voter, and resident five years within the Union. A House of Assembly is to continue five years from the date of its first meeting unless sooner dissolved.

Each member of each House must make Oath or Affirmation of Allegiance. A member of one House cannot be elected to the other, but a Minister of State may sit and speak, but not vote in the House of which he is not a member. To hold an office of profit under the Crown (with certain exceptions) is a disqualification for membership of either House, as are also insolvency, crime, and insanity. Certain disabilities to which members of Parliament had, or might have, become subject in assisting in Naval and Military operations during the war were made the subject of special legislation in 1915.

The House of Assembly, not the Senate, must originate money bills, but may not pass a bill for taxation or appropriation unless it has been recommended by message from the Governor-General during the Session. Restrictions are placed on the amendment of money bills by the Senate. Provision is made for adjusting disagreements between the Houses, and for the Royal Assent to bills to be given or reserved, and for laws assented to by the Governor-General being disallowed.

The first Parliamentary election under the South Africa Act was held on the 15th September, 1910. The position of the various parties in September, 1921, was:—South African Party, 74; Nationalists, 47; Labour Party, 12; Independents, 1.

Pretoria is the seat of government of the Union, and Cape Town is the seat of Legislature.

Governor-General.—H.R.H. Prince Arthur of Connaught, K.G., K.T., G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., C.B., A.D.C. (salary £10,000 per annum).

The Executive Council is constituted as follows:—

His Excellency the Governor-General.

Prime Minister and Minister of Native Affairs.—General The Right Honourable J. C. Smuts, P.C., C.H. (3,500*l.*).

Minister of the Interior, Public Health and Education.—The Honourable Patrick Duncan (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Mines and Industries.—The Honourable F. S. Malan (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Railways and Harbours.—The Honourable J. W. Jagger (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Finance.—The Honourable H. Burton, K.C. (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Justice.—The Honourable N. J. de Wet, K.C. (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Defence.—Colonel The Honourable H. Mentz (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Posts and Telegraphs and of Public Works.—The Honourable Sir Thomas Watt, K.C.M.G. (2,500*l.*).

Secretary for Agriculture.—The Honourable Sir Thomas Smartt.

Minister of Lands.—The Honourable Colonel Reitz.

In each province there is an Administrator appointed by the Governor-General for five years, and a Provincial Council elected for three years, each council having an executive committee of four (either members or not of the council), the administrator presiding at its meetings. Members of the Provincial Council are elected on the same system as members of Parliament, but the restriction as to European descent does not apply. The number of members in each Provincial Council is as follows:—Cape of Good Hope, 51; Natal, 25; Transvaal, 49; Orange Free State, 25. The provincial committees and councils have authority to deal with local matters such as provincial finance, education (elementary), charity, municipal institutions, local works, roads and bridges, markets, fish and game, and penalties for breaches of laws respecting such subjects. Other matters may be delegated to these Councils. All ordinances passed by a Provincial Council are subject to the veto of the Governor-General-in-Council.

The first Provincial elections for the Cape of Good Hope and the Transvaal were held on the 15th September, 1910; those for Natal and the Orange Free State on the 12th October, 1910.

There is a provincial Revenue Fund in each province. The old colonial capitals are the capitals of the provinces.

A Harbour and Railway Board of not more than three commissioners appointed for five years, with a Minister of State as chairman, have the management of the railways, ports, and harbours. There is a Railway and Harbour Fund for the Union and into it are paid revenues from the administration of railways, ports, and harbours, and such Fund is appropriated by Parliament. Into a Consolidated Revenue Fund is paid all other money received for the purposes of the Union. On this fund the interest on debts of the colonies forms a first charge. To the Union has been transferred the public property, real and personal, of the colonies.

The English and Dutch languages are both official. The administration of native affairs and affairs specially or differentially affecting Asiatics vests in the Governor-General-in-Council. It is provided that the British South Africa Co.'s territories may be received into the Union, and the government of native territories may be transferred to the Union Government.

High Commissioner in London.—Sir E. Wallon, K.C.M.G.

Area and Population.

The total area of the Union is 473,089 square miles divided between the Provinces as follows:—Cape of Good Hope, 276,966; Natal, 35,284; Transvaal, 110,450; Orange Free State, 50,389.

The census taken in 1904 in each of the four Colonies which subsequently (in 1910) were incorporated in the Union was the first simultaneous census taken in South Africa. While comparisons are possible in respect of the numbers of the population of separate Provinces for earlier periods than 1904, full comparison is only possible in respect of the whole area of the Union for 1904 and later years. In 1911 the first Union census was taken.

The following tables give the returns of population at the various censuses, classified according to race and sex:—

Instruction.

Under the South Africa Act, for a period of five years after the establishment of the Union and thereafter subject to decree of Parliament, control of education other than higher education was granted to the four Provincial Administrations. This arrangement still obtains. For practical purposes it has been provisionally determined that all post-matriculation instruction shall be deemed to constitute Higher Education,

Higher Education.—By legislation enacted in the Session of 1916 three Universities, with teaching and examining functions, were established in the place of the University of the Cape of Good Hope, provision being made for the conversion of the South African College into the University of Cape Town, of the Victoria College into the University of Stellenbosch, and of the University of the Cape of Good Hope into a federal University, styled the University of South Africa, with the remainder of the University Colleges as constituent colleges, the names of which, with appropriate details, will be found in the table hereunder. The actual establishment of the three new Universities took place on April 2, 1918. In 1921 the University College of Johannesburg was created the University of the Witwatersrand.

The University Acts of 1916 also established two Boards, one consisting of representatives of the three Universities (South Africa, Cape Town and Stellenbosch), the Provincial and Union Education Departments, and of the teachers of public and private secondary schools, which is charged with the conduct of the matriculation examination, and the other for the conduct of the professional examinations in law and surveying.

Justice.

The Common Law of the Union is the Roman-Dutch Law, that is, the uncoded law of Holland as it was at the date of the cession of the Cape in 1806. The sources of the law are the Dutch Commentaries and text-books of the seventeenth, eighteenth, and early nineteenth centuries. The Law of England as such is not recognised as authoritative, though by Statute the principles of English Law relating to mercantile matters—e.g., companies, patents, trademarks, insolvency and the like, have been introduced. In shipping, insurance, and other modern business developments English Law is followed, and it has also largely influenced civil and criminal procedure. In all other matters, family relations, property, succession, contract, &c., Roman-Dutch Law rules, English decisions being valued only so far as they agree therewith. The prerogatives of the Crown are, generally speaking, the same as in England.

The Supreme Court consists of an Appellate Division with a Chief Justice and two ordinary and two additional Judges of Appeal. In each Province of the Union there is a Provincial Division of the Supreme Court; while in the Cape there are two Local Divisions, and in the Transvaal one, exercising the same jurisdiction within limited areas as the Provincial Divisions. The Judges hold office during good behaviour. The Circuit System is fully developed.

Each Province is further divided into Districts with a Magistrate's Court having a prescribed civil and criminal jurisdiction. From this Court there is an appeal to the Provincial and Local Divisions of the Supreme Court, and thence to the Appellate Division. A distinctive feature of the Criminal system is that Magistrate's convictions carrying sentences above a prescribed limit are subject to automatic review by a Judge.

Persons convicted, all courts, 1920: males, 215,549, females, 22,135.

Chief-Justice of South Africa.—The Rt. Hon. Sir James Rose-Innes, P.C., K.C.M.G. (Appointed 19 October, 1914.)

Finance.

Prior to 1913-14 the expenditure of the four Provinces was entirely met from grants by the Union Government. Under the Financial Relations Act, 1913, which came into operation on April 1, 1913, certain revenues were transferred or assigned to the Provinces, and the grants by the Union Government were limited to 50 per cent. of the total normal or recurrent expenditure of the Provinces, with additional subsidies to two Provinces in which the funds so provided were shown to be inadequate to meet the necessary expenditure. The Act also provided that the capital expenditure of the Provinces should be financed by redeemable loans from the Union Treasury, the interest and sinking fund charges on which should be included in the normal or recurrent expenditure and thus be subject to the 50 per cent. grant

The gross Public Debt of the Union at March 31, 1921, was 178,607,939*l*.

The expenditure out of Loan Funds for war services during 1915-16 was 10,707,138*l*. ; 1916-17, 2,764,560*l*. ; 1917-18, 3,452,156*l*. ; 1918-19, 3,158,925*l*. ; 1919-20, 2,072,626*l*. ; 1920-1921, 785,150*l*.

The railway earnings in 1920-21 totalled 23,945,145*l*., and the total expenditure came to 25,366,597*l*. ; harbours, revenue 1,946,388*l*., expenditure 1,628,232*l*. South African Steamships revenue, 351,943*l*. ; expenditure, 298,337*l*. ; leaving a total net deficit of 1,049,690*l*. The estimated expenditure for 1921-22 is : Railways, 24,737,842*l*. ; harbours, 1,157,107*l*. ; steamships, 256,233*l*.

There is a provincial revenue fund in every Province, into which all revenues raised or received by the Province are paid. Appropriations are effected by Ordinance of the Provincial Council. It is only under the authority of such an Appropriation Ordinance that any withdrawal from the fund can take place. The provincial accounts are audited in each case by an auditor appointed and paid by the Union Government.

Defence.

During the latter part of the Great War the Union of South Africa provided the whole of the military forces necessary for its defence, and the last of the regular British troops were withdrawn. The forces of the Union are raised under a Defence Act under which all citizens are liable to service within the Dominion. As this would provide an unnecessarily large force, only a proportion of the younger men are annually enrolled, and it is hoped that this proportion will volunteer. If sufficient volunteers are not forthcoming the balance will be obtained by ballot. Men who do not undergo training are liable to pay 1*l*. a year for 24 years. The period during which men are liable to training is four years between the ages of 17 and 25. There is a period of preliminary recruit training followed by annual training of from 8 to 25 days. Men so trained form the Active Citizen Army. After completing four years' training in the Active Citizen Army, men join the Citizen Reserve Force until they are 45. In addition to the Active Citizen Army there is a Coast Garrison Force composed of Garrison Artillery and Engineers, which is voluntarily enlisted and receives payment for its services. There is also a Permanent Force which includes the staffs of the defensive forces, five regiments of mounted riflemen, and some batteries of artillery. The Coast Defence Force and the Permanent Force have their own reserves formed from the men who have passed through their ranks.

Boys between the ages of 13 and 17 are compulsorily enrolled in cadet corps, where this is practicable, but it is recognised that this is not possible in sparsely populated districts. Trained cadets enjoy certain exemptions from recruit training on joining the Active Citizen Army.

Finally there is the National Reserve, comprising all citizens between the ages of 17 and 60 who do not belong to any of the above forces.

During 1920 the demobilization of the defence forces of the Union was completed, and a peace establishment was introduced.

From December 1, 1921, the Defence Force of the Union became entirely responsible for the military administration of the Cape, and the Imperial troops have been withdrawn.

Production and Industry.

Agriculture.—Wheat-growing has made a big forward movement since 1904, as will be seen from the following table :—

¹ Excluding Native Location, Reserves, &c. (Production, 1918, Wheat, 21,566,000 lbs. ; Maize, 585,490,000 lbs.).

Other products, excluding Native Reserves, &c., 1920: barley, 34,558,500 lbs. ; oats, 149,937,000 lbs. ; Kaffir corn, 124,360,000 lbs. ; potatoes, 187,638,000 lbs. ; tobacco, 11,644,300 lbs.

In dairying, too, good progress has been made. In 1919-20 the production of butter amounted to 17,809,287 lbs., and of cheese, 4,054,287 lbs.

The 1920 census (Agriculture) showed that the numbers of various classes of livestock in the Union were as follows :—5,974,802 cattle ; 690,124 horses ; 92,795 mules ; 523,550 donkeys ; 283,980 ostriches ; 26,288,960 sheep ; 4,895,080 goats ; 560,155 pigs. (This census covered rural areas only, to the exclusion of towns, villages, and native reserves.)

The production of wool and mohair (1920 exports : wool, 119,504,747 lbs. ; mohair, 6,289,888 lbs.) is being maintained. The slump in ostrich feathers during the war seriously reduced the output, though with the signing of the Armistice toward the close of 1918 the feather industry underwent a rapid revival (exports, 1920, 285,178 lbs., 547,358*l.*). In 1920 hides and skins valued at 4,206,167*l.* and wattle bark valued at 986,484*l.* were exported.

Cotton-growing is now undertaken by many farmers, the plant being found a better drought resistant than either tobacco or maize. The 1920 yield was approximately 2,592,200 lbs. of seed cotton. The production of sugar continues to increase, the output in the Union in 1916-17 being estimated at 114,709 tons ; in 1917-18, 104,921 tons ; in 1918-19, 150,214 tons ; 1919-20, 189,183 tons. The area under tea is approximately 3,740 acres, from which the yield for 1919-20 was 5,168,419 lbs. (green leaf). It is estimated that some 15,000 acres of land suitable for tea plantations are available.

The total extent of forest reserve areas in March, 1919, was about 2,092,000 acres.

Irrigation.—Irrigation development has made rapid strides in the past ten years. Technical and financial assistance is given by the State under the Union Irrigation Law of 1912, which was designed to encourage irrigation. The Government expenditure on irrigation in 1920-21 was 752,000*l.* from Loan Funds and 187,490*l.* from revenue ; total 939,490*l.*

Manufactures.—The conditions brought about by the war gave an impetus to local manufactures. The production of leather, for which this country is most suitable, has been more than doubled; a commencement has been made with the manufacture of tanning extract from wattle bark; in dairy products, increasing activity is everywhere being shown; and the output of cement is rapidly overtaking the demands of the country. The Union already produces its own requirements in beer and matches. The manufacture of tobacco satisfactorily maintains its position as one of the most important industries in the country. Amongst other commodities which the Union is producing are boots and shoes, candles, dynamite, soap, rope, wine, spirits, furniture, vehicles, brooms and brushes, biscuits, earthenware pipes, and firebricks.

The report on the industrial census in the Union in 1919-20 gives the value added by process of manufacture, &c., as 39,063,000*l.*, and the value of the gross production of the industries covered at 92,914,000*l.* The total number of factories which made returns was 6,890. Value of land and buildings, 18,563,000*l.*, machinery, plant, and tools, 23,490,000*l.*, of materials used 53,851,000*l.*, and cost of fuel, light, and power, 2,496,000*l.* Average number of persons employed, 175,520 (whites, 62,493). Wages paid, 19,119,000*l.* The gross value of the output of the principal groups of industries was: food, drink, &c., 35,138,000*l.*; metals, engineering, &c., 15,912,000*l.*; chemicals, &c., 7,246,000*l.*; heat, light, and power, 4,526,000*l.*; building, &c., 7,248,000*l.*; clothing, textiles, &c., 3,818,000*l.*; books, printing, &c., 3,592,000*l.*; leather, &c., 3,539,000*l.*; stone, clay, &c., 2,407,000*l.*; vehicles, 2,104,000*l.*; furniture, &c., 1,693,000*l.*

Mining.—The table hereunder gives the total value of the principal minerals produced in the Union from the earliest dates of existing records to December 31, 1920. The value of gold is calculated at 4-2477*3l.* per fine ounce. Copper, tin, antimony, scheelite, and silver are valued on the estimated pure metal contained in shipments according to the average current prices in London. The value of other base minerals is calculated on average local prices.

Shipping and Communications.

Oversca shipping 1920: entered, 1,200 vessels of 4,085,000 tons net; cleared, 1,165 of 4,032,000 tons. Coastwise: entered, 2,532 vessels of 5,698,000 tons net; cleared, 2,520 of 5,747,000 tons.

Prior to Union, which took effect in May, 1910, the state railways of the several colonies now comprising the Union were operated by the separate Governments. In May, 1910, the Government lines were merged into one system, the South African Railways, under the control of the Union Government. The total open mileage of this system at the end of March, 1920, was 9,542 (comprising Cape 4,254 miles, Orange Free State 1,842 miles, Transvaal 2,644 miles, and Natal, 1,302 miles), of which 8,982 miles are 3ft. 6in. gauge, and 560 miles 2 ft. gauge. Mileage open 1920–21, 9,559. The capital expenditure on Government Railways up to March 31, 1921, amounted to 99,821,886*l.* Earnings, 1920–21, 23,618,457*l.*; expenditure, 18,646,912*l.*; passengers, 64 million; goods carried, 16,435,000 tons. Mileage of private lines, 507 miles (Cape, 453, Natal, 50, O.F.S., 4). A new railway, about 40 miles long, is to be built from Kimberley to Barkly West (Vaal River diamond diggings), and on to Bornelskop.

At the end of 1919-20 there were in the Union 2,684 post offices. Telegrams dealt with numbered 7,634,423. The number of money orders issued during the year 1919-20 was 444,060, and the value 3,549,881*l.*, while 425,381 orders of the value of 2,998,110*l.* were paid. 3,847,776 postal orders amounting to 1,974,031*l.* were issued, and 3,002,910, valued at 1,770,723*l.*, paid.

The revenue of the Post Office in 1919-20 was 1,370,755*l.*, and the expenditure 1,408,543*l.* The revenue of the telegraph and telephone services (excluded from the previous figures) was 998,872*l.*, and the expenditure 978,819*l.*

12,842 miles of telegraph line, carrying 43,938 miles of wire, and 3,252 miles of telephone line, carrying 132,726 miles of wire, were open. 10,030 wireless messages were dealt with during the year 1919-20.

The number of depositors in the Government Savings Bank in the Union at the end of March, 1921, was 308,140, and the amount standing to their credit 6,861,078*l.*

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The coins and the standard weights and measures are British, but the following old Dutch measures are still used:—Liquid Measure: Leaguer = about 128 imperial gallons; half aum = $15\frac{1}{2}$ imperial gallons; anker = $7\frac{1}{2}$ imperial gallons. Capacity: Muid = 3 bushels. The general surface measure is Morgen, equal to 2.1165402 acres; 1,000 Cape lineal feet are equal to 1,033 British imperial feet. Legislation is in contemplation to provide for the standardisation of the metric system for weights and measures throughout the Union, with the optional use of imperial standards, except in the case of chemists, who are compelled to use the metric system.

PROVINCE OF THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

Constitution and Government.—The Colony of the Cape of Good Hope was originally founded by the Dutch in the year 1652. Britain took possession of it in 1795 but evacuated it in 1803. A British force again took possession in 1806 and the Colony has remained a British Possession since that date. It was formally ceded to Great Britain by the Convention of London, August 13, 1814. The original Colony has been extended from time to time. East and West Pondoland were annexed in 1894 and Bechuanaland in 1895. For many years the form of government in the Colony depended on the terms of the Royal Letters Patent and Instructions to Governors. Letters Patent issued in 1850 to Governor Sir Henry Smith declared that in the Colony there should be a Parliament which should consist of the Governor, a Legislative Council, and a House of Assembly.

A Constitution Ordinance was enacted by Order in Council of March 11, 1853, and took effect on May 1 ensuing. This Order in Council provided that nothing it contained should prevent the Parliament of the Colony from making Acts (subject to the power of Her Majesty in Council either to disallow or assent to such Acts) in amendment of the said Ordinance. This power of amending the Constitution was exercised from time to time as the bounds of the Colony were extended. In 1872 an Act was passed at the Cape and assented to by Order in Council, providing for the system of executive administration known as Responsible Government. The Constitution formed under these various Acts vested the executive in the Governor and an Executive Council, composed of certain office holders appointed by the Crown. On the 31st May, 1910, the Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa, thereafter forming an original province of the Union.

Cape Town is the seat of the Provincial Administration.

Administrator.—The Hon. Sir Frederic de Waal, K.C.M.G. (Salary 2,500*l.*)

The Province is divided into 119 magisterial districts, and the Colony proper, including Bechuanaland, but exclusive of the Transkeian territories, into 86 fiscal divisions. In each division there is a Civil Commissioner, who is, in all cases where the fiscal and magisterial areas coincide, also the Resident Magistrate. Each division has a Council of at least 6 members (14 in the Cape Division) elected triennially by the owners or occupiers of immovable property. These Councils look after roads, boundaries, and beacons; return 3 members to the Licensing Court, and perform other local duties.

There are 126 Municipalities, each governed by a Mayor or Chairman and Councillors, a certain number of whom are elected annually by the ratepayers. There are also 79 Village Management Boards.

Area and Population.—The following table gives the population of the Cape of Good Hope at each census:—

1920	14,783	54,029	44,790

Religion.—In 1911 there were 1,437,688 Christians—479,825 Dutch Churches, 282,619 Anglican Communion (including Church of England, Church of Province of South Africa, Church of Ireland, Episcopal Church of Scotland, Episcopalian), 74,005 Presbyterians, 147,378 Independents or Congregationalists, 285,283 Wesleyans, 19,161 other Methodists, 21,506 Lutherans, 21,167 Moravians, 22,953 Rhenish Mission, 12,234 other Lutherans, 13,704 Baptists, 35,934 Roman Catholics, 21,919 other Christians. Mohammedans 24,189, Jews 16,744. Of no religion, 1,077,998, of whom 1,047,233 were natives.

Instruction.—Local school administration is conducted by school boards and school committees, the unit of administration being the school district. There are now 121 such districts, each under the control of a school board, two-thirds of whose members are elected by the ratepayers and one-third nominated by Government and local authority. Boards have the power, subject to the Department, to establish and maintain schools ; subject to Departmental approval, further, they have the general financial control of schools under their jurisdiction, including the fixing of scales of fees and the hire of buildings. They also have power to enforce school attendance and in certain cases to allow free education. Every public school under a board is ordinarily managed by a committee elected by the parents or, in default, nominated by the board. Such committees have the general supervision of the school, and the selection of the teaching staff also rests with them. Grants in support of education are provided from the general revenue, the sources of revenue in the case of school boards being: Central government, 69·76 per cent.; local education rate, 4·66 per cent.; school fees, 25·17 per cent.; other sources, 41 per cent. Aided schools, June 30, 1919, 4,738. There are 121,475 European pupils and 146,128 non-European. Total number of teachers 9,939.

Charitable Institutions, Hospitals, Pauperism.—In the hospitals and kindred charitable institutions, 22,078 in-patients and 118,990 out-patients were treated in the year 1918. There is no system of poor-law relief, but 1,069 persons received indoor relief during the year.

Finance.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there is only one financial statement for the four provinces together. Particulars are given above under the Union. Since the passing of the Financial Relations Act, 1913, the Provincial revenue consists of certain revenues assigned to the Province and an amount voted by Parliament by way of subsidy. The following figures show the provincial revenue and expenditure for five years :—

Production and Industry.—In 1914, 919,420 acres of Crown lands were alienated, the amount realised being 52,265*l.* Up to December 31, 1914, the total area disposed of was about 141,039,952 acres, the quantity undisposed of being 36,336,708 acres. At March 31, 1920, the area unalienated was reduced to 26,598,558 acres.

For Mineral Production, see p. 225.

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces. The British Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province separately. The following figures show the value of the trade between the Cape of Good Hope Province and the United Kingdom for five years :—

PROVINCE OF NATAL.

Constitution and Government.—Natal, which had been annexed to Cape Colony in 1844, was placed under separate government in 1845, and under charter of July 15, 1856, was erected into a separate Colony. By this charter partially representative institutions were established, and, under a Natal Act of 1893, assented to by Order in Council, June 26, 1893, the Colony obtained responsible government. The province of Zululand was annexed to Natal on December 30, 1897. The districts of Vryheid, Utrecht and par of Wakkerstroom, formerly belonging to the Transvaal, were in January, 1903, annexed to the colony. On May 31, 1910, the Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa, becoming an original province of the Union.

The seat of provincial government in Natal is Pietermaritzburg.

Administrator.—The Hon. G. T. Plowman, C.M.G.

Area and Population.—The Province (including Zululand, 10,424 square miles) has an area of 35,234 square miles, with a seaboard of about 360 miles. The climate is sub-tropical on the coast and somewhat colder inland. It is well suited to Europeans. The Province is divided into 40 Magisterial Divisions.

The European population has more than trebled since 1879. The returns of the total population at the last five censuses were :—

The figures for 1891 exclude Zululand; those for 1904 and 1911 include the districts of Vryheid, Utrecht, Paulpietersburg, Ngotshe, and Babanango.

Population of the borough of Durban according to the census of 1921 (preliminary figures): White 54,230, other 86,094, total 140,324; and of Pietermaritzburg: White 17,472, coloured 17,675, total 35,077. The white population of Durban in 1918 was 43,413, and of Pietermaritzburg, 18,525.

So far as registered, the births in 1920 numbered 39,094 (3,256 European, 35,838 coloured); deaths, 20,122 (1,446 European, 18,676 non-European); and marriages, 3,687 (1,354 European, 2,333 non-European).

Instruction.—With the exception of Higher Education, which has been placed under the control of the Union Government, Education comes under the Provincial Administration. In 1919 there were, for children of European extraction, 147 schools giving primary, 7 schools giving intermediate, and 10 giving secondary education, in all 164 schools, which were supported either entirely or partially by Government funds. In addition there were 5 special or vocational schools, 1 training school for teachers, and 161 farm schools. For coloured children, there are 449 state and state-aided schools (including 44 for Indians), as well as 8 schools provided for the training of coloured teachers. The aggregate number of European pupils in regular attendance at the Government and inspected schools was 25,175 for 1919; the average daily attendance 88 per cent. of the number on the registers. The number of coloured children receiving instruction in 1919 amounted to 30,144. A sum of 62,073*l.* was spent on coloured education during 1919–20 out of public funds; the corresponding figure in respect of European education was approximately 393,975*l.* It is estimated that only a very small percentage of white children are receiving no education.

	1913-14 (pre-war)	1916-17	1917-18	1918-19	1919-20
Revenue:—	£	£	£	£	£
Provincial	118,486	124,665	172,100	223,287	277,053
Union Subsidy	361,000	354,328	283,777	441,656	531,995
Total Revenue	479,486	478,993	555,937	664,943	809,048
Total Ordinary Expenditure	451,001	477,089	532,474	669,780	803,770

The ordinary expenditure for 1920-21 was 1,015,838*l.* (unaudited). The capital expenditure in 1919-20 was 172,218*l.*

Production and Industry.—At the end of March, 1918, the area of Crown land which remained unalienated and could be taken up for agricultural or pastoral purposes was 1,140,000 morgen (1 morgen = 2·1165 acres approx.). On the Coast and in Zululand there are vast plantations of sugar (output, 1919-20, 189,183 tons, value 4,991,390*l.*) and tea, while cereals of all kinds (especially maize), fruits, vegetables, the Acacia molissima, the bark of which is so much used for tanning purposes, and other crops grow prolifically.

The Province is rich in mineral wealth, particularly coal, the output of which is being maintained at a steadily progressive rate. There was in 1918 one gold mine conducting operations on a small scale (for statistics, see p. 225). Among other minerals known to exist in the Province are asbestos, copper ore, fireclay, gold, graphite, gypsum, iron ore, lead and silver ore, limestone and marble, manganese ore, mica, molybdenum ore, nickel ore, nitre, oil shale, and tin ore.

The various factory industries of Natal in 1918-19 (census of 1920) numbered 828, with an annual output valued at 15,796,411*l.* They had 8,585,486*l.* invested in machinery, lands, and buildings, annually used materials worth 9,656,203*l.*, and paid over 2,721,161*l.* yearly in wages to 33,644 employees.

A Whaling Industry was commenced at Durban in 1908. Down to 1917 (nine years) 7,274 whales were captured. In 1917, 1918, 1919 and 1920, the whales captured numbered 176, 142, 641 and 704 respectively. Only two companies, with 15 boats, were operating in 1919. The industry is now regulated by the Provincial Government, as indiscriminate slaughter was driving the whales away from the South African waters.

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records made for each of the Provinces; the British Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province separately. The following figures show the value of the trade between Natal Province and the United Kingdom for five years:—

	£	£	£	£	£
Imports from Natal	2,724,265	3,616,423	7,529,832	6,208,430	7,111,538
Exports of U.K. produce and manufac. to Natal	5,053,223	5,053,361	5,277,503	11,797,879	9,034,470
Exports of foreign and colonial merchandise	389,252	146,108	146,410	599,434	283,928

The more important imports and exports in 1920 were:—Imports into United Kingdom: maize products, 378,000*l.*; frozen beef, 337,000*l.*; raw hides, 541,000*l.*; sheep's wool (13,861,000 lbs.), 1,703,000*l.*; bark for tanning, 602,000*l.*; sugar, unrefined, 585,000*l.* Exports from United Kingdom (British produce): cotton piece goods, 650,000*l.*; woollen manufactures, 435,000*l.*; machinery, 1,018,000*l.*; iron and steel goods, 2,693,000*l.*; apparel, 1,628,000*l.*

PROVINCE OF THE TRANSVAAL.

Constitution and Government.—The territory comprised within the limits of The Transvaal was colonised by Boers who left Cape Colony in 1836-37. In 1852 the independence of the Transvaal Government was recognised by Great Britain, but, in 1877, in consequence of financial difficulties and troubles with the natives, and in accordance with representations and petitions from the Boers, the territory was annexed by the British Government. In 1880 the Boers took up arms for the restoration of their independence, and, in 1881, a Convention was signed restoring to the inhabitants of the territory their self-government, but with conditions, reservations, and limitations, and subject to the suzerainty of the Queen. This arrangement was modified by a Convention made in 1884, in which the name of the South African Republic was given to the Transvaal State; but the control over external affairs, other than engagements with the Orange Free State, was reserved to her Majesty. These Conventions, however, did not preserve harmony within the Transvaal territory, or with the British Government. The discovery of gold and the conditions which followed this discovery occasioned difficulties from which the two Boer States sought release by military action. The result of this was the military occupation of the two countries, and their annexation to the British Crown, the one on September 1, 1900, under the name of

The Transvaal, and the other (May 24) as the Orange River Colony. Hostilities continued till May 31, 1902, when an agreement as to terms of surrender was signed by the representatives of the burgher forces in the field. [See STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1906, under The Transvaal.]

The administration was thereafter carried on under a Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, assisted by an Executive and a Legislative Council. On December 6, 1906, Letters Patent were issued providing for a Constitution of responsible Government in the Colony. The Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa on May 31, 1910, as an original Province of the Union.

The seat of provincial government for the Transvaal is at Pretoria. The position of the various parties in the Provincial Council after the election in August, 1920, was : South African Party, 10 ; Nationalists, 21 ; Labour, 11 ; Unionists, 6 ; Independent 1 ; total, 49.

Administrator.—The Hon. A. G. Robertson (salary, 2,500*l.*)

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 110,450 square miles, divided into 24 districts. The following table shows the population at each of the last five censuses :—

Instruction.—The system of education was embodied in the Education Act which was passed during the first session of the first Parliament elected under responsible government, and which provides that all education except that of a university type shall be under the provincial authority. The Province has been divided for the purposes of local control and management into twenty-nine school districts, for each of which there is a school board consisting partly of elected and partly of nominated members. The board is an advisory local body with general powers of supervision over all public schools in its district except high schools and special schools or classes specified in the third schedule of the Education Act, 1907. Instruction in Government Schools, both primary and secondary, is free. The new University of the Witwatersand was established in Johannesburg in 1921.

The following statistics of education are for the year ending Dec. 31, 1919:—985 primary schools had 96,174 pupils; 28 secondary schools, with an enrolment of 4,923 pupils; 417 State and State-aided schools for coloured, native and Indian children, with 30,583 pupils. There are six training institutions for European teachers, with 731 students; and three for coloured teachers, with 277 students. An amount of 1,655,287*l.* was expended during the year for educational purposes.

In respect of the question of language, the medium of instruction up to and including the fourth standard is the home language (English or Dutch) of the pupil, but parents may request that the second language be gradually introduced as a second medium. Above the fourth standard provision is made for the instruction of pupils through the medium of English and Dutch, and the parent of each pupil may choose one of the two languages as the sole medium of instruction, or both of the languages as the media of instruction. If the parent of any pupil fails to exercise his right of choice, that pupil is instructed through the medium of the language which is the better known and understood by him, the other language being also used as far as possible as a medium of instruction. Bible History is taught in every school, but no doctrine or dogma peculiar to any religious denomination or sect may be taught.

Finance.—For financial arrangements, see p. 221 above.

The following figures show the provincial revenue and expenditure for five years:—

	1913-14. (pre-war)	1916-17.	1917-18	1918-19.	1919-20.
Revenue:—	£	£	£	£	£

Total Ordinary Expenditure . . .	1,254,372	1,425,584	1,633,262	2,014,282	2,452,886

The average annual ordinary expenditure in the six years ending 1919-20 was General administration, 67,677*l.*; education, 1,129,277*l.*; hospitals and poor relief, 226,847*l.*; roads, bridges and works, 241,253*l.*

Estimates 1920-21: total revenue, 3,106,965*l.*; ordinary expenditure, 3,261,643*l.*; capital expenditure, 450,000.

A considerable proportion of the Provincial revenue is derived from Natives' Pass Fees.

The capital expenditure in 1919-20 was 344,271*l.*

Production and Industry.—The Province of the Transvaal is in the main a stock-raising country, though there are considerable areas well adapted for agriculture, including the growing of tropical crops. The extent of land under cultivation is given as over 2,000,000 acres; fallow land as about 470,000 acres; and grazing land as 29,900,000 acres. The maize and tobacco crops may be regarded as the most important.

The live stock numbered, in 1919, 3,244,840 sheep, 447,700 goats (including 90,700 of the valuable Angora breed).

For mineral production, see above, p. 225. The Transvaal Province has iron and brass foundries and engineering works, grain-mills, breweries, brick, tile, and pottery works, tobacco, soap, and candle factories, coach and wagon works, &c.

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces. The British Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province. The following figures show the value of the trade between the Transvaal Province and the United Kingdom for five years:—

The more important imports and exports in 1920 were:—Imports into United Kingdom: copper ore, 67,000*l.*; raw hides, 55,000*l.* Exports from United Kingdom (British produce): Cottons, 1,370,000*l.*; woollens, 907,000*l.*; apparel, 2,950,000*l.*; machinery, 723,000*l.*; iron and steel and manufactures, 1,471,000*l.*; leather boots and shoes, 567,000*l.*; chemicals and preparations, 514,000*l.*

PROVINCE OF THE ORANGE FREE STATE.

The Orange River was first crossed by Europeans about the middle of the 18th century. Between 1810 and 1820, several Europeans settled in the southern parts of the Orange Free State. The Great Trek greatly augmented the number of settlers during and after 1836. At first no settled government was established. In 1848, Sir Harry Smith proclaimed the whole territory between the Orange and Vaal Rivers as a British Possession and established what was called the Orange River Sovereignty. A British Resident was appointed at Bloemfontein, with Assistant Commissioners at Winburg and Caledon River. Great dissatisfaction was caused by this step, as well as by the native policy of the British Government. In 1854 the Convention of Bloemfontein, by which British Sovereignty was withdrawn and the independence of the country was recognised, was signed by Sir George Russell Clerk.

During the first five years of its existence the Orange Free State was much harassed by incessant raids by, and fighting with, the Basutos. These were at length conquered. The British Government then stepped in and arranged matters much to the dissatisfaction of the conquering party. By the treaty of Aliwal North, only a part of the territory of the Basutos was incorporated in the Orange Free State: This part is still known as the Conquered Territory.

A great deal of unpleasantness was caused by the dispute over the Kimberley Diamond Fields, which belonged to the Orange Free State, but were annexed to the Cape Colony by the British Government.

On account of the Treaty between the Orange Free State and South African Republic, the former State took a prominent part in the South African War (1899-1902), and was annexed to the British Dominions by proclamation of Lord Roberts, on May 28, 1900, as the Orange River Colony. After peace was declared Crown Colony Government was established and continued until 1917, when responsible government was introduced. On May 31, 1910, the Orange River Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa as the Province of the Orange Free State.

The seat of provincial government is at Bloemfontein.

Administrator.—The Hon. Sir C. H. Wessels, Kt. (salary, 2,000*l*.)

There are municipalities at Bloemfontein and other centres, 50 in all; local authorities have, so far as possible, the usual local administrative powers.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 50,389 square miles; it is divided into 24 districts. The population at the last 5 censuses and the European population at the census taken in 1918 were as follows:—

Census Year.	All Races.			White.		Coloured.

The capital, Bloemfontein, had, in 1921, 19,333 white inhabitants, and 19,532 natives and other coloured persons; total, 38,865. The 1918 European population was 15,631.

Vital statistics are shown as follows:—

¹ European.

Religion.—The principal body, according to the census of 1911, is the Dutch Reformed Church with 175,311 adherents; of Wesleyans there were 88,857; Anglican Communion, 42,401; Presbyterians, 7,549; Congregationalists, 8,368; Lutherans, 8,727; Roman Catholics, 5,696; Jews, 2,808; no religion (so stated), 173,336, of whom 173,192 were natives and other coloured persons.

Instruction.—Higher education is under the control of the Minister of Education for the Union, while primary and secondary education is controlled by the Administrator of the Province. Under the School

Act of 1908 the Province is divided into 55 school districts, for each of which there is a board consisting partly of elected and partly of nominated members. Each board is an advisory body, with certain powers of supervision; it is also responsible for carrying out the provisions of the law as to compulsory school attendance. The boards have certain advisory functions with regard to the appointment of teachers. Public schools, with certain special exceptions, are under the supervision of committees, the members of which are elected. The functions of these committees also are advisory, but they may nominate teachers for appointment in the discretion of the Director. Grants are given conditionally to private schools. In 1919 there were 742 public and 113 aided private schools in the Province, with a total enrolment of over 56,191 pupils. Fees are charged at all schools, exemption being granted under certain prescribed regulations, and attendance is compulsory up to Standard VI. Except where the parents object both English and Dutch are taught to all children, and where possible are used as equal media of instruction.

The Normal College trains from 80 to 90 teachers annually. The Polytechnic College, established in 1912, trains teachers in art, dressmaking, &c. The Home Industries Board directs the spinning and weaving schools throughout the country. The Government Industrial School for boys was opened at Bloemfontein in 1907. Secondary schools have been established in all the leading towns of the Province with more advanced departments preparing pupils up to University Matriculation standard.

	1913-14 (pre-war)	1916-17	1917-18	1918-19	1919-20
Revenue :—	£	£	£	£	£

Total Revenue	503,638	548,484	647,056	710,338	883,105
Total Ordinary Expenditure	476,556	519,973	611,961	688,622	853,026

The capital expenditure in 1919-20 was 170,875*l*.

The average annual ordinary expenditure in the six years ending 1919-20 was : General administration, 24,127*l*. ; education, 460,989*l*. ; hospitals and poor relief, 21,059*l*. ; roads, bridges and works, 98,263*l*.

Production and Industry.—The Province consists of undulating plains, affording excellent grazing and wide tracts for agricultural purposes. The rainfall is moderate. The country is still mainly devoted to stock-farming, although a rapidly increasing quantity of grain is being raised, especially in the Eastern Districts.

For Mining Statistics see p. 225.

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces. The British Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province separately. The following figures show the value of the trade between the Orange Free State Province and the United Kingdom :—

	1913 (pre-war)	1918	1919	1920	1921 ¹

Foreign and Colonial produce	35,044	10,337	7,284	41,925	12,087

The more important exports (British produce) from the United Kingdom in 1920 were :—Cottons, 178,000*l.* ; woollens, 125,000*l.* ; iron and steel manufactures, 36,000*l.* ; apparel, 255,000*l.* ; leather boots and shoes, 55,000*l.*

The money, weights, and measures are English. The land measure, the Morgen, is equal to about 2 $\frac{1}{10}$ acres.

SOUTH-WEST AFRICA.

Situation and Physical Features.—This country is bounded on the north by Portuguese West Africa, on the west by the Atlantic Ocean, on the south and southern portion of the eastern boundary by the Cape Province of the Union, and on the remainder of the eastern boundary by the Bechuanaland Protectorate. Attached to it is the so-called Caprivi Zipfel, a narrow strip extending from the northern corner of the eastern boundary on East Long. 21° to the Zambesi River, which it meets at a point close to the 25th degree. This strip is bounded on the north by Portuguese West Africa and Northern Rhodesia, and on the south by the Bechuanaland Protectorate.

On the western coast, a strip varying from 60 to 100 miles in width and extending from the Orange River in the south to the Ugab River, which borders on what is known as the Kaokoveld, consists of barren desert, and this is also the case in that portion of the Great Kalahari depression which is included in the country on its eastern boundary.

The Kunene River and the Okavango, which form portions of the northern border of the country, and the Orange River in the south, are the only permanently running streams. But there is a system of great sandy dry river beds throughout the country, in which water can generally be obtained by sinking shallow wells ; these are the Keisib, Swakop, Omaruru and Ugab on the west, the Fish River in the south, the Nosob and the Elephant Rivers in the south-east, and a series of what are known as Omiramba in the north-west, with numerous smaller stream beds. During the summer rainy season these nearly all become running streams. In the Grootfontein area, which geologists describe as a "karst" region, there are large supplies of underground water, but except for a few springs, mostly hot, there is no surface water throughout the country. Much, however, has been done to improve matters by boring, which has almost always been successful if the site for the bore-hole is well chosen.

Government and Administration.—The country was annexed by Germany in 1884, but early in the late war it was invaded by the Military Forces of the Union, and on July 9, 1915, was surrendered to them at Lhorab. It is now administered by the Union under a Mandate from the League of Nations, dated December 17, 1920. The laws of the Union, subject to local modifications, if required, may be applied to the country and are gradually being introduced. In terms of the Mandate, military training of the natives except for Police or Defence purposes is forbidden, and no naval or military fortifications may be established. The supply of intoxicating liquor to the natives is prohibited, as also is any system of forced labour.

The Administration is conducted from Windhoek, and the country is divided into 17 Districts controlled by Magistrates. In addition there is a Native Commissioner in Ovamboland in the extreme north, who keeps in touch with the raw races of Ovambos living there and recruits natives for the railway system and for the working of the diamond fields at Luderitz. There is also a sub-Native Commissioner stationed at Kuring Kuru on the Okavango River with similar duties.

Windhoek, the capital, is pleasantly situated at an altitude of 5,600 feet in the centre of the territory. The town with its surrounding district contains a population of over 4,000 Europeans and 13,000 Natives.

Previous to 1920 German imperial and local laws were in force in the country, and, during military occupation, martial law. On December 31, 1920, the latter was abolished and the Roman Dutch law became the common law of the country. Civil Courts have been established, the whole of the troops have been withdrawn, and the Government is now conducted on a purely civil basis. Its administration has been vested by the Union Parliament in the Governor-General of the Union, but the latter has, under due authority, delegated his powers to an Administrator with full authority to legislate. In this respect he now has the assistance of an Advisory Council consisting of six members, and at present composed of three Germans, two Dutchmen, and one official, the latter representing the interests of the Natives.

The present Administrator is Mr. Gijsbert Reitz Hofmeyr, C.M.G.

The chief executive officer for the country is the Secretary for South-West Africa, Major J. F. Herbst, C.B.E.

Area and Population.—The total area of the country is about 322,400 square miles.

The European population according to the figures of the 1921 Census amounts to 19,237. The Native population is calculated at about 218,000. As large areas of the country, particularly along the coast and in the north, are uncivilised, it has been impossible to procure precise figures. In particular it has been difficult to estimate the numbers of the Bushmen, who still exist in considerable tribes in the north-eastern portion of the country.

It is estimated that of the 19,000 European inhabitants between 7,000 and 8,000 are Germans. The remainder are almost all South Africans, and farmers by profession.

The principal native races of South-West Africa are the Ovambos, Hereros, Bergdamaras or Klipkaffirs, Hottentots and Bushmen.

The Ovambos are a Bantu race and follow agriculture as a pursuit. They still possess to its full extent tribal organisation and are fairly well armed, but have given no trouble since the British occupation of the country. The Germans in pre-war times exercised no authority whatever over them and never entered their territory.

The Hereros are a pastoral people who formerly owned enormous herds of cattle. The Germans in dealing with these people pursued a policy of oppression, with the result that in 1904 they rebelled and 75 per cent. of them were destroyed. Their tribal organization has completely disappeared and they are now scattered throughout the country on farms and in the different towns, where they form the ordinary source of labour. Owing to the fact that formerly tribal organisation was based on the ownership of cattle and that they have consequently for generations been familiar with cattle and their ways, the Herero makes an excellent herd. It is not an unusual thing for a member of this race to have charge of 3,000 head and to know each one individually. Since the British occupation of the country the Hereros have considerably increased in numbers and in animal wealth.

The Bergdamaras are, it is believed, also of Bantu origin, though some authorities hold that they belong rather to the Hottentot race whose language they now speak. They are an inferior tribe and were alternatively the slaves of the Hereros and the Hottentots in pre-European days, as the former or the latter prevailed in the constant struggles that were going on between them.

The Hottentots, so called, consist of two distinct sections: one, whose remnants are found in the central portions of the country, being of pure native extraction, the source of which is but little understood; while the other is composed of tribes which have resulted from an admixture of European blood in the Cape with the Hottentot races residing there a couple of centuries ago, which, after conflict with their European neighbours, sought refuge across the Orange River in this country.

The Bushmen are the oldest inhabitants of South-West Africa and are to be found in considerable numbers in its eastern portion from Lat. 26° to the Northern boundary. There are also remnants of a bushmen tribe in the desert wastes just north of the Orange River, and in the Kaokoveld, in the north-north-western portion of the country. These may be of the "Strand-loope" type.

Situated in the centre of the country just south of the Windhoek district is the Bastard Gebiet occupied by a semi-independent race known as the Bastards, whose origin is much the same as the second class of Hottentots mentioned above, with the difference that the admixture of European blood is much greater, and that their ordinary language is Cape Dutch. These people control their own affairs to a very large extent and are governed by a Raad (Council) which is partly hereditary and partly elected. The Administration is represented by a Magistrate who assists them with advice and takes cognisance of serious crimes. They number about 5,000.

Education.—Thirty British schools have been established, with 1,250 pupils.

Finance.—For the financial year 1920-21 the revenue amounted to £1,601,216 and the expenditure to £929,386. The corresponding figures for the preceding year were £654,370 and £718,100. The Estimates for the year 1921-22 are: revenue £806,800, expenditure £894,644.

The principal source of revenue is the tax on diamonds, which is 66 per cent. of the gross proceeds less 70 per cent. of the working costs. Owing to the extensive depression in the diamond market at present, revenue is expected to fall off considerably.

The revenue from Customs is a round sum of £75,000 paid over by the Union Customs Department, which has entire control of Customs matters in South-West Africa. This figure is an estimate of the sum which would accrue to the country if it levied its own customs dues at Union rates.

Trade.—Any figures which can be supplied in this respect cannot be accepted as a sound basis for deductions in view of the changed conditions resulting from the occupation of the country by the Union, and the subsequent construction of a railway line joining the railway systems of the two countries.

The pre-war figures were as follows:—

Year.	Imports.	Exports.
1911	2,265,097	1,734,558
1912	1,624,944	1,952,667
1913	2,171,230	3,446,220

After the war the following are the figures:—

Year.	Imports.	Exports.
1919	1,135,116	1,679,534
Six months ended June 30, 1920	1,014,347	2,448,321
Six months ended June 30, 1921	656,297	1,055,855

The big decrease in the exports is due to the falling-off of the diamond production.

Mineral Production.—The staple industry is diamonds, which are found along the coast from the Orange River to Conception Bay. The fields are alluvial and the deposits shallow. The stones are small but of a very good quality. In 1920 the yield was 606,424 carats, valued at £3,000,000. Other minerals worked are copper, rich deposits of which exist at Tsumeb and in the neighbourhood, sheelite, wolfram, vanadium, marble and tin. Gold and silver are known to exist but in too small quantities to work remuneratively. The discovery of coal will be an immense benefit to the country, and at the present moment an occurrence is being investigated, but it is impossible to say whether it is of value or not.

Agriculture.—South-West Africa is essentially a stock-raising country, the absence of water and the scarcity of suitable soil rendering agriculture, except on a very small scale, almost impossible, and in point of fact, except as regards maize, the requirements of the country in this direction cannot be met from local sources. Even vegetables must be imported in considerable quantities from the Union. So far as stock is concerned the country, with the exception of the desert strips, is excellent, and even portions of the latter are valuable at certain times of the year. Generally speaking the southern half of the Territory is suited for the raising of small stock, while the central and northern portions are better fitted for cattle. As already mentioned the Hereros in earlier days possessed immense herds of cattle, and the Ovambos in the north also own numbers. It is estimated that in 1921 there were 350,000 head of cattle and 2,000,000 head of small stock within the borders of South-West Africa.

A Land Board has been established and Government ground is being rapidly allotted to suitable applicants on five-year leases with the option of purchase on very easy terms as to instalments. Personal occupation is essential. As in almost all cases boring is necessary in order to provide a sufficient supply of water, the proceedings of this Board are naturally slow.

A strong Irrigation Department has been established which now has in its possession some 50 drills and will shortly receive still more. It is found that each drill can, on the average, provide four satisfactory bore-holes in 12 months, and it will be seen, therefore, that only a few farms can be given out each year. They vary in size from 3,000 hectares in the north to 20,000 in the south. Applications, which come mainly from the Union, are far in excess of the existing provision.

Harbours.—In pre-war times the Germans used Luderitz and Swakopmund as their two harbours. Although the Cape Government made them offers on liberal lines to enable them to land goods at Walvis Bay, these were always refused.

At the outbreak of war Union troops were landed at Walvis Bay, and in a very short time a railway was built from that port to join up with the existing line from Swakopmund to the interior, and nowadays the bulk of the imports into the country are landed at Walvis Bay, which, although strictly part of the Union, is administered, so far as possible, as if it formed a portion of South-West Africa.

The Government proposes to develop Walvis Bay as the main harbour for the service of the country. Its situation is central and its natural advantages are so great that the proposition is bound to be successful. The Bay itself is about 7 miles wide and of the same length, and is completely sheltered by Pelican Point from the prevailing south-west winds, and, in fact, from every other direction except north-north-west, from which gales are almost unknown. The Bay is now being surveyed with a view to arriving at a decision as to where is the most suitable spot for the construction of the harbour works.

Swakopmund, which possesses a climate equal to that of any watering-place in South Africa, although it lies within the tropics, is now developing as a seaside resort and is very popular with the European inhabitants of the country during the summer months. It is altogether useless as a port.

Railways.—For the purposes of the campaign in this country the railway line, which already existed in the Union between De Aar Junction and Prieska, was extended through Upington across the Orange River and eventually joined up with the existing line from Kalkfontein south to Windhoek. The latter line was of the same gauge as the Cape Railways, but from Windhoek through Karibib and Usakos to Swakopmund on the coast and Grootfontein and Tsumeb in the north-west the pre-war railway was of 2ft. gauge. For military purposes the Union Forces converted the section between Swakopmund and Windhoek to the Cape gauge and connected it with Walvis Bay, but the railway in the north remains of 2ft. gauge.

The whole of the railway system, from De Aar in the Union to the border and within the border, is controlled by the Director of Railways, who has his seat in Windhoek.

Comfortable mail-trains with dining-cars attached and ample sleeping accommodation run twice a week each way and maintain communication with the Union. The journey from Cape Town or Pretoria to Windhoek occupies three days and four nights. Arrangements are shortly to be made by which it will be reduced by one night.

The total length of the line inside South-West Africa is 967 miles of 3ft. 6in. gauge, and 98 miles of 2ft. gauge. There are also 98 miles of private line, most of which have been constructed for the service of the diamond fields south of Luderitz. A new railway from Windhoek to Gobabis, 132 miles, is to be constructed (3ft. 6in. gauge).

Telegraphs and Telephones.—There are excellent telephone and telegraph systems in existence, Windhoek being in communication by the former means with places as far distant as Outjo in the north, Gobabis in the east, Swakopmund in the west, and Keetmanshoop in the south.

There are two trunk telegraph lines to the Union. In addition there is the great wireless station at Windhoek which the Germans built for military purposes, and which was able occasionally to communicate direct with Berlin. This has been maintained in good order since the occupation, but the main instruments cannot be worked owing to the removal by the Germans of a few essential parts. It is now under consideration to reconstitute this station as a link in the proposed chain of Imperial wireless stations.

WEST AFRICA.

These Possessions are the Colony and Protectorate of Nigeria; the Gambia Colony and Protectorate; the Gold Coast Colony with Ashanti and Northern Territories; and the Sierra Leone Colony and Protectorate.

Parts of Togoland and Cameroon are also included.

NIGERIA.

History and Constitution.—This territory comprises a number of areas formerly under separate administrations. Lagos, bought in August, 1861, from a native king, was placed under the Governor of Sierra Leone in 1866. In 1874 it was detached, together with the Gold Coast Colony, and formed part of the latter until January, 1886, when a separate "Colony and Protectorate of Lagos" was constituted. Meanwhile the National African Company had established British interests in the Niger valley, and in July, 1886, the company obtained a charter under the name of the Royal Niger Company. This Company surrendered its charter to the Crown in 1899, and on January 1, 1900, its territories were formed into the two Protectorates of Northern and Southern Nigeria. The latter absorbed the "Niger Coast Protectorate," which was formed in May, 1893, from the "Protectorate of the Oil Rivers," which had been constituted in June, 1885. In February, 1906, Lagos and Southern Nigeria were united into the "Colony and Protectorate of Southern Nigeria," and on January 1, 1914, the latter was amalgamated with the Protectorate of Northern Nigeria to form the 'Colony and Protectorate of Nigeria,' under a Governor. Lagos is the seat of the Central Government.

The Colony of Nigeria had its boundaries defined afresh, and the Protectorate was divided into two groups of provinces, the 'Northern Provinces' and the 'Southern Provinces,' each under a Lieutenant-Governor appointed by the King, and subject to the control and authority of the Governor.

The Executive Council of the Colony was made, from January 1, 1914, the Executive Council of the Protectorate also. There is an advisory and deliberative body known as the Nigerian Council, consisting of the Governor, the members of the Executive Council, and other official members; a member, resident in Nigeria, of the Lagos Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Calabar Chamber of Commerce, and a member of the Chamber of Mines, nominated by those bodies; three Europeans nominated by the Governor; and six native members, also nominated by the Governor. This Council has no legislative or executive authority. There is a Legislative Council for Lagos, consisting of the Governor, six official and four unofficial members.

Governor of Nigeria.—Sir Hugh Clifford, G.C.M.G.

Chief Secretary to the Government.—D. C. Cameron, C.M.G.

Lieutenant-Governors in the Protectorate.—Lt.-Col. H. C. Moorhouse, C.M.G., D.S.O. (Southern Provinces); and W. F. Gowers, C.M.G. (Northern Provinces).

Area and Population.—Area approximately 332,000 square miles; population, about 16,250,000, including, at the end of 1920, about 2,800 Europeans (Northern Provinces: 256,000 square miles, 8,500,000 population. Southern Province: 76,000 square miles, 7,750,000 population). In 1900 a proclamation was issued in Northern Nigeria which, without abolishing domestic slavery, declared all children born after January 1, 1900, free; and forbade the removal of domestic slaves for sale or transfer. In 1917 the Slavery Ordinance abolished the legal status of slavery throughout the Protectorate. Slave markets have been suppressed by native rulers, and slave dealing is now practically non-existent. In recent years a great number of slaves have been liberated in the Northern Provinces.

Justice.—The Supreme Courts of Northern and Southern Nigeria are united under one Chief Justice of Nigeria. There are police magistrates at Lagos and Calabar. In each province is a Provincial Court consisting of the Resident and his assistants, and such justices of the peace as may be appointed by the Governor. Native courts exist in Mohammedan localities where there are chiefs and councillors, and amongst pagan tribes Judicial Councils with limited judicial powers have been established in localities where the intelligence of the natives renders such a policy possible. There are cantonments at Kaduna, on the river of the same name, Kano, Zaria, Lokoja on the Niger, and Port Harcourt, and there station magistrates have been appointed. The number of persons apprehended or summoned before the Provincial Courts in 1919 was 8,238, of whom 5,908 were convicted. Out of 13,608 brought before Magistrates' Courts in 1920, 11,311 were convicted, and 96 were convicted in the Supreme Court.

Religion and Education.—Northern Provinces.—Mohammedanism is widely diffused, the Fulani and Hausas and other ruling tribes being of that religion, but in some parts of the territory paganism is predominant. Protestant and Catholic missions are at work, and have industrial and other schools at several stations. The principles governing the education of natives in the Egyptian Sudan are being closely followed. Secular subjects only are compulsory; the acceptance of religious teaching is optional. At present the principal schools are situated at Kano, a great Mohammedan centre. In 1920 there were 30 Government schools, and 86 unassisted private schools, the total average attendance being about 1,174, and 3,466 respectively. It is estimated that there are also over 31,000 Mohammedan schools, with more than 205,000 pupils.

Southern Provinces.—There is a system of primary and secondary schools. There are also a residential school at Bonny, supported by Government grants, and by Chiefs' subscriptions, and a Government secondary school and mission grammar school at Lagos, and a high school at Calabar. In 1920 there were 43 Government schools with 6,054 scholars on the roll, and an average attendance of about 4,803; 158 assisted schools, 26,291 on the roll, and 18,393 in average attendance; and 1,143 unassisted schools, with about 84,444 on the roll, and 50,314 in average attendance. Total expenditure from public funds, 69,443*l*.

Four British Protestant Societies and two French Roman Catholic Societies are established, each with several stations, and altogether there are approximately 1,000 places of worship with an average attendance of about 130,000.

Finance.—Revenue, expenditure, and debt of Nigeria as a whole:—

	Revenue	Expenditure	Debt
1914	3,048,880	3,596,764	8,267,569
1917	3,492,738	8,219,957	8,470,593
1918	4,014,190	3,459,774	8,470,593
1919	4,959,428	4,523,176	11,997,118
1920	6,819,274	6,493,523	10,245,593

The expenditure in 1914 included 628,625*l*. expended on construction of the Eastern Railway from Port Harcourt; in 1917, 115,413*l*. expended on railway construction, and 8,546*l*. on war costs; and in 1918, 30,591*l*. expended on railway construction, and 134,000*l*. on war costs. The expenditure on railway construction during 1919 was 91,812*l*., and in 1920, 233,264*l*.

The main items of revenue in 1920 were:—Customs, 3,126,348*l.*; railway, 1,548,291*l.*; direct taxes, 517,127*l.*; fees of court, &c., 360,517*l.* The chief items of expenditure were:—Political, 356,628*l.*; West African Frontier Force, 350,254*l.*; Posts and Telegraphs, 158,810*l.*; Medical, 183,804*l.*; Prisons, 135,674*l.*; Public Debt, 750,033*l.*; Railway, 1,958,520*l.*; Marine, 504,309*l.*; Public Works Extraordinary, 207,901*l.*

There is established in each native State in the Northern Provinces a Treasury, locally known as a 'Beit-el-Mal,' which regulates the expenditure of that portion of the local revenue which is annually assigned to the native administration of each Emirate for its support and maintenance. The establishment of a Beit-el-Mal consolidates the rank and authority of the Emirs and Chiefs in each province. It strengthens the position of the native judiciary and diminishes extortion and corruption. There are also native treasuries in a few of the more advanced States in the Southern provinces.

Production and Industry.—The products are palm-oil (exports 1920 84,856 tons) and kernels (exports 1920, 207,010 tons); rubber, ground-nuts, shea-butter, ivory, hides, live stock, ostrich feathers, capsicums, cotton (export 1920, 65,147 cwt.), cocoa, coffee, kola-nuts and various drugs. Tobacco is also grown. There are nurseries for rubber seedlings in the Southern Provinces, and botanical stations at Calabar, Onitsha, Oloke-Meji, and Agege, and at Maiganna, Bida, Zaria, and Ilorin in the Northern Provinces. Mahogany is exported. Sheep and goat skins are tanned and dyed. The natives have worked iron, lead, and tin for centuries. Rich alluvial deposits of tin ore have been discovered. The tin-bearing area so far as it is now known extends over 9,000 square miles of territory in the Northern Provinces, the export of tin in 1920 being 7,913 tons, and there are also deposits of tin in the Southern Provinces. A colliery has been opened by Government at Enugu in the Southern Provinces, which is connected by rail with Port Harcourt on the Bonny River. The coal is of good quality. There are rich reefs of galena carrying a considerable silver return. Pockets of native silver have from time to time been discovered in the vicinity of Orufu and Wukari. There are also deposits of manganese ore, lignite, and monazite (which contains thorium).

Mining rights are vested in the Government, but under an agreement made with the Royal Niger Company at the date of the revocation of the charter, that Company receives half the gross profits derived from royalties on minerals won between the main stream of the Niger on the west and a line running direct from Yola to Zinder on the east, for a period of 99 years with effect from January 1, 1900.

Commerce and Communications, &c.—The principal ports are Lagos, Warri, Burutu, Forcados, Sapele, Brass, Degema, Port Harcourt, Bonny, Opobo, and Calabar. Numerous rivers and creeks form the chief routes for transport, and there are many well-made roads driven through the country. At Lagos, and Calabar, there are engineering and repairing workshops and slip-ways for the repair of hulls.

At Lagos moles are being constructed, and a deep channel is being made over the Bar which admits ocean steamers entering the harbour. The construction of deep-water docks is being undertaken.

Considerable trade is carried on in the Northern Provinces, and several new trading stations have been recently opened. There is, besides, a large trade by caravans which, coming from Salaga in the west, the Sahara in the north, and Lake Chad and Wadal in the east, make use of Kano as an emporium.

The trade and shipping of Nigeria are shown as follows (bullion and specie are included):—

Year	Trade		Shipping entered and cleared
	Imports	Exports	Total	British only
	£	£	Tons	Tons
1913	7,201,819	7,352,877	1,735,036	1,041,787
1916	5,780,118	6,096,586	1,042,382	976,957
1917	7,532,735	8,727,870	989,159	883,448
1918	8,318,398	9,564,558	805,981	777,248
1919	12,015,832	14,726,245	1,073,148	986,731
1920	25,216,507	16,987,018	1,434,222	1,103,294

There were (1920) 1,126 open miles of railways. A weekly boat-train with sleeping accommodation and a restaurant car runs between Lagos and Zaria. A new trunk railway has been constructed, from Port Harcourt (established March, 1913, on the Bonny River) to the Enugu coalfields (151 miles). Construction beyond the coalfields was suspended during the war, but has now been re-commenced. Total capital expenditure on Nigerian railway, to end of 1920, 9,277,041*l.*; gross receipts, 1920, 1,626,999*l.*; working expenses, 1,041,523*l.*; net receipts, 585,276*l.*; passengers carried, 2,210,536; goods and minerals transported, 532,335 tons.

There are several thousand miles of telegraph wires, and the system is connected with the French Dahomey system. There are also several hundred miles of telephone wires. A wireless station was opened for traffic at Lagos at the end of 1913.

In 1920 there were 133 Post Offices in Nigeria. The Savings Bank on December 31, 1920, had 5,350 depositors, with 38,891*l.* to their credit.

A special silver coinage for West Africa was introduced in 1913, the denominations being 2*s.*, 1*s.*, 6*d.*, and 3*d.*, of the same size, weight, and fineness as corresponding coins of the United Kingdom. The new currency, with adequate reserves in London, based on gold and securities, is under the control of the West African Currency Board. A nickel coinage (penny and tenth of a penny) is also in use. In 1916 local currency notes were introduced, and in 1920 an alloy coinage of similar denominations to the silver coinage. At present the denominations are 5*l.*, 20*s.*, 10*s.*, 2*s.*, and 1*s.* The amount in circulation in Nigeria at September 30, 1920, was 1,684,315*l.*

The Bank of British West Africa, Ltd., and the Colonial Bank, have branches in Nigeria.

There is a mail service between Liverpool, Bonny, and Calabar via Lagos.

Standard time of one hour fast on Greenwich was introduced in Nigeria on September 1, 1919.

CAMEROON.

Cameroon, lying between British Nigeria and the French Congo, extends from the coast north-eastwards to the southern shore of Lake Chad. In 1911 a considerable tract of land was transferred to Cameroon from French Congo, the new acquisition being known as New Cameroon. The Colony was captured from the Germans by French and British troops in February, 1916, and is now divided between the British and French. Total area 191,130 square miles; population, 2,540,000. The British portion of the country is a strip, area about 31,000 square miles, stretching from the sea along the Nigerian frontier to Lake Chad and is attached to Nigeria; Bantu negroes near the coast, Sudan negroes inland. The seat of Government was at Buëa. Victoria and Rio del Rey are important trading stations. There are Government schools at Victoria.

The soil in the coast region is fertile, and numerous valuable African vegetable productions grow in profusion. In Victoria, experiments are being made towards the cultivation of cloves, vanilla, ginger, pepper, and many other products; an active trade in ivory and palm-oil. The colony is rich in hardwood; ebony is abundant. Gold and iron have been found. Natives in the Bamenda division smelt iron. Salt is found in the Keraa country, Ossidinge Division, and at Bamessing in the Bamenda division.

There is a poll tax which yielded 24,178*l.* in 1918. Estimated revenue 1920 (British sphere), 54,680*l.*

Imports into the British Cameroen in 1920, 167,000*l.*; exports, 140,000*l.* Chief exports: palm kernels, rubber, palm oil, ivory, cocoa, kola nuts. Chief imports: textiles, spirits, timber, salt, iron wares, flour, kerosene, motor spirit, coopers' stores, hardware, and colonial produce. In 1920 there entered Victoria 40 trading vessels of 79,679 tons.

The mark is still in use, value 7*d.* at the official rate, both in the French and British spheres, but its purchasing power in the markets is the same as the shilling.

GAMBIA.

Governor.—Captain Cecil H. Armitage, C.M.G., D.S.O. (2,500*l.*, and 750*l.* allowances)

Gambia, at the mouth of the river Gambia, was controlled from Sierra Leone from 1807; in 1843 it was made an independent Crown Colony; in 1866 it formed part of the West African Settlements, but in December, 1888, it again became a separate Crown Colony. The Colony is administered under a Governor with an Executive and a Legislative Council nominated. There is an unofficial element in the latter. Area of Colony proper, 4 square miles; population 8,000. In the Protectorate (area, 4,130 square miles) the population is estimated at 240,000. With the exception of the Island of St. Mary, on which Bathurst, the capital, stands, the whole Colony is administered on the Protectorate system. In June, 1901, an agreement was made with the local chief for the administration of the Fuladu district by the British, both banks of the Gambia being now under direct British control up to the Anglo-French boundary.

There were, in 1920, 8 elementary Government-aided schools, with 1,407 pupils enrolled; and an average attendance of about 653 pupils; Government grant, proportionate to results (1920), 804*l.* Of the elementary schools three are Roman Catholic, three Wesleyan, one Anglican, and one Mohammedan. The Wesleyans have also a secondary school under native control, with 63 boys, and a technical school with about 13 pupils, which receives a grant of 350*l.* Total Government expenditure on education (1920), 1,653*l.* There is a company of the West African Frontier Force of 130 men. The armed police has a strength of 92 men. In 1919, 38 cases were tried in the supreme court; 296 cases were disposed of in the police court; 609 cases were reported from the Protectorate.

There is a fortnightly mail-service between Liverpool and Bathurst. Internal communication is maintained by steamers or launches. There are two post offices. Postal packets and parcels dealt with in 1920, 215,301. Bathurst is connected with St. Vincent (Cape de Verde) and with Sierra Leone by cable, but there are no local telegraphs or railways. The Gambia savings bank had 304 depositors in 1920. A special West African silver currency was introduced in 1913 (see under Nigeria, p. 254). West African currency notes in circulation December 31, 1920, amounted to 324,017*l*. The French five-franc piece is legal tender at 3*s*. 10½*d*. There are two banks in the Colony, the Bank of British West Africa and the Colonial Bank.

GOLD COAST.

The Gold Coast stretches for 334 miles along the Gulf of Guinea, between the French Ivory Coast and Togoland. The Colony is administered by a Governor with an Executive and a Legislative Council, both nominated, with nine unofficial members in latter. The area of the Colony, Ashanti, and Protectorate is about 80,000 square miles; population, census 1911,

1,503,386; Europeans, 1915, 2,206. Population, Census 1921, 2,029,750. Chief towns: Accra, 20,000; Secondee, 8,000; Cape Coast Castle, 11,000; Quittah, Saltpond, Winnebah, Axim, and Akuse. There were (in 1920) 19 Government schools, and 198 assisted schools which are under the control of the Scottish, Wesleyan, Roman Catholic, Church of England (S.P.G.), and African Methodist Episcopal Zionist Missions; the former Bremen Mission Schools are at present temporarily under the control of the Education Department; average attendance of primary and secondary schools, 23,162 (1920); enrolled, 28,580; Government estimated expenditure on education in 1920, 57,544*l*. There are also a large number of non-assisted primary schools supported by the various religious bodies. The strength of the police (1919), 21 European officers and 1,365 of other ranks. This includes 2 European officers and 192 other ranks in Ashanti. The constabulary (Northern Territories) consists of 2 officers and about 320 of other ranks. Summary convictions in 1919, 8,978; convictions in Supreme Courts, 104. Staple products and exports, cocoa, palm oil, kola nuts, palm kernels, india-rubber, and manganese; the export of valuable native woods is increasing. The botanical station at Aburi aids in the plantation of coconut trees, rubber, cocoa, coffee, cotton, pepper, nutmeg, pimento, and croton. Gold is found in quartz, in banket, and in alluvium. Many of the coast inhabitants are fishermen, and there is considerable traffic in dried fish by rail into the interior.

The imports from the United Kingdom in 1920 amounted to 11,826,204*l*., and from the U.S.A., 2,230,080*l*.; and the exports (1920) to the United Kingdom, 5,864,725*l*.; to U.S.A., 2,554,369*l*.; and to France, 1,565,069*l*.

The shipping entered and cleared in the foreign trade is given as follows:—

	1913 (pre-war)	1917	1918	1919	1920
	tons	tons	tons	tons	tons
Total . . .	2,936,553	1,444,972	983,994	1,670,805	2,358,254
British only . . .	1,782,545	1,218,898	953,164	1,405,715	1,767,492

There is a Government railway, from Secondee on the coast to Coomassie, a total length of 168 miles, with branches Tarquah to Prestea, 19 miles, and Inchaban Junction to Inchaban, 5 miles; capital expenditure to end of 1919, 3,360,983*l*. A line from Accra to Anyinam (85 miles) has been constructed, and the extension of this line to join Coomassie and Accra is under construction from both ends, and is expected to be finished by the end of 1922. Gross railway receipts 1919, 672,000*l*., expenditure, 234,000*l*. Road construction is proceeding rapidly; there are over 320 miles of main roads and 2,100 miles of secondary roads. There are in the Colony 2,762 miles of telegraph line and 60 offices, and telephone exchanges at Accra, Secondee and Tarquah; telegrams in 1919, 290,218. There is a wireless telegraph station at Accra. The number of letters, packets, &c., handled in the postal service in 1919 was 5,732,633. In 1919 the savings bank had 5,806 depositors with 54,437*l*. to their credit.

Ashanti was placed under British protection on August 27, 1896, and an English Resident was appointed to Coomassie. Under orders in Council of September 26, 1901, the country was definitely annexed by Great Britain, the Governor of the Gold Coast being appointed Governor of Ashanti, though the laws and ordinances of the Gold Coast do not apply to the annexed territory. The population (census 1921) was 420,000. Coomassie, the chief town, has about 20,000 inhabitants. There are Government schools at Coomassie (487 pupils in 1920), Sunyani (114), and Juaso (142), and a number of mission schools. Police force (1920), 155; convictions (1920), 3,007, but there is little serious crime. Agriculture is extending, cocoa and rubber plantations are being formed. Gold output (1920), 70,719 oz. (300,000*l*.). In the western parts of the Gold Coast Colony and especially of Ashanti are rich forests with excellent timber trees (mahogany, cedar, &c.), trees yielding fruits, rich in oil, rubber-bearing plants, and species yielding gum copal. The country is well watered, and with proper restraints on wasteful native farming and on over-exploitation, would contain inexhaustible supplies of valuable forest products. On the eastern side the forests are sparser, though timber and oil trees are common and game plentiful; the products there are chiefly maize, koko-yams, bananas, ground-nuts, and cocoa, the plantations of which are rapidly extending. Revenue, 1920, 745,000*l*. (Customs duties, 507,000*l*., railways, 181,000*l*.). Imports, 1919, 1,773,000*l*.; exports, 2,433,000*l*. (cocoa, 1,425,000*l*.; kola, 494,000*l*.; gold, 422,000*l*.).

Chief Commissioner.—C. H. Harper.

The Northern Territories lying to the north of the parallel of 8° N. lat., bounded on the west and north by the French possessions and on the east by Togoland, were placed under British protection in 1901. They are administered, under the Governor, by a Chief Commissioner with his headquarters at Tamale. The country is divided into two provinces under Commissioners; the Southern Province, with headquarters at Tamale; and Northern province, with headquarters at Navarero. By the census taken in 1911 the population of the region to the north of Kintampo (variously estimated at from 31,000 to 50,000 square miles) is put at about 360,000. Area, 31,100 square miles. The Mohammedans have substantial mosques; there are Roman Catholic and other missions. Government schools have been established at Tamale, Gambaga, Lorha, and Wā. Good permanent roads are being made. The crops grown include dagarti bean, cassava, Guinea corn, ground-nut, millet, pigeon pea, cotton, sisal hemp. Gold-bearing quartz and alluvial deposits, and mica, exist.

Chief Commissioner.—Arthur J. Philbrick.

The Bank of British West Africa, Ltd. and the Colonial Bank operate in the Colony and Ashanti. For currency, see p. 254. For small purchases cowries are still used in the Northern Territories. The natives tend to melt down the silver and nickel coins for ornaments. West African currency notes in circulation at December 31, 1919, amounted to 3,959,495*l*.

Governor of the Gold Coast.—Brig.-General Sir F. G. Guggisberg, K.C.M.G., D.S.O., R.E.

Chief Commissioner of Ashanti.—C. H. Harper, O.B.E.

Chief Commissioner of Northern Territories.—A. J. Philbrick.

Colonial Secretary.—A. R. Slater, C.M.G., C.B.E.

TOGOLAND.

Togoland, between the Gold Coast Colony on the west and French Dahomey on the east, was surrendered unconditionally by the Germans to British and French forces in August, 1914. Area 33,700 square miles; estimated coloured population (1913) 1,032,000; estimated European population, 1919, 125. Coast line about 31 miles, but inland the territory, between the rivers Volta and Mono, widens to four or five times that breadth. On September 30th, 1920, the country was divided between France and Britain in accordance with the Franco-British declaration of July 10th, 1919. The boundary between the two spheres extends from the north-west corner in a general direction south-east and south, terminating not far from the port of Lomé, but so that no part of the British sphere reaches the coast. (See map in the YEAR BOOK for 1920.) From January 1st, 1921, the area allotted to Great Britain, approximately 12,600 square miles, was attached for administrative purposes, pending the issue of a definite mandate, to the adjacent provinces of the Gold Coast Colony, Ashanti, and the Northern Territories. (For further information see under French Togoland.)

In the British zone there is one Government school with 200 pupils, and Missionary Societies have 35 schools with 3,900 pupils.

Revenue, 1918 (English and French zones), 127,444*l*; expenditure 118,953*l*.

Imports and exports for six years:—

Years	Imports	Exports	Years	Imports	Exports
	£	£		£	£
1912	571,391	497,945	1917	345,866	473,774

The principal imports in 1918 were cotton goods, provisions, salt, and tobacco. Principal exports were palm oil, palm kernels, cocoa, copra, and cotton.

Administrator of British Zone.—Major F. W. F. Jackson, D.S.O., R.A.

SIERRA LEONE.

Sierra Leone lies between French Guinea on the north and the Republic of Liberia on the east and south-east. Sierra Leone proper consists of a peninsula about 26 miles long, and 12 miles broad, with an area of about 300 square miles, terminating in Cape Sierra Leone. The Colony of Sierra Leone extends from the Scarcies River on the north, to the border of Liberia on the south, 180 miles. It extends inland to a distance varying from 8 to 20 miles and includes the Yellaboi and other islands towards the north, as well as Sherbro and several smaller islands to the south, but the Isles de Los were ceded to France under the Convention of 1904. There are in the Colony Executive and Legislative Councils, nominated.

Area of the Colony 4,000 square miles approximately; population (census 1911), 75,572, of whom 702 were whites. Europeans, 1920, numbered 1,028. The birth-rate (1920) was 20 per thousand, and the death-rate 27; infantile mortality is very high, being 30 per cent. per 1,000 births (average 1917-19), and appears to be increasing. Chief town, Freetown, 34,090 inhabitants (1911), headquarters of H.M.'s forces in West Africa. The battalion of the West African Frontier Force has its headquarters at Daru on the Moa River. Freetown, the greatest seaport in West Africa, is a second-class Imperial coaling-station, with an excellent harbour.

In 1920 there were 170 elementary and intermediate schools, with an average attendance of 6,432; grants-in-aid to the assisted schools, 120 in number, 4,290*l*. The assisted schools are all denominational, belonging to 8 missionary societies. There were (1920) 10 secondary schools in the Colony, 8 of which are missionary institutions, while the remainder are owned privately. Grants-in-aid to 3 assisted schools, 316*l*. There is a Government Model School (secondary), with average attendance of 255 in 1920. In the Protectorate are the following Government institutions: the Bo School, for the sons of Chiefs, the Jala Agricultural Training College, and 4 Anglo-vernacular schools. Fourah Bay College is affiliated to the University of Durham. There are 5 Mohammedan schools in the Colony, with an average attendance (1920) of 402. Training classes for teachers are attached to the Bo and Government Model Schools. Police force at end of 1920 had an authorised strength of 304, including 13 European officers. In 1920, 100 persons were convicted in the Supreme Court, and about 3,400 in other courts.

Exports	1,731,252	1,223,544	1,497,995	1,516,871	2,101,560	2,049,380

The revenue from Customs in 1920 was 630,052*l*.; the railway, 201,092*l*.; licences, 74,762*l*.; court fees, 29,336*l*.

Net public debt, December 31, 1920, 1,729,848*l*.

Imports from United Kingdom in 1920, 2,559,047*l*.; exports thereto, 1,569,300*l*.

The tonnage of vessels entered and cleared in the foreign trade is given as follows (excluding vessels in Admiralty service):—

	1913 (pre-war)	1916	1917	1918	1919	1920
Total tonnage	2,931,085	1,553,312	1,526,640	1,736,247	2,016,699	2,428,837
British only	2,051,310	1,410,000	1,417,894	1,669,984	1,953,760	2,068,925

A Government railway, a single line of 2ft. 6in. gauge, is open from Freetown to Pendembu, near the Liberian frontier, a length of 227½ miles. From Boia Junction, 64½ miles from Freetown, a branch line runs to Kamabai, a distance of 104 miles; and a further extension to Baga in the Koinadugu District is contemplated. There is also a mountain section from Freetown to the official quarters at Hill Station, a distance of 5½ miles. There are over 1,100 miles of telegraph and telephone lines. In 1920, 1,631,697 postal packets were dealt with in the Colony; money order transactions amounted to 91,464£. There are 536 miles of combined telegraph and telephone wires in operation. There are 44 post offices and postal agencies. At the end of 1920 there were 5,889 depositors in the savings bank with 83,981£. (inclusive of interest) to their credit. The West African Silver Currency was introduced in 1913 (see under Nigeria, p. 254), and in 1920 West African Alloy Coinage was put into circulation; but British coins are still largely used, and the French five-franc piece is legal tender at 3s. 10½d. Currency notes of the United Kingdom and Nigeria are in circulation, the amount at June 30, 1920, being 139,891£. The Bank of British West Africa and the Colonial Bank have their headquarters at Freetown.

The Protectorate.—On March 7, 1913, an Order in Council was issued providing for the administration of the Protectorate of Sierra Leone. The Order applies to the territories, not being portions of the Colony of Sierra Leone, lying between the sixth and tenth degrees of north latitude and the tenth and fourteenth degrees of west longitude, and beginning at the extreme southerly point of the Colony on the Anglo-Liberian boundary, as delimited under the provisions of the Anglo-Liberian Conventions, November 11, 1885, and January 21, 1911. The Protectorate extends inland about 180 miles.

The Governor and Commander-in-Chief for the time being of the Colony of Sierra Leone is also the Governor of the Protectorate. Authority is given to the Legislative Council of Sierra Leone, by ordinance, to exercise and provide for giving effect to the powers and jurisdiction acquired by the Crown.

The Protectorate has an area of 27,000 square miles, and a population, according to the census of 1911, of 1,327,560. The Protectorate was proclaimed August 21, 1896, and the whole territory has been divided into 3 Provinces, each of which is placed under a European commissioner. Circuit courts are held at the chief centres of population; convictions in 1917, 84. There are also district commissioners' courts, chiefs' courts for purely native cases (not serious crime), and combined courts (a chief and a non-native) for small debts and trivial misdemeanours (assaults, abusive language) arising between native and non-native. The chief articles of imports are cotton goods, spirits, hardware and tobacco; the chief exports are palm kernels, kola nuts, and palm oil. There are several mission and Mohammedan schools. A Government school for the sons and nominees of native chiefs was established at Bo in the Railway district of the Protectorate on March 1, 1906. The school, which is under European supervision, opened with 18 pupils; at the end of 1919 there were 140 pupils. An elementary school was opened at the end of 1925; there are also 3 Government Anglo-Vernacular Schools. An Agricultural Training College was established by the Government in 1919, with 30 pupils. There are over 92 non-Government schools, of which 49 are assisted by the Government.

Governor.—R. J. Wilkinson, C.M.G. (3,000£.).

Colonial Secretary.—Dr. J. C. Maxwell, C.M.G.

Assembly was substituted a new body called the Legislative Assembly. This consists of (i) the Ministers, (ii) 66 elected members, and (iii) 17 members nominated by the Government to represent certain minorities. The elections are indirect: every 50 electors choose an elector-delegate, and the electors-delegate elect the members of the Assembly, but are liable to be recalled before any fresh exercise of their functions. The members of this Assembly sit for six years, their numbers being renewed one-third at a time every two years: they also receive payment. The Assembly can initiate legislation and must be consulted on all measures relating to loans, land-tax assessment, or modifications of the railway or irrigation systems. The Government, however, is not bound by the resolutions of the Assembly, and, in the event of a disagreement between the two about any proposed law, the Government can eventually enact the law in such form as it may think fit. The Assembly has the right of veto on new direct, personal or land taxes, which cannot be imposed without its sanction. The ordinary session of the Assembly is from November 1 to May 31. A new constitution is now to be drafted (March 1922), with a new electoral law, and providing for the establishment of Ministerial responsibility to Parliament.

The Provincial Councils were endowed in 1909 with the powers of applying bye-laws, authorising public-markets, fixing the number and pay of ghafirs (village watchmen), and authorising the creation of ezbas (hamlets). They are the local authorities in connection with elementary vernacular education and trade schools. They consist of two elected representatives from each Markaz. The Mudîr is the ex-officio President of the Council.

Egypt Proper is administratively divided into 5 governorships (muhâfzas) of principal towns, and 14 mudîrîas or provinces, subdivided into districts or Markazes. In 1890 the Powers consented to a decree constituting a Municipality in Alexandria, with power to impose local taxes.¹

In thirteen towns (Mansûra, Medinet el-Fayûm, Tanta, Zagazig, Damanhûr, Beni-Suêf, Mahalla el-Kubra, Minya, Mît Ghamr, Zifta, Kafr el-Zayât, Benha, and Port Said), Mixed Commissions have been formed with power to impose taxes on residents who have given an express consent to be taxed for municipal purposes.

In 41 other towns a third class of town council (Local Commissions) exists, but, in general, there is no power to impose local taxes, the revenue being derived from grants from the central Government, and receipts from water supply, slaughter houses, &c. During recent years, however, 22 of the Local Commissions have, with the express consent of foreigners and Egyptians, imposed local taxation for municipal purposes.

Area and Population.

The total area of Egypt proper, including the Libyan Desert, the region between the Nile and the Red Sea, and the Sinai Peninsula, but excluding the Sudan, is about 350,000 square miles; but the cultivated and settled area, that is, the Nile Valley and Delta, covers only 12,226 square miles. Canals, roads, date plantations, &c., cover 1,900 square miles; 2,850 square miles are comprised in the surface of the Nile, marshes, and lakes. Egypt is divided into two great districts—'Masr-el-Bahri,' or Lower Egypt, and 'El-Said,' or Upper Egypt.

The following table gives the area of the settled land surface, and the results of the census taken in March, 1917 :—

The average annual increase from 1846 to 1882 was 1·25 per cent.; from 1882 to 1897, 2·76 per cent.; 1897–1907, 1·49 per cent.; 1907–1917, 1·26 per cent.

For details of the census of 1907, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1915, pp. 250–1.

Estimated population, March, 1921: 13,387,000. Births registered, 1919, 493,507; deaths, 383,872; 1920, births, 558,609; deaths, 369,912.

The principal towns, with their populations, according to the results of the census of 1917, are :—Cairo, 790,939; Alexandria, 444,617; Port Said (including Ismailia), 91,090; Suez, 30,996; Damietta, 30,984; Tanta, 74,195; Mansura, 49,238; Zagazig, 41,741; Damanhûr, 47,867; Benha, 18,607; Shibîn el-Kôm, 24,604; Asyût, 51,431; Aswân, 11,293; Beni Suêf, 31,986; Faiyûm, 44,400; Sohâg, 20,760; Giza, 18,714; Qena, 23,357; Minya, 34,945.

Religion and Instruction.

In 1917 the population consisted of 11,658,148 Moslems; 854,773 Orthodox; 59,581 Jews. Christians: 47,481 Protestants; 107,687 Roman Catholics; 14,416 other Christians; 8,827 others. Thus Moslems formed 91·43 per cent. of the population; Christians, 8·03 per cent.; Jews, 0·47 per cent.; others, 0·07 per cent. The principal seat of Koranic learning is the Mosque and University of El-Azhar at Cairo, founded year 361 of the Hegira, 972 of the Christian era. In 1914 it had 405 professors and 9,749 students of Islam and subjects connected therewith. The Mosque of El-Ahmadi at Tanta had 113 professors and 2,860 students at the end of 1914. The Mosque of Damietta had in the same year 16 professors and 411 students, that of Dessûqi (Tanta), 16 professors and 280 students, and the Meshiakhat Olama of Alexandria 75 professors and 1,854 students. All these institutions are under the supervision of the Council of the University of El-Azhar.

There are in Egypt large numbers of native Christians connected with the various Oriental churches; of these, the largest and most influential are the Copts, the descendants of the ancient Egyptians; their creed is Orthodox (Jacobite), and was adopted in the first century of the Christian era. Its head is the Patriarch of Alexandria as the successor of St. Mark. There are three metropolitans and twelve bishops in Egypt, one metropolitan and two bishops in Abyssinia, and one bishop for Khartum; there are also arch-priests, priests, deacons, and monks. Priests must be married before ordination, but celibacy is imposed on monks and high dignitaries. The Copts use the Diocletian (or Martyrs') calendar, which differs by 284 years from the Gregorian calendar.

The following table shows the proportion of illiterates in the various religious communities (1917 census):—

Religion	Population	Number illiterate per 1000
		Males	Females	Total
Moslems	11,658,148	901	994	947
Orthodox	854,778	739	920	829
Christians	155,168	505	556	531
Jews	59,581	481	642	562
Others	23,243	912	955	934
Total	12,750,918	864	979	921

Subject to certain adjustments for purposes of comparison, it appears that the proportion of the native Egyptian population able to read and write in 1917, as compared with the returns of the previous census in 1907, was as follows:—

1907		1917
Males	Females	Males	Females
85 per 1000	3 per 1000	120 per 1000	18 per 1000

Until 1897, Government initiative in the matter of education was limited to supplying a Europeanised course of education designed to fit Egyptians for various branches of the public service and for professional careers. This system of schools, which owes its origin to the Europeanising zeal of Muhammad Ali Pasha, the first viceroy, consists of Primary Schools, Secondary Schools, and Professional Colleges (Law, Medicine, Engineering, Veterinary, Military, Teaching, Accountancy and Commerce, and Agriculture), in addition to a number of special schools.

Scattered throughout the country there have existed from time immemorial a number of indigenous schools called 'Maktabs.' In 1897, the Ministry of Education endeavoured to bring these independent 'Maktabs' voluntarily under Departmental supervision by means of a system of inspection and reward. Government aid was made dependent upon daily instruction being given in reading, writing, and arithmetic, apart from any religious teaching, and upon the school reaching a satisfactory level of efficiency. The extent to which the scheme has developed is shown in the following table:

Year	Maktabs awarded grants-in-aid and under inspection
	Number of Maktabs	Teachers	Attendance			Grant-in-aid £E

1919-20	3,162	5,819	175,519	26,708	202,257	22,632

Since 1913 the grants-in-aid to maktabs situated within the areas governed by Provincial Councils have been paid from the funds of the Councils.

The following table gives statistics (corrected to January, 1921), concerning the schools under the immediate direction of the Egyptian Government in 1897 and 1921 respectively. The schools marked with an asterisk are under Departments other than the Ministry of Education.

The number of schools under the control of the Provincial Councils in January, 1921, either through direct management or through grants-in-aid, was as follows:—

	No. of Schools	No of Pupils
		Boys	Girls	Total
Maktabas (Elementary Vernacular Schools)	3,317	184,371	26,479	210,850

By agreement with the Provincial Councils it was decided in 1912 that the Ministry of Education should hand over to the Councils the duty of making provision for Elementary Schools in their areas, including the giving of grants-in-aid to the private Maktabas.

The Ministry of Education had under its direct management (January, 1921):—

Under other Government Departments are the School of Law (487 students), the Military School (87 cadets), the Veterinary School (20 students), the Higher School of Agriculture (83 students), the Intermediate School of Agriculture (101 students), the School for Cadis (higher section, 98, lower, 160 students); the Police School (97 cadets), and 2 reformatories (615 boys, 133 girls). It is proposed to establish a State University at Cairo.

Justice.

The indigenous tribunals of the country are the Mehkmas, presided over by the Qadis. At the present time, they retain jurisdiction only in matters of personal law (marriage, succession, &c.), and wakfs—the latter being either charitable foundations, or family settlements with an ultimate remainder in favour of a charitable foundation—and also in certain non-religious cases (e.g. succession) between non-Moslem natives. In matters of personal law other than intestate succession non-Mussulmans are, however, in general subject to their own Patriarchate, or other religious authority. In other matters, natives are justiciable before the so-called Native Tribunals established in 1883. These now consist of 90 Summary Tribunals, each presided over by a single judge, with civil jurisdiction in matters up to £E150 in value, and criminal jurisdiction in offences punishable by fine or by imprisonment up to three years, that is, police offences and misdemeanours; eight Central Tribunals, each of the Chambers of which consists of three judges; and a Court of Appeal at Cairo, about one-third of its members being European. Under a law of 1904, there are also weekly sittings in the Governorate Qisms (to the number of 28) for the disposal of petty offences, the judge having powers up to three months' imprisonment or fine of £E10, and the prosecution being conducted by the police. Civil cases not within the competence of the Summary Tribunals are heard in first instance by the Central Tribunals, with an appeal to the Court of Appeal. The Central Tribunals also hear civil and criminal appeals from the Summary Tribunals. Since 1905 serious crimes (and, under a law of 1910, all press offences) are tried at the Central Tribunals by three judges of the Court of Appeal sitting as an Assize Court, assizes being held monthly. There is a recourse on points of law, in criminal matters, to five judges of the Court of Appeal sitting in Cairo as a Court of Cassation. The prosecution before Summary Tribunals and Assize Courts is entrusted to the Parquet, which is directed by a Procureur Général; the investigation of crime is ordinarily conducted by the Parquet, or by the police under the direction of the Parquet: cases going before an Assize Court are further submitted to a special committing judge. Offences against irrigation laws, &c., are tried by special administrative tribunals.

The so-called "Cantonal Courts," created by a law of July, 1912, should also be mentioned. They are composed of village notables, and have general civil jurisdiction in suits up to £E5 in value, besides an extended jurisdiction in special matters, and a petty criminal jurisdiction with penalties up to 24 hours' imprisonment or PT25 fine. The jurisdiction of each court extends to a group of villages. The courts are now 236 in number.

Owing to the Capitulations, which still apply to Egypt, foreigners are exempted from the jurisdiction of the local tribunals. Mixed tribunals were instituted in 1876, consisting partly of native and partly of foreign judges, with jurisdiction, in civil matters, between natives and foreigners and between foreigners of different nationalities, or even between foreigners of the same nationality if the dispute relates to land in Egypt. These Tribunals have, also, a limited penal jurisdiction, notably in cases of police offences, offences against the bankruptcy laws, and misappropriation of property seized by order of the tribunal. There are three Mixed Tribunals of First Instance, with a Court of Appeal sitting at Alexandria.

The foreign debt of Egypt began in 1862, when loans amounting to 3,292,800*l.* were issued for the purpose of*extinguishing the floating debt. Other issues followed in rapid succession. The dual control by England and France began in 1879. In January, 1880, the two Controllers-General reported that Egypt could not possibly meet her engagements in full, and in July the Liquidation Law, in accordance with the recommendation of an International Commission of the Great Powers, was promulgated. By this law the Unified debt was reduced to 4 per cent. interest; further conversions were made, and the Unified debt thus increased to 60,958,240*l*; certain unconsolidated liabilities were added to the Preference debt, which thus rose to 22,743,800*l*; and the Daira Sania debt was increased to 9,512,900*l*., the interest being reduced to 4 per cent. In 1885 and subsequent years further loans and conversions were entered into.

The Daira Sania and the Domains loans were paid off on October 15, 1905, and June 1, 1913, respectively. The amount and the charge of the various debts in April, 1921, were as follows :—

—	Debt	Charge
	£	£E
Guaranteed Loan, 3 per cent.	5,872,000	307,125
Privileged Debt, 8½ per cent.	31,127,780	1,062,285
Unified Debt, 4 per cent.	55,971,960	2,182,906
Total	92,971,740	3,552,266

On April 1, 1921, the debt stood at £stg. 92,971,740, inclusive of the amount of £stg. 6,826,860 held by the Government and the Caisse de la Dette Publique. In 1920-21 the debt was reduced by £226,400.

The charges on account of debts of all kinds (including tribute), as shown in the estimates for 1921-22, amount to £E4,611,378.

In 1888 and 1890, reserve funds were established, the balances of which, in virtue of the Anglo-French Convention of April 4, 1904, were placed at the disposal of the Egyptian Government in 1905, less certain sums remaining in the hands of the Caisse de la Dette Publique for the service of the debt. The amount received by the Egyptian Government was carried to a General Reserve Fund. In this Fund on April 1, 1921, there was a balance of £E1,513,606.

Defence.

EGYPTIAN ARMY.

On September 19, 1882, the existing Egyptian army was disbanded. The organisation of a new army was entrusted to a British general officer, who was given the title of Sirdar. Service is compulsory, but, owing to the small contingent required, only a fraction (4 per cent.) of the men who are liable actually serve. Service is for three years. In the Sudanese battalions service is voluntary and extended. The army consists of 5 squadrons of cavalry, a camel corps, 5 batteries, 18 battalions of infantry (of which 6 are Sudanese and 1 is a special "Equatorial" battalion), a railway battalion, and various departments. Most of the higher posts are held by British officers. The strength of the army is about 17,000.

ARMY OF OCCUPATION.

Before the outbreak of war in August, 1914, the British garrison, or army of occupation, consisted of a cavalry regiment, a horse artillery battery, a mountain battery, a company of engineers, and 4 battalions (one company in Cyprus) stationed in the Nile Delta, and of a battalion of infantry and detachment of garrison artillery stationed in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. The establishment, including departmental services, was 6,067 of all ranks.

In 1920 the British garrison consisted of 1 regiment of cavalry, 1 battery R.H.A., 7 battalions of infantry, with detachments of engineers and garrison artillery, making a total of 11,605. In addition there were Indian troops to the number of 20,463. At the end of the year this garrison was in process of reduction.

Production and Industry.

The cultivable area of Egypt proper was reckoned in 1920 at 7,806,793 feddâns (1 feddân = 1·038 acre), and of this 2,754,815 were uncultivated for want of reclamation. The land-tax has been readjusted, the old distinction between Kharâgi and Ushûri tax has disappeared, and the taxes on land range from 2 piastres (1 piastre = 2½d.) to 164 piastres per feddân according to the rental value. The corvée, or forced labour, has been abolished, but the inhabitants are still called out to guard or repair the Nile banks in flood time, and are also liable in any sudden emergency; in 1913 none were called out; in 1914, 21,600; in 1916, 113,000. The agricultural population (Fellahin) forms about 62 per cent. of the whole. A large proportion of them are small landholders with under 51 feddâns, while others, almost or altogether landless, are labourers, the relation between the employers and the employed being mostly hereditary. The following table shows, for 1920, the number of landholders and the distribution of the land among foreigners and natives:—

The Egyptian agricultural year includes three seasons or crops. The leading winter crops, sown in November and harvested in May and June, are cereal produce of all kinds; the principal summer crops, sown in March and harvested in October and November, are cotton, sugar, and rice; the autumn crops, sown in July and gathered in September and October, are rice, maize, millet, and vegetables generally. In Fayûm and Lower Egypt, where perennial irrigation is effected by means of a network of canals tapping the Nile and traversing the Delta in every direction, the chief crops are cotton, rice, Indian corn, wheat, barley, clover, cucumber; in Upper Egypt, south of Deirût, where the basin system of irrigation, i.e. submersion at high Nile, is generally adhered to, cereals and vegetables are produced; north of Deirût the same conditions prevail as in Lower Egypt, except that no rice is grown. Where there is perennial irrigation, two or three crops are secured annually.

Extensive reservoir works, consisting of a dam at Aswân, a barrage at Esna, a barrage at Asyût, and a barrage at Zifta, have been completed. The original storage capacity of the reservoir was 1,065,000,000 cubic metres. The level of the dam has been raised by 6 metres and the capacity of the reservoir increased to 2,423,000,000 cubic metres. The barrage at Esna ensures adequate irrigation to a large area of basin land even in a year of low Nile. North of Deirût an area of approximately half a million acres has been converted from basin to perennial irrigation in the last ten years. The area and production of cotton in six years were :—

Season	Area. Feddans	Crop. Qantârs	Season	Area. Feddans	Crop. Qantârs
1913-14	1,723,000	7,664,000	1918-19	1,361,000	4,821,000
1916-17	1,656,000	5,060,000	1919-20	1,574,000	5,572,000
1917-18	1,677,000	6,293,000	1920-21	1,228,000	—

The area under cotton in 1921 was 1,292,000 feddans.

In 1920 the area and yield of wheat were 1,190,290 acres and 863,022 tons; barley, 340,231 acres and 227,489 tons; maize, 1,937,869 acres; millet, 258,188 acres; rice, 164,228 acres; sugar-cane, 53,475 acres.

In 1920 the sugar exported amounted to 13,795 tons, valued at £E1,144,987 and the cotton exported amounted to 4,001,467 qantârs, valued at £E75,096,026 (1 qantâr=99·05 lbs.).

The principal mineral products in 1919 were (in metric tons): Phosphate rock, 29,000; petrol-um, 224,000; manganese iron ore, 49,000; nitrate shale, 3,900; carbonates and sulphate of soda, 1,400; ochres, 44; sulphate of alumina, 54; sulphate of magnesia, 269. The production of gold was 2,152 oz. Other products are: talc, building stones, clay, gypsum, natron, nitrate of soda, salt, and turquoise. The following minerals are also known to exist, namely, alum, copper ore, beryl, granito, ornamental stones, and sulphur.

Of the total imports in 1919, the value of £E34,882,872 and of the exports the value of £E72,453,908, passed through the port of Alexandria: 1920 imports £E80,988,567, exports £E82,456,180; 1921, imports £E45,191,215, exports £E34,316,779.

Goods imported into Egypt are examined by experts, who determine their value according to the market price in their original country, plus the cost of transport, freight, insurance, &c. In order, however, to facilitate customs operations, the administration, in communication with the merchants interested, establishes, on the same basis as above, periodical tariffs for common articles of importation. In the statistics of the Custom House, the values are taken according to the estimated price which served as the basis for the payment of duty, now fixed at 8 per cent. ad valorem (except coal, liquid fuel, charcoal, firewood, petroleum; oxen, cows, sheep and goats, whether alive or cold stored, the duty on which was reduced to 4 per cent. ad valorem from November 25, 1905; and alcoholic drinks, perfumes, and alcoholic extracts, on which the duty was raised to 10 per cent on April 30, 1915). As regards exports, there are tariffs for nearly all of them, estimated in the same manner as the tariffs of imports. The quantities recorded in statistics are those declared by the merchants and controlled by the Customs.

The origin of imports and destination of exports are declared by importers and exporters and controlled, as much as possible, by the searchers and appraisers of the Custom House.

The number of passengers (civil and military) who went through the canal was, in 1913, 282,235 ; 1916, 283,030 ; 1917, 142,313 ; 1918, 105,914 ; 1919, 527,502 ; 1920, 500,147.

The Suez Canal is 103 miles long, including 4 miles of approach channels for the harbours, connecting the Mediterranean with the Red Sea, opened for navigation November 17, 1869. The concession to the Suez Canal Company expires on November 17, 1968.

Internal Communications.

On March 31, 1921, there were (exclusive of sidings) 2,311 miles of rails (double and single) belonging to and worked by the State, and 721 miles of rails of agricultural light railways owned by private companies: 1,146 miles of State and 623 miles of companies' rails are in the Delta, and 1,165 miles of State and 98 miles of light railways are in Upper Egypt. This is exclusive of the Sudan military railway to Khartoum, 375 miles long, of gauge 3 ft. 6 in. The railways have a gauge of 4 ft. 8½ in. inside rails, except the line from Luxor to Assuan, which is 3 ft. 6 in. gauge, and that to the Western Oases, which is 2 ft. 5½ in.

In May, 1918, Cairo was connected by railway with the Palestine system, by the completion of a swing-bridge over the Suez Canal at Kantara.

The length of line of the State Railways (excluding the auxiliary railways of Upper Egypt, 268 miles, and the Western Oasis railway, 141 miles) in 1920 was 1,902 miles ; the number of passengers carried in 1920-21, 30,548,000; weight of goods carried, including service transports, 5,466,956 tons; and the net receipts, £E157,744.

The working expenses, £E7,891,318 in 1920-21, represent an average of 98·04 per cent. of the gross receipts, which were £E8,049,062.

The telegraphs and telephones belonging to the Egyptian Government were, on March 31, 1920, of a total length of 8,558 miles, the length of the wire being 21,506 miles. The Eastern Telegraph Company, by concessions, have telegraph lines across Egypt from Alexandria via Cairo to Suez, and from Port Said to Suez, connecting their cables to England and India. The number of telegrams in 1920 was 2,782,395, as against 2,711,228 in 1919, not including railway service telegrams and those sent by the Eastern Telegraph.

There were, in 1920, 2,846 post offices and stations. In the internal service (1920) there passed through the post-office 50,349,000 letters and post-cards, and 19,244,000 newspapers, &c., and samples; in the external service, 26,167,000 letters and post-cards, and 9,058,000 newspapers, &c., and samples. Official correspondence, not here included, amounted in 1920 to 8,162,000 articles. Receipts £E539,776; expenses £E462,242.

Banks and Credit.

The National Bank has a capital of 3,000,000*l.* with reserve funds amounting to 2,000,000*l.* The Agricultural Bank has a capital of 3,740,000*l.* It has Government guarantee of interest at 3 per cent., and it lends money to the Fellahin at 8 per cent. interest.

There are in addition eight mortgage banks and five ordinary banks working chiefly in Egypt with a total paid up capital of £E41,011,369, i.e., £E39,381,066 for the former and £E1,630,303 for the latter. The reserve funds of these two groups of banks and of the National and the Agricultural Banks of Egypt amount to £E5,220,330 and £E3,091,368 respectively.

In 1901, a Post-Office Savings Bank was opened, and on December 31 of that year, it had 6,740 depositors with balances amounting to £E47,492. On December 31, 1920, the depositors numbered 222,260, and their balances amounted to £E1,140,300.

In April, 1912, a rural savings bank service was inaugurated. At the end of that year the balance of deposits in the new branch amounted to £E25,413, and the number of accounts to 127,927. On December 31, 1920, the balance amounted to £E11,233, and the number of accounts to 57,974. The balance of deposits in the savings banks of the foreign banks on the same date amounted to £E754,903 and the number of depositors to 10,169.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

MONEY.

By decree of October 18, 1916 (20 Zi-l-Higga 1334), the monetary unit of Egypt is the gold Egyptian pound of 100 piastres. It weighs 8·5 grammes ·875 fine, and therefore contains 7·4375 grammes of fine gold. Its value in sterling is £1 0*s.* 6½*d.* A new coinage was introduced at the same time. It replaces the monogram of the Sultan of Turkey by that of the Sultan of Egypt.

The 10-piastre silver piece weighs 14 grammes ·833 fine, and therefore contains 11·67 grammes of fine silver. The piastre is worth 2·46*d.* in English money. It is subdivided into tenths (ushr el girsh or millièmes).

Coins in circulation are the Egyptian pound (100 piastres) and half pound in gold; 20, 10, 5, and 2 piastre pieces in silver; 1, ½, ¼, ⅓ piastre pieces in nickel, and $\frac{1}{16}$ piece in bronze. Silver coin is legal tender only up to £E2, and nickel or bronze coins up to 10 piastres. For some years gold coins have not been issued, and the gold circulating in Egypt and the Sudan is almost exclusively English sovereigns, which are legal tender at the rate of 97½ piastres. The gold pieces of the Latin Monetary Union equivalent to the French 20 franc piece are permitted to circulate at a uniform rate of £E0.7715.

Bank notes are issued by the National Bank in various denominations from £E0.25 to £E100. They are in principle not legal tender, but since the war they have been made legal tender and inconvertible. Their circulation has received an extraordinary impetus since the withdrawal of gold from circulation. The amount issued at the end of 1920 was about £E40,000,000, whereas it had never previous to the war surpassed £E3,000,000. In 1918 the Egyptian Government issued Currency Notes of 10 piastres and 5 piastres.

Egyptian money is now minted at the Birmingham and other foreign Mints. The nominal value of the coinage (including recoinage) from 1887 to 1919 was:—

The principal units of Egyptian weights and measures are defined in terms of the metre of the "Commission Internationale du mètre" by the Law No. 10 of September 26, 1914. The equivalents remain the same as were defined by the Decree of April 28, 1891.

Measures of length: Diraa baladi = 0 metre 58 centimetres.

„ weight: Dirhem = 3 grams 12 centigrams.

„ capacity: Ardeb = 198 litres.

MEASURE OF CAPACITY.

The Ardeb is equal to 43.555 gallons, or 5.44436 bushels.

The approximate weight of the ardeb is as follows:—Wheat, 334 rotls; beans, 345 rotls; barley, 267 rotls; maize, 312 rotls; cotton seed, 270.

WEIGHTS.

Okieh = 1.3207 ounce.

Rotl = .99049 lb.

Oke = 2.7513 lbs.

Qantâr { or 100 Rotls or } = 99.0493 lbs.
36 Okes

LENGTH MEASURES.

ANGLO-EGYPTIAN SUDAN.

Government.

The rule of Egypt in the Sudan, after having gradually extended during the course of 60 years, was interrupted in 1882 by the revolt of the Mahdi, who, with his successor, the Khalifa, held the country for about sixteen years under a desolating tyranny. In 1896 the Anglo-Egyptian army commenced operations for the recovery of the lost provinces, and on September 2, 1898, the overthrow of the Khalifa was completed. In November, 1899, he was overtaken by the Egyptian forces near Gedid, where he was slain in battle, and his remaining followers taken prisoners.

A convention between the British and Egyptian Governments, signed at Cairo, January 19, 1899, provides for the administration of the territory south of the 22nd parallel of latitude by a Governor-General, appointed by Egypt with the assent of Great Britain, and declares the general principles in accordance with which the administration shall be carried on. The British and Egyptian flags shall be used together; laws shall be made by proclamation; no duties shall be levied on imports from Egypt, and duties on imports from other countries, via the Red Sea, shall not exceed those levied in Egypt; the import and export of slaves is prohibited, and special attention shall be paid to the Brussels Act of 1890 respecting the import and export of arms, ammunition, and spirits.

The Sudan has been divided into fifteen Provinces. The Governors of provinces are British Officers of the Egyptian Army employed under the Sudan Government or British civil officials of the Government. Administration is carried out through British Inspectors in charge of one or more districts into which the provinces are subdivided, these units being supervised by District officials who are still in most cases Egyptian officers lent from the Egyptian Army, although an increasing number of natives of the country are being employed in administrative posts.

In 1910 a Governor-General's Council was created to assist the Governor-General in the discharge of his executive and legislative powers. All ordinances, laws and regulations are now made by the Governor-General in Council.

The Enclave of Lado, which was continued in the occupation of H.M. King Leopold II, King of the Belgians, during his reign, by the Agreement signed at Brussels on May 12, 1906, reverted to the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan on his death, and has been included in the Mongalla province.

Area and Population.

Extending southwards from the frontier of Egypt to Uganda and the Belgian Congo (approximately N. lat. 5°), a distance of about 1,650 miles, and stretching from the Red Sea to the confines of Wadai in Central Africa, the subject territory has an area of about 1,014,400 square miles.

The population in 1917 was estimated at 3,400,000. The Gambela Enclave which is situated within the boundaries of Abyssinia, is leased by the Sudan Government from the Abyssinian Government as a Trading Post. The Eritrea-Sudan frontier has been completely delimited and demarcated, as also has the greater part of the frontier with Abyssinia (see under Abyssinia). The chief towns are: Khartum, population 23,083, the capital; Omdurman (the old Dervish capital), population 50,429; Khartum North, population 15,978; Halfa, Merowé, El Damer, Athara, Port Sudan, Suakin, Kassala, El Dueim, Kosti, El Obeid, Nahud, Wad Medani, Singa, and El Fasher.

Instruction.

The schools under the Central Authority are classified as follows:—There are first the elementary vernacular schools (Kuttab), 79 in number (December, 1920), situated in all parts of the country, and with a total number of about 7,649 pupils. In these schools instruction is given to boys from 7 to 10 years of age in reading, writing, arithmetic and religion. Next there are the primary schools, of which there are now six—at Khartum, Omdurman, Wad Medani, Athara, El Obeid, and Suakin. The subjects taught in schools of this class include English, Arabic, Mathematics, and the total number of boys in attendance is 1,106. After completing their primary course, boys can proceed to the upper school at the Gordon College, or they may be employed as clerks or translators in Government Offices. The upper school at Gordon College is attended by 98 pupils, some of whom take a course in engineering and surveying, while the rest are trained to be teachers in primary schools or translators. There is also in the Gordon College buildings a training college attended by 81 students, who undergo a five years' course of training, after which they are drafted out as Kadis in district courts, or a four years' course and drafted out as teachers in elementary vernacular schools. The industrial workshops, of which there are at present two, at Khartum and Omdurman, are attended by 201 boy apprentices. At Khartum smith work, carpentry, fitting, &c., are taught, and at Omdurman stone-cutting, pottery, and brick-work. A primary school has been constructed adjacent to the Gordon College, and some of the boys board in the Gordon College. A start has been made in the education of girls by the opening of girls' schools at Rufaa, El Obeid, Dongola, Merowe, and Kamlin, which are attended by 261 girls altogether. Affiliated to the Gordon College are the Wellcome Tropical Research Laboratories, where investigations are carried on in connection with diseases and with the economic products of the country.

At Khartum North, a Central Research Farm for the furtherance of agricultural research and education is carried on under the Department of Agriculture.

The geological survey, the antiquities service, and the natural history museum are also attached to the Education Department.

Justice.

The High Court of Justice for the trial of civil suits comprises the Court of Appeal and Courts of original jurisdiction. Judges of the High Court sitting singly have general original jurisdiction. The Court of Appeal is constituted by three or more Judges of the High Court sitting together, all Judges of the High Court being members of the Court of Appeal.

The general superintendence of the High Court is vested in the Chief Justice. In addition to the Chief Justice there are four Judges of the High Court, three of whom are British barristers, and one promoted from the Sudan Civil Service. The High Court sits at Khartum, but judges from time to time go on circuit.

Subordinate to the High Court of Justice in every province is the Province Court. This comprises a Province Judge, except in Khartum Province, and District Judges of three grades. Appeals from decisions of a District Judge lie to the Province Judge, except in Khartum Province, where such appeals lie to the High Court. Appeals from decisions of a Province Judge lie to the High Court.

In Provinces where there is neither a High Court Judge nor a specially appointed Province Judge the Governor acts as Province Judge, and in any District where there is no specially appointed District Judge the provincial inspectors and district officers act as District Judges.

The Mohammedan Law Courts administer the Moslem religious law in cases between Mohammedans relating to succession on death, marriage, divorce, and family relations generally, and also Mohammedan charitable endowments.

Criminal justice is administered either by single magistrates, or courts of three magistrates. Judges of the High Court, and District Judges of the first grade, governors, and inspectors of provinces, and the district officials above-mentioned, are the magistrates. Decisions of courts require confirmation either by the Governor of the province or by the Governor-General, both of whom have extensive powers of revision. Appeal lies from convictions by magistrates other than Governors, where the sentence exceeds two months' imprisonment or 2*l.* fine.

The Sudan penal code is an adaptation of the Indian penal code.

The Legal Secretary fulfils the duties of a Minister of Justice.

Finance.

The revenue and expenditure of the Sudan are stated as follows (£l. = £1 0*s.* 6*d.*) :—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£ l.	£ l.		£ l.	£ l.
1913(pre-war)	1,568,352	1,533,065	1919 . .	2,902,792	2,720,513
1916 . .	1,857,856	1,745,532	1920 . .	4,425,340	3,564,848
1917 . .	2,195,355	1,901,941	1921 ¹ . .	4,026,000	4,026,000

The revenue is derived mainly from Land Tax (£*l.*337,781 in 1920); Animal Tax (£*l.*198,977 in 1920); Royalties (£*l.*115,224 in 1920); Customs (£*l.*522,804 in 1920); Railways and Steamers (£*l.*1,965,052 in 1920); Posts and Telegraphs (£*l.*54,207 in 1920).

From 1914 onwards, the figures do not include the revenue and expenditure of Local Provincial Services, which amounted in 1920 to £*l.*207,691 and £*l.*186,118 respectively.

Production and Commerce.

The Sudan is the chief source of the world's supply of gum arabic (exports, 1920, 12,109 tons, £*l.*560,925) and ivory (exports 1920, 45 tons, £*l.*78,819). Egyptian cotton has been successfully established on the Nile, as well as in the Tokar district of the Red Sea Province, and increasing quantities of cotton, which compare favourably with corresponding varieties grown in Egypt, are being produced annually. The Gezira irrigation project (by means of the dam on the Blue Nile at Makwar, about 170 miles south of Khartum) will enable 100,000 acres to be put under cotton in a few years' time with unlimited scope for extension. Cotton area, 1920, 59,026 feddans; crop 1920-21 estimated at 93,000 kantars. Other products include sesame, senna leaves and pods, ground-nuts, dates, hides and skins, and gold. The principal grain crops are dura, a kind of millet used for making bread, and dukhn. Estimated yield of dura, 1920, 472,600 tons.

284 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—ANGLO-EGYPTIAN SUDAN

The cattle trade in the Sudan shows remarkable growth in recent years, and the number exported is increasing yearly. The reason for this is that while it is easy for the native to raise cattle, the Government on their part, through an efficient and well-organised Veterinary Department, is endeavouring to foster the trade, to eliminate cattle diseases, and to improve the quality of live-stock.

The forests which line the river banks, rich in fibres and tanning material, extend to the frontiers of Abyssinia. On the White Nile the forests contain valuable trees—the ebony tree, the gum acacia, the bamboo, and the rubber creeper. The finest gum forests are in Kordofan, and the best rubber in the Bahr el Ghazal.

Gold is the only mineral at present being successfully exploited in the Sudan, a mine being worked at Gabait.

Internal Communications.

The railway from Wadi Halfa to Khartum, which was constructed for military purposes during the re-conquest, was declared open for general traffic on December 12, 1899. A connection with the Red Sea at Port Sudan was opened in October, 1905; a connection to Karennir in Dongola Province in 1906, and an extension of the line to Sennar and El Obeid was opened for traffic in February, 1912. The total length of line is, approximately, 1,500 miles. The gauge is 3ft. 6in.

All navigable arms of the Nile and its tributaries between Assuan (Egypt) and Refaj are served by a fleet of Government passenger and cargo steamers which maintain a regular scheduled service over more than 2,500 miles of water.

There is telegraphic communication with Egypt, Erythrea, and Abyssinia, and also wireless communication with Gambela in Western Abyssinia. There are 11 wireless stations with ranges varying from 150 to 400 miles. At the beginning of 1921 there were 4,650 miles of telegraph line open, and 7,381 miles of wire. There are 81 stationary Post and Telegraph Offices and 11 travelling Post Offices.

BERMUDAS.

Governor. — General Sir James Willcocks, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., K.C.S.I., D.S.O. (3,300*l.*), assisted by an Executive Council of 6 members appointed by the Crown, a Legislative Council of 9 members, also appointed by the Crown, and a representative House of Assembly of 36 members; 1,436 electors.

A Colony, with representative government, consisting of a group of 360 small islands (about 20 inhabited), 580 miles east of North Carolina, and 677 miles from New York, noted for its climate and scenery; favourite winter resort for Americans, who number some 22,000 annually.

Area, 19·3 square miles (12,360 acres, 4,000 under cultivation). Civil population on December 31, 1920, 21,937 (including 7,509 whites); 12,750 belong to Church of England (census 1911). In 1920 the birth-rate was 26·15 and the death-rate was 17·10 per 1,000; illegitimate births formed 19·4 per cent. of the total births; there were 164 marriages. In 1920 there was an excess of emigration over immigration of 125. Education: There are no Government schools in Bermuda, but education is compulsory, and Government assistance is given by the payment of grants, and, where necessary, school fees. The aided schools must reach a certain standard of efficiency, and submit to Government inspection and control. In 1920, 30 aided primary schools, with 2,617 pupils, received Government grants, 5,146*l.* annually. There are 3 garrison schools and 2 naval schools; about 17 other primary schools, and 4 secondary schools receiving no Government grant. Cambridge local examinations are held in Bermuda. A Government scholarship (200*l.* for 2 years) is provided annually to enable youths educated in Bermuda to go abroad to prepare themselves for a Rhodes scholarship. Chief town, Hamilton, 2,627 population. Bermuda is an important naval base on the North America and West India Station, with dockyard, victualling establishment, &c. Police force, 1920, 44.

Food supplies are mostly imported from the United States and Canada, and nearly all the export produce of Bermuda goes to the United States. The principal imports in 1920 were: provisions, 188,654*l.*; flour and meal, 73,322*l.*; cotton goods, 72,186*l.*; butter, 29,374*l.*; ale and beer, 25,892*l.*; hardware and cutlery, 32,793*l.*; groceries, 41,673*l.*; oats, 33,989*l.*; coal, 101,863*l.*; sugar, 51,116*l.*; apparel, 39,293*l.*; leather wares, 4,743*l.*; frozen meat, 64,030*l.* The principal exports in 1920 were: onions, 58,427*l.*; potatoes, 145,283*l.*; other vegetables, 32,766*l.*

The registered shipping consisted (1920) of 7 steam vessels of 2,189 tons net, and 16 sailing vessels of 3,336 tons net; total net tonnage, 5,525.

In 1920 the total tonnage of vessels entered and cleared was 2,371,064 tons, of which 1,019,373 were British. There are 220 miles of telephone wire under the control of the military, and 15 of telegraph cable. There is also a private telephone company, which has about 775 subscribers and upwards of 1,600 miles of wire. A telegraph cable connects the islands with Halifax, Nova Scotia, and another connects with Turks Island and Jamaica. There were (1920) 19 post offices in the colony; the number of letters and post cards dealt with in the year 1920 was 1,932,969; newspapers, book packets and circulars, 559,415; parcels, 31,599. The post office revenue was 18,501*l.*, and expenditure, 8,516*l.* Savings bank deposits on December 31, 1919 were 43,963*l.*, to the credit of 2,270 depositors.

There are two banks in the Island, the Bank of Bermuda, Ltd., and the Bank of N. T. Butterfield and Son, Ltd., both local. The Colonial Government deals with both. Bills of exchange issued by the Treasury Chest Office in the Colony form the basis of exchange with the outside world.

The currency, weights, and measures are British, but silver coin is legal tender to any amount. The British 1*l.* and 10*s.* notes are legal tender. The Bermuda Government is also authorised to issue 1*l.* notes up to an amount not exceeding 40,000*l.*

(DOMINION OF CANADA.)

Constitution and Government.

The territories which now constitute the Dominion of Canada came under British power at various times, some by settlement and others by conquest or cession. Nova Scotia was occupied in 1627; the Hudson's Bay Company's Charter, conferring rights over the territories to the east and west of the Bay, was granted in 1670; Canada was conquered in 1759 and, along with New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, was formally ceded to Great Britain by France in 1763; Vancouver Island was acknowledged to be British by the Oregon Boundary Treaty of 1846, and British Columbia was occupied in 1858. As originally constituted the Dominion was composed of the provinces of Canada—Upper and Lower Canada, now Ontario and Quebec—Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick. They were united under the provisions of an Act of the Imperial Parliament passed in March, 1867, known as 'The British North America Act, 1867,' which came into operation on July 1, 1867, by royal proclamation. The Act provides that the Constitution of the Dominion shall be 'similar in principle to that of the United Kingdom'; that the executive authority shall be vested in the Sovereign of Great Britain and Ireland, and carried on in his name by a Governor-General and Privy Council; and that the legislative power shall be exercised by a Parliament of two Houses, called the 'Senate' and the 'House of Commons.' The powers of the Federal Parliament include all subjects not assigned exclusively to the provincial legislatures. Provision was made in the Act for the admission of British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, the North-West Territories, and Newfoundland into the Dominion; Newfoundland alone has not availed itself of such provision. In 1869, the extensive region known as the North-West Territories was added to the Dominion by purchase from the Hudson's Bay Company; the province of Manitoba was set apart out of a portion of it, and admitted into the confederation on July 15, 1870. On July 20, 1871, the province of British Columbia was admitted, and by an Imperial Order in Council Prince Edward Island was admitted into the confederation July 1, 1873. The provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were formed from the provisional districts of Alberta, Athabaska, Assiniboia, and Saskatchewan, and were admitted to the Union as provinces on September 1, 1905.

Canadian ministers signed the Peace Treaties with Germany and Austria in 1919 on behalf of Canada, thus making a new status for the Dominion.

The members of the Senate are nominated for life, by summons of the Governor-General under the Great Seal of Canada. The numerical representation of the Senate by provinces down to 1917 was as follows: Prince Edward Island, 4; Nova Scotia, 10; New Brunswick, 10; Quebec, 24; Ontario, 24; Manitoba, 4; Saskatchewan, 4; Alberta, 4; British Columbia, 3; Total, 87. By the Amendment of the British North America Act, 1867 (April, 1915), which came into effect in 1917, the Senate consists of 96 senators—namely, 24 from the province of Ontario, 24 from Quebec, 10 from Nova Scotia, 10 from New Brunswick, 4 from Prince Edward Island, 6 from Manitoba, 6 from British Columbia, 6 from Alberta, and 6 from Saskatchewan. The total number may not exceed 104. Each senator must be 30 years of age, a born or naturalised subject, and must reside in, and be possessed of property, real or personal, of the value of 4,000 dollars, within the province for which he is appointed. The House of Commons is elected by the people, for five years, unless sooner dissolved, at the rate at present of one representative for every 30,819 persons, the province of Quebec always having 65 members, and the other provinces proportionally, according to their populations at each decennial census. The House of Commons consists of 235 members—82 for Ontario, 65 for Quebec, 16 for Nova Scotia, 11 for New Brunswick, 15 for Manitoba, 13 for British Columbia, 4 for Prince Edward Island, 16 for Saskatchewan, 12 for Alberta, and 1 for the Yukon Territory. The members are elected by constituencies. Voting is by ballot. Women have the vote and are eligible for election to the Federal Parliament.

A General Election took place December 6, 1921. Result: Liberals, 117; Progressives, 65; Conservatives, 51; Labour, 2.

The Speaker in the House of Commons has a salary of 6,000 dollars per annum, and each member an allowance of 4,000 dollars for the session with a deduction of 25 dollars per day for every day beyond fifteen on which the member does not attend a sitting of the House. The Leader of the Opposition receives 10,000 dollars in addition to his ordinary sessional allowance.

The Speaker and members of the Senate have the same allowances as members of the House of Commons, with no extra allowances.

Governor-General.—General the Lord Byng of Vimy, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., M.V.O. Appointed August 2, 1921. Salary, 50,000 dollars per annum.

He is assisted in his functions, under the provisions of the Act of 1867, by a Council composed of heads of departments.

King's Privy Council (appointed December, 1921).—

Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs.—Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King.

Minister of Militia and Minister of Naval Service.—Hon. George Perry Graham.

Postmaster-General.—Hon. Charles Murphy.

Minister of Railways and Canals.—Hon. William Costello Kennedy.

Minister of Justice.—Hon. Sir Lomer Gouin, K.C.M.G.

Minister of Labour.—Hon. James Murdoch.

Minister of Trade and Commerce.—Hon. James Alexander Robb.

Minister of Customs.—Hon. Jacques Bureau, LL.B.

Minister of Marine and Fisheries.—Hon. Ernest Lapointe, K.C.

Secretary of State.—Hon. Arthur Bliss Copp, LL.B.

Minister of Finance.—Hon. William Stevens Fielding.

Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment and Minister of Health.—Hon. Henri Severin Beland, M.D.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. W. R. Motherwell.

Minister of the Interior and Mines.—Hon. Charles Stewart.

Minister of Public Works.—Hon. Dr. J. H. King.

Solicitor-General.—Hon. Daniel D. Mackenzie.

Ministers without Portfolios.—Hon. John Ewen Sinclair, Hon. (Senator) Raoul Dandurand, LL.D., K.C., Hon. Thomas Low.

Each minister has a salary of 10,000 dollars a year, and the Prime Minister has 15,000 dollars, in addition to 4,000 dollars sessional allowance.

There is a Department of External Affairs, which has charge of all Imperial and inter-Dominion Correspondence passing between Ottawa and Downing Street, and between Ottawa and the sister Dominions and Colonies. It is also the medium of communication between the Dominion Government and the foreign Consuls in Canada. An arrangement has been concluded between the British and Canadian Governments to provide more complete representation at Washington of Canadian interests than has hitherto existed. Accordingly, it has been agreed that his Majesty, on the advice of his Canadian Ministers, shall appoint a Minister Plenipotentiary, who will have charge of Canadian affairs, and will be at all times the ordinary channel of communication with the United States Government in matters of purely Canadian concern, acting upon instructions from and reporting direct to the Canadian Government. In the absence of the Ambassador, the Canadian Minister will take charge of the whole Embassy, and of the representation of Imperial as well as Canadian interests. No appointment has yet (January, 1922) been made under this arrangement.

PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT.

The nine provinces have each a separate parliament and administration, with a Lieutenant-Governor appointed by the Governor-General at the head of the executive. They have full powers to regulate their own local affairs and dispose of their revenues, provided only they do not interfere with the action and policy of the central administration. Among the subjects assigned exclusively to the provincial legislature are: the amendment of the provincial constitution, except as regards the office of the Lieutenant-Governor; direct taxation for revenue purposes; borrowing; management and sale of crown lands; provincial hospitals, reformatories, &c.; shop, saloon, tavern, auctioneer, and other licences for local or provincial purposes; local works and undertakings, except lines of ships, railways, canals, telegraphs, &c., extending beyond the province or connecting with other provinces, and also except such works as the Federal Parliament declare are for the general good; marriages; administration of justice within the province; education. Quebec and Nova Scotia have each two Chambers (a Legislative Council and a Legislative Assembly) and a responsible Ministry. In New Brunswick, Ontario, Manitoba, British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, Alberta and Saskatchewan there is only one Chamber (the Legislative Assembly) and a responsible Ministry. The members of the Legislative Council of Nova Scotia number 18, and Quebec 24. The membership of the Legislative Assemblies is—Prince Edward Island 30, Nova Scotia 43, New Brunswick 48, Quebec 81, Ontario 111, Manitoba 55, British Columbia 47, Alberta 58, and Saskatchewan 62. The North-West Territories, comprising all the territories formerly known as Rupert's Land, and the North-Western Territory except the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the district of Keewatin, and the Yukon Territory, are governed by a Commissioner and a Council of four, appointed by the Governor in Council at Ottawa. The territory of Yukon is governed by a Chief Executive Officer and an Executive Council of three members elected by the people.

The total 'urban' population of Canada in 1911 is given as 3,280,964, against 2,021,799 in 1901. Of the number in 1911, 270,000 were in 'cities and towns' of under 1,000 inhabitants.

While the registration of births, marriages and deaths is under provincial control, the statistics for eight of the nine provinces are now by arrangement compiled on a uniform system by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Quebec compiles its own vital statistics. The following table gives the result for 1920, the first year of the new system. The rates given are based upon estimated populations.

Instruction.

The Provincial Governments have control of education in elementary schools, secondary schools, normal schools and universities; the systems are all based on the principle of free education, the funds being supplied in nearly all the provinces by Government grants and local taxation. Education is more or less compulsory, but the law is not very strictly enforced. In Ontario, Quebec, Alberta, and Saskatchewan there are separate schools for Roman Catholics; in the other provinces the schools are unsectarian.

Each province has one or more universities (22 in all, with 2,998 professors and teachers, and 28,486 students, in 1919-20), and several colleges. The provincial universities are supported by the Government, and include those of New Brunswick, Toronto, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia. Those on private foundation, comprise Dalhousie, McGill, Queen's (formerly denominational and now State-aided), and Western, of London, Ontario. The denominational universities include King's, Acadia, and St. Francois Xavier, all of Nova Scotia; Sackville, New Brunswick; Laval, Bishop's College, and Lennoxville, of Quebec; and McMaster and Ottawa, in Ontario. There are in all about 43 colleges; attendance, 10,902 during the academic year 1919-20.

Justice and Crime.

There is a Supreme Court in Ottawa, having appellate, civil and criminal jurisdiction in and throughout Canada. There is an exchequer court, which is also a colonial court of admiralty, with powers as provided in the Imperial 'Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890.' There is a Superior Court in each province; county courts, with limited jurisdiction, in most of the provinces; all the judges in these courts being appointed by the Governor-General. Police magistrates and justices of the peace are appointed by the Provincial Governments.

In 1920, 23,213 persons were charged with indictable offences; of these 18,443 were convicted. Also 144,265 were summarily convicted.

The North-West Mounted Police and the Dominion Police have been amalgamated, and are known as the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Finance.

Financial accounts are under three headings—first, 'Consolidated Fund,' comprising the general sources of revenue and branches of expenditure; secondly, 'Loans' in revenue, and 'Redemption' with 'Premiums and Discounts' in expenditure; and thirdly, 'Open accounts.' The headings 'Loans' and 'Redemption' include the deposits in and withdrawals from the Post Office and Government Savings Banks, the amount on deposit forming part of the floating or unfunded debt of the country. Under the head of 'Open Accounts' are included investments, trust funds, Province accounts, and expenditure on capital account on public works.

The following relates to the Consolidated Fund (dollars converted at rate of 4'86=£):—

Years ended March 31	Net revenue	Expenditure

Defence.

Under the Militia Act of 1904, the command in chief of the militia is vested in the King, by whom, or by the Governor-General as his representative, it is exercised and administered. The Act further provides for the appointment of a Minister of Militia and Defence, charged with the administration of militia affairs, and of a Deputy Minister; also for the appointment of a Militia Council. This includes, besides the Minister and Deputy Minister, four military members—the Chief of the General Staff, the Adjutant-General, the Quartermaster-General, and the Master-General of the Ordnance. There is also an Inspector-General whose duty it is to inspect the forces and report to the Militia Council on their readiness for war, but he has no seat in Council.

The Canadian land forces are divided into the active militia and the reserve militia. The active militia consists of a permanent force and of a non-permanent force, the latter divided into city and rural corps. Service in the active militia is voluntary and for three years, but the Government has the power to apply compulsion should the necessity arise. The permanent force comprises all arms of the service and is composed of a number of permanently embodied units. It provides personnel for the various schools of military instruction and garrisons for the fortresses, where a permanent element is necessary for defence, for the maintenance of works and for the preservation of armaments. The non-permanent active militia undergoes an annual period of training, which varies from 12 to 16 days, according to the arms of the service and the location of the corps, i.e., whether they are city or rural. The reserve militia has not yet been organised.

The authorised establishment for the permanent force is approximately 6,700. The non-permanent active militia is comprised of such corps as from time to time are authorised by the Governor-General in Council. In pre-war days its strength was approximately 68,000.

The above organisations are supplemented by numerous cadet corps and rifle associations. The Royal Military College at Kingston provides both a military and a general education. It trains officers both for the permanent force and for the remainder of the active militia, and a certain number of commissions in the British regular army are granted annually to its cadets.

Schemes for a Canadian Navy have been mooted but are at present somewhat in abeyance. The old cruisers Niobe and Rainbow, taken over as training ships, have been employed in commerce protection, and are now to be sold. The local force consists otherwise of a number of miscellaneous gun-vessels and icebreakers, some of which are on the Great Lakes. At the outbreak of the war two submarines, which were building in the United States for Chile, were bought (C. C. 1 and 2), and are on the Pacific coast; two submarines (H 4 and 5) have been allocated to the Dominion by the British Admiralty. Two destroyers of the 'M' class, Patrician and Patriot, have been acquired; completed 1916, 980 tons, 35 knots, three 4-in. and smaller guns.

Production and Industry.

Agriculture.—In 1911, there were 48,375,000 acres of improved land out of 109,777,085 acres of occupied land. The value in 1919 of the agricultural wealth of Canada has been estimated as follows: agricultural production, 1,976 million dollars; value of farm lands, 2,792; buildings, 928; implements, 387; and farm live stock, 1,297; total, 7,380 million dollars. The following table, compiled from data collected at the Dominion censuses of 1901 and 1911, shows the distribution of farm holdings according to size in the whole of Canada and in the Provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan for the two years named:—

Production of apples in 1920: 3,404,000 barrels, value 29,849,000 dollars; tobacco: 48,089,000 lbs., value over 13,000,000 dollars. The live-stock in Canada on June 15, 1921, comprised 3,814,000 horses, 3,737,000 milk cows, 6,469,000 other cattle, 3,676,000 sheep, 3,905,000 swine, 34,340,000 fowls, 2,842,000 turkeys, geese, and ducks. In 1921, there were divided among ranches in Manitoba, 140,629 acres, British Columbia, 417,234 acres, Alberta, 2,908,315 acres, and Saskatchewan, 3,021,556 acres: total, 6,487,634 acres (6,201 ranches). The wool clip in Canada for 1920 is estimated at 24 million lbs. The number of dairy factories in operation in 1920 was 3,161. In 1920 the production of creamery butter was 111,691,718 lbs., value, 63,625,203 dollars; of factory cheese, 149,201,856 lbs., value 39,100,872 dollars; of condensed milk, 53,662,699 lbs., valued at 10,202,230 dollars; evaporated milk, 30,469,642 lbs., valued at 3,809,653 dollars; whole milk sold, 28,199,796 gallons, valued at 14,249,858 dollars.

Forestry.—The total area of land covered by timber is officially estimated at between 500 and 600 million acres. Of this 200 to 300 million acres are covered with commercial timber. This is distributed by provinces as follows :—

	Acres		Acres
British Columbia . . .	50,000,000	Quebec	100,000,000
Manitoba, Saskatchewan, . . .		New Brunswick	9,000,000
Alberta	11,000,000	Nova Scotia	5,000,000
Ontario	70,000,000

The forest products (wood and wood products, unmanufactured) exported to the United Kingdom in 1920-21, amounted in value to 23,236,125 dollars, out of a total of 115,684,475 dollars. The estimated value of the total forest products for the calendar year 1918 was 190,000,000 dollars. The exportable surplus of the wood pulp industry was 71,552,037 dollars in 1920-21, chiefly to Great Britain and the United States. The Crown forests belong to the Provincial Governments, except in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, and the Railway Belt (forty miles wide) in British Columbia, where they belong to the Dominion.

The total capital invested in the lumber industry in 1919 was 231,203,247 dollars. The aggregate value of production (lumber, lath, shingles, etc.) was 222,648,790 dollars (Ontario, 60,565,554 dollars; Quebec, 61,493,919; British Columbia, 60,440,773; New Brunswick, 26,713,403 dollars; Nova Scotia, 8,331,824 dollars; Saskatchewan, 1,913,847 dollars; Manitoba, 1,497,486 dollars; Alberta, 1,393,183 dollars; Prince Edward Island, 286,121 dollars; Yukon, 12,680). There were 3,410 mills; 73,480 persons employed; wages and salaries came to 60,999,020 dollars; cost of materials and mill supplies, 72,691,337 dollars; cost of fuel and miscellaneous supplies, 32,125,870 dollars.

Fisheries.—The coast line of the Atlantic Provinces, from the Bay of Fundy to the Strait of Belle Isle, without taking into account the lesser bays and indentations, measures over 5,000 miles. On the Pacific coast the Province of British Columbia, because of its numerous islands, bays, and fiords, has a sea-washed shore of 7,000 miles. In addition to this immense salt-water fishing area Canada has 220,000 square miles of fresh water abundantly stocked with many species of excellent food fishes.

The fisheries of the Atlantic coast may be divided into two distinct classes: The deep sea, which take cod, haddock, hake, pollock, and halibut; and the inshore or coastal, which take cod, hake, haddock, pollock, halibut, herring, mackerel, alewife, shad, smelt, flounder, and sardine. The most extensive lobster fishery known is carried on along the eastern shore of Canada, while excellent oyster beds exist in many parts of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The salmon fishery is the predominant one on the Pacific coast, but an important halibut fishery is also carried on. The inland lake fisheries yield whitefish, trout, pickerel, pike, sturgeon, and fresh-water herring. In the calendar year 1920 the capital invested in vessels, gear, canneries, etc. (including working capital and stocks on hand) was 50,405,478 dollars. The total value of the produce of the fisheries of Canada in that year was 49,241,339 dollars. The principal kinds of fish caught were: salmon, 15,595,970 dollars; lobsters, 7,152,455 dollars; codfish, 6,270,171 dollars; herrings, 3,428,298 dollars; halibut, 4,535,188 dollars; haddock, 1,522,680 dollars; sardines, 860,268 dollars; whitefish, 2,015,299 dollars. The exports were valued at 33,330,364 dollars. The exports of dry-salted codfish were 45,701,400 lb.; canned lobsters, 6,658,500 lb.; fresh lobsters, 5,264,300 lb.; canned salmon, 30,757,800 lb. The number of persons employed in 1920 was 75,696, including those in shore work and canneries. The number of factories and canneries in operation in 1920 was 940. In 1920, according to provinces, the values were: Nova Scotia, 12,742,659 dollars; British Columbia, 23,329,161 dollars; New Brunswick, 4,423,745 dollars; Quebec, 2,592,382 dollars; Ontario, 3,336,412 dollars; Prince Edward Island, 1,708,723 dollars; Manitoba, 1,249,807 dollars; Saskatchewan, 296,472 dollars; Alberta, 529,078 dollars; and Yukon, 33,100 dollars.

Mining.—Nova Scotia, British Columbia, Quebec, N. and W. Ontario, Alberta, and Yukon Territory are the chief mining districts. The total value of the mineral produce was in 1919, 176,686,390 dollars; in 1920, 217,775,080 dollars. The principal metals and minerals produced in 1919 and 1920 were as follows:

Pig-iron is valued at the furnace, non-metallic products at the mine or point of shipment, and structural material and clay products at the point of shipment.

The "actual reserves" of coal in the four provinces of Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia, and Manitoba are estimated at 412,616 million metric tons; and the "probable reserves" at 781,158 millions.

Note—This table includes all establishments, irrespective of the number of persons employed.

Water-power Resources.—These have been estimated at 18 million horse power at ordinary minimum flow, and at 32 million at estimated flow for maximum development. The plants existing in 1921 utilised about 2,470,000 horse power (Ontario, 1,052,000; Quebec, 926,000; British Columbia, 305,000).

Furs.—In the season 1919-20, 3,600,000 pelts of fur-bearing animals were taken, valued at 21,387,000 dollars.

Commerce.

The customs tariff of Canada is protective, but there is a preferential tariff in favour of the United Kingdom and most of the colonies; the duties on direct imports from the United Kingdom and the colonies, &c., being reduced, but alcoholic liquors, liquid medicines, tobacco, and refined sugar from raw sugar produced elsewhere than in British colonies, are excluded from the reduction.

The returns of values of imports and exports are those supplied in entries at the Customs, where imports must be entered for duty at their fair market value as for home consumption in the country of purchase. Quantities are ascertained from invoices and by examination, wines are gauged and spirits tested. The country whence imports are received is the country of purchase or whence shipment was made to Canada; the country of destination is that to which shipment is made. Thus, Canadian wheat, purchased by New York dealers shipped to and entered in bond at New York, and thence exported to Great Britain, would appear only as exported from Canada to the United States. The only Canadian port where transit trade is recorded is Montreal, such trade comprising chiefly goods received from the United States and transhipped to other countries by the St. Lawrence route. Transit trade is not included in the general trade, which comprises all other imports into and exports from Canada. The term "special trade," in Canada, is applied to imports from Newfoundland which are exempt from duties leviable on similar goods from other countries.

All export entries are delivered at the 'frontier port of exit,' and the totals thereof are credited to the respective ports where the goods pass outward from Canada.

On April 9, 1912, a trade agreement providing for preference treatment between the two parties was signed between Canada and the West Indies, to last for 10 years and to come into operation on January 1, 1913. Canada brought the Act into force on June 2, 1913. A new agreement, providing for an extension of the preference, was signed at Ottawa on June 18, 1920. By arrangement between Canada on the one part and the Bahama Islands, Barbados, British Guiana, British Honduras, Leeward Islands, Trinidad and Windward Islands, September 1, 1921, was fixed as the date for bringing the agreement into effect. Jamaica ratified the agreement on October 14, 1920, but further legislation is required to put the preferences in operation. Bermuda was included in the proposed agreement but did not give it the necessary ratification.

Shipping and Navigation.

The registered shipping on December 31, 1919, including vessels for inland navigation, consisted of 4,131 sailing vessels and 4,442 steamers; total net tonnage, 1,091,895. The sea-going and coasting vessels that entered and cleared during the year 1920 were as follows :—

Vessels.	Entered.		Cleared.
	No.	Tons.	No.	Tons.
Sea-going:
Canadian	5,783	2,041,096	6,211	2,393,538

Total	75,600	31,068,852	72,579	29,483,806

In 1920 the vessels entered and cleared at Canadian ports on inland waters between Canada and the United States were : Canadian, 25,394 of 12,434,985 tons; United States, 35,474 of 11,813,794 tons.

Shipbuilding was stimulated by the Imperial Munitions Board. During the year 1918, 103 vessels, having a carrying capacity of 367,367 tons, were launched from Canadian shipyards. The Canadian Government itself has become the owner of a mercantile fleet. Under the Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, 1920 (see p. 304 above), endeavours are to be made to establish regular steamship services between the parties to the Agreement.

Internal Communications.

Canada has a system of canal, river, and lake navigation over 2,700 miles in length, and vessels from the lake ports reach the Atlantic without breaking bulk. Up to 1920, 131,492,773 dollars had been spent on canals for construction and enlargement alone. In 1920, 26,861 vessels, of 12,360,533 tons, passed through the Canadian canals, carrying 230,468 passengers and 8,735,383 tons of freight, chiefly grain, timber, iron ore, and coal. On January 11, 1909, was signed at Washington a treaty between the United Kingdom and the United States relating to the use of the boundary waters between Canada and the United States. The treaty provides for the establishment and maintenance of an international joint commission, consisting of three representatives appointed by H.M. the King on the recommendation of the Governor in Council of the Dominion of Canada, and three appointed by the President of the United States. This commission, subject to the conditions of the treaty, has jurisdiction in all cases involving the use or obstruction or diversion of the boundary waters. Precedence is given by the treaty to uses of the waters in the following order, viz., (1) for domestic and sanitary purposes, (2) for navigation, (3) for power and irrigation.

The total single track mileage, or miles of road, of steam railways in Canada, Dec. 31, 1920, was 39,170, an increase of 112 miles over 1919. The total mileage of all tracks, including sidings, &c., was 51,338. The Canadian Government operates 22,000 miles of road. This includes 9,586 miles of the Canadian Northern System, and 4,318 miles of old Canadian Government lines, and lines purchased recently. The Government is now acting as receiver for the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, with 2,744 miles of road. The Grand Trunk System has been appraised, and has been taken over by the Government. The mileage is 3,563. The Dominion Government is thus operating over 49 per cent. of the single track mileage in Canada. The province of Ontario owns and operates the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario with 329 miles of track. The largest part of the privately owned mileage is owned by the Canadian Pacific, with 13,308 miles, or 34 per cent. of all Canadian mileage. The main line of this road from Vancouver, British Columbia, to St. John, New Brunswick, is 3,367 miles long. The two other Transcontinental lines, the Grand Trunk Pacific and Transcontinental (from Prince Rupert, British Columbia to Moncton, New Brunswick, and Intercolonial Railway from Moncton to Halifax, Nova Scotia), and the Canadian Northern System (Vancouver, British Columbia to Montreal, Quebec and Intercolonial from Montreal to Halifax, Nova Scotia), are now being operated by the Government. There are 144.5 miles of the C.P.R. main line and 43.7 miles of the Canadian Northern main line running through the United States, otherwise these three lines, stretching from the Pacific to the Atlantic, lie wholly within Canada. The single track mileage by Provinces is:—Ontario, 11,001; Quebec, 4,941; Manitoba, 4,189;

Saskatchewan, 6,220; Alberta, 4,474; British Columbia, 4,325; New Brunswick, 1,816; Nova Scotia, 1,438; Prince Edward Island, 279; Yukon, 69; United States of America, 418. There is a monthly steam service between Australia and British Columbia, for which the Dominion Government gave 166,624 dollars in the fiscal year 1919.

The traffic on Canadian steam railways in five years was:—

In 1920, of the capital, 178,965,906 dollars represented Federal Government aid (exclusive of the cost of Government Railways), and 59,860,043 dollars from Provincial Governments and Municipalities. The latter amount does not include cost of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway (22,369,193 dollars).

Electric railways in 1920, 64, mileage 1,699; passengers during the year, 804,711,333; tons of freight carried, 2,691,150. The gross earnings in 1920 reached an aggregate of 47,047,246 dollars, as compared with 40,698,586 dollars in 1919. Operating expenses amounted to 37,242,483 dollars, an increase of 5,856,781 dollars compared with the preceding year. Paid-up capital, 171,115,404 dollars.

On March 31, 1920, there were 12,251 post offices. Gross revenue, 29,672,549 dollars; net revenue, 24,449,917 dollars; expenditure, 20,774,385 dollars. At the end of the fiscal year, 1920, there were 3,737 rural mail delivery routes, on which were erected 189,081 boxes.

Money order offices on March 31, 1920, 4,953; orders issued (1919-20), 9,947,018, value 159,224,937 dollars. The Ocean Mail subsidies and steamship subventions paid by the Government amounted to 1,632,906 dollars in 1920.

There were 49,576 miles (11,795 being Government) of telegraph lines in Canada in 1920, and 210,464 miles of wire (exclusive of Government lines), with 4,683 offices. There were (in 1920) 2,103,101 miles of telephone wire and 856,266 telephones. The earnings of telephone companies in Canada in 1920 amounted to 33,473,712 dollars, and the operating expenses to 28,044,401 dollars. The capital liability amounted to 116,689,705 dollars in 1920.

Wireless Telegraphy.—In 1920-21 there were 60 Radiotelegraph stations (including 11 private commercial stations) operated in the public service of Canada, having a range of 100 to 760 nautical miles, or an average of 239 nautical miles. In 1919-20 messages sent and received numbered 341,333. There is a long-distance station near Glace Bay, Cape Breton, N.S., with a range of 3,000 nautical miles; one at New Castle, N.B., with a range of 2,500 nautical miles, and one at Barrington Passage, N.S., with a range of 1,500 nautical miles. There are 39 Government steamers equipped with wireless apparatus having a range of 100 to 400 miles, or an average of 140 miles.

Money and Credit.

The Bank Acts of Canada impose stringent conditions as to capital, notes in circulation, limit of dividend, returns to the Dominion Government, and other points, on all chartered and incorporated banks. Under the Dominion Notes Act, 1914 (5 Geo. V. c. 4) the Dominion Government is authorised to issue notes up to and including 50,000,000 dollars, against a reserve in gold equal to one-quarter of the amount. By chapter 4, Acts of 1915, "An Act respecting the issue of Dominion Notes," the Dominion Government is authorised to issue notes up to 26,000,000 dollars without any reserve of gold, 16,000,000 dollars of the notes to be against certain specified Canadian railway securities guaranteed by the Dominion Government. Notes may be issued to any additional amount in excess of 76,000,000 dollars, but (except as provided by the Finance Act, 1914) an amount of gold equal to the excess must be held. Thus Dominion notes are under normal conditions gold certificates. On Sept. 30, 1921, there were 18 incorporated banks making returns to the Government, with about 4,713 branches. The following are some particulars of the banks:—

In September, 1921, the deposits aggregated 2,229,826,315 dollars, and the circulation 186,797,922 dollars.

In addition to the capital there was in September, 1921, the sum of 135,065,636 dollars of rest or reserve funds belonging to the banks.

There are 16 clearing houses in Canada. The transactions for 1920 amounted to 19,588,337,285 dollars, against 16,216,518,629 dollars in 1919. Of the transactions of 1919, Montreal had over 28 per cent., Toronto 36 per cent., Winnipeg 15·40 per cent., and Vancouver 4·32 per cent.

Government post-office savings-banks have been in operation in Canada since 1868; there are also Government savings-banks, under the Finance Department, in the Maritime Provinces, Manitoba, and British Columbia. In 1921 the post-office savings-banks had about 28,475,000 dollars, and the Government savings-banks about 9,591,000 dollars on deposit.

The deposits in special savings-banks amounted in 1921 to 58,576,775 dollars.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The Dollar of 100 cents. The value of the money of the United Kingdom is fixed by law as follows:—The sovereign, 4·86 $\frac{2}{3}$ dollars; the crown piece, 1·2 dollars; and other silver coins at proportionate values. A five-cent nickel coin has been issued (January, 1922). Notes are issued by the Government for 5, 4, 2, and 1 dollar, and 25 cents; no bank is allowed to issue notes for a less sum than 5 dollars. Government notes outstanding at the end of September, 1921 amounted to 259,923,196 dollars.

The Ottawa Branch of the Royal Mint was established in pursuance of The Ottawa Mint Act, 1901, under which an annual sum not exceeding 75,000 dollars is payable to the Imperial Treasury for the purpose of defraying the salaries of officials and other expenses of the Mint, the fees and all sums received being retained by Canada. The Mint issues gold, silver and copper coins for circulation in Canada, and sovereigns and half-sovereigns coined will be legal tender in every country under the British flag. Coinage for Newfoundland was struck at the Mint in 1917 and 1918.

CANADIAN PROVINCES.

ALBERTA.

Constitution and Government.—The Constitution of Alberta is contained in the British North America Act of 1867, and its several amending Acts; also in the Alberta Act of 1905, passed by the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada, creating the province. In the British North America Act, provision was made for the admission of the new provinces from time to time, including the then North-West Territories, of which the present province of Alberta formed a large portion. Upon the granting of autonomy to the North-West Territories, Alberta and Saskatchewan were erected into provinces, and all the provisions of the British North America Act, except those with respect to schools, lands, and the public domain, were made to apply to Alberta as they apply to the older provinces of Canada.

The executive is vested nominally in the Lieutenant-Governor, who is appointed by the federal government, but actually in the Executive Council or the Cabinet of the Legislature. Legislative power is vested in the Assembly in the name of the king. All bills passed by the Legislative Assembly are annually transmitted to Ottawa to receive the approval of the federal government.

Members of the Legislative Assembly are elected by the direct vote of the people. Woman suffrage has been established in the province.

There are 61 members in the Legislature, elected in 1921—38 United Farmers', 14 Liberals, 4 Labour, 3 Independent, 1 Conservative, 1 seat vacant. The Legislature includes 1 woman member.

Lieutenant-Governor.—His Honour R. G. Brett, B.A., M.D., LL.D.

The members of the Ministry are as follows:—

Premier, President of Council, Provincial Secretary, and Treasurer.—Hon. Herbert Greenfield.

Attorney-General.—Hon. John Brownlee, B.A.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. Geo. Hoadley.

Minister of Public Works.—Hon. Alex. Ross.

Minister of Municipalities and Health.—Hon. Richard Gavin Reid.

Minister of Railways and Telephones.—Hon. Vernon W. Smith.

Minister of Education.—Hon. Perrin Baker, B.A.

Minister Without Portfolio.—Mrs. Irene Parbly.

Local Government.—In 1912 the law respecting towns and rural municipalities was revised and brought up to date, in harmony with the conditions and development and growth prevailing in the province at that time. Since then the respective acts have been changed to meet the necessities of progress, and the name Rural Municipality changed to Municipal District. Municipal Districts comprise an area of 18 miles square, and are laid out on a uniform plan conformable as far as possible to the Dominion Land Survey system. Each district is a body corporate and governed by an elected council of six members. The chief executive officer is called a Reeve. All towns are incorporated under the 'Towns' Act of 1912 and amendments thereto, except those incorporated by special Acts. The town council consists of a Mayor and six councillors elected by those whose names appear on the last revised assessment roll. Persons qualified to vote are males or females of the full age of 21 years who are assessed for 50 dollars or upwards, and the wife, husband, children, and parents of such persons, if 21 years of age and resident in the municipality. The cities of Alberta carry on their municipal government by the authority of special charters granted by the Legislature.

Area and Population.—The area of the province is 255,285 square miles, 252,925 sq. miles being land area and 2,360 sq. miles water area. The population in 1921 was 581,995, in 1916, 496,525; in 1906, 184,412, and in 1901, 73,022. In 1916 the rural population numbered 307,776 (52,399 in 1901), and the urban 188,749 (20,623 in 1901). Population of the principal cities, (1916):—Calgary, 56,514; Edmonton, 53,846; Lethbridge, 9,436; Medicine Hat, 9,272; Red Deer, 2,203; Wetaskiwin, 2,048.

The vital statistics for 5 years are given as follows:—

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1914 . . .	13,685	4,623	4,147	9,538
1917 . . .	13,576	4,270	4,047	9,529
1918 . . .	14,890	4,040	7,924	6,966
1919 . . .	14,180	4,718	5,507	8,623
1920 . . .	16,565	5,110	5,075	10,890

Instruction.—In the school system all grades, both primary and secondary, are included under the term of public school. The same boards of trustees control the schools from the kindergarten to entrance to the university. All schools are supported by taxes levied by the local board, supplemented by Government grants. The grants are distributed to encourage the highest grade of teachers, regularity of attendance of pupils and general proficiency based on the report of Government inspectors. All schools are provided with a small library. Three Normal schools, at Calgary, Camrose, and Edmonton are established for the training of teachers. The attendance during 1919-20 was 694. The University of Alberta, organised in 1907, had, in 1920, 1,106 students. In 1920 there were 3,154 schools, 66 being consolidated schools, with 121,567 pupils.

Justice and Crime.—Judicial power of the province is vested in the Court of Superior Civil and Criminal Jurisdiction, styled the Supreme Court of Alberta consisting of two divisions, the appellate and trial divisions respectively. The law provides for five judges in the appellate division, and six in the trial division. The judges are appointed by the Dominion Government, and hold office for life unless impeached by Parliament. There are also minor Courts of Civil and Criminal Jurisdiction such as District and Police Magistrate's Courts. The district courts have full jurisdiction over all matters up to 600 dollars. By the Small Debts Act of 1918 Justices have jurisdiction over matters up to 50 dollars.

District courts have power to grant probate of wills and are courts of record for a trial without a jury of any person charged with a criminal offence provided such person consents. The system of procedure in civil and criminal cases conforms as nearly as possible to the English system.

Finance.—The revenue of the province is derived from the following sources:—(1) Dominion subsidies; (2) School lands; and (3) Provincial sources. With one or two exceptions, all the taxes except those on actual land values have been abolished throughout Alberta. This is said to be the nearest approach to a genuine single tax in America.

The public debt of the province (1920) amounted to 41,989,900 dollars less sinking fund 1,231,159 dollars.

Production and Industry.—Alberta is pre-eminently an agricultural province. There are unquestionably valuable assets in her mines of coal and asphalt, but the future depends upon the growth of agriculture in the important branches of grain, livestock, and dairying. The area of arable land is placed at 100,000,000 acres. About 8 per cent. of this is under cultivation at the present time.

The acreage and yield of leading grains in Alberta for 1921 were as follows:—Spring wheat, 5,038,000 acres and 56,681,000 bushels; Fall wheat, 85,000 acres and 2,107,000 bushels; oats, 2,912,000 acres and 91,720,000 bushels; barley, 568,000 acres and 12,642,000 bushels; flax, 28,000 acres and 135,000 bushels; rye, 222,000 acres and 2,555,000 bushels; potatoes, 51,000 acres, 8,143,000 bushels; turnips, mangolds, &c., 8,000 acres, 1,259,000 bushels; hay and clover, 455,000 acres, 455,000 tons. Total area under field crops, (1920) 8,390,000 acres; value, 204,291,500 dollars.

Alberta was the greatest ranching country in America from 1880-1900, but the farmer has driven out the rancher and the days of the big herds are past. In June, 1921, there were in Alberta 917,000 horses, 424,000 milk cows, 1,430,000 other horned cattle, 574,000 pigs, 524,000 sheep, 4,964,000 poultry. The 1919 wool clip amounted to 2,115,000 lbs., valued at 1,225,000 dollars. The value of dairy products in 1920 was 34,000,000 dollars. Creamery butter produced 12,150,000 lbs., valued at 6,864,750 dollars; cheese, 457,000 lbs., valued at 128,839 dollars.

The establishment of packing houses at Edmonton and Calgary has given a great stimulus to the hog industry. Mixed farming combining dairying and hog raising has increased considerably.

A coal survey of Alberta by the Geological Survey of Canada places the coal area at 16,588 square miles containing 90,000 million tons, 80,000 million being lignite. The output in 1920 was 6,908,923 tons, of which domestic (lignite) coal was 3,359,309 tons; bituminous coal, 3,419,021 tons; anthracite coal, 130,549 tons; briquettes, 101,693 tons. Natural gas is found at Medicine Hat and Bow Island in inexhaustible quantities, and a considerable quantity at Tofield, Vegreville, and Viking. In 1918, 13,030,000 cubic feet were produced from 68 wells. In 1920, 11,718 barrels of crude petroleum were produced. Value of total mineral production in 1920, 33,721,898 dollars.

Alberta has 11,881,000 acres of forest reserves. The northern portion of the province contains belts of forests along the rivers and lakes, consisting of spruce, pine, cottonwood, and poplar serviceable for merchantable timber.

The lakes of the province abound in several species of fish, but the industry is not developed to any great extent. The number of men engaged in 1916-17 was 714; the number of boats 406; catch of fish in 1919 was 30,644 cwts.; value landed, 128,628 dollars; value marketed, 257,664 dollars.

Manufacturing has just begun in the province. Flour, oat-meal, cement, and linseed oil mills, pork and beef packing houses, factories with outputs of products in clay, brass and iron, glass and wood, have been established and are in many instances already extending their plants.

Statistics of manufactures for 1918: number of industrial establishments, 1,252; capital, 61,405,000 dollars; number of employees, 10,837; salaries and wages, 10,127,000 dollars; cost of materials, 54,640,000 dollars; value of products, 82,219,000 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The principal exports of the province consist of grain, fat cattle, hogs, hams and bacon, fish, butter, and coal.

Length of railway lines 4,696 miles at end of 1920. A provincial government system of telephones covers most of the province. It has 37,434 miles long distance line, and 229 exchanges and toll offices. There are 41 privately owned party lines.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Constitution and Government.—Previous to 1858 British Columbia, then known as New Caledonia, formed a portion of the Hudson's Bay Company's concession, but in that year it was constituted a Crown Colony, owing to the large immigration consequent on the discovery of gold in 1856. Vancouver Island was leased to the Hudson's Bay Company in 1843, and was made a Crown Colony in 1849, being the first British colony to be established in North-West America. In 1866 the Colonies of British Columbia and Vancouver Island were united, and on July 20th, 1871, British Columbia entered the Canadian Confederation, and is represented by 5 members in the Senate, and 13 in the House of Commons of Canada.

The Provincial Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor and Legislative Assembly of 47 members on the system of executive administration known as a "responsible government." The Assembly is elected for four years, every adult, male or female (British subjects), having resided six months in the Province, duly registered, being entitled to vote.

Lieutenant-Governor.—W. C. Nichol.

The members of the Ministry (appointed March, 1918) are as follows:—

Premier and Minister of Railways, President of the Council, and Minister of Industries.—Hon. John Oliver.

Minister of Mines and Commissioner of Fisheries.—Hon. Wm. Sloan.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. E. D. Barrow.

Minister of Education and Provincial Secretary.—Hon. J. D. Maclean, M.D., C.M.

Minister of Public Works.—Hon. Dr. W. H. Sutherland.

Attorney-General and Minister of Labour.—

Minister of Finance.—Hon. John Hart.

Minister of Lands.—Hon. T. D. Pattullo.

Member of Executive without Portfolio.—Hon. Mary Ellen Smith.

Agent-General in London.—F. C. Wade, K.C., British Columbia House, 1/3, Regent Street, S.W. 1.

Area and Population.—British Columbia, Canada's Maritime Province on the Pacific Ocean, has an area, according to the census of 1911, of 355,855 square miles, of which 353,416 square miles are land area, and 2,439 square miles water area, but exclusive of territorial seas. The area in 1919 is estimated at 395,610 square miles. It is a great irregular quadrangle about 700 miles from north to south, with an average width of about 400 miles, lying between latitudes 49 degrees and 60 degrees north. It is bounded on the south by the Straits of Juan de Fuca and the States of Washington, Idaho and Montana, on the west by the Pacific Ocean and Southern Alaska, on the north by Yukon and Mackenzie Territories, and on the east by the Province of Alberta. From the 49th degree north to the 54th degree the eastern boundary follows the axis of the Rocky Mountains, and thence north along the 120th meridian.

The subdivisions of the Province, with the number of square miles in each, are as follows: Kootenays, east and west, 23,500 square miles; Yale, 24,300; Lillooet, 16,100; Vancouver and Westminster, 7,600; Cariboo, 300,500; Comox (mainland), 7,100; and Vancouver Island, 16,400.

The last census (1911) places the population at 392,480; in 1901 the population was 178,657. In 1920 it was estimated at approximately 650,000.

Some of the principal cities and towns are: Victoria (the capital), population, (1919), 39,500; Vancouver, 115,000; New Westminster, 17,000; Nanaimo, 7,800; North Vancouver, 8,100; Nelson, 5,500; Prince Rupert, 4,000.

The movement of the population for five years was as follows:—

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1914	10,418	4,296	3,974	6,444
1916	9,841	3,169	3,887	5,954
1917	9,460	2,861	3,896	5,564
1918-19 ¹	9,010	2,829	6,096	2,314

Instruction.—A complete system of free and non-sectarian education was established by Act in 1872. Attendance is compulsory from the age of seven to fourteen. The central control is vested in the Council of Public Instruction, composed of the members of the Executive Council. The Minister of Education directs the general management of the schools through the Superintendent of Education.

There are 48 high schools in the Province, with 6,636 enrolled pupils and 255 teachers. The number of schools in 1920 was 903, with 2,557 teachers, and an enrolment of 79,243 pupils. The Provincial University was founded by Act in 1908. It began operations as a teaching institution in 1914, and in 1918-19 there were about 900 students.

Finance.—Revenue and expenditure:—

	Revenue Dollars	Expenditure Dollars		Revenue Dollars	Expenditure Dollars
1913-4	10,479,259	15,970,877	1917-8	9,868,325	10,800,805
1914-5	7,974,496	11,942,667	1918-9	9,900,055	11,611,694
1915-6	6,291,693	10,422,206	1919-20	12,609,960	13,313,303
1916-7	6,906,783	9,079,317	1920-21	15,219,264	15,236,931

The balance sheet of the Province showed that on March 31, 1921, the liabilities totalled 65,407,227 dollars; assets, 83,973,949 dollars.

Production and Industry.—British Columbia produced in 1920 minerals to the value of 35,581,000 dollars; lumber to the value of 92,629,000 dollars; fish to the value of 22,329,000 dollars (being 44% of Canada's production); agricultural produce valued at 63,926,000 dollars; and manufactures, 1920, of the value of 68,500,000 dollars. The acreage and production of certain crops in 1921 were: wheat, 47,000 acres, 1,007,000 bushels; oats, 57,000 acres, 2,502,000 bushels; barley, 8,800 acres, 291,000 bushels; potatoes, 17,000 acres, 2,940,000 bushels; turnips, roots, &c., 6,800 acres, 2,492,000 bushels; hay and clover, 137,000 acres, 316,000 tons. Number of live stock in 1921: milch cows, 58,000; other cattle, 203,000; sheep, 51,000; pigs, 42,000; horses, 45,000; poultry, 1,447,000.

British Columbia's coal measures are estimated to contain 75 billion tons, mainly bituminous, of which 23,000 millions are in the seams known and measured; it possesses the greatest compact area of merchantable timber in North America; the importance of the fisheries, apart from salmon fishing, is only beginning to be realised; there are widely-distributed deposits of magnetite and hematite iron, which are as yet undeveloped; the area of possible farmland has been estimated at 50,000,000 acres, but not much more than one tenth of this area has yet been occupied; the Province has millions of acres of pulpwood as yet unexploited; and much of the territory is unexplored and its potential value unknown.

More than half the standing timber in Canada is to be found in British Columbia, and the average rate of forest growth is double that in the remainder of the Dominion. Recent investigators place the area of British Columbia's timber land at over 100,000,000 acres, containing, roughly, 400,000 million feet of merchantable timber. The most important species are: Douglas fir, western red cedar, silver spruce, western soft pine, western hemlock, Engelmann spruce, cottonwood, and balsam. It is estimated that there are about 50,000,000,000 feet board measure under the control of the Dominion in the railway belt. Value of lumber produced in 1920, 92,629,000, dollars.

British Columbia is the second Province of the Dominion in the value of its mineral production. The mineral output in 1919 and 1920 (estimated) was as follows:—

Minerals	1919		1920
	Quantity	Value	Quantity	Value
		Dollars		Dollars
Gold, placer . . . ounces	14,325	286,500	13,250	265,000
Gold, lode . . . do.	152,426	3,150,645	118,176	2,442,608
Silver . . . do.	3,408,119	3,592,673	3,404,926	3,265,824

Miscellaneous products . . .	—	1,283,644	—	1,400,000
Total of above . . .	—	38,296,313	—	35,580,625

The total value of minerals produced in British Columbia down to the end of 1919 is estimated at 670,649,894 dollars (mainly coal and coke, 199,123,323 dollars; copper, 153,680,965 dollars; gold, lode, 100,272,431 dollars; gold, placer, 75,722,603 dollars; silver, 50,432,304 dollars; lead, 43,821,106 dollars).

Statistics of manufactures for 1918: Industrial establishments, 1,786; capital, 244,697,000 dollars; employees, 48,779; wages and salaries, 51,051,000 dollars; cost of materials, 103,936,000 dollars; value of products, 207,678,000 dollars.

The total available water power of the Province has been estimated at over five million H.P., of which 305,000 are developed.

Commerce.—The trade of the Province is developing rapidly; in 1920 imports amounted to 67,108,323 dollars, and the exports to 97,905,313 dollars. Exports consist of minerals (chiefly gold, silver, copper and coal), sea products (chiefly salmon, halibut, herrings, whale products and oil), lumber, furs, skins, etc. A large inter-provincial trade is rapidly developing, the fruit grown in British Columbia being largely shipped to the Prairie Provinces, where it finds a good market.

Communications and Shipping.—The Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National lines are at present the principal railways in the Province. The C.P.R. has three main lines, the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, the Kettle Valley Railway, and several branches connecting with United States railway systems, also steamboat connections on the inland lakes, besides a large fleet of ocean-going and coasting steamers. The railway mileage of the Province in 1920 was 4,278. Telephone mileage, 152,069.

Steps are being taken to establish direct shipping communication with Canadian Atlantic ports, via the Panama Canal.

In the fiscal year of 1919-20, 8,293 sea-going vessels entered inward; 8,338 sea-going vessels cleared outwards; and 63,681 coastwise vessels entered and cleared.

MANITOBA.

Constitution and Government.—Manitoba was known as the Red River Settlement before its entry into the Dominion in 1870. The Provincial Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor and a Legislative Assembly of 55 members elected for five years. Women have been enfranchised, and may be members of Parliament. Proportional representation has been adopted for the 10 seats in the City of Winnipeg.

Lieutenant-Governor.—His Honour Sir J. A. M. Aikins, K.B.

The Members of the Ministry are (February, 1922) as follows:—

Premier, Commissioner of Railways and Commissioner of Provincial Lands.—Hon. T. C. Norris.

Provincial Secretary and Municipal Commissioner.—Hon. J. W. Armstrong, M.D.

Minister of Education.—Hon. R. S. Thornton, M.D.

Minister of Public Works.—Hon. C. D. McPherson.

Attorney-General.—Hon. T. H. Johnson.

Provincial Treasurer.—Hon. Edward Brown.

Minister of Agriculture and Immigration.—Hon. Geo. H. J. Malcolm.

State of parties in Legislative Assembly (1920): Liberal (Government), 21; Conservatives, 8; Labour, 11; Farmer Independents, 15.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 251,832 square miles, of which 231,926 sq. miles are land area and 19,906 sq. miles water. In 1912 its boundaries were extended to the shores of Hudson's Bay. (See map STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK, 1912.) The population in 1911 was 461,630, in 1916, 553,860, in 1921, 613,008. In 1901 the population was 255,211, thus showing an increase by 1916 of 117 per cent. The rural population in 1916 was 312,846 (184,775 in 1901). The number of houses in 1916 was 104,656 (49,784 in 1901); the number of families in 1916 was 117,532, (51,056 in 1901). Population of the principal cities (1921):—Winnipeg (capital), 178,364 (Greater Winnipeg, 276,000; Brandon, 15,359; Portage la Prairie, 6,748; St. Boniface, 12,816.

Instruction.—Education is locally controlled, as in all the provinces and is supported by local taxation and Government grants. Winnipeg has an Agricultural College (opened 1906) with 329 long course and 622 short course students in 1920. The University of Manitoba, founded in 1877 in Winnipeg, had (in 1919) 1,239 students in all courses. There are (1921) 3,708 teachers and 129,015 pupils in the 1,893 public schools. Total expenditure on education in 1920, 1,638,595 dollars.

Finance.—Revenue and expenditure for seven years:—

Year.	Revenue.	Expenditure.	Year.	Revenue.	Expenditure.
	Dollars.	Dollars.		Dollars.	Dollars.
1913	5,788,070	5,314,849	1918	6,723,013	7,307,727
1915	5,524,911	5,698,059	1919	8,986,076	8,544,790
1916	5,897,807	6,147,780	1920	10,482,471	10,942,808
1917	6,692,985	6,860,353

Production and Industry.—Manitoba is essentially fitted for agriculture, more particularly for grain production. Field crops 1920, 6,020,000 acres, 134 million dollars. In 1921, 3,501,000 acres produced 48,142,000 bushels of wheat; 2,226,000 acres produced 60,112,000 bushels of oats; 1,043,000 acres produced 22,688,000 bushels of barley; 62,000 acres produced 540,000 bushels of flax; 38,000 acres produced 6,340,000 tons of potatoes; 258,000 acres produced 4,125,000 bushels of rye; 245,000 acres produced 392,000 tons of hay and clover. There were 420,000 horses in the Province in 1921, 131,000 sheep, 225,000 pigs, 818,000 cattle, and 3,753,000 poultry.

Total value of minerals, 1920, 3,900,000 dollars, largely building material and copper. The Province has proved gold and copper deposits of vast extent which are being developed. Value of fisheries (1920) 1,250,000 dollars. Value of lumber cut in 1918, 1,240,000 dollars.

Production of creamery butter 1920, 7,667,000 lb., value 4,217,000 dollars; dairy butter, 9,540,000 lb., value 4,102,000 dollars; cheese, 226,000 lb., value 61,000 dollars. Total value of dairy products, 1920, 15,940,000 dollars.

Statistics of manufactures for 1918: 1,444 industrial establishments with a capital of 105,983,000 dollars; employing 22,808 wage-earners; wages and salaries, 23,031,000 dollars; cost of materials used, 92,600,000 dollars; and value of products, 145,030,000 dollars.

Communications.—In the year 1920, the Province had 4,463 miles of railway as compared with 3,074 miles in 1907. There were 200,000 miles of telephone wire.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

Constitution and Government.—New Brunswick was discovered by Jacques Cartier in 1534. It was acquired by the English under the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713, and was settled by the English as early as 1761. In 1784 it was separated from Nova Scotia. The Government is at present vested in a Lieutenant-Governor and a Legislative Assembly of 48 members elected for five years. Franchise—any male or female British subject of full age, after six months' residence. Last election, October, 1920:—Liberals 24, Conservatives 13, Farmers 9, Labour 2. €

Lieutenant-Governor.—Hon. W. Pugsley.

The members of the Ministry are as follows (April 1917):—

Premier and President of Council.—Hon. W. E. Foster.

Attorney-General.—Hon. J. P. Byrne.

Minister of Public Works.—Hon. P. J. Veniot.

Minister of Health.—Hon. Dr. W. F. Roberts.

Provincial Secretary and Treasurer.—Hon. J. E. Hetherington.

Minister of Lands and Mines.—Hon. C. W. Robinson.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. D. W. Mercercau.

Ministers without Portfolio.—Hon. J. E. Michaud, Hon. C. W. Magee.

Agent-General in London.—Vacant, 37, Southampton Street, W.C. 2.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 27,985 square miles, of which 27,911 square miles are land area. There are 7½ million acres of Crown lands, principally lumber lands. The population in 1921 was 388,092; in 1911, 351,889 (179,867 males and 172,022 females). In 1901 the population was 331,120. The rural population in 1911 was 252,342 (253,835 in 1901); the number of houses in 1911, 60,930 (58,226 in 1901); the number of families in 1911, 67,093 (62,695 in 1901). Population of the principal cities (1911):—St. John, 61,380; Moncton, 14,000; Fredericton (capital), 8,000.

Instruction.—Education is free and undenominational. The University of New Brunswick, at Fredericton, founded in 1800, has (1919) 250 students. There were (1919) 71,000 pupils and 2,107 teachers in the 1,959 public schools. Total expenditure on education in 1918, 1,530,256 dollars.

Finance.—The finance for five years is shown as follows:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	Dollars	Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
1916	1,580,419	1,568,342	1919	2,168,822	2,496,508
1917	1,572,813	2,166,905	1920	3,100,549	3,004,200
1918	2,357,909	2,399,062

Bonded debt, October 31, 1919, 18,585,000 dollars.

Production and Industry.—New Brunswick is productive in agriculture, manufacture, and mining. The total area under field crops in 1920 was 1,253,834 acres. Value produced, 1920, 46 million dollars. In 1921 the acreage of spring wheat was 28,000 and the yield 441,000 bushels; oats, 285,000 acres, 6,905,000 bushels; barley, 8,900 acres, 176,000 bushels; buckwheat, 50,000 acres, 1,146,000 bushels; potatoes, 75,000 acres, 16,192,000 bushels; turnips, &c., 18,000 acres, 6,202,000 bushels; hay and clover, 694,000 acres, 625,000 tons. The number of cattle in the Province (1921) was 295,000; of horses, 70,000; of sheep, 237,000; of pigs, 89,000; poultry, 743,000. In 1919, 916,000 lbs. of butter were produced, valued at 505,000 dollars, and 1,256,000 lbs. of cheese, valued at 348,000 dollars.

The capital invested in the fishing industry is estimated (1916-17) at 4,488,000 dollars; men employed on the fleets and inland waters, 1915-16, 16,700; employees in canneries, freezers, and fish houses, 6,700. The total value of fisheries in 1920 was 4,424,000 dollars.

The Government owns over 10,000 square miles of forests. The production of lumber in 1917-18 from Crown lands and granted lands was 700,000,000 feet board measure. The total value was 20,000,000 dollars. Spruce is the principal wood.

The Province is rich in minerals. Iron, gypsum, coal, building stone, antimony, copper, manganese are found, but the only active mining in the year 1920 was in coal and gypsum. Natural gas, with a small quantity of oil, is produced near Moncton. Coal output, 1919, 156,000 long tons.

In 1918 there were 1,363 industrial establishments, with a capital of 74,156,000 dollars, employing 19,642 wage-earners; salaries and wages, 14,156,000 dollars; cost of materials, 34,450,000 dollars; value of products, 66,855,000 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The domestic and foreign exports of the Province in 1916-17 amounted to 206,174,000 dollars; the imports for consumption to 19,994,000 dollars.

The Province had 1,959 miles of railway in 1917, as compared with 1,503 miles in 1907. In 1917 there were 31,149 miles of telephone wire.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Constitution and Government.—The first settlement was made by the French at the end of the sixteenth century, and the province was called Acadia until finally ceded to the British by the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713. The Constitution of the Dominion of Canada and of each separate Province thereof is contained in the "British North America Act," commonly called the "Act of Confederation." This Act passed the Imperial Parliament in 1867 and came into force on July 1st of that year. Under this Act the Legislature of Nova Scotia, along with that of each of the other Provinces, may exclusively make laws in relation to local matters; and more especially in regard to direct taxation within the Province in order to raise a revenue for provincial purposes, and the administration of justice in the Province, including the constitution, maintenance and organisation of provincial courts both of civil and of criminal jurisdiction, and including procedure of civil matters in those courts.

The Legislature of Nova Scotia consists of a Lieutenant-Governor, appointed and paid by the Federal Government and holding office for five years; a Legislative Council appointed by the Crown, and holding office for life; and a House of Assembly, chosen by popular vote every five years. The Legislative Council consists of 21 members; the House of Assembly of 43.

The franchise and eligibility to the Legislature are granted to all persons, whether male or female, and including married women, if of full age (21 years), if a British subject, and a resident for one year in the place where the person votes, and if not by law otherwise disqualified, or in receipt of aid as a pauper.

House of Assembly (1920), state of parties :—Liberals, 29; Farmers, 8; Labour, 3; Conservatives, 2; Returned Soldier, 1. The Liberal party has held office continuously for 38 years.

Lieutenant-Governor—His Honour McC. Grant (December, 1916).

The Members of the Ministry are as follows :—

Premier and Provincial Secretary.—Hon. G. H. Murray.

Attorney-General.—Hon. O. T. Daniels.

Minister of Works and Mines.—Hon. E. H. Armstrong.

Minister of Highways.—Hon. H. H. Wickwire.

Ministers without Portfolio.—Hons. R. M. MacGregor, William Chisholm, R. E. Finn. J. C. Tory, J. W. Cameron, D. A. Cameron, K.C.

Agent-General in London.—John Howard, 57 Pall-Mall, S.W.1.

Local Government.—In Nova Scotia there are two municipal divisions, viz., county and city or town. Five counties are divided into two municipalities.

The county or municipal councils consist of councillors elected triennially by the ratepayers, usually one, but in some cases two, for each polling division of a county electing a member to the House of Assembly. Town or City Councils are composed of a mayor and not less than six councillors elected by the ratepayers.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 21,428 square miles, of which 21,068 square miles are land area, and 360 square miles water area. The population in 1921 was 524,883; in 1911, 492,338; in 1901, 459,574; and in 1891, 450,396.

Population of the principal cities (1921):—Halifax, 57,674; Sydney, 22,527; Glace Bay, 16,992; Dartmouth, 11,700; Amherst, 9,975; New Glasgow, 8,959; Sydney Mines, 8,328; Truro, 7,651.

The vital statistics for five years are as follows :—

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of births.
1918-14	12,771	3,643	7,527	5,244
1916-17	12,770	3,421	7,583	4,799
1917-18	12,382	3,611	9,123	3,296
1918-19	12,508	3,585	9,200	3,308
1919-20	13,346	4,482	7,439	5,907

Of the births in 1919-20, 441 were illegitimate, as compared with 295 in 1918-19.

Religion.—The denominations according to the Census of 1911 were :—Roman Catholics, 144,991; Presbyterians, 109,560; Baptists, 83,854; Anglicans, 75,313; Methodists, 57,606; and Congregationalists, 2,690.

There are also various other sects with small numbers of adherents.

Instruction.—Education in Nova Scotia is free, compulsory, and undenominational. Besides the elementary schools, high schools and academies, there are in Halifax a Maritime Provinces school for the blind and one for the deaf. A large Provincial Agricultural College is established at Truro; also a Normal School for the training of teachers. The Provincial Technical College grants degrees in civil, mining, chemical and electrical engineering. Besides this central institution there are working under it coal mining schools near all the collieries, and engineering and technical schools of various kinds in the industrial centres.

The total expenditure on education in 1920 was 2,688,056 dollars. The Province has (1920) 4 universities; 1,750 schools, with 3,015 teachers and 109,525 pupils; there are 3,658 pupils in the technical schools.

Pensions, &c.—A pension scheme is in operation whereby teachers under certain conditions receive an annuity. Miners receive pay in case of accident in pursuit of their calling, and in the event of death a grant is made to the widow and children. A fund is provided to meet the demands, the Government and the employers paying each half as much as the men.

Justice and Crime.—Justice in Nova Scotia is administered by the following courts: Courts for the collection of small debts; county courts; inferior courts in criminal cases; courts of superior jurisdiction; divorce court, probate courts. The supreme court of appeal is composed of a chief justice and six judges. There are also Courts for the revision of assessment rolls and voters lists, and a Court for juvenile delinquents.

In 1920, 1,774 persons were imprisoned for various crimes and misdemeanours. In 1920, 296 children were brought before the court for juvenile delinquents. Of these 1 was dealt with by the criminal court; 48 were sent to institutions; 186 were paroled; 32 fined; and 29 were dismissed.

Finance.—In Nova Scotia there is no general direct Government taxation. The revenue is raised from the Dominion subsidy; royalty on coal and other minerals raised; succession duty; special taxes on banks, incorporated companies, partnerships, automobiles and theatres, marriage licences, and statutory fees.

Revenue, expenditure, and debt for five years :—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Debt
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
1914	1,885,457	2,098,893	12,615,686
1917	2,118,618	2,318,911	13,910,286
1918	2,332,632	2,552,597	14,527,798
1919	3,280,318	3,250,806	15,342,055
1920	3,801,016	3,893,724	17,941,871

To counterbalance the public debt the Province had (1920) realisable assets to the value of 7,221,717 dollars.

Production and Industry.—Nova Scotia is largely an agricultural Province. Fruit-growing is specially profitable, and apples are the most important fruit grown; in 1921 the output was nearly 2,000,000 barrels. The potatoes produced are higher in quality than any others raised in Canada. Nova Scotia is admirably adapted for dairying. The value of the live-stock products in 1920 was 7,221,717 dollars. There were (1921) 333,000 cattle in the Province. Owing to the cool, moist climate fodder may be raised easily, and the pastures are excellent. There were 324,000 sheep. The annual clip is over 1,000,000 lbs. Pigs numbered 52,000 and horses 61,000 in 1921.

The total area under cultivation in 1920 was 1,000,000 acres, and the value produced, 49,456,000 dollars. The principal crops are hay and clover, with (1921) 572,000 acres, producing 772,000 tons; oats, 137,000 acres, producing 4,176,000 bushels; wheat, 16,000 acres, producing 293,000 bushels; barley, 9,000 acres, 213,000 bushels; potatoes, 39,000 acres, 6,414,000 bushels; turnips, mangolds, &c., 15,000 acres, 4,886,000 bushels.

Mineral Production.

	1919	1920
Coal long tons	5,095,000	5,679,000
Pig-iron short tons	335,000	281,000

Limestone and Dolomite "	353,000	250,000
Gypsum "	56,000	180,000
Gold-bearing ore "	1,400	850
Gold ounces	935	744

The known coal fields embrace 725 square miles. The gold fields cover about 3,000 square miles. The value of the principal mineral productions in 1921 was:—Coal, 31,200,000 dollars; steel, iron and by-products, 16,226,400 dollars.

The estimated forest area of Nova Scotia is over 12,000 square miles. The principal trees are spruce, fir, hemlock, pine, birch, oak and maple. The value of the forest products in 1921 reached the sum of 10,325,000 dollars.

The fisheries of the Province are the most extensive in Canada. About 12,000,000 dollars are invested in this industry, and about 30,000 men are employed. Cod, lobsters, mackerel, herring, and haddock are the principal fish. Total market value of fish caught in 1921, 12,600,000 dollars.

The number of industrial establishments was (in 1917) 2,147, with a capital of 136,521,655 dollars, employing 31,398 wage-earners; wages and salaries, 23,553,090 dollars; cost of materials, 109,736,731 dollars; value of products, 176,369,025 dollars.

The annual wealth of the Province in 1921 was estimated at 165,404,700 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The imports entered for consumption during 1919-20 were 33,057,432 dollars; the exports, 77,000,000 dollars; the duty collected was over 3,000,000 dollars.

Transportation facilities in Nova Scotia are excellent. The country is covered with a network of railways, 1,480 miles in extent. There are 18,000 miles of highways. Besides this, subsidised boats ply round the shores making regular calls at all the important ports. The principal railways are the Canadian Government Railway; the Halifax and South Western and Inverness (owned by Canadian Government); and the Dominion Atlantic (owned by the Canadian Pacific).

In 1918 there were 1,480 miles of steam railway, and 50,039 miles of telephone wire, 34,121 urban and 15,918 rural.

The state of the parties in the Provincial Legislature in November, 1919:—United Farmers, 44; Liberals, 28; Conservatives, 25; Labour, 12; Independents, 2.

Area and Population.—The greatest extent of the Province from east to west is 1,000 miles and from north to south 1,075 miles. The area of the Province is 407,262 square miles, of which 365,880 sq. miles are land area and 41,382 water area. The Province is more than three times the area of the United Kingdom and nearly double the size of France or Germany. It is roughly divided into two sections by a line running westwardly from Mattawa on the Ottawa River to Georgian Bay—southern (or old) Ontario, the older settled portion, with an area of about 77,000 square miles, and northern (or new) Ontario, with an area of about 330,000 square miles, of which 146,400 square miles, the district of Patricia, was added in 1912. The population in 1921 was 2,922,000, and in 1911 was 2,523,274 (1,299,200 males and 1,223,984 females). In 1901 it was 2,182,947. At the end of 1918 it was estimated at 2,799,000. The rural population in 1911 was 1,194,785 (1,246,969 in 1901); the number of houses in 1911 was 528,303 (445,310 in 1901); the number of families 544,301 (455,264 in 1901). The Indian population of the Province in 1911 was 23,044. Population of the principal cities, 1919 :—Toronto (capital), 499,278 ; Ottawa, 107,732 ; Hamilton, 108,143 ; London, 59,100.

Instruction.—There is a complete State system of elementary and secondary schools, which is supported generously by State grants, and also by local taxation. There is one State University—the University of Toronto, founded in 1827. The other Universities are Queen's at Kingston, McMaster at Toronto, Western at London, and Ottawa in Ottawa, and are private foundations. There were, in 1920, 6,773 elementary schools and 311 secondary schools, attended by 632,994 pupils. There are 15,358 certificated teachers engaged in these elementary and secondary schools. The total expenditure on elementary schools in 1920 was 25,210,533 dollars, and on secondary schools the amount was approximately 4,072,000 dollars.

Finance.—The revenues of the Province are derived from the sale of Crown lands, from timber, mining and liquor licences, succession duties and other fees, supplemented by a subsidy from the Dominion. The revenue and expenditure in recent years were as follows :—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	Dollars	Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
1913-14	11,121,382	11,819,311	1917-18	19,270,123	17,460,404
1915-16	13,841,339	12,706,332	1918-19	19,904,772	21,464,574
1916-17	18,269,597	16,518,222	1919-20	25,078,094	25,880,843

Production and Industry.—The Province is rich in agricultural and mineral resources ; it abounds in lakes and rivers, in extensive forests, great water powers, and valuable fisheries. The land under cultivation is about 14,000,000 acres, more than 1,000,000 additional acres are cleared, and 25,200,000 acres are assessed. Of the total land surface of the Province, which is 234,000,000 acres, the amount of arable land is much larger than the portion now under cultivation. Beyond the cultivated portion it is estimated that northern Ontario alone contains some 20,000,000 acres of alluvial soil, not including the vast stretches of agricultural land south and west of James Bay. There are also vast tracts of land that are unfit for cultivation or even for pasturage. The chief industry is agriculture. The area under field crops in 1920 was 10,108,272 acres. Value produced, 1920, 376 million dollars. The crops and acreage of the agricultural produce of the Province in 1921 were as follows :—Wheat, 774,000 acres, 15,657,000 bushels ; barley, 462,000 acres, 10,637,000 bushels ; oats, 3,095,000 acres, 71,958,000 bushels ; rye, 123,000 acres, 2,119,000 bushels ; peas, 106,000 acres, 1,722,000 bushels ; beans, 27,000 acres, 437,000 bushels ; buckwheat, 148,000 acres, 3,514,000 bushels ; flax, 8,000 acres, 92,000 bushels ; mixed grains, 618,000 acres, 15,766,000 bushels ; potatoes, 164,000 acres, 16,984,000 bushels ; turnips, mangolds, &c., 104,000 acres, 36,924,000 bushels ; hay and clover, 3,552,000 acres, 4,084,000 tons ; alfalfa, 177,000 acres, 452,000 tons. The production of tobacco in 1920 was 21,668,500 lbs. The returns for 1921 give 2,890,000 cattle, 1,082,000 sheep, 1,564,000 pigs, 694,000 horses, and 11,458,000 poultry. The farm values for 1919 were :—Land, 848,767,153 dollars ; buildings, 426,649,086 dollars ; implements, 137,310,618 dollars ; and live-stock, 339,607,932 dollars. Ontario produces about one-half of the milk, cheese, butter, and casein of Canada (output of creamery butter, 1920, 37,149,000 lbs., valued at 21,246,000 dollars ; cheese, 92,848,000 lbs., valued at 24,615,000 dollars). Total value of dairy products 1920, 105,861,000 dollars.

During the fiscal year 1918-19, 749.04 acres of land were sold for agricultural purposes and town sites, the amount realised being 48,119 dollars; and for mining 10,600 acres for 28,350 dollars. For mining purposes 2,137 acres were leased for 1,562 dollars. Free grant locations to the number of 716 (the area thus taken being 77,298 acres of land) were taken up by intending settlers. The total area of Crown lands disposed of by sale and lease during the year was 71,454 acres, valued at 80,366 dollars.

The mineral production in 1920 included gold, 564,609 ozs., value 11,665,735 dollars; silver, 10,968,358 ozs., 10,819,678 dollars; nickel in matte, 21,371 short tons; nickel, metallic, 11,015,692 lbs.; nickel oxide, 4,890,571 lbs.; copper in matte, 11,715 short tons; copper, metallic, 6,825,772 lbs.; iron ore exported, 6,769 short tons; total iron ore shipments, 126,710 short tons; pig iron (from Ontario ore only), 76,164 short tons; total pig iron produced, 748,193 short tons, 21,652,308 dollars; Portland cement, 2,035,594 barrels; crude petroleum, 6,361,234 imperial gallons; natural gas, 10,500,000 million cub. ft.; salt, 206,612 short tons. Total value of metallic minerals in 1919, 41,590,759 dollars; in 1920, 46,228,827 dollars. Non-metallic minerals and structural materials in 1919 were worth 17,293,157, and in 1920, 22,227,954 dollars.

Value of fisheries (1920), 3,411,000 dollars. Men employed numbered about 4,100. The catch in 1917 was 35 million lb.

Total area of forests 102,000 square miles; chief timber is spruce, pine and poplar.

In 1918 Ontario had 15,337 industrial establishments, with a capital of 1,442,221,000 dollars, employing 320,808 wage-earners; wages and salaries, 302,399,000 dollars; cost of materials, 905,153,000 dollars; value of products, 1,640,772,000 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—In 1920-21 the exports amounted to 418,196,000 dollars, and the imports for consumption to 602,737,000 dollars. In 1919 there were 11,000 miles of railway in Ontario, as compared with 7,368 in 1907. There were (1919) 747,893 miles of telephone wires.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

Constitution and Government.—Prince Edward Island was taken into the Confederation on July 1, 1873. From 1534 to 1798 it was known as Isle St. Jean. The Provincial Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor and a Legislative Assembly of 30 members, who are elected for 4 years, half by real property holders and the remainder by universal male and female suffrage. Women can also be elected to the Assembly. State of Parties in 1919 (elected July, 1919):—Conservatives, 4; Liberals, 26.

Lieutenant-Governor.—Hon. Murdock McKinnon.

The members of the Ministry are as follows:—

Premier.—Hon. John H. Bell, K.C.

Attorney-General.—Hon. J. J. Johnston, K.C.

Provincial Secretary-Treasurer and Commissioner for Agriculture.—Hon. W. M. Lea.

Commissioner of Public Works.—Hon. Cyrus W. Crosby.

Ministers without Portfolio.—Hon. Benj. Gallant; Hon. George E. Hughes; Hon. David Macdonald; Hon. Fred. J. Nash; Hon. Robert Cox.

Area and Population.—The province, which is the smallest in the Dominion, lies at the mouth of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and is separated from the mainland of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia by Northumberland Strait. The area of the island is 2,184 sq. miles. The total population (1921 census) was 88,536. In 1911 the population was 93,728 (47,069 males and 46,659 females), or 42.91 to the sq. mile. In 1901 it was 103,259. The rural population in 1911 was 78,758 (88,304 in 1901); the number of houses in 1911, 18,237 (18,530 in 1901); the number of families 18,425 (18,746 in 1901). Population of the principal cities (1911):—Charlottetown (capital) 11,203; Summerside, 2,678.

Religion and Instruction.—The population of the Province at the census of 1911 was divided among the different creeds as follows:—Roman Catholic, 41,994; Presbyterian, 27,509; Methodist, 12,209; Baptist, 5,372; Anglican, 4,939. There were (1920) 454 schools, 580 teachers and 17,354 pupils. This is exclusive of 3 Roman Catholic convent schools at Tignish, Summerside and Charlottetown, with 551 pupils. There are two colleges, Prince of Wales College, head of the Provincial school system, and St. Dunstan's, a Roman Catholic institution, both in Charlottetown. Total expenditure on public education in 1920 was 211,618 dollars.

Finance.—

	1914	1917	1918	1919	1920
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
Revenue	523,555	501,293	508,367	506,858	748,660
Expenditure	445,396	506,922	495,577	720,478	745,406

The total liabilities of the Province amounted in 1920 to 1,059,803 dollars.

Production and Industry.—The farm land occupied is 1,202,347 acres. Field crops in 1920, including pasture lands, covered 809,673 acres. The land in natural forest covers 316,000 acres, and in pasture 247,260. The acreage and production of certain crops in 1921 were: spring wheat, 34,000 acres, 622,000 bushels; barley, 6,000 acres, 155,000 bushels; oats, 189,000 acres, 5,747,000 bushels; potatoes, 37,000 acres, 7,449,000 bushels; turnips, mangolds, &c., 10,000 acres, 4,022,000 bushels; hay and clover, 255,000 acres, 293,000 tons. Total acreage, 532,000; value, 16,500,000 dollars. The number of horses (1921) is 31,000; cattle, 138,000; sheep, 72,000; poultry, 689,000. Silver fox breeding is extensively carried on, and pelts are shipped to United States and European markets; breeding foxes are exported to all northern countries.

The total value of the fisheries in 1920 was 1,645,929 dollars, of which lobsters made up 1,296,450 dollars. Lobsters and oysters both abound, the former near Charlottetown, the latter in Richmond Bay, where the oyster fields extend to 15,000 acres. In 1912 the Provincial Government acquired from the Dominion Government the possession and control of the oyster areas surrounding the Province. Some 20,000 acres have been surveyed and 5,000 acres leased for replanting and development. It is estimated that 100,000 acres in all will be available for this purpose. So far (1921) the experiment has proved unsuccessful, owing to the importation of destructive pests with oysters used in replanting.

In 1918 there were 484 industrial establishments, with a capital of 2,887,000 dollars, employing 1,670 wage-earners; salaries and wages, 777,000 dollars; cost of materials, 3,548,000 dollars; value of products, 5,698,000 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The trade of Prince Edward Island is chiefly with the other provinces of Canada and this inter-provincial trade does not appear in the trade statistics. In 1919-20 the exports to other countries amounted to 369,723 dollars; the imports entered for consumption to 917,857 dollars, and there is little change from year to year. In 1921 the province had 279 miles of railway as compared with 267 in 1907. Terminal stations have been constructed at Cape Traverse, Prince Edward Island, and Cape Tormentine, New Brunswick, and a car ferry steamer of great power is in operation, connecting the Government Railway in Prince Edward Island with the Intercolonial Railway on the mainland. During 1919, by means of a third rail, the line from Charlottetown to Borden and Summerside was widened to the gauge of the continental standard. Daily steamship communication with the mainland was successfully maintained for the first time during the winter of 1917-18, and has since continued without interruption. In 1920 there were 3,273 miles of telephone wires, 200 urban and 3,073 rural. The Provincial Government has undertaken an extensive scheme of improving the public highways in collaboration with the Dominion Government. The plan covers several years to come, the cost being divided between the federal and provincial authorities, 40 per cent. being paid by the Dominion, and 60 per cent. by the Province. In 1921 the outlay for this purpose is about 235,000 dollars.

NORTH-WEST TERRITORIES.

Constitution and Government.—The North-West Territories comprise the Territories formerly known as Rupert's Land and the North-West Territories, except such portions thereof as form the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and the Yukon Territory. The Territories were organised September 1, 1905, and as now constituted are divided into three Provisional Districts, namely, Mackenzie, Keewatin, and Franklin: this division having come into effect on January 1, 1920.

The Government is carried on under the direction of a Commissioner, aided by a Deputy Commissioner and five councillors, as follows:—

Commissioner.—William Wallace Cory, C.M.G.

Deputy Commissioner.—Roy Alexander Gibson.

Council.—John Wesley Greenway, Aylesworth Bowen Perry, C.M.G., Charles Cammell, Hugh Howard Rowell, Oswald Sterling Finnie.

Area and Population.—The area of the Territories is 1,242,224 sq. miles, of which 1,207,926 sq. miles are land area and 34,298 sq. miles water area. The population in 1911 numbered 18,481 (9,346 males and 9,135 females); the number of houses, 3,733, and the number of families, 4,085.

GUIANA, BRITISH.

Governor.—Sir Wilfrid Collet, K.C.M.G. (4,000*l.* and 1,000*l.* Contingencies).

Colonial Secretary.—C. Clementi, C.M.G. (1,350*l.*–1,500*l.*)

Includes the settlements of Demerara, Essequibo, and Berbice, named from the three rivers. The Governor is assisted by a Court of Policy of seven official and eight members elected by the registered voters and a Combined Court, containing, in addition to the above, six financial representatives elected by the registered voters. The Combined Court considers the Estimate of Expenditure, raises the Ways and Means to meet it, and this Court alone can levy taxes. Executive and administrative functions are exercised by the Governor and an Executive Council. There are 5,125 registered electors. The law of the Colony, both civil and criminal, is based on the common and statute law of England, except that the English law of personal property applies to both movable and immovable property, with certain exceptions, and the Roman-Dutch legitimatisation per subsequens matrimonium is preserved.

Area, 89,480 square miles. Population at census 1911 (excluding aborigines in the unfrequented parts of the colony, who are estimated at about 13,000), 296,000 (males 154,000, females 142,000). Population, census 1921, 297,691. Births (1920) 9,788 (31·9 per 1,000); deaths, 7,879 (25·6 per 1,000). Capital, Georgetown, 53,422. Living on sugar estates (census 1911), 70,922; Immigration Department estimate East Indians (1920), 60,744; in villages and Settlements, 63,802. Total East Indians, 124,546. Returned to India, 1920, 2,468. 224 schools received Government grant (53,023*l.* in 1920); 35,037 pupils; average daily attendance, 19,636. Secondary education is provided for both boys and girls.

Paupers (1920) receiving out-door relief, 2,013.

The value of imports and exports is in general determined by declarations, subject to scrutiny. The values are accurate so far as they relate to imports subject to ad valorem duty; in other cases they are not so reliable. Quantities are ascertained by the Customs officers. The countries recorded as those of consignment or destination are those disclosed by declarations or shipping documents, and may not be the countries of origin of imports or ultimate destination of exports.

Imports (exclusive of transshipments) from United Kingdom (1920), 1,249,783*l.*; from Canada, 828,010*l.*; from United States, 1,570,364*l.* Exports (exclusive of transshipments), United Kingdom, 1,830,677*l.*; to Canada, 2,332,197*l.*; United States, 687,384*l.*

In 1920, 3,721 vessels, with a total tonnage of 899,748, entered and cleared (in 1919, 3,428 vessels of 711,518 tons), mainly British and Dutch. The registered vessels in 1919 were 17 steamers of 1,358 tons, and 19 sailing vessels of 1,379 tons.

Railways, 97½ miles of two gauges, 4ft. 8½in., and 3ft. 6in.; 450 miles river navigation; 39 miles of canals; 322 miles of good roads. A Government survey is now completed of the country between the Rupununi, Savannah and the Berbice and Demerara Rivers—a route along which it was contemplated before the war to run a railway. There are 75 post-offices, of which 45 are telegraph offices, 50 money order offices, 51 savings banks, and 9 travelling post offices. There are about 573 miles of post-office telegraphs and cables, and a telephone exchange in Georgetown and New Amsterdam having (1916-17) 1,790 miles of aerial wire, and 5½ miles of cables, with 800 subscribers; 100 miles of land line are also maintained for railway, telephones, and signals.

Accounts are kept in dollars and cents, the dollar being equal to 4*s.* 2*d.* In circulation are British gold, silver and bronze coin, with some silver 'bits,'—fourpenny pieces—local coins. Notes are issued by the Royal Bank of Canada and Colonial Bank in denominations of 5, 20, and 100 dollars, and there are Government currency notes of one and two dollars. The face value of the latter in circulation at 31 December, 1920, was 145,819*l.*

NEWFOUNDLAND AND LABRADOR.

Newfoundland was discovered by John Cabot in 1497; it was formally acquired by Great Britain in 1583; exclusive sovereignty over the island was ceded by France in 1713 by the Treaty of Utrecht, confirmed by treaties of 1763 and 1783.

The coast is rugged, especially on the south-west, where the coast range reaches an elevation of nearly 2,000 feet. The hills attain their summit within a few miles of the salt water, and then spread out into an undulating country, consisting largely of barrens and marshes, and intersected by numerous rivers and lakes. On the borders of the lakes and water-courses good land is generally found, and in some cases, as about the Exploits, the Gander and the Humber, it is heavily timbered. Area, 42,734 square miles. Population, December 31, 1920, 263,683 (133,722 males and 129,961 females). Dependent on Newfoundland is Labrador, the most easterly part of the American continent, with an area of 120,000 square miles, and population (1919) of 3,647. Of the total Newfoundland population in 1911, 67,040 were engaged in the fisheries, 2,915 were farmers, 5,376 mechanics, 2,260 miners. Capital, St. John's, 84,045 inhabitants (1918); other towns being Harbour Grace, 4,279 (1911); Bonavista, 3,911; Carbonear, 3,540; Twillingate, 3,848. The birth rate in 1917 was 26·85, and the death rate 17·77 per 1,000. Immigrants (1919), 14,550; emigrants, 12,260.

The government is administered by a Governor, assisted by an Executive Council (not exceeding 9 members), a Legislative Council (not exceeding 24 members), and an elected House of Assembly consisting of 36 representatives. Members of the Legislative Council receive 250 dollars per session; members of the Legislative Assembly receive 1,000 dollars per session. For electoral purposes the whole colony is divided into 18 districts or constituencies. Women are not (February, 1921) enfranchised.

After the general election of November 1919, the Government supporters in the House of Assembly numbered 23, and the opposition 13.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Sir C. A. Harris, K.C.M.G. C.B., C.V.O., appointed October, 1917; salary 15,000 dollars, with travelling allowance of 3,000 dollars.

The Ministry (December, 1921) is as follows:—

Prime Minister and Colonial Secretary.—Hon. Sir R. A. Squires, K.C., K.C.M.G.

Minister of Justice and Attorney-General.—Hon. W. R. Warren, K.C.

Minister of Finance and Customs.—Hon. H. J. Brownrigg.

Minister of Agriculture and Mines.—Hon. A. Campbell, M.D.

Minister of Marine and Fisheries.—Hon. W. F. Coaker.

Minister of Posts and Telegraphs.—Hon. W. W. Halfyard.

Minister of Education.—Hon. Arthur Barnes, P.D.

Ministers without Portfolios. Hon. S. J. Foote and Hon. Geo. Shea,

Not in the Cabinet:

Minister of Shipping.—W. H. Cave, Esq.

Minister of Public Works.—W. B. Jennings, Esq.

The ministers with departments receive salaries of 4,000 dollars each.

High Commissioner in London.—Sir Edgar R. Bowring, 58, Victoria Street, S.W.

Of the total population in 1911, 78,616 belonged to the Church of England, 81,177 were Roman Catholics, 68,042 Methodists, 1,876 Presbyterians, 10,141 Salvation Army, 2,767 other denominations. At the colleges of the Church of England, Roman Catholic, and Methodist bodies, in 1918 there were 361, 435 and 400 students respectively. The number of schools of all kinds (1918) was: Church of England, 437; Roman Catholic, 330; Methodist, 387, and other denominations, 58. The attendance at Board schools (1919) was: Church of England, 16,164; Roman Catholic, 16,428; Methodist, 15,563, and others, 2,687; total, 50,842: total expenditure, including Government grants, fees, &c., 570,637 dollars.

Production, &c.—The chief agricultural products in 1915 were: hay, potatoes, cabbage, turnips, and oats; the total value of all crops harvested being estimated at 3,000,000 dollars. In 1911 (census figures) there were in Newfoundland 13,288 horses, 40,427 cattle, 100,447 sheep, and 27,575 swine. Some fine pine forests exist to the north, and large saw mills have been established. The mineral resources of Newfoundland are considerable. Large beds of iron ore have been found on Bell Island in Conception Bay, on the east coast, and other rich deposits have been discovered on the west coast. The total deposits are estimated at about 3,600 million tons. Exports, 1918-19, 709,338 tons. Copper ore and pyrites are worked. In 1918-19, only 136 tons of ore were mined, valued at 3,573 dollars. Coal is found near St. George's Bay on the west coast, and in the Grand Lake district. In the eastern part of the island gold-bearing quartz rock and extensive deposits of silver and lead ore have been found. Extensive paper and pulp mills have been erected at Grand Falls, Bishop's Falls, and at Lomond in Bonne Bay, and one at Alexander Bay is about to be built.

Of the imports (1920-21) the value of 3,230,305 dollars came from the United Kingdom; 14,841,561 dollars from Canada; 9,556,244 dollars from the United States. Of the exports the value of 6,275,098 dollars went to the United Kingdom; 1,976,032 dollars to Canada; 1,854,101 dollars to United States.

Shipping.—Total tonnage of vessels entered and cleared in 1919-20, 1,813,804 tons, of which 1,484,073 tons were British. Vessels registered December 31, 1920, 3,362 sailing vessels of 152,166 tons, and 137 steam vessels of 22,018 tons; total, 3,499 vessels of 174,184 tons.

Fishing is the principal occupation of the population, the value of the fishing products being about four millions sterling annually.

By the Anglo-French Convention of 1904, France renounced her exclusive fishing rights under the treaty of Utrecht, but retained the right to fish in territorial waters from St. John's Cape northwards to Cape Ray for all sorts of fish, including bait and crustacea. An agreement for the submission of the Newfoundland fisheries disputes to The Hague was concluded at Washington, January 27, 1909. The award was published in September, 1910, and was satisfactory to British claims. Among other things, it secured the right of Great Britain to make regulations without the consent of the United States, subject to any limitations imposed by treaty. It also confirmed Great Britain's contention that the whole extent of a bay from headland to headland is comprised within territorial waters.

There were engaged in the bank cod fishery during 1919, 732 men, and 41 Newfoundland sailing vessels, aggregating 2,770 net tons, a decrease on 1918 of 208 men and 15 vessels of 1,134 tons. The catch in 1919 totalled 94,770 quintals of dry fish, valued at 1,137,240 dollars, as compared with 97,300 quintals, valued at 1,362,200 dollars, for the previous year. The output of the shore cod fishery is estimated at 1,347,070 quintals of dry fish, valued at 19,465,161 dollars. There were 14,870 small sailing vessels, boats (including motor boats), &c., utilised, and 37,550 men employed in this fishery. In 1919, the exports of codfish, including the Labrador fishery, amounted to 1,681,770 quintals. The catch of lobsters was 1,683,600 in 1916; 1,326,000 in 1917; 966,000 in 1918; 1,556,677 in 1919; and 2,331,295 in 1920.

During 1921, 101,452 seals were caught; 9 vessels and 1,264 men were engaged in the seal fishery. In 1920 the catch was 33,985 seals.

Communications, &c.—Railways open 1919: 904 miles of Government line with a gauge of 3 ft. 6 in., and 47 miles of private line. By acts of the Newfoundland Legislature in 1910 an agreement was made by the Government for the construction and maintenance of five branch lines of railway running to Bonavista, Heart's Content, and Grate's Cove, Trepassey, Fortune Bay, and Bonne Bay. The Government agreed to pay the contractors 15,000 dollars a mile for construction and to give 4,000 acres of land per mile constructed for operation, to do which it raised by loan 3,893,200 dollars. The line to Bonavista was completed in 1911, the line to Trepassey in 1912, and the lines to Heart's Content and Grate's Cove in 1914. These lines open up various fertile sections of the island. Communication between various points on the coast and between the island and the continent is maintained by a fleet of 13 first-class steamers, each of which connects with some central point on the railway. There were in 1920, 847 post offices, 213 of which were telegraph and 90 telephone offices. Letters and cards sent in 1920, 4,000,000; newspapers, books, &c., 3,600,000; parcels, 253,655. Post office revenue, 80,789*l.*; expenditure, 347,226*l.* Telegraph line open (1919), 4,600 miles; 965 miles of telephone wire.

In December, 1919, the Newfoundland Savings Bank held 2,507,984 dollars standing to the credit of 5,978 depositors; this is in addition to the amounts held by the Savings Departments of the four banks doing business in St. John's.

The legal coin of the colony is the gold dollar, equivalent to 4*s.* 1*½d.* of British money.

AUSTRALASIA AND OCEANIA.

THE British Territories in Australasia comprise the self-governing States and Territories which now form the Commonwealth of Australia; the Australian Dependencies of Papua and Norfolk Island, the self-governing Dominion of New Zealand and adjacent islands, and the Crown Colony of Fiji. The British possessions in Oceania include the Solomon and Tonga Islands, and many other groups of islands and islets scattered over the Pacific. There are also the mandatory territories of New Guinea, Samoa, and Nauru.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA.

The Commonwealth of Australia, consisting of the six colonies (now denominated Original States) of New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Western Australia, and Tasmania, was proclaimed at Sydney January 1, 1901. After five of these colonies had, by legislative enactments, approved by the direct vote of the electors, declared their desire for a Federal Union, the British Parliament, on July 9, 1900, passed the Act to constitute the Commonwealth. This Act provided for the inclusion of Western Australia in the Federation if that colony so desired, and in the following month the colonial legislation necessary for this end was passed.

On January 1, 1911, the Northern Territory was transferred by South Australia to the Commonwealth, and on the same date a portion of New South Wales, consisting of 912 square miles, was vested in the Commonwealth, for the purpose of forming the Federal Territory containing the seat of the Commonwealth Government. In 1917 this area was increased to 940 square miles.

Legislative power is vested in a Federal Parliament, consisting of the King, represented by a Governor-General, a Senate, and a House of Representatives. There must be a session of Parliament at least once every year. The Senate consists of Senators (at least six for each of the Original States voting as one electorate) chosen for six years. In general, the Senate will be renewed to the extent of one-half every three years, but in case of prolonged disagreement with the House of Representatives, it may be dissolved, and an entirely new Senate elected. The House of Representatives consists, as nearly as may be, of twice as many members as there are Senators, the numbers chosen in the several States being in proportion to the respective numbers of their people (aboriginal natives are not counted) as shown by the latest statistics of the Commonwealth, but not less than five for any original State. Every House of Representatives continues for three years from the date of its first meeting, unless sooner dissolved. Electoral qualifications for both Chambers of the first Federal Parliament were those for the more numerous House of the Parliament of the State in which the elector was competent to vote. Every Senator or Member of the House of Representatives must be a natural-born subject of the King, or have been for five years a naturalised subject under a law of the United Kingdom or of a State of the Commonwealth. He or she must be of full age, must possess electoral qualification, and have resided for three years within the Commonwealth. Since the first Parliament of the Commonwealth was instituted, an Electoral Act has unified the franchise for both Chambers, on the basis of universal adult (male and female) suffrage.

The legislative powers of the Federal Parliament are extensive, embracing commerce, shipping, &c.; finance, banking, currency, &c.; defence; external affairs; postal, telegraph, and like services; census and statistics; weights and measures; copyright; railways; conciliation and arbitration in industrial disputes extending beyond the limits of any one State; and many other matters. The Senate may not originate or amend money bills; and disagreement with the House of Representatives may result in dissolution, or, in the last resort, a joint sitting of the two Houses. No religion may be established. The several State Parliaments retain legislative authority in all matters which are not transferred to the Federal Parliament, which is thus a government of limited and enumerated powers, the several State Parliaments retaining the residuary power of government over their respective territories. If a State law is inconsistent with a Commonwealth law, the latter prevails.

An arrangement has been approved (November 1921) for a transfer of industrial powers to the Federal Parliament, to avoid conflicts between the decisions of Federal and State tribunals (see under Justice below).

The Executive power, vested in the King, is exercised by the Governor-General, who is assisted by an Executive Council of not more than nine responsible Ministers of State. These Ministers are, or must become within three months, members of the Federal Parliament; they are paid salaries and allowances not exceeding, in all, 22,500*l.* a year. The Executive Government of the Commonwealth is constituted as follows:—

Governor-General.—His Excellency the Rt. Hon. Henry William, Baron Forster of Lepe, P.C., G.C.M.G., Commander-in-Chief of the Commonwealth of Australia and its Dependencies (salary, £10,000).

Prime Minister and Minister for External Affairs.—Right Hon. W. M. Hughes, P.C., K.C.

Attorney-General.—Hon. Littleton Ernest Groom.

Treasurer.—Capt. the Hon. Stanley M. Bruce, M.C.

Minister of Defence.—Hon. Walter Massy Greene.

Minister for Repatriation.—Hon. Edward Davis Millen.

Public Works and Railways.—Hon. Richard Witty Foster.

Minister of Trade and Customs and of Health.—Hon. Arthur Stanislaus Rodgers.

Home and Territories.—Rt. Hon. George Foster Pearce, P.C.

Postmaster-General.—Hon. Alexander Poynton, O.B.E.

Vice-President of the Executive Council.—Hon. John Earle.

Assistant Minister for Defence.—Hon. Sir Granville de Laune Ryre, K.C.M.G., C.B., V.D.

Assistant Minister for Repatriation.—Hon. Hector Lamond.

High Commissioner for Commonwealth in London.—Rt. Hon. Sir Joseph Cook, P.C., G.C.M.G.

Official Secretary for the Commonwealth in London.—M. L. Shepherd, I.S.O., Australia House, Strand.

Commissioner for Commonwealth in America.—Vacant.

Trade Commissioner for Commonwealth in China.—E. S. Little, Shanghai and Hong Kong.

The Constitution provides for a Federal Judicature, and an inter-State Commission on Trade and Commerce, for the transfer of State officials, State property, and State debts to the Commonwealth, and for the admission or creation of new States. A High Court (consisting of 7 judges), the supreme Federal Court, has been established, with original as well as appellate jurisdiction. Appeal lies to the King in Council only in special circumstances. The Interstate Commission was constituted in 1913; the members are appointed by the Governor-General in Council and hold office for seven years. The selection of the Yass-Canberra site for the Federal Capital was voted in the Senate and House of Representatives, and in 1910, the Commonwealth acquired from the State of New South Wales an area of approximately 912 square miles. A further area of 28 square miles at Jervis Bay was acquired in 1917 for purposes of a Naval College, with the right to construct a railway from the Capital thereto. At present the Federal Government has its seat at Melbourne.

Proposed laws for the alteration of the Constitution must be submitted to the electors, and they can only be enacted if approved by a majority of the States and also a majority of all the electors voting.

The number of occupied dwellings in the Commonwealth in 1921 (census), was 1,154,423. The figures for the various States are as follows: New South Wales, 433,429; Victoria, 331,056; Queensland, 168,956; South Australia, 108,000; Western Australia, 73,491; Tasmania, 45,816; Northern Territory, 1,148; Federal Capital Territory, 527. In addition to the occupied dwellings there were in the Commonwealth at the time of the census 51,163 unoccupied dwellings, and 6,338 being built.

The Northern Territory, with an area of 528,620 square miles, was under the jurisdiction of South Australia from 1863 to 1910. On the 1st January, 1911, it was transferred to the Commonwealth (see Northern Territory).

On September 1, 1906, under the authority of the Papua Act of 1905 the administration of Papua was transferred to the Commonwealth (see Papua).

Finance.

Actual revenue and expenditure for 1917-18 to 1920-21 are given in the following table. The payments to States represent the balances of revenue collected in the several States after the necessary expenditure on Commonwealth services. Under the "Surplus Revenue Act, 1910," the amount payable by the Commonwealth to each State from July 1, 1910, is a sum equivalent to 25 shillings per head of the population as estimated by the Commonwealth Statistician at 31st December in each year. (In 1910-11 this amount was subject to certain deductions.) Tasmania is receiving, in addition, a total sum of 900,000*l.* in ten annual instalments, starting from 1912-18.

The estimates for 1921-22 are : revenue, 61,787,350*l.* ; expenditure, 64,604,458*l.*

The aggregate public debt of the several Australian States on June 30, 1920, was 417 million pounds.

The Commonwealth public debt on June 30th, 1921, was 401,720,025*l.*, including 359,606,719*l.* owing in respect of war loans.

The total Australian war expenditure for the six years ending June 30, 1921, was 438,583,753*l.*, of which 104,003,417*l.* is charged against revenue, and 334,581,336*l.* against loans. War expenditure for 1921-22 is estimated at 31,203,253*l.* out of revenue, and 11,196,000*l.* out of War Loan.

Invalid and Old Age Pensions.

The Invalid and Old Age Pension Acts provide for the payment of invalid and old age pensions at such rates as the Commissioner deciding the question deems sufficient, but so that the amount shall not exceed 39*l.* a year, nor the pensioner's whole income (including the pension) exceed 65*l.* a year (prior to 1916, the amounts were 26*l.* and 52*l.* respectively). Old age pensions are granted upon application to persons who are at least 65 years of age and have lived in Australia or Australian territory at least 20 years. Invalid pensions are granted to persons who have lived at least 5 years in Australia, have there become incapacitated, and have no other sufficient means of support. On October 9, 1912, a Maternity Bill was passed providing for the payment of a bonus up to a maximum amount of 5*l.* in respect of every child born in Australia, of white parentage. The disbursements for old age and invalid pensions (including payments to Asylums) were 3,793,037*l.* in 1917-18 ; 3,936,615*l.* in 1918-19 ; 4,546,879*l.* in 1919-20 ; and 5,074,336*l.* in 1921-22. The maternity allowance for 1917-18, 634,430*l.* ; for 1918-19, 620,080*l.* ; for 1919-20, 625,865*l.*, and for 1919-20, 700,760*l.* The numbers of pensioners in the Commonwealth on June 30, 1920, were :—Old age, 102,415 ; invalid, 37,931 ; total, 140,396. War pensioners at June 30, 1920, numbered 222,537.

Justice.

The judicial power of the Commonwealth is vested in a Federal Supreme Court (the High Court of Australia), consisting of a Chief Justice and five Justices, appointed by the Governor-General in Council. The High Court has original jurisdiction in all matters arising under treaties, between States of the Commonwealth, or affecting representatives of other countries, as well as in other matters as empowered by the Parliament. It may also hear and determine appeals from judgments of its own Justices exercising original jurisdiction, and from judgments of any other Federal Court, or of the Supreme Court of any State, subject to certain rights of final appeal to the King in Council.

An arrangement has been approved (November, 1921) for a transfer of industrial powers to the Federal Parliament in order to avoid conflict between the decisions of Federal and State tribunals. It is proposed to establish a tribunal of Commonwealth and State Judges with power to determine for the whole of Australia such questions as the basic wage and the standard working week, to decide what are Federal and what are State disputes, to settle the scope of the jurisdiction of Federal and State Courts, and act as a Court of Appeal from inferior Courts. Its decision is to be supreme.

Defence.

ARMY.

The principle of the defence policy of Australia is the universal compulsory training of a Citizen Army. Following upon the experience of the War, some modifications of the former defence organisation, and of the scheme of training, will be made, but the principle of universal training will be adhered to. Permanent troops will be maintained only in such numbers as are necessary to administer and instruct the Citizen Forces. The army to be raised is composed of 2 light horse divisions, 4 complete divisions, 3 mixed brigades, which in certain circumstances will be capable of union with a fifth division. These divisions are supplemented by the proportion of 'extra divisional units,' which war has shown to be necessary and of which the Commonwealth is, at the time, capable. The Divisional Commander is to have complete responsibility for the preparation for war of the forces under his command. An area is allotted to him and a personnel provided as the fixed machinery of the unit. The Military Board, with full responsibility for control and administration, will be retained. The Council of Defence will deal with policy and insure its continuity, and will co-ordinate the requirements of the sea, air, and land. The trainee who served in the Australian Imperial Force is exempted from further training, but members of that Force may join the new forces, in their old units, becoming the foundation upon which the scheme is built. Facilities are given to these men to fill positions in the commissioned and non-commissioned ranks.

The training of the junior cadets is mainly of a physical and recreational nature, aiming at the physical development of the youth. The youth of 17 or 18 years of age is given an advanced degree of physical and recreational training, and is also prepared for graduation to the Citizen Force. Under the proposed scheme the period of training in the Citizen Forces will be reduced from 7 years to 4 years, though the number of days' training will be increased. In the first year with the Citizen Forces the trainee is required to give 10 weeks, and in the following three years 16 days annually. At the end of that period, i.e., in his twenty-second year, he will be freed from training, but for a further period of four years he will be required to register.

An arsenal has been established, which will be more in the form of a munition supply branch aiming at insuring the supply of war needs through Australian trade rather than that Government-owned factories shall be designed on a scale necessary for the purpose. Properly situated mobilisation stores are being provided.

Rifle Clubs.—Maintenance of rifle clubs as a military reserve is no longer deemed necessary. The Government, however, have decided to subsidise rifle clubs to the extent of 50,000*l.* per annum, and in addition to supply ammunition to the value of 30,000*l.* The grant is administered by the Civil Branch of the Defence Department, and the conditions under which the money is to be spent and the details of future administration will be settled in consultation with the Council of Rifle Associations and Clubs.

The military forces of the Commonwealth on December 31, 1920, were :—

NAVY.

Sydney is a first-class naval station, and the headquarters of the British fleet in Australasia. The Naval Agreement Act of 1903 (for 10 years) provided that the Naval Force on the Australian Station should consist of not less than one armoured cruiser, first-class, two second-class cruisers, four third-class cruisers, four sloops, and of a Royal Naval Reserve of 25 officers and 700 seamen and stokers. The base of this force should be the ports of Australia and New Zealand, and their sphere of operations the waters of the Australia, China, and East India Stations. They were officered by officers of the Royal Navy and Royal Naval Reserve. Eight nominations for naval cadetships were to be given annually to the Commonwealth, and two to New Zealand. An annual charge of 200,000*l.* was to be paid to the Imperial Government by the Commonwealth, and 40,000*l.* by New Zealand. These payments continued till 1912–13, when the larger obligation of fleet-building was accepted by the Commonwealth, with maintenance of its own vessels.

On December 31, 1920, the naval forces of the Commonwealth were as follows :—Permanent naval forces (sea-going), 4,666; cadet midshipmen under training, 96; boys under training, 138; Royal Australian Naval Brigade, 6,402; R.N. Reserve (sea-going), 38; total, 11,340. The Imperial Government have presented to the Commonwealth a number of vessels, destroyers, submarines, and sloops, as addition to the permanent force became necessary. The naval estimates for 1921–22 were 2,265,438*l.*

The policy of the Commonwealth is to make Australia self-defending. Having accepted the position that a fuller Imperial partnership is necessary for the future security of the Empire, and that a definite place in the Pacific has been allotted to Australia, the Government agreed in 1911 to furnish an Australian Fleet Unit, upon which King George conferred the title of 'Royal Australian Navy.' The ships and vessels of the Royal Australian Navy are named in the British lists. They are the battle-cruiser, Australia, and the light-cruisers, Adelaide, Melbourne, Sydney, Brisbane, Pioneer, and Encounter. In addition are the following :—the flotilla leader Anzac (1917), 1,660 tons, 34 knots, 4 4-in. guns; 'river class' destroyers, Huon, Parramatta, Swan, Torrens, Warrego, and Yarra (1910–15), 700 tons, 27 knots; 'S' class, Stalwart, Success, Swordsmen, Tasmania, Tattoo, (1913–19), 1,075 tons, 36 knots; submarines, J1 to J7 (1916–17), surface displacement, 1,170 tons, 19 knots; submerged displacement, 1900 tons, 9½ knots. The Australian Navy also includes four sloops and a few old vessels of practically no value.

AIR FORCES.

A combined Naval and Military Air Corps, organised under a Board composed of flying, equipment, and finance officers has been established. This organisation will facilitate an all-round training of personnel in naval and military flying, and focus the results of the experience to be gained in the development of a combined service. For the present it is proposed to establish the following units:—Headquarters, Australian Air Corps (including representation in London); three station headquarters, with land, buildings, store and repair facilities; one central flying school; one aircraft depôt; one squadron of flying boats; one squadron of ships' sea-planes; one squadron torpedo carriers; two fighting squadrons; and two corps reconnaissance squadrons. There will be both permanent and citizen force units. The permanent units will be required for service with the fleet, for squadrons so isolated that citizen personnel cannot be utilised, and for training squadrons. The Minister will be assisted by a representative War Council, which will include officers of the Navy, Army, and Air Board, and an independent controller of civil aviation. It is proposed to use the permanent section of the military air force largely in surveying and other necessary work, and in arranging routes in Australia which will eventually be used for the purposes of commercial aviation. The organisation of Naval Defence units has been suspended for the present.

Production.

Up to the year 1919, 801,958,852 acres, representing 42·13 per cent. of the total area of the Australian Commonwealth, were either unoccupied or occupied by the Crown; only 5·68 per cent. had been actually alienated (108,088,411 acres); 2·94 per cent. (58,009,047 acres) was in course of alienation; and 49·25 per cent. (937,675,530 acres) was held under the various forms of leases and licenses.

The area under crops (distinguishing the principal crops) in the Commonwealth, and the yield in 1919-20, were as follows:—

Crops	Total acreage	Total yield	Yield per acre

² Tons per acre of productive crops. ³ Including 52,530 tons for wine from 82,783 acres of productive vines.

⁴ Gallons per acre of productive vines.

The total area under all crops in 1919-20 was 13,299,000 acres. The total value of agricultural production in the same year was 72,233,000/. Of Australia's total forest area of 92,500,000 acres, 17,670,000 acres have been especially reserved for timber. Wheat acreage 1920-21, 9,055,000; yield, 144,244,000 bushels. The total sugar crop of 1919-20 was 173,000 tons; and the estimated yield for 1920-21 is 280,000 tons.

At or about the end of 1919 there were in the Commonwealth 2,421,000 horses, 12,711,000 cattle, 75,554,000 sheep, and 696,000 pigs.

The production of wool in 1919-20 amounted to 663,249,000 lbs., valued at 42,835,000£., and the exports to 552,334,000 lbs. greasy, valued at 38,416,000£., and 91,051,000 lbs. scoured and tops, valued at 12,127,000£. The exports of tallow amounted in value to 2,883,000£.; of sheepskins to 2,599,000£.; and of frozen meat to 9,031,000£. The butter produced in season 1919-20 amounted to 165,648,791 lbs., and 39,006,000 lbs., valued at 3,304,000£., were exported during that period.

The mineral output was valued as follows in 1918 and 1919:—

—	1918	1919	—	1918	1919
Gold	5,408,000	5,455,000	Coal	6,124,000	6,761,000

A Commonwealth Bureau of Commerce and Industry was established in 1919 to organise the country's resources, and frame a policy for the expansion of trade, improvement of methods, and establishment of new industries.

Commerce.

Throughout the Commonwealth there are uniform customs duties, and trade between the States is free. For 1920-21, the net revenue collected from customs duties amounted to 21,733,832£.

The following table shows for 6 years the value of the imports and exports (merchandise, bullion, and specie) into or from the Australian Commonwealth from or into countries outside the Commonwealth.

The value of goods imported represents the amount on which duty is payable or would be payable if the duty were ad valorem. The value of goods subject to duty is taken to be the fair market value in the principal markets of the country whence the same were exported, with an addition of 10 per cent. to such market value.

The Customs Tariff Act of 1920 provides for preference to goods produced in and shipped from the United Kingdom to Australia as against the goods of other countries, and for reciprocal tariff agreements with other countries. It also affords a larger measure of protection to Australian industries than previous tariffs.

The value of goods exported is the value in the principal markets of the Commonwealth in the usual and ordinary commercial acceptance of the term.

¹ The figures for cost of construction and Federal Railways are for year 1919-20.

In 1912 the building of the trans-Australian railway from Port Augusta in South Australia to Kalgoorlie in Western Australia was commenced, and was opened in November 1917, the length being 1,051 miles. A trans-continental railway from north to south, also over 1,000 miles in length, is under consideration.

In Victoria a scheme for the electrification of the railways is being carried out; about 42 miles of suburban lines have been electrified. Electric railways are also to be constructed in Sydney.

The State railway gauge is:—In N.S. Wales, 4ft. 8½in. (40 miles, 3ft. 6in.); in Victoria, 5ft. 3in. (122 miles, 2ft. 6in.); in Queensland, 3ft. 6in. (30 miles, 2ft. 0in.); in South Australia, 5ft. 3in. for 1,124 miles, the rest, 3ft. 6in.; in W. Australia, 3ft. 6in.; and in Tasmania, 3ft. 6in. (24 miles, 2ft. 0in.). Of the Federal lines, the gauge of the Trans-Australian and Federal Territory is 4ft. 8½in.; and that of the Oodnadatta and Northern Territory is 3ft. 6in. A commission has recommended a uniform 4ft. 8½in. gauge, and this has been accepted in principle. Steps are being taken to begin the conversion.

Private railways in Commonwealth, open for general traffic, 1920, 968 miles; not open for general traffic, 1,841 miles.

Postal and telegraph business, year ended June 30, 1920: number of Post and Receiving Offices, 8,292; letters and cards received and despatched, 583,459,344; newspapers, books, and circulars, 131,085,136; parcels, 5,935,726; packets, 41,754,311; registered articles, 6,008,207; telegrams and cablegrams, 23,729,516. Receipts, 1919-20: Post Office, 3,258,769¹; telegraphs and telephones, 3,473,327¹. Expenses: Post Office, telegraphs and telephones, 6,244,142¹. (including interest on transferred properties).

Wireless telegraphy stations are in operation in all the state capitals, and in certain other places.

Money and Credit.

On January 20, 1913, the Commonwealth Bank was opened at Sydney. Branches have been opened at the other State capitals, also at Townsville, Canberra, London, and several country centres. Deposits (general and savings bank) at June 30, 1921, were 70,705,875¹. The bank started without capital, and began to make profits in 1913-14. At June 1921 the accumulated profits held at credit of reserve funds amounted to 3,451,365*l*.

There are, besides, 20 private banks trading in the Commonwealth. Their paid-up capital on June 30 1920, was 40,251,925*l*., and the amount of reserved profits 22,481,950*l*.

The following table shows the total liabilities in Banks trading in the Commonwealth, in the quarter ended June 30, for 5 years:—

The total number of depositors in the Savings Banks in the Commonwealth on March 31, 1921, was 3,217,711, and the amount on deposit, 145,420,449*l*.

There are 3 mints in the Commonwealth, at Sydney (opened 1855), Melbourne (1872), and Perth (1899). Besides issuing gold coin in the shape of sovereigns and half-sovereigns they also issue gold bullion, partly for the use of local manufacturers (jewellers and dentists), and partly for export, India taking annually a considerable quantity of gold cast into 10-oz. bars. The issues during 1919 are shown in the following table:—

Mint	Coin			Bullion	Total
	Sovereigns	Half-Sovereigns	Total
	£	£	£	£	£
Sydney . . .	1,835,000	—	1,835,000	117,001	1,952,001

Australian notes, authorised by the Australian Notes Act, began to appear in circulation in December, 1910, and for the first half of the year 1911 circulated side by side with ordinary bank notes. By the end of 1911 the bank notes were withdrawn.

On September 26, 1921, notes issued by the Commonwealth and unredeemed amounted to 56,540,206*l*. Of this total 1,000*l*. notes accounted for 22,342,000*l*., 1*l*. notes, 14,472,760*l*., and 5*l*. notes, 9,764,695*l*. The amount of gold held in reserve on that date was 23,531,459*l*., representing 41·62 per cent. of the liability.

NORFOLK ISLAND, 29° S. latitude, 168° E. longitude, area 18 square miles, population (1911) 985 (568 males and 417 females). The island was formerly part of the Colony of New South Wales and then of Van Diemen's Land. It has been a distinct settlement since 1856, and under an Order-in-Council of 1900 was governed by the Governor of New South Wales; but from July 1, 1914, the affairs of the island have been administered by the Commonwealth Government. In 1917-18 the imports (mostly from the Commonwealth and New Zealand) were valued at 12,786*l*., and the exports, 6,460*l*. To encourage the development of the fish industry the Commonwealth Government has granted an annuity of 1,000*l*. for three years to those engaged in the trade.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

Constitution and Government.

New South Wales became a British Possession in 1788; in 1843 a partially elective Legislative Council was established, and in 1855 responsible government was granted. The constitution is embodied in the consolidating Act passed in 1902. The legislative power is vested in a Parliament of two Houses, the first called the Legislative Council, and the second the Legislative Assembly. The Legislative Council consists of not less than twenty-one members (83 in September, 1921), appointed by the Crown for life. Members are not entitled to remuneration, but travel free on the State railways and tramways. The President receives an annual salary of 1,200*l.*, and the Chairman of Committees, 700*l.* One-fourth of the members, exclusive of the President, is necessary to form a quorum for the dispatch of business. The Legislative Assembly has 90 members. Under an Act passed in 1918 Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales are elected in accordance with the principles of proportional representation, and the State has been divided into electoral districts so arranged that those within the metropolitan and adjacent areas, and that containing the City of Newcastle, are represented by five, and the remaining districts by three members. In all there are 24 electorates—9 returning five members and 15 returning three members each. Postal voting is permissible. Every man or woman, being a natural born or naturalised British subject above 21 years of age, having resided six months in the Commonwealth, three months in the State, and one month in the electorate, is qualified as an elector. The hours of polling are from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., polling day being a public holiday from mid-day; under the liquor laws hotels are closed during the hours of polling. Members of the Legislative Assembly are paid 875*l.* per annum, in addition to which they are allowed to travel free on Government railways and tramways in the State, and receive a postage allowance for correspondence. The leader of the Opposition is allowed 250*l.* per annum in addition. The Speaker of the Legislative Assembly receives a salary of 1,675*l.* per annum, the Chairman of Committees 1,115*l.*, the Premier 2,445*l.*, the Attorney-General 2,095*l.*, and the other ministers, except the Vice-President of the Executive Council, 1,945*l.* each. The salary of the Vice-President of the Executive Council (leader of the Government in the Legislative Council) is 1,375*l.* The duration of a Parliament is not more than three years. At the State general election of 1920, 648,709 electors (363,115 males, and 285,594 females), or 56·19 per cent. of electors enrolled and qualified to vote, recorded their votes. In New South Wales, at the Senate Federal election of 1919, 400,477 males (or 72·77 per cent.) out of 550,363 enrolled, and 317,088 females (or 59·93 per cent.) out of 529,076 enrolled, voted. At the House of Representatives (Federal) election of 1919, 385,614 males (or 73·06 per cent.) out of 527,779 males enrolled voted, and 308,183 females (or 60·65 per cent.) out of 503,129 women enrolled voted. The Women's Legal Status Act, 1918, provides that women shall not by reason of sex be disqualified from holding the position of Member of the Legislative Assembly, Mayor or Member of a Local Government Council, Judge of the Supreme Court, or of a District Court, Chairman of Quarter Sessions, Stipendiary or Police Magistrate, Justice of the Peace, Barrister or Solicitor of the Supreme Court, or Conveyancer. The executive is in the hands of a Governor, appointed by the Imperial Government.

Governor.—His Excellency Sir Walter Edward Davidson, K.C.M.G., from February 18, 1918. (Salary, 5,000*l.*)

Lieut.-Governor.—His Excellency the Honourable Sir William Portus Cullen, K.C.M.G., LL.D., Chief Justice of New South Wales.

In the exercise of the executive the Governor is assisted by a Cabinet consisting of the following members (March 1922):—

Agent-General in London (Acting).—Sir Timothy A. Coghlan, K.C.M.G., I.S.O.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

Under the Local Government Act of 1906, the system of Local Government was extended to the whole of the State, with the exception of the Western Land Division, where, however, eight municipalities are incorporated. There are 184 boroughs and municipal districts under the title of municipalities, and in addition thereto 136 corporate bodies which are called shires.

The Local Government Act of 1919 repealed former Acts, but existing regulations remain in force until amended or cancelled. Provision is made for Government endowments to shires of a minimum of 150,000*l.* annually, payable on general rates. In addition to the ordinary powers exercised, the municipal and shire councils are authorised to borrow up to 20 per cent. of the unimproved value in municipalities, such loans to be guaranteed by the Government. General rates are charged on the unimproved value of the land, and not on the annual rental. Special local and loan rates may be imposed on the improved or unimproved value at the option of the Council. The rateable value of coal mines is fixed at 50 per cent. of the gross value of the average annual output for the preceding three years, and of other mining properties at 40 per cent. for the same period. Hospitals, benevolent institutions, public libraries, parks, churches, and unoccupied Crown lands are exempt from taxation. Municipalities which are not entitled to a statutory endowment under former Acts may, in necessitous circumstances, receive endowments. Owners and occupiers of rateable property of annual value not less than 5*l.*, whether male or female, unless not naturalised, in any municipality or shire, and paying rates, are entitled to vote for the election of aldermen or councillors, and are qualified for nomination for a civic office.

Area and Population.

The area of New South Wales, inclusive of Lord Howe Island and the Federal Capital Territory, is estimated at 310,372 square miles. The State is divided into various districts for departmental purposes, the most important division being that into 141 counties.

The population (including aborigines) at six consecutive censuses was :—

Year	Males	Females	Total	Pop. per square mile	Average increase per cent. per annum.

¹ Excluding Federal Capital territory (2,572 in 1921).

According to the race or origin, percentages were as follows at the census of 1911 (exclusive of aborigines):—New South Wales, 74·51; other Commonwealth States, 9·67; New Zealand, 0·85; English, 7·49; Irish, 2·85; Scotch, 1·91; Welsh, 0·27; other British subjects, 0·45; total British subjects, 98·00. Chinese, 0·47; German, 0·45; other foreigners, 0·99; total foreigners, 1·91. Born at sea, 0·09. Aborigines:—Males, 1,152; females, 360; total, 2,012.

378 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—NEW SOUTH WALES

According to occupation the number of actual workers (not including aborigines) was distributed thus at the census of 1911 :—

Professional	56,140
Domestic	73,381
Commercial	106,320
Transport and Communication	61,964
Industrial	208,014
Primary Producers (Agricultural, 79,235 ; Pastoral and Dairying, 72,990 ; Mining and Quarrying 39,574)	204,093
Independent	8,908

Total Breadwinners . . . 718,820

The number of persons classed as 'dependents' was 916,211, and 'unspecified,' 11,703.

The census population of Sydney (1921), including suburbs and shipping, was 897,640. At the end of 1919 the chief country towns, with their populations, were as follow :—Newcastle and suburbs, 62,900 ; Broken Hill, 22,950 ; Parramatta, 12,630 ; Maitland, E. & W., 12,400 ; Goulburn, 11,000 ; Granville, 12,030 ; Lithgow, 10,900 ; Bathurst, 9,100 ; Auburn, 11,910 ; Lismore, 8,850 ; Lidcombe, 8,770 ; Tamworth, 8,250 ; Orange, 7,500 ; Grafton, 5,350 ; Wagga Wagga, 7,650 ; Albury, 7,000 ; Katoomba, 7,400 ; Bankstown, 7,000 ; Prospect and Sherwood, 6,090 ; Wollongong, 5,900 ; Armidale, 5,550 ; Inverell, 5,750 ; Forbes, 5,300 ; Dubbo, 5,200 ; Casino, 4,950 ; Cowra, 4,500 ; Wellington, 4,750 ; Liverpool, 4,060 ; Glen Innes, 5150.

The following table shows the births, deaths, and marriages for five years :

Year	Marriages	Total Births	Illegitimate	Total Deaths	Excess of Births
1913	16,311	52,134	2,802	19,732	32,402
1917	13,261	52,467	2,533	17,969	34,498

1920	20,183	53,974	2,635	20,961	33,013

The increase in population between the census of 1911 and that of 1921 was 449,293. Towards this the excess of births over deaths contributed 318,524.

The following table shows the movement of population during the last five years :—

Year	Arrivals			Departures
	Interstate	Oversea	Total	Interstate	Oversea	Total
1916	358,453	39,688	398,141	345,360	97,497	442,857
1917	274,768	35,063	309,831	260,616	52,504	313,120

1920	311,518	72,515	384,033	303,222	66,854	370,076

NOTE.—The excess of Departures oversea, up to the year 1918, is due to departure of men in the Australian Imperial Forces.

In December, 1905, New South Wales revived the policy of assisted immigration, and assisted passages are now granted to female domestic servants and close relatives of residents. Free passages are granted to ex-service men and women who are nominated by friends already settled in New South Wales. 6,814 assisted persons arrived in 1914, 3,508 in 1915, 1,040 in 1916, 586 in 1917, 192 in 1918, 119 in 1919, and 1,087 in 1920.

Housing.—To relieve the urgent demands for small dwellings, a Government Housing Board was created for the purpose of purchasing or resuming land and erecting houses thereon for disposal by sale or lease. The housing scheme assists persons by liberal advances to become the owners of their own homes. Up to the end of 1920 there had been constructed 1,249 houses, including 222 in course of construction, the total amount expended by the Board being 776,901*l*.

Religion.

An Act abolishing State aid to religion was passed in 1862. Only one of the clergymen who received State aid when the Act was passed is now living.

The Church of England in the State is under the guidance of a Metropolitan who is Archbishop of Sydney, Metropolitan of New South Wales, and Primate of Australia and Tasmania. He is nominated by the Bishops in Australia and consecrated by the Archbishop of Canterbury. There were in 1921 seven dioceses. The affairs of the Roman Catholic Church are administered by the Bishops of eight dioceses under the Archbishop of Sydney. The following table shows the statistics of the religious denominations in New South Wales at the census of 1911 :—

Instruction.

Education is under State control, and instruction is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14 years; in the State Primary and Superior public schools and High Schools education is free.

There were during 1920, 3,393 Government schools, divided into 3,641 departments, and classified as follows:—High schools 27; public primary schools 2,059; provisional schools 504; half-time schools 144; house-to-house school 1; travelling schools 3; evening continuation schools 41; correspondence schools 2; subsidised schools 609; industrial and reformatory schools 3; total 3,393 schools. During 1920 there were 304,373 children enrolled, and an average attendance of 234,657, with 9,204 teachers. The pupils receiving Kindergarten instruction at Government schools numbered 7,567. In 1920 the expenditure on Public Instruction (exclusive of technical education and rates on school premises) was 3,038,472*l*.

The Public Schools Savings' Bank in 1920 received deposits amounting to 58,8117. The libraries in connection with the schools have 354,000 volumes and 23,436 periodicals.

Of private schools at the end of 1920 there were 678, with 73,749 pupils and 3,780 teachers, of which 458 were Roman Catholic Denominational Schools, having 2,471 teachers and 60,196 pupils. The figures relating to private schools are exclusive of business colleges and shorthand schools.

The medical inspection of State school children and of many at private schools is conducted by the Government Medical Officers every three years. A travelling school hospital, a travelling optalmic clinic, a Metropolitan dental clinic, and six travelling dental clinics have been established.

The University of Sydney, founded in 1850, receives from Government a yearly subsidy, amounting, with special aid, to 83,4787. in 1920. The total revenue for 1920 was 167,1307. There were 3,397 students with 26 professors, 6 assistant professors, 156 lecturers and demonstrators. Degrees or certificates are granted in all branches of knowledge other than Theology and Divinity, and the benefits and advantages of the University are extended to women equally with men. During 1920 there were 277 degrees conferred by examination to men and 82 to women. There are 4 denominational colleges, Church of England, Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, and Methodist, and a college for women (unsectarian), affiliated to the University. The Technical College, with branch schools, comprises departments in agriculture, architecture, biology, chemistry, domestic science, electrical engineering, geology, mathematics, mechanical engineering, printing and lithography, sanitation, sheep and wool, women's handicrafts, art, commercial subjects, bakery: also separate classes and correspondence courses. There was a total enrolment of 18,119 in 1920.

Of establishments of an educational character there are the Australian Museum, Technological and Mining Museums and National Art Gallery, Public Libraries, Conservatorium of Music, also Botanical Garden and Zoological Garden.

Old Age, Invalidity and Accident Pensions, and Maternity Allowances.

In Australia the old age pension law grants (subject to conditions as to birth, residence, and character) a pension of 15s. per week to every woman over 60 years of age, and every man over 65 years of age, or over 60 if incapacitated by infirmity or injury from earning a living. The maximum pension of 397. per annum (15s. per week) is subject to a proportionate reduction in respect of any income or property of the claimant, so that the pensioner's income with the pension shall not exceed 657. per annum with men pensioners and 607. with women. Benefits from friendly societies are not reckoned as income, nor any gifts and allowances from children or grandchildren; nor is deduction made for the home in which the pensioner permanently resides. Money payable to a pensioner while an inmate of a benevolent asylum or hospital may be paid to the institution for the pensioner. Since July 1, 1909, old age pensions have been paid throughout the Commonwealth by the Federal Government, and on June 30, 1920, 37,358 old age pensions were current in New South Wales.

Invalidity and Accident Pensions are paid to persons over the age of 16 years who are permanently incapacitated and who are not receiving an old age pension. From Dec. 15, 1910, the payment of these pensions was undertaken by the Federal Government, and 14,337 persons in New South Wales were in receipt of the benefits on June 30, 1920.

War pensioners in New South Wales at June 30, 1920, numbered 69,631.

Under the Maternity Allowance Act, passed by the Commonwealth Parliament in 1912, payment of maternity allowances is made to mothers of children born in Australia. A sum of 5*l.* is payable in respect of each birth, one allowance only being payable in cases of plural births. The allowance is payable to women who are inhabitants of the Commonwealth, or who intend to settle therein. The total number of claims paid in New South Wales during the year ended June 20, 1921, was 55,640.

Justice and Crime.

In New South Wales legal processes may be grouped within the Lower or Magistrates Courts, or of the Higher Courts presided over by appointed Judges. There is also an appellate jurisdiction. The Lower or Magistrate's Courts include Petty Sessions, Small Debts, Licensing, Children's, Coroner's, and Fair Rents Courts. All persons arrested and charged with offences, and all summoned persons, must be brought before the Magistrates' Courts, and dealt with summarily or committed to trial at the Higher Courts. Summary offences are punishable by fine or by imprisonment. The period of imprisonment that may be awarded by magistrates for purely summary offences ranges from a maximum of seven days where the total amount payable does not exceed 10*s.*, to a maximum of twelve months where the amount exceeds 100*l.* The period of imprisonment is fixed by Statute: in some cases sentences up to two years may be imposed. Prisoners charged with capital crimes must be tried before the Supreme Court.

The First Offenders (Women) Act, 1918, provides that when any woman who has not been previously convicted of any offence punishable either summarily or on indictment, is charged before any court with a minor offence, the hearing of such charge, etc., must, unless the defendant elects to be tried in open court, be in private and no persons other than those directly interested shall remain in the court, and a report of the proceedings must not be published.

In the Sydney, Parramatta, Newcastle, Broken Hill, Bathurst, and Wollongong districts stipendiary magistrates preside in the police courts; in other districts, police magistrates and honorary justices of the peace adjudicate. The licensing of houses for the sale of intoxicants is transacted by magistrates specially appointed for that purpose.

Children's Courts have been established with the object of removing children as far as possible from the atmosphere of a public court. Magistrates exercise powers in respect of children and of offences committed by and against children. Offenders against the universal training section of the Defence Act are prosecuted in the Children's Court.

The Fair Rents Courts established in 1916 determine the fair rental of dwellings leased for a term not exceeding three years at a rental not exceeding 156*l.* per annum.

A Profiteering Prevention Court has been established. District Courts are held for the trials of civil cases and there is a Court of Industrial Arbitration.

The Supreme Court of New South Wales is under the presidency of the Chief Justice assisted by not more than seven puisne judges.

In 1919 there were 58,042 convictions before magistrates at Courts of Petty Sessions and Children's Courts, and 762 distinct persons were convicted at the Higher Courts. There are 25 gaols. On December 31, 1919, there were 895 prisoners in confinement.

Finance.

The following are statistics of net revenue for years-ended June 30 :—

¹ Including balance of revenue collected by the Federal Government and returned to State

Under the heading 'Business Undertakings' is included revenue from railways, tramways, water supply and sewerage, and Sydney Harbour Trust.

The control of the customs and excise having passed to the Commonwealth Government on January 1, 1901, the taxation is obtained from stamp and probate duties, land tax, income tax, motor tax, betting taxes, totalizator tax, racecourse admission tax, and licences. A payment of 25s. per head per annum is made to the State by the Commonwealth Government, the bulk of whose revenue comes from customs and excise duties, income tax, land tax, probate and succession duties, and the Post Office.

The following table shows the net expenditure exclusive of expenditure from loans :—

Year ended June 30	Railways and Tramways (including Interest on Capital)	Water Supply and Sewerage (including Interest on Capital)	Public Instruction (excluding Endowments)	Interest on Public Debt, and Special Deposits	Other Services	Total Net Expenditure

The amount of the Public Debt proper on June 30, 1921, was 164,336,492*l.* (exclusive of Closer Settlement Debentures, &c., 4,236,236*l.*) with mean rate of interest 4·41 per cent. Of this amount about 86 per cent. has been spent on the construction of railways, tramways, water supply, sewerage, roads and bridges, harbours and rivers, navigation and the Sydney Harbour Trust, controlled by Boards. The net return from these services for the year 1920-21 was equal to 4·37 per cent. of the cost of construction ; or 3·36 per cent. of the existing Public Debt.

The expenditure from loans, exclusive of redemptions, up to June 30, 1921, was : Railways and tramways, 97,061,719*l.* ; conservation of water, artesian boring, etc., 7,724,038*l.* ; water supply and sewerage, 23,136,164*l.* ; roads and bridges, 1,854,776*l.* ; harbours and rivers navigation, 6,534,453*l.* ; Sydney Harbour Trusts, 9,001,364*l.* ; other works and services, 25,984,458*l.* ; total, 171,276,972*l.*

The financial statistics of the incorporated boroughs and municipal districts (area 1,805,934 acres) are as follows for the municipal year 1919:—

The financial statistics of the 136 shires (area, 115,653,120 acres), during 1919, were as follows:—

Unimproved Capital Value, 110,881,306*l.*; Income, 1,289,761*l.*; Expenditure, 1,307,998*l.*

For Defence, see Commonwealth of Australia, p. 363. There is a complete naval establishment, the main works of which are at Garden Island, Sydney. Sydney is the headquarters of the squadron in Australian waters, and has a dockyard, naval coaling station, and victualling and other stores. The cost of defence is borne by the Commonwealth Government.

Production and Industry.

I. LAND SETTLEMENT.

The State of New South Wales is divided into three divisions—the Eastern, Central, and Western. The Districts in the Eastern and Central Divisions are, for the purpose of local administration, grouped into Land Board Districts, which are sub-divided into Land Districts. The Western Division is under the control of the Western Land Board—consisting of three Commissioners—and the head offices of the Lands Department and Western Land Board offices are in Sydney. In the Eastern and Central Divisions land may be acquired under various tenures; in the Western Division the land is leased by the State to pastoral tenants, mainly for grazing, but small areas in or near townships are leased for special purposes.

The total land alienated or in process of alienation on June 30, 1920, was 63,125,561 acres, exclusive of Federal Capital Territory. The total land occupied under leases of various kinds was 113,086,399 acres.

II. AGRICULTURE.

In 1919-20 there were 3,773,577 acres under crops (including 3,422 double cropped). The cultivated land is principally to be found in small holdings of less than 500 acres.

The area under cultivation in New South Wales during four years and the principal crops produced were as follows:

Year ended June 30	1917		1918		1919		1920

The principal fruit-culture of the State is that of the orange. There were in June, 1920, 28,727 acres under citrus fruit, with a production of 1,047,788 bushels of oranges, 270,876 bushels of lemons, 446,303 bushels of mandarins, and 4,071 bushels of other citrus fruit. During 1919-20 the production of bananas was 352,266 cases; apples, 524,303 bushels; peaches and nectarines, 754,514 bushels; plums and prunes, 140,421 bushels.

At June 30, 1920, the State had 29,249,253 sheep, 3,084,332 cattle, 662,264 horses, and 253,910 swine. The production of wool as in the grease was in the year ended June 30, 1920, 296,641,000 lbs. In the same year the production of tallow was 686,970 cwt.; butter, 63,135,000 lbs.; cheese, 6,762,467 lbs.; bacon and ham, 16,669,598 lbs.

There were 141,615 persons employed permanently in rural occupations during the year ended June 30, 1920.

There is a Forestry Commission. The total area of Crown lands as State forests amounts to 5,085,050 acres, and the area of timber reserves was 1,746,069 acres. The revenue from royalties, licences, &c., amounted in the year ended June 30, 1916, to 68,107*l.*; in 1917 to 67,273*l.*; in 1918 to 70,969*l.*; in 1919 to 97,592*l.*; and in 1920 to 147,040*l.* There were 477 licensed sawmills, the employees numbering 5,660, and the value of plant and machinery was 828,449*l.* The output of native timber amounted to 160,627,000 superficial feet valued at 1,929,695*l.* The estimated value of production from Forestry in 1919-20 was 1,527,000*l.*

III. MINES AND MINERALS.

Gold is found in all parts of New South Wales. The total production since its discovery in 1851 down to and including 1920 was 14,797,544 oz. fine, valued at 62,855,933*l.* The production in 1920 was 48,907 oz. fine, valued at 207,746*l.* Most of the gold won in the State is received at the Sydney Mint for coinage.

The value of silver and silver-lead and ore obtained to the end of 1920 was 82,249,001*l.* In 1920, 158,934 ounces of silver were raised, valued at 36,942*l.*, and 8,890 tons of silver-lead ore concentrates, &c., altogether valued at 76,634*l.* 1,290 tons of copper were produced, valued at 127,978*l.* The estimated value of copper raised from its discovery in 1858 until the end of 1920 is 15,256,078*l.* The total value of the output of tin since the mines were opened in 1872 has been 12,342,297*l.*, the value in 1920 being 413,794*l.* for 2,486 tons. In 1920 there were 151 coal mines, employing 19,965 men; the quantity of coal raised was 10,715,999 tons, valued at 7,723,555*l.* The estimated value of coal raised to the close of 1920 amounted to 105,867,621*l.* During 1920, 7 shale mines were in operation, 165 miners raising 21,004 tons of oil shale, valued at 46,082*l.*, making the total value of production to end of 1920, 2,548,896*l.*; 567,569 tons of coke were manufactured, valued at 844,191*l.* There were 10 smelting works and ore-dressing establishments giving permanent employment to 1,133 persons, principally for the smelting of silver, tin, and copper ores. The output of zinc (metal and concentrates) was 71,043 tons, valued at 249,456*l.*; and of lead, 413 tons, valued at 9,905*l.* Other minerals, &c., produced in 1920 were: iron, 86,096 tons, valued at 645,720*l.*; lime, 33,505 tons, 80,412*l.*; wolfram, 14 tons, 2,212*l.*; Portland cement, 719,435*l.* The aggregate value of the mineral products of N.S.W. to the end of 1920 was 321,820,383*l.*

Industrial Arbitration and Conciliation.

The Industrial laws of New South Wales provide for the regulation of the conditions of industries by means of industrial conciliation and arbitration, and for the repression of strikes and lock-outs. Provision has been made for the registration of industrial unions of employers and of employees, for the constitution of a Court of Industrial Arbitration and subsidiary Tribunals—such as Wages or Industrial Boards—to decide disputes and to determine rates of wages and other industrial matters, and for the appointment of a Board of Trade, under the presidency of a Judge of the Court, to exercise extensive powers regarding industrial conditions.

An Industrial Board, consisting of a chairman and two or four other members, representing equally the employers and employees, may be constituted for any industry or group of industries on the recommendation of the Industrial Arbitration Court; also special boards to determine questions of demarcation. A Board may make an award fixing the lowest rates of wages, up to a maximum of £10 per week, the times and hours of work, the rates of payment for overtime, and the proportionate number of apprentices, and granting preference of employment to unionists, and determining any other industrial matter.

The Court or a board may deal with wages and hours of employment, but no award may be made for wages lower than the living wage declared by the Board of Trade. Employees in rural industries are entitled to the living wage as determined after separate inquiry. Aged, infirm or slow workers may obtain permits to work for less than the minimum wage.

The Industrial Boards have been arranged upon the basis of craft or calling, those relating to allied industries being grouped under one chairman. At June 30, 1920, there were 252 Boards, but since 1916 their work has been gradually curtailed, except in special cases, and awards are now made by the Court in order to prevent delay in hearing and in determining, and to prevent the overlapping of awards.

The awards are binding on all persons in the industry and within the locality to which they relate for a period not exceeding three years. Application for variation may be made whenever a living wage declaration has been made by the Board of Trade. Appeal from an award of a Board lies to the Court.

The Board of Trade, with powers of a Royal Commission, is composed of a President (who is Judge of the Court), a Deputy President, four Commissioners, and four additional Commissioners to represent rural industries. After public inquiry as to the cost of living, the Board declares annually the rates of living wage for adult employees of each sex, the administration of all matters relating to apprenticeship, the welfare of juvenile labour, &c., and for the improvement of industrial relationship between employers and workers.

Living Wage for Adult Employees.—Under Regulations made pursuant to the Industrial Arbitration Act, 1912, all adult male employees in the State receive a living wage of 85s. per week, 14s. 2d. per day, or 1s. 9½. per hour, and females 43s. per week, 7s. 2d. per day, or 10½d. per hour, except in cases where employees are provided with board and/or lodging, or where entitled to any customary privileges or payments in kind, the amount of which has not been assessed by the Court of Industrial Arbitration. Margins above the living wage are determined by award or agreement.

Commerce and Communications.

The external commerce of New South Wales, exclusive of Inter-State trade, is included in the Statement of the Commerce of the Commonwealth. The total external commerce of the State is given in the following table:—

Year ended June 30	Imports Oversea	Exports Oversea

The chief exports are gold, silver, copper, lead, tin, ores, coal, wool, wool tops, milk, sausage casings, furs, metal manufactures, butter, wheat, flour, fruit, jams, &c., boots and shoes, timber, meat (frozen and preserved), rabbits, hides and skins, tallow, leather, coconut oil, pearl-shell.

With the exception of a steam tramway of 2½ miles in extent under private control all tramways are the property of the Government. There were, on June 30, 1921, 227 miles open for traffic, the capital cost being 9,060,757l. The gross earnings for 1920-21 were 3,471,738l.; the working expenses, 2,943,252l.; and the percentage of working expenses to earnings 84.78. On June 30, 1921, 5,043 miles of railway were open; the revenue for 1920-21 was 14,267,205l.; the expenditure, 11,032,677l.; the number of passengers carried, 120,735,140. There are 8 private railways having a total mileage of 158 miles.

Money and Credit.

The value of gold coin and gold bullion issued at the Royal Branch Mint, Sydney, during seven years, was:—

Year	Gold	Year	Gold
1918	2,274,740	1917	1,738,679
1915	1,864,036	1918	3,807,734
1916	1,535,584	1919	1,952,000
		1920	469,405

In addition to the above, Australian silver coin to the value of 1,338,350*l.*, and bronze coin valued at 78,520*l.*, were issued to December 31, 1920.

There were 16 banks trading in New South Wales in 1921, the average assets in the June quarter being: coin, 9,791,211*l.*; bullion, 360,738*l.*; landed property, 2,573,628*l.*; notes and discounted bills, &c., 104,709,314*l.*; notes and bills of other banks, 673,740*l.*; balances due from other banks, 2,512,885*l.*; total assets, 132,433,933*l.* (including 11,812,417*l.* Australian notes).

The liabilities of the banks (exclusive of those to shareholders) were, for June, 1921; Notes in circulation, 71,654*l.*; bills in circulation, 979,076*l.*; deposits not bearing interest, 53,044,965*l.*; deposits bearing interest, 54,631,451*l.*; total deposits, 107,676,416*l.*; balances due to other banks 2,682,336*l.*; total liabilities, 111,409,482*l.*

The Government Savings Bank of New South Wales is under the control of three commissioners. Its business is carried on in three separate departments—the Savings Bank, the Rural Bank, and the Advances for Homes. In the Rural Bank Department money is accepted on current account, fixed deposits at interest are received, and operations may be extended to include the general business of banking. The Advances for Homes are made to enable persons to acquire homes or to pay off existing mortgages on their homes. The loans current in each department of the Bank at June 30, 1920, were: Savings Bank, 1,929,974*l.*; Advances to Settlers, 2,903,885*l.*; Advances for Homes, 2,176,583*l.*; Irrigation Farms, 13,927*l.*; total loans, 7,024,369*l.*

Statistics of Savings Banks are given below; the figures include the returns of the Savings Bank Department of the Commonwealth Bank of Australia:—

VICTORIA

Constitution and Government.

Victoria, formerly a portion of New South Wales, was, in 1851, proclaimed a separate colony, with a partially elective Legislative Council, and in 1855 responsible self-government was conferred. The legislative authority is vested in a Parliament of two Chambers. The Upper House consists of 34 members, elected for six years, and the Lower of 65, elected for three years (unless sooner dissolved). Members of the Council must be in possession of an estate of the net annual value of 50*l.* for one year prior to their election; and electors must be in the possession or occupancy of property of the rateable value of 10*l.* per annum if derived from freehold, or of 15*l.* if derived from leasehold or the occupation of rented property. No electoral property qualification is required for graduates of British or Colonial universities, matriculated students of the Melbourne University, ministers of religion of any denomination, certificated teachers, lawyers, medical practitioners, and officers of the army and navy active and retired. One-half of the members of the Legislative Council retire every three years. The members of the Legislative Assembly require no property qualification, and are elected by universal male and (since 1908) female suffrage, and no person may vote in more than one district, nor twice in the same district. Clergymen of any religious denomination are not allowed to hold seats in either the Legislative Council or the Legislative Assembly.

Members of the Legislative Assembly are entitled to reimbursement for expenses at the rate of 500*l.* per annum, and members of both Houses have free passes over all the railways.

Governor.—The Right Hon. The Earl of Stradbroke.

Lieutenant Governor.—Hon. Sir William H. Irvine, K.C.M.G.

In the exercise of the executive the Governor is assisted by a Cabinet of responsible ministers.

The Ministry (November 1921) is as follows:—

Premier and Minister of Agriculture and Water Supply.—Hon. H. S. W. Lawson, M.L.A.

Chief Secretary, and Minister of Public Health.—Major the Hon. M Baird, M.L.A.

Treasurer.—Hon. W. M. McPherson, M.L.A.

Attorney-General and Solicitor-General.—Hon. A. Robinson, C.M.G., M.L.C.

Minister of Education, Forests, and Labour.—Hon. Sir A. J. Peacock, K.C.M.G., M.L.A.

Minister for Public Works.—Hon. F. G. Clarke, M.L.C.

Minister of Railways and Mines.—Hon. S. Barnes, M.L.A.

Minister of Lands.—Hon. D. S. Oman, M.L.A.

Honorary Members of the Cabinet.—Hon. J. W. Pennington, M.L.A., Hon. H. Angus, M.L.A.

The number of salaried ministers is limited to eight, and their total salaries to 10,000*l.* At least four of the ministers must be members of either the Legislative Council or the Assembly, but not more than two shall be members of the Council, nor more than six be members of the Assembly.

State of the parties in the Legislative Assembly (October 1921): Nationalists, 31; Independent Liberal, 1; Farmers' Union, 12; Labour, 21. Total, 65.

Agent-General for Victoria in Great Britain.—Hon. J. McWhae, Offices, Melbourne Place, The Strand, W.C. 2.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

For purposes of local administration the State is divided into urban and rural municipalities. The former, called cities, towns, and boroughs, ought not to be of a greater area than nine square miles, and in being constituted must contain at least 500 householders, and rateable property capable of yielding 300*l.* upon a rate of one shilling in the £. The latter, called shires, are portions of country, of undefined extent, containing rateable property capable of yielding a revenue of 1,500*l.* on a rate of one shilling in the £. In 1920 there were 55 urban and 138 rural municipalities, only 650 square miles in the State not being included within their limits. Every ratepayer has one or more votes, according to the amount of his rates.

Area and Population.

The State has an area of 87,884 square miles, or 56,245,760 acres, about $\frac{1}{11}$ part of the whole area of Australia. The State is divided into 37 counties, varying in area from 920 to 5,933 square miles.

The growth of the population, as shown by census returns, is exhibited in the following table:—

Date of Enumeration	Males	Females	Total	Annual rate of increase per cent.
March 29, 1857 . . .	264,334	146,432	410,766	—
April 7, 1861 . . .	323,651	211,671	540,322	7·88
April 2, 1871 . . .	401,050	330,478	731,528	3·07
April 3, 1881 . . .	452,083	410,263	862,346	1·65
April 5, 1891 . . .	598,414	541,991	1,140,405	2·83
March 31, 1901 . . .	603,883	597,458	1,201,341	0·48
April 2, 1911 . . .	655,591	659,960	1,315,551	0·91
April 4, 1921 . . .	754,629	776,900	1,531,529	1·54

The average density of the population is 17 persons to the square mile, or one person to every 37 acres.

The population in 1891 included 9,377 Chinese and 565 aborigines; in 1901, 7,349 Chinese and 652 aborigines; and in 1911, 5,601 Chinese and 643 aborigines.

At the date of the census of 1911, 98 per cent. of the population were British subjects by birth; native Victorians numbered 1,010,219, or 77 per cent. of the population; natives of the other Australian States, 98,726; of New Zealand, 10,067; of England and Wales, 89,382; of Ireland, 41,477; of Scotland, 26,577; of Germany, 6,142; of Austria 355; of other countries, 20,285; 1,303 were born at sea and the birthplaces of 11,018 were unspecified.

Of the total population in 1911, there were 577,053 bread-winners and 721,137 dependants, while 17,361 were not accounted for. Of the bread-winners there were—professional, 43,819; domestic, 62,175; commercial, 91,611; industrial, 187,773; engaged in transport, 39,238; primary producers, 144,384 (including agricultural, 86,152; pastoral, 29,340; fisheries, 873; mining, 20,239; forestry, 5,151; water conservation, 1,627; capture of wild animals and their produce, 1,002); indefinite, 8,053.

About three-fifths of the total population of Victoria live in towns. At the census of 1921 it was ascertained that the town population numbered nearly one million, out of a total population of 1,531,529.

Inclusive of the suburbs the enumerated population on April 4, 1921, of Melbourne was 784,000, or half of that of the State; Ballarat, 38,500; Geelong, 36,170; Bendigo, 33,170; Warrnambool, 7,739; Castlemaine, 7,000; Mildura, 5,100; Maryborough, 4,747; Hamilton, 5,098; and Wonthaggi, 5,176.

The following are the births, deaths, and marriages in the State for five years:—

Year	Total Births	Illegitimate	Deaths	Marriages	Surplus of Births
1916	34,239	1,764	16,489	11,341	17,750
1917	33,035	1,820	14,555	9,506	18,480
1918	31,601	1,844	15,177	9,156	16,424
1919	31,621	1,825	19,370	11,706	12,251
1920	36,214	1,896	16,832	14,898	19,382

The recorded immigration into and emigration from the State of Victoria by sea were as follow in recent years:—

Year	Immigration (by sea)	Emigration (by sea)	Year	Immigration (by sea)	Emigration (by sea)
1913	114,586	101,718	1918	48,566 ¹	51,631 ¹

Exclusive of members of the Australian Expeditionary Forces.

Of the immigrants in 1920, 30,350 were females, and of the emigrants 26,728 were females.

Religion.

There is no State Church in Victoria, and no State assistance has been given to religion since 1875. At the date of the census of 1911 76½ per cent. of the population were Protestants, 22½ per cent. were Roman Catholics, and a half per cent. were Jews. The following were the enumerated numbers of each of the principal religions in 1911:—Episcopalians 476,203 (including 'Protestant,' so stated, 24,116); Presbyterians, 234,553; Methodists, 176,662; other Protestants, 93,729; Roman Catholics, 286,433; Jews, 6,270; Buddhists, Confucians, &c., 2,572; others (including unspecified), 40,129.

Instruction.

Educational establishments in Victoria are of four kinds, viz., the University, established under a special Act and opened in 1855, with its four affiliated colleges, State schools (primary and secondary), technical schools or colleges, and registered schools. Out of the general revenue the University received a subsidy amounting to 27,750*l.* for the year ending June 30, 1921. It is both an examining and a teaching body, and grants degrees in all Faculties except Divinity.

Affiliated to the University are four colleges—Trinity, Ormond, Queen's and Newman—in connection with the Church of England, Presbyterian, Methodist and Roman Catholic Churches respectively; also the School of Mines at Ballarat. From the opening of the University to the end of 1920, 10,478 students matriculated, and 7,006 direct degrees were conferred. In 1920 the students who matriculated numbered 746, the direct graduates numbered 387, and there were 2,530 students attending lectures.

Public instruction is strictly secular; it is compulsory for children between the ages of 6 and 14, and free for the subjects comprised in the ordinary course of instruction. In 1919 there were 2,280 State schools with 6,518 teachers, a total enrolment of 235,292 scholars, and an average attendance of 160,345, or 68 per cent. of the numbers on the roll. Amongst persons aged 15 years and upwards at the census of 1911, 98 per cent. were able to read and write. In 1919-20 the total cost of public instruction, including grants to the University, was 1,678,764*l.*—all paid by the State. Secondary education is for the most part under the control either of private persons or proprietary bodies, usually connected with some religious denomination. There were, in 1919, 486 registered schools in Victoria, with 1,991 teachers, and a net enrolment of 56,684 scholars. A large proportion of these were in connection with the Roman Catholic denomination, the members of which do not as a rule avail themselves of the free education afforded by the State.

Under the auspices of the Education Department are 24 technical schools, 20 junior technical schools, 30 high schools (including agricultural high schools), 39 higher elementary schools, and 5 schools of domestic arts. In 1920 there were 635 teachers attached to the technical schools, irrespective of agricultural and horticultural colleges, the gross enrolment of pupils being 14,173.

Old Age Pensions, &c.

On July 1, 1909, the Federal Old Age Pensions Act came into operation, and the State pensioners were taken over by the Federal authorities. The number in Victoria, on June 30, 1921, was 30,385. Pensions are also granted to invalids, 11,174 being on the register on June 30, 1921. The amount paid in old age and invalid pensions during 1920-21 was 1,533,430*l*.

An Act was passed by the Federal Parliament in October, 1912, providing for the payment, on application, of 5*l*. to the mother of every child born in the Commonwealth, no additional sum to be paid for twins. During the year ended June 30, 1921, the allowance was granted to 36,778 mothers in the State of Victoria.

The number of War Pensions granted in Victoria to June 30, 1921, was 74,801, and the annual liability in respect thereof was 2,167,490*l*.

Justice and Crime.

There is a Supreme Court with a Chief Justice and five puisne judges. There are courts of general and petty sessions, county courts, courts of insolvency, courts of mines, and courts of licensing. The following are the criminal statistics for five years:—

—	1916	1917	1918	1919	1920
Arrested	17,599	12,689	10,346	11,993	14,582
Summarily convicted . .	10,494	7,627	6,087	7,094	9,010
Committed for trial . .	509	440	340	506	759
Sentenced after commitment	343	276	209	307	442

The number of individuals arrested during 1920 was 11,387.

There are 7 gaols and 4 reformatory prisons in Victoria, besides 4 police gaols. At the end of 1920 there were confined in these prisons and police gaols 691 males and 44 females.

Finance.

The revenue and expenditure of the State in the years shown were:—

Year ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure	Year ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1914	10,958,037	10,944,718	1919	13,044,088	12,979,407
1917	11,813,879	11,795,295	1920	15,866,194	15,752,459
1918	12,672,787	12,631,169	1921	19,155,973	19,043,197

The following table shows the actual amounts of State revenue and expenditure under the principal heads during 1919-20.

Heads of Revenue	Amount	Heads of Expenditure	Amount
Taxation :—	£		£
Land tax	314,217	Governor	6,915
Duties on estates of deceased persons	881,423	Parliament & Ministry	74,402
Duty on bank notes	1,871	Civil establishments	342,029

		Mining, agriculture, and stock	853,345
		Other expenditure	818,955
Total	15,866,184	Total	15,752,459

The amount raised by taxation (exclusive of taxes collected by Commonwealth) as shown in the above table, viz. 3,159,767*l.*, was equivalent to a proportion of 2*l.* 2*s.* 7*d.* per head of population.

Victoria has a debt, incurred in the construction of public works, which amounted, on June 30, 1920, to 86,394,454*l.* (inclusive of temporary Treasury bills). Of this debt 56,924,620*l.* was borrowed for the construction of railways, 10,740,551*l.* for waterworks, 1,601,406*l.* for State school buildings, &c., and 17,127,877*l.* for other public works and purposes. The nominal rate of interest on the public debt varies from 3 to 5½ per cent., and averages 4·03 per cent.

The net local ordinary revenue and expenditure (Municipalities, Harbour Trusts, Metropolitan Board of Works, and Fire Brigade Boards) for 1920 were respectively 4,351,063*l.* and 4,109,976*l.* The net local debt (exclusive of amounts borrowed first by Government) amounted to 17,418,920*l.* on June 30, 1920.

The estimated total value of the rateable property of the State in 1920 amounted to about 399,502,745*l.*, and the annual value was 21,214,708*l.*

Production and Industry.

I. AGRICULTURE.

Of the total area of Victoria about 33,004,997 acres at the end of 1920 were either alienated or in process of alienation. Of the remainder about 4,843,878 acres are at present suitable for agriculture; 8,545,989 acres for pastoral purposes; 149,516 acres are held under perpetual lease; State forests, timber, water, and other reserves, 5,536,373 acres; auriferous land, 620,586 acres; roads, 1,757,040 acres; and unsold land in towns, &c., 1,787,381 acres.

The total number of holdings in 1920–21 was 77,148.

The following table shows the areas under the principal crops and the produce of each for four years :—

Years ended March 31	Total Area Cultivated	Wheat		Oats		Barley		Potatoes		Hay
		1,000 Acres	1,000 Bushels	1,000 Acres	1,000 Bushels	1,000 Acres	1,000 Bushels	1,000 Acres	1,000 Tons	1,000 Acres	1,000 Tons

1921	17·19	24·59	25·97	27·25	2·74	1·49

In 1920-21 there were 30,828 acres of vines, yielding 2,250,000 gallons of wine. (1919-20, 27,554 acres, 1,512,000 gallons.)

In addition, green forage covered 79,524 acres, and gardens (both market and private) and orchards occupied an extent of 96,919 acres in 1920-21.

There is a small beet-sugar undertaking in the hands of the government. In the season 1920-21 1,180 acres were harvested and 833 tons of sugar extracted.

At the end of March, 1921, there were in the State 487,503 horses, 1,575,159 head of cattle, 12,171,084 sheep, and 175,275 pigs. The wool produced in the season 1913-14 amounted to 106,833,690 lbs., valued at 4,032,954*l.*; in 1915-16 to 82,330,193 lbs., valued at 4,066,003*l.*; in 1916-17 to 94,845,024 lbs., valued at 5,927,814*l.*; in 1917-18 to 105,424,682 lbs., valued at 6,410,077*l.*, in 1918-19 to 126,647,061 lbs., valued at 7,621,413*l.*, and in 1919-20 to 132,847,167 lbs., valued at 7,908,007*l.* The quantity of butter produced in 1919 was 60,218,945 lbs.

At the end of 1920 the area of State Forests in Victoria was 4,432,600 acres. The amount of timber sawn in 1919-20 in Victoria Saw Mills from Victorian logs was 99,142,130 super. feet valued at the mill at 693,995*l.*

The estimated value of Victorian production in 1919-20 was as follows :—

Agricultural Production	21,884,045.		Miscellaneous	4,710,140
Pastoral and Dairying	25,949,070

The total quantity of gold raised from 1851 to 1920 is estimated at 70,755,747 oz. (fine), of an aggregate value of 300,550,535*l*. The estimated number of miners at work on the gold-fields in 1920 was 3,742. About 1,850 persons were employed in coal-mining. Total mineral production, 1920, 1,524,800*l*., compared with 1,332,607*l*. in 1919.

III. MANUFACTURES.

The total number of manufactories, works, &c., in 1919–20, was 6,038, of which 1,671 used steam or gas engines; the aggregate horse-power used was 166,803; the number of hands employed was 136,522; and the lands, buildings, machinery, and plant were valued at 30,804,520*l*. The value of materials used was 65,563,104*l*., and of articles produced or work done, 101,475,363*l*. The wages paid (excluding working proprietors) amounted to 17,702,173*l*. The manufactures are almost entirely for home consumption.

Commerce and Communications.

The commerce of Victoria, exclusive of inter-State trade, is included in the statement of the commerce of the Commonwealth of Australia.

The total value of the imports and exports of Victoria, excluding inter-State trade, in six years, was :—

Years	Total Imports (Oversea)	Total Exports (Oversea)	Years	Total Imports (Oversea)	Total Exports (Oversea)
	£	£		£	£
1913	24,387,073	17,835,895	1918–19	35,026,311	28,095,159

Credit.

A branch of the Royal Mint was opened at Melbourne on June 12, 1872. Up to Dec. 31, 1920, 39,215,895 oz. of gold, valued at 153,785,247*l.*, was received at the mint, and gold coin and bullion issued of the value of 153,822,679*l.* The minting of silver coin was commenced in January, 1916, and bronze coin in 1919.

On June 30, 1921, the Savings Bank of Victoria (with which have been amalgamated the Post Office Savings Banks) had 134 banks and branches with 339 agencies at post offices in the State. There were (excluding the Commonwealth Savings Bank) 928,009 depositors, with a total balance of 42,956,461*l.* There is a special branch of the Savings Bank, called the "Advances Department," which makes advances to farmers and others at 7 per cent. interest, these being repayable by instalments extending over a term not exceeding 31½ years. The requisite funds are raised by the issue of bonds, taken up either by the Commissioners of Savings Banks or by the general public, and repayable by half-yearly drawings. The amount advanced during 1919-20 was 1,260,505*l.*; and the total balance of loans at June 30, 1920, was 5,237,054*l.*

During the December quarter of 1920 there were in Victoria 17 banks, possessing 759 branches and agencies, with notes in circulation, 92,719*l.*, deposits 86,085,423*l.*, the total liabilities being 88,049,750*l.*; gold and silver, coined and in bars, and Australian notes, 14,966,556*l.*; property, 1,513,551*l.*; advances, &c., 71,180,140*l.*; total assets, 88,536,893*l.* Total paid-up capital, 35,915,745*l.*

QUEENSLAND

Constitution and Government.

Queensland, formerly a portion of New South Wales, was formed into a separate colony in 1859, and responsible government was conferred. The power of making laws and imposing taxes is vested in a Parliament of two Houses—the Legislative Council and the Legislative Assembly. The former consists of 59 members, nominated by the Crown for life; but no limit is put to the number. The Legislative Assembly comprises 72 members, returned from 72 electoral districts for three years, elected by ballot. Members of the Assembly are entitled to payment of 300*l.* per annum, with travelling expenses, and an allowance for stationery and postage. At the General Election of October, 1920, there were 455,728 persons registered as qualified to vote under the 'Electors Act Amendment Act of 1914.' This provides for male and female adult franchise, a twelve months' continuous residence in the State being the only proviso.

A bill for abolishing the Legislative Council was passed in October 1921, but was reserved by the Governor for consideration by the Imperial Government.

Governor of Queensland.—Lieut.-Col. Sir Matthew Nathan, P.C. (Ire.), G.C.M.G. (1920). (Salary, 3,000*l.*)

Lieutenant-Governor.—Hon. W. Lennon.

The Executive Council of ministers consists (1920) of the following members:—

Premier, Chief Secretary, and Vice-President of the Executive Council.—Hon. E. G. Theodore.

Home Secretary.—Hon. W. McCormack.

Treasurer and Secretary for Public Works.—Vacant (Feb. 1922).

Secretary for Public Lands.—Hon. J. H. Coyne.

Secretary for Mines.—Hon. A. J. Jones, M.L.C.

Secretary for Railways.—Hon. J. Larcombe.

Secretary for Public Instruction.—Hon. J. Huxham.

Attorney-General.—The Hon. John Mullan.

Secretary for Agriculture and Stock.—Hon. W. N. Gillies.

Minister without Portfolio.—Hon. William Forgan Smith.

President of Legislative Council.—Hon. W. Lennon.

Each minister has a salary of 1,000*l.*; the Vice-President of the Executive Council receives 300*l.*

Agent-General for Queensland in Great Britain.—Hon. J. Arthur Fihelly, Office.—409 Strand. Secretary, P. J. Dillon.

Provision is made for Local Government by the subdivision of the State into areas denominated respectively cities, towns and shires. These are under the management of aldermen and councillors, who are elected by the ratepayers and are charged with the control of all matters of a parochial nature, more especially the construction and maintenance of roads and bridges within their allotted areas. Shires for the most part consist of purely rural districts.

The number and area of these subdivisions, together with the receipts and expenditure for the year 1920, were :—

	No.	Area in square miles	Receipts	Expenditure	Capital Value
Cities . .	11	207.5	673,812	721,455	14,515,708

Area and Population.

Queensland comprises the whole north-eastern portion of the Australian continent, including the adjacent islands in the Pacific Ocean and in the Gulf of Carpentaria. Estimated area 670,500 English square miles, with a seaboard of 2,250 miles. In 1825 a branch penal settlement was made at Moreton Bay; in 1842 free settlers were admitted to the country, and during the next twenty years great progress was apparent.

The increase in the population at different periods since 1846 has been as follows :—

Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum	Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum	Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum
1846	2,257	—	1871	120,104	6.74	1901	498,129	2.78
1856	18,544	72.16	1876	173,283	8.85	1911	605,813	2.16
1861	30,059	17.06	1881	213,525	4.64	1921	757,634	2.51
1864	61,467	34.83	1886	322,853	10.24
1868	99,901	15.63	1891	393,718	4.39

In 1921 the population consisted of 399,610 males, and 358,024 females. In 1911 there were 6,138 male and 576 female Chinese; 1,865 male and 400 female "Polynesians"; 1,428 male and 75 female Japanese; 4,573 persons of other Asiatic, &c., races. In addition there were 5,145 male and 3,542 female full-blooded Aborigines living in a civilised manner. The total number of aborigines has been estimated at 20,000.

As to occupation the population in 1911 was classified as follows :—Professional class, 17,633; domestics, 26,570; commercial, 34,564; industrial, 68,262; transport and communication, 23,142; agricultural, pastoral, mining, &c., 101,904; indefinite, 4,890; independent, 2,758; dependent class (wives, children, scholars, students, dependent relatives, &c.), 326,070.

Of the total population, 1911, 382,216 persons (exclusive of aborigines) were born in the State; 65,266 in England; 31,599 in Ireland; 20,530 in Scotland; 2,620 in Wales; 38,921 in N. S. Wales; 15,943 in Victoria; 3,348 in S. Australia; 482 in W. Australia; 1,798 in Tasmania; 3,987 other Australians, including 'Australia' undefined; 2,576 in New Zealand; 11,979 in Germany; 2,641 in Denmark; 1,054 in Sweden; 685 in Norway.

The following table shows the births, deaths, and marriages for five years:—

Years	Total Births	Illegitimate	Deaths	Marriages	Excess of Births
1916	18,912	954	7,514	5,208	11,398
1917	19,787	967	6,555	4,868	13,232
1918	19,560	1,046	7,158	4,821	12,402
1919	18,699	1,074	8,860	5,431	9,839
1920	20,257	1,017	7,946	6,670	12,311

The immigration and emigration, including arrivals and departures by sea and by rail across the border, and of Expeditionary Forces, have been as follows:—Immigration, 1916, 130,528; 1917, 123,243; 1918, 110,878; 1919, 79,005; 1920, 89,299. Emigration, 1916, 151,360; 1917, 118,138; 1918, 104,749; 1919, 58,862; 1920, 89,099.

Brisbane, the capital, had in 1921 a population, within a ten mile radius, of 209,699. At the census, 1911, other towns including their suburbs contained: Rockhampton, 20,915; Townsville, 13,835; Maryborough, 11,626; Gympie, 12,419; Ipswich, 25,000; Toowoomba, 24,200; Charters Towers, 17,998.

Religion.

There is no State Church. Previous to 1861 valuable grants of land had been made to the principal religious denominations, which they still retain. The following were the numbers in 1911:—Church of England, 212,702; Church of Rome, 137,086; Presbyterian, 75,560; Methodist, 59,920; Lutheran, 24,235; Baptist, 13,715; other Christian sects, 90,556; Jews, 672; other Non Christians, 5,518; no religion, 1,906; unspecified, &c., 21,893.

Instruction.

Primary secular education is free and compulsory. According to the marriage statistics, 99.31 per cent. of persons married during 1920 were able to read and write. The Public Expenditure on account of education for the year 1920 was 1,354,902*l.*, and for 1921 the sum of 1,254,942*l.* has been provided by the State. During the year 1920 there were 1,638 State schools (including 12 high schools) in operation, with 4,349 teachers, and an average daily attendance of 94,602 pupils. Secondary education is provided for by 10 grammar schools, 6 for boys and 4 for girls, with, in 1920, 110 teachers and an average attendance of 1,595 pupils; 12 'High Schools' with 154 teachers and 1,270 scholars. There were besides 157 private schools, with 928 teachers, and an average daily attendance of 20,006 pupils. The Government grants annually a considerable number of scholarships, tenable for three years, to the various grammar schools. There were 17 technical schools in 1920 with 11,863 distinct students. The Queensland University (established in 1911) in Brisbane had, at the end of 1920, 8 professors and 20 lecturers, &c., with 406 students on the roll.

Justice and Crime.

Justice is administered by Supreme Courts, District Courts, and Courts of Petty Sessions. In these last Justices of the Peace sit, presided over in the more important centres by Police magistrates. The Supreme Court consists of a Chief Justice and five puisne judges. The total number of persons convicted of serious offences by the Superior Courts in 1920 was 302, and the summary convictions at petty sessions in 1920 numbered 14,699 (excluding 7,223 cases of bail estreated). Including penal establishments, there were, at the end of 1920, 12 prisons, with 329 male and 16 female prisoners. The total police force, including native troopers, averages about 1,213 men.

Pauperism, Old Age Pensions.

Charitable institutions are maintained by public subscription, supplemented by State endowment; hospitals, benevolent asylums, an institution for the blind, deaf, and dumb, refuges and homes helped. Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are now payable by the Commonwealth. The number of Old Age Pensioners in the State at June 30, 1921, was 13,019, and of Invalid Pensioners, 4,960. The number of War Pensioners at the same date was 23,600 (including dependents).

Finance.

The following table shows the net revenue and expenditure of Queensland during five years ending June 30 :—

—	1916-17	1917-18	1918-19	1919-20	1920-21
	£	£	£	£	£

Expenditure .	8,134,387	8,900,934	9,587,532	11,267,000	12,591,201

Estimates, 1921-22 :—revenue, 12,270,689*l.* ; expenditure, 12,735,727*l.* .

The gross income from or expenditure on account of Departments under the control of the Commonwealth is not included.

The chief items of expenditure during 1920-21 were as under :—Interest on public debt, 2,930,703*l.* ; public instruction, 1,278,309*l.* ; treasurer's department, 576,421*l.* ; public lands department, 294,944*l.* ; department of agriculture, 130,060*l.* ; cost of working railways, 5,046,498*l.* . The total expenditure from loans, mostly on public works, was 4,251,248*l.* , of which the principal items were railways, 1,760,932*l.* ; soldiers' settlement, 1,017,535*l.* ; loans to local bodies, 845,307*l.*

The estimated value of landed property in 1920 for assessment for Local Government purposes was 66,325,130*l.* This includes lands leased from the Crown for pastoral purposes, the lessees' interest in which has been capitalised for assessment purposes at 7,762,006*l.*, but is exclusive of unoccupied Crown lands, the property of local bodies, reserves for public purposes, and lands upon which are erected buildings for public worship.

The gross public debt of the State amounted, on June 30, 1921, to 80,382,052*l.*

Defence.

For defence, see under Commonwealth of Australia.

Production and Industry.

Of the total area of the State, 17,022,300 acres (1920) have been alienated : in process of alienation, under deferred payment system, are 8,659,280, leaving 403,438,490 acres still the property of the Crown, or about 94·02 per cent. of the total area. The receipts from the sale of land up to the end of 1920 amounted to 10,221,256*l.* Land is made available for selection in the following modes and classes:—(1) Agricultural Selections—i.e., Perpetual Lease Selections; (2) Grazing Selections—i.e., Grazing Homesteads and Grazing Farms; and (3) Perpetual Lease Prickly-pear Selections. The largest area that may be acquired by any one person as a Perpetual Lease Selection is 2,560 acres. The annual rent for the first 15 years of the term is 1½ per cent. of the notified capital value. The greatest area which may be applied for or held as a Grazing Homestead or a Grazing Farm is 60,000 acres. The term may be any number of years not exceeding 28. A Grazing Farm must be continuously occupied during the whole term of the lease by the selectors residing on it personally or by bailiff; and it must be enclosed with a substantial fence within three years from the issue of the licence to occupy. The area of a Prickly-pear Selection must not exceed 2,560 acres. During the first period of the lease no rent is payable, but the prickly-pear must be regularly eradicated and the land kept clear; thereafter the rent is 1½ per cent. of the notified capital value.

A large proportion of the area is leased in squatting runs for pastoral purposes, amounting to 209,248,960 acres in 1920, besides 79,397,073 acres in grazing farms and homesteads, and 38,830,400 acres under occupation licence. The live-stock in 1920 numbered 742,000 horses, 6,455,000 cattle, 17,405,000 sheep, and 104,000 pigs. The total area under cultivation in 1920 was 1,018,444 acres, and of this 779,497 acres were under crops, besides which 450,780 acres are laid down with permanent artificial pasture. The wool production, expressed as greasy, in 1917, 87,425,558 lbs.; 1918, 118,777,272 lbs.; 1919, 118,035,461 lbs.; 1920, 114,809,963 lbs.

A considerable area consists of natural forest, eucalypti, pine and cedar being the timbers mostly in demand, although a considerable quantity of more ornamental woods are utilised by cabinet makers. The amount of wood cut in the various saw mills in 1920, was (in superficial feet):—pine, 85,313,000; cedar, 194,000; hardwood, 39,780,000; other, mostly cabinet timber, 10,717,000; number of railway sleepers, 646,000. Forest reservations total 3,943,000 acres (1920).

The quantity actually cut for all purposes is nearly double these quantities.

The crops, &c., in two years were as follows :—

	Acres		Yield

From the commencement of gold mining to end of 1919, the production amounts to 19,583,409 ozs. of the value of 83,193,453*l*.

In the western portion of the State water is comparatively easily found by sinking artesian bores. Up to June 30, 1920, 3,701 bores were recorded as having been sunk. Total depth bored, 644·4 miles. The continuous yield of water is estimated at 318,300,000 gallons per diem; 1,231 bores are flowing and supplies are pumped from 1,363 others.

Commerce and Shipping.

The commerce of Queensland, exclusive of inter-State trade, is comprised in the Statement of the Commerce of the Commonwealth of Australia.

The total value of the oversea imports and exports of Queensland in recent years is given in the following table:—

Years	Imports	Exports ¹	Years	Imports	Exports ¹
	£	£		£	£
1915-16	7,000,912	8,106,123	1918-19 ²	6,075,674	12,447,416

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

Constitution and Government.

South Australia was formed into a British Province by Letters Patent of February, 1836, and a partially elective Legislative Council was established in 1851. The present Constitution bears date October 24, 1856. It vests the legislative power in a Parliament elected by the people. The Parliament consists of a Legislative Council and a House of Assembly. The former is composed of twenty members. Every three years half the members retire, and their places are supplied by new members elected from each of the five districts into which the State is divided for this purpose. The executive has no power to dissolve this body. The qualifications of an elector to the Legislative Council are, to be twenty-one years of age, a natural born or naturalised subject of His Majesty, and have been on the electoral roll six months, besides having a freehold of 50*l.* value, or a leasehold of 20*l.* annual value, or occupying a dwelling-house the rent of which is not less than 17*l.* per annum, or a registered proprietor of a Crown lease with improvements to the value of at least 50*l.*, the property of the elector; head teacher of a college or school residing on premises; postmaster or postmistress residing in the building; railway stationmaster resident in premises; member of police force in charge of a station; officiating minister of religion. By the Constitution Amendment Act, 1899, the franchise was extended to women. There were 93,048 (23,062 women) registered electors in 1921. The qualification for a member of Council is merely that he be thirty years of age, a natural born or naturalised subject, and a resident in the State for three years. Each member of the Council and also of the House of Assembly, receives 200*l.* per annum and a free pass over Government railways.

The House of Assembly consists of 46 members elected for 3 years, representing 19 electoral districts. The qualifications for an elector are that of having been on the electoral roll for 6 months, and of having arrived at 21 years of age; and the qualifications for a member are the same. There were 272,022 (137,931 women) registered electors in 1921. Judges and ministers of religion are ineligible for election as members. The election of members of both houses takes place by ballot.

The executive is vested in a Governor appointed by the Crown and an Executive Council, consisting of 6 responsible ministers and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

Governor of South Australia.—(Vacant. Feb. 1922).

The Chief Justice (Hon. Sir G. J. R. Murray, K.C.M.G., 2,000*l.*) being also Lieutenant-Governor, acts pending a new appointment, or during the absence of the Governor.

The Governor has a salary of 4,000*l.* per annum. The departments of the Public Service are controlled by the following ministers:—

Premier and Attorney-General.—Hon. H. N. Barwell, LL.B., M.P.

Chief Secretary and Minister of Marine.—Hon. J. G. Bice, M.L.C.

Treasurer and Minister of Education.—Hon. G. Ritchie, M.P.

Commissioner of Public Works, Minister of Railways, and Minister of Industry.—Hon. W. Hague, M.P.

Minister of Agriculture, Minister of Irrigation, and Minister of Mines.—Hon. T. Pascoe, M.L.C.

Commissioner of Crown Lands and Immigration and Minister of Repatriation.—Hon. G. R. Laffer, M.P.

The Ministry has a total salary of 5,000*l.* per annum. They are jointly and individually responsible to the Legislature for all their official acts, as in the United Kingdom.

Agent-General for South Australia in London.—Sir E. Lucas.

The settled part of the State is divided into counties, hundreds, municipalities, and district councils, the last being the most general, as they cover most of the settled districts. The ratepayers have the power of levying rates, &c., and applying the funds for road-making and other purposes. There are 49 counties, blocks of country thrown open for agricultural purposes. There are 3 extensive pastoral districts—the western, northern, and north-eastern. There are 35 municipalities and 150 district councils.

Area and Population.

The original boundaries of the State, according to the statute of 4 & 5 Will. IV. cap. 95, were fixed between 132° and 141° E. long. for the eastern and western boundaries, the 26° of S. lat. for the northern limit, and for the South the Southern Ocean. The boundaries were subsequently extended, under the statute of 24 and 25 Victoria, cap. 44. By Royal Letters Patent, dated July 6, 1863, all the territory lying northward of 26° S. latitude and between the 129th and 138th degrees of East longitude, and now known as the Northern Territory (see below), was added. On January 1, 1911, this Territory was transferred to the Commonwealth. Total area of South Australia proper is 380,070 square miles (i.e., excluding the Northern Territory, 523,620 square miles).

Population (exclusive of aborigines):—

Date of Enumeration	Population			On previous Census
	Males	Females	Total	Numerical Increase	Increase per cent.
1846 . . .	12,670	9,720	22,390	5,024	28·9
1855 . . .	43,720	42,101	85,821	22,121	34·7
1866 . . .	85,334	78,113	163,452	36,622	28·8

1921 . . .	248,293	247,045	495,338	86,778	21·2

The population of the State, June 30, 1921, was estimated at 497,525.

Population of the city of Adelaide and suburbs, 1921, 255,318.

The number of aborigines in the State, including the Northern Territory, has been estimated at over 20,000.

The following are the statistics of births, deaths, and marriages for five years:—

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1914	12,905	4,009	4,713	8,192
1917	11,326	3,252	4,365	6,961
1918	11,357	3,190	4,390	6,967
1919	11,060	3,855	5,475	5,585
1920	12,038	4,881	5,083	6,945

South Australia is a healthy country, with a good climate, and has a high birth and low death-rate. Birth-rate, 25·45, death-rate, 10·76, marriage-rate, 10·33 per 1,000 of population in 1920. Infantile mortality, 67·09 per 1,000 births, one of the lowest rates in the world.

Of the total number of births in 1920, 448 were illegitimate.

Religion.

The aggregate number of churches and chapels in the State in 1919 was 1,621. At the census of 1911 the numbers belonging to the leading denominations were as follows:—Church of England, 113,781; Roman Catholic, 50,964; Methodists, 100,402; Lutherans, 26,681; Baptists, 21,863; Presbyterians, 22,567; Congregationalists, 13,357; Church of Christ, 9,324; Salvation Army, 3,835; other Christians, 23,769; Jews, 765; Mohammedans, 440; Confucians, &c., 226; other non-Christian, 2,143; not stated, 18,441. No aid from the State is given for religious purposes.

Education.

Public instruction (primary, secondary, technical) is under the charge of the Educational Department. Teachers are paid from the general revenue, public lands being set apart for educational purposes. Education is secular, free, and compulsory. The Government grants exhibitions and scholarships, carrying the holders to higher schools and universities. In 1920 there were 998 schools, 21 being high schools, 12 domestic art and 6 woodwork centres ; the number of children under instruction during 1920 was 75,991. There is a training college for teachers. The University of Adelaide incorporated in 1874, is authorised to grant degrees in arts, law, music, medicine, and science. There are several denominational secondary schools. There were 172 private schools, with 14,141 pupils, in 1920. There are a school of mines and industries in Adelaide, with 5 branches in the larger country centres, 5 Soldiers' Vocational Schools, 1 School of Arts and Crafts, and Apprentice Classes. The Public Library, Museum, Art Gallery, and Local Institutes are supported or assisted by the State.

Justice and Crime.

There is one supreme court, a court of vice-admiralty, 5 courts of insolvency, and over 100 local courts and police magistrates' courts. There are circuit courts held at several places. There were 83 convictions for felonies and misdemeanours in the Higher Courts and 8,628 in the Magistrates' Courts, in 1920. The total number of persons in gaols at the end of 1920 was 229.

Old Age Pensions.

Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are now paid by the Commonwealth Government. The number of pensioners in South Australia at June 30, 1921, was: Old Age, 9,887 ; Invalid, 2,433 ; War, 14,663.

1918 . .	5,526,226	5,500,419	1921 . .	7,151,366	7,543,640

Most of the revenue is derived from inland revenue, railways, and territorial receipts, while most of the expenditure is on account of public works, railways, and interest on public debt.

The public debt of the State, excluding the Northern Territory, dating from 1852, amounted, on June 30, 1921, to 48,556,552*l*. Over half of the public debt has been spent on railways, water-works, and telegraphs.

Production and Industry.

Of the total area of South Australia proper (243,244,800 acres), 13,954,977 acres were alienated and in process of alienation under systems of deferred payments on June 30, 1921. Altogether about 112 million acres are unoccupied. The freehold and leasehold land in South Australia proper amounts to 132,000,000 acres, of which 5,000,000 acres are under cultivation each year.

Bread-stuffs exported 1920-21 beyond the Commonwealth, 12,535,495*l.*, and pastoral products, 3,477,286*l.*

Fruit culture is extensively carried on, and annually about 130,000 cwt. of dried fruit, 1,250,000 cases of fresh fruit, and 5,600,000 gallons of wine are produced, large quantities of which are exported to oversea countries, chiefly to the United Kingdom. The chief fruit crops, besides grapes, are currants, apples, apricots, peaches, almonds, oranges, lemons, olives, cherries, pears, plums, quinces, strawberries, raspberries. The live stock in June, 1920, consisted of 264,901 horses, 349,552 cattle, 6,014,565 sheep, and 60,295 pigs. An area of over 150,000 square miles is held under pastoral leases.

The mineral wealth as yet discovered consists chiefly of copper, silver and gold. The value of copper produced in 1920 was 423,601*l.* (32,550,723*l.* of copper has been produced since the foundation of the State); gold, 7,209*l.*; ironstone flux, 478,436*l.*; phosphate rock, 12,309*l.*; crude salt, 141,742*l.*; gypsum, 31,604*l.*; opals, 24,000*l.* Including other minerals, the total value was 1,154,742*l.* Grand total to date, 39,049,823*l.*

In 1920 there were 1,368 factories in the State, employing 29,442 hands. Wages and salaries amounted to 3,988,062*l.* Gross value of output, 20,454,539*l.*; machinery, land and buildings, &c., valued at 7,908,661*l.*

A new government department, known as the Department of Chemistry, has been established for the purpose of fostering new industries by the utilisation of products at hand and there is also an Advisory Board of Science and Industry.

Commerce and Shipping.

The Commerce of South Australia, exclusive of inter-State trade, is comprised in the statement of the Commerce of Australia given under the heading of the Commonwealth.

The chief exports of the State are wool, wheat, wheat-flour, copper and other minerals, meats, butter, honey, wine, fruits (fresh and dried), skins and hides, tallow, leather, and manures.

In 1919-20, 806 vessels of 2,638,727 tons entered, and 806 vessels of 2,625,818 tons cleared the ports of the State.

The State possesses about 44,000 miles of made roads. There are (1921) 3,400 miles of railway in the State, including the Transcontinental Railway which has been built from Port Augusta in South Australia to Kalgoorlie in Western Australia, and which, in connection with various State lines, completes a through rail connection between Brisbane, on the east coast, and Fremantle on the west coast. Of the Transcontinental line, which is of 4ft. 8½in. gauge, 600 miles are within the borders of South Australia.

There are several good harbours, and the river Murray (navigable for 2,000 miles) is used for conveying the produce grown on the irrigation settlements along its banks. In the city and suburbs are 114 miles of electric tramways.

Banks.

There are 9 banking associations in addition to the Commonwealth Government Bank. In 1921 their total liabilities were 22,762,287*l.* (including Perpetual Inscribed Stock), and assets 20,421,384*l.*

The Savings Bank is managed by a board of trustees appointed by the Government, and has 31 branches and 300 agencies. On June 30, 1921, there were 317,983 depositors, with a total balance of 14,284,857*l.* The Commonwealth Savings Bank (not included above) had 43,972 depositors and 1,991,261*l.* deposits at the same date. Penny Savings Banks, agencies at schools, 629, depositors, 34,999, deposits, 39,147*l.*

The total banking deposits, 38,414,720*l.*, averaged 77*l.* per head. Over 80 per cent. of the population have savings bank accounts.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

Constitution and Government.

In 1791 Vancouver, in the Discovery, took formal possession of the country about King George Sound. In 1826 the Government of New South Wales sent 20 convicts and a detachment of soldiers to King George Sound and formed a settlement then called Fredericks Town. In 1827 Captain James (afterwards Sir James) Stirling surveyed the coast from King George Sound to the Swan River, and in May, 1829, Captain Fremantle (afterwards Sir Charles Fremantle, G.C.B.) took possession of the territory. In June, 1829, Captain Stirling founded the Swan River Settlement, now the Commonwealth State of Western Australia, and the towns of Perth and Fremantle, and was appointed Lieutenant-Governor. Western Australia thus became a British settlement in 1829.

Large grants of land were made to the early settlers, and agricultural and pastoral occupations were pursued by a small population with varying success, until, in 1850, the State was in a languishing condition, and the inhabitants' petition that it might be made a penal settlement was acceded to. Between 1850 and 1868, when transportation ceased, 9,718 convicts were sent out. The Imperial convict establishment was transferred to the Colonial Government on March 31, 1886.

In 1870 partially representative government was instituted, and in 1890 the administration was vested in the Governor, a Legislative Council, and a Legislative Assembly. The Legislative Council was, in the first instance, nominated by the Governor, but it was provided that in the event of the population of the Colony reaching 60,000, it should be elective. In 1893 this limit of population being reached, as set forth in a proclamation dated July 18, of that year, the Colonial Parliament passed an Act (57 Vict. No. 14) amending the constitution.

By the Constitution Acts Amendment Act, 1899, further amended by the Constitution Acts Amendment Act, 1911, it is provided that the Legislative Council shall consist of 30 members representing 10 electoral provinces and holding their seats for six years. Members must be 30 years of age, resident in the State for two years, and either be natural-born British subjects or naturalized for 5 years and resident in the State for 5 years. Every elector must have resided in the State for 6 months, and must possess within the province freehold estate of the clear value of £50, or be a householder occupying a dwelling-house of the clear annual value of £17, or holder of a lease of the value of £17 per annum, or the holder of a lease or licence from the Crown of the annual rental of £10, or have his name on the electoral list of a Municipality or Roads Board in respect of property in the province of the annual rateable value of £17. The Legislative Assembly consists of 50 members, each representing one electorate, and elected for 3 years. Members must be 21 years of age, have resided in Western Australia for twelve months, and be either natural-born subjects of the Crown or naturalized for 5 years. Electors must be 21 years of age, natural-born or naturalized subjects of the Crown, and must have resided in the State for 6 months and be on the roll, and must be resident in the district for at least one month when making their claims. Members of and electors for both Houses may be of either sex. No person can be registered as a voter in more than one district or more than once in each Province for which he holds a sufficient qualification. Members of the Legislature are paid 400*l.* a year, and travel free on all Government railways. The entire management and control of the waste lands of the Crown in Western Australia is vested in the Legislature of the State. By the Parliament (Qualification of Women) Act, 1920, it has been enacted that a woman shall not be disqualified by sex or marriage for being elected to or sitting and voting as a member of the Legislative Council or the Legislative Assembly.

State of political parties (1921):—Legislative Council: "Non-party," 14; Country Party, 7; National Labour, 4; Labour Party, 5. Legislative Assembly: "Non-party," 2; Country Party, 16; Nationalist, 10; National Labour, 5; Labour Party, 17.

Governor.—Rt. Hon. Sir F. A. N. Newdegate, K.C.M.G. (April, 1920).

The salary provided for the Governor is 4,000*l.* per annum. He is assisted in his functions by a cabinet of responsible ministers, as follows:—

Premier, Treasurer, and Minister for Lands and Repatriation.—Hon. Sir Jas. Mitchell, K.O.M.G., M.L.A.

Minister for Education, Justice, and the North-Western Territory.—Hon. H. P. Colbatch, M.L.C.

Minister for Works, Water Supply, Trading Concerns, etc.—Hon. W. J. George, C.M.G., M.L.A.

Minister for Mines, Railways, Industries, etc.—Hon. J. Scaddan, M.L.A.
Colonial Secretary and Minister for Public Health.—Hon. F. T. Brown, M.L.A.

Minister for Agriculture.—Hon. H. K. Malcy, M.L.A.

Agent-General in London.—Hon. Sir J. D. Connolly, K.B.

Offices.—Savoy House, Strand.

Area and Population.

As defined by Royal Commission, Western Australia includes all that portion of the continent situated to the westward of 129° E. longitude, together with the adjacent islands. The greatest length of this territory from Cape Londonderry in the north to Peak Head (south of King George Sound) in the south is 1,480 miles, and its breadth from Steep Point near Dirk Hartogs Island, on the west to the 129th meridian, on the east, about 1,000 miles. According to the latest computations, the total estimated area of the State is 975,920 English square miles, or, 624,588,800 acres. It is divided into 38 magisterial districts.

Western Australia was first settled in 1829, and for many years the population was small.

The enumerated population in the various census years was as follows:—

Years	Males	Females	Total
1848	2,818	1,804	4,622
1854	7,779	3,964	11,743
1859	9,522	5,315	14,837
1870	15,375	9,410	24,785
1881	17,062	12,646	29,708
1891	29,807	19,975	49,782
1901	112,875	71,249	184,124
1911	161,565	120,549	282,114
1921	177,013	155,200	332,213

There were enumerated in 1911, 6,369 pure and 1,475 half-caste aborigines

(the former not included in the table) in the settled districts and virtually in the employment of the settlers. The number of wild natives is not known, but the total number of aborigines has been roughly estimated at about 30,000.

As in all countries where the white man has settled among races that cannot in a large measure adapt themselves to his forms of civilisation, the natives, in so far as they existed in the present centres of settlement, are dying out, a natural consequence of the loss of their original hunting-grounds. They are of quick intelligence, but disinclined for the civilised modes of life. The Government has taken the best measures available for their protection.

Of the total population in 1911, 104,208 were returned as born in Western Australia. The number of married persons was 96,482 (50,702 males and 45,780 females); widowers, 4,180; widows, 5,785; divorced, 187 males and 103 females; unmarried, 106,060 males and 68,807 females. The number of males under 21 was 58,838, and of females 56,203. Of the males over 21, 47,323 had never been married, and of the females over 21, 13,609. The estimated population on September 30, 1914 (excluding full-blooded aboriginals) was: males, 182,682; females, 143,522; total, 326,204; on January 31, 1917, the figures were: males, 158,598; females, 148,608; total, 307,206. The decrease since 1914 was due to enlistments for the war. The total enlistments during the war numbered 34,353, of whom 23,670 had returned on October 31, 1920. The population on September 30, 1921, was estimated to be: males, 178,269; females, 156,904; total, 335,173.

Perth, the capital, at the time of the 1921 census, had a population, within the 10-mile radius area of the Metropolitan district, of 155,129. This, however, includes the chief port of the State, Fremantle, with its suburbs, the population of which, at the census, was 25,526. The other principal municipalities, with census population of 1921, are:—

Towns	1921	Towns	1911
Kalgoorlie . . .	7,898	Collie . . .	3,314
Boulder . . .	8,218	Geraldton . .	4,176
Albany . . .	3,980	Northam . . .	3,583
Bunbury . . .	4,478

The movement of population for the State in 5 years is given as follows:—

Years	Marriages	Births	Deaths	Immigrants	Emigrants
1914	2,660	9,204	3,043	27,270	31,097
1917	1,621	7,882	2,769	17,822	22,318
1918	1,612	7,106	2,833	24,262	24,511
1919	2,194	6,937	3,590	32,561	17,695
1920	2,931	8,149	3,388	29,930	30,793

In 1914 there were 388; in 1917, 327; in 1918, 287; in 1919, 292; and in 1920, 318 illegitimate births.

Religion.

The religious division of the population was as follows at the census of 1911:—Church of England, 109,435; Methodists, 34,348; Presbyterians, 26,678; Congregationalists, 6,203; Baptists, 4,801; other Protestants,

Convictions in superior courts . .	84	55	55	64	83

The total number of distinct persons committed to prison in 1920 was 1,254 ; the number of commitments totalled 1,947—viz. : adult males, 1,707, adult females, 240.

All the above figures are exclusive of aboriginal crime.

Pauperism and Old Age Pensions.

There are two charitable institutions, one situated at Claremont, and one at Fremantle, both supported by public funds, with 642 inmates on December 31, 1920. Twenty-five Government hospitals, also a Government sanatorium for consumptive patients, at Wooroloo, and two hospitals for the insane, are wholly supported by public funds, as is also a depôt for diseased natives at Port Hedland, whilst three public and twenty-seven other assisted hospitals exist, partly supported by private subscriptions and partly out of public funds, in addition to the numerous private hospitals situated in Perth and suburbs as well as the principal goldfield towns; six Protestant and three Roman Catholic orphanage industrial schools are supported partly by private subscriptions and partly out of public money. There are also nine native and half-caste institutions, six Industrial Schools supported in a similar manner, two Government native settlements at Carrolup and Moore River, and a third at Moola Bulla utilised as a cattle station, and one Government receiving dépôt for State children who are afterwards sent to the various Institutions. On June 30, 1921, a total of 769 adults and 2,022 children, total, 2,791 persons in the State received monetary assistance from the public funds for widows and others.

Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are now paid by the Commonwealth Government. The number of pensioners in Western Australia at June 30, 1921, was: Old Age, 5,002; Invalid, 2,004; War Pensioners, 23,235.

Finance.

The revenue and expenditure of Western Australia in eight years, ended June 30, are given as follows:—

Years ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure	Years ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£

¹ Estimates.

More than two-fifths of the public income is derived from railways and tramways (2,913,611*l.* for the year ended June 30, 1921), and the rest mainly from various forms of taxation (955,358*l.* in 1920-21), lands, timber, and mining (437,266*l.*), water supply (377,351*l.*), other business and trading concerns (655,069*l.*), and the surplus returned to the State of the Commonwealth Revenue derived from Customs, Excise, Post Office, other receipts and interest on transferred properties (593,834*l.* for 1920-21). Western Australia had a net public debt of 41,398,103*l.* on June 30, 1921, the annual charge for which was 2,229,282*l.* The amount of accrued sinking fund on March 31, 1921, was 7,641,564*l.*

Production and Industry.

Large portions of the State, for some hundreds of miles inland, are hilly, and even mountainous, although the altitude, so far as ascertained, rises nowhere above that of Mount Bruce (4,024 ft.) in the North West Division, or the Stirling Range (3,640 ft.) in the South West. The greater part of the far interior may be described as a great tableland, with an altitude of from one to two thousand feet above sea-level, the surface of which consists in certain areas of sand-dunes, varied by wide stretches of clayey soils. Long, straggling rivers, broken during the summer into a series of pools, cross the country as far inland as the hills extend, widening in many cases nearer the coast into large sea estuaries. The climate is one of the most temperate in the world, especially in the South-Western portion, where excessive cold is never, and excessive heat very rarely known. The summer heat, which is mostly dry, with hardly any rainfall, is during the greater part of the hot season relieved by cool sea breezes in the afternoon. The winters are rainy, but with occasional dry spells of perfect weather.

Of the area of Western Australia, which is equal to more than half that of European Russia, probably about three-fourths is suitable for pastoral purposes. Some 60,000 square miles, at least, are equally fitted for agricultural purposes, more especially for the production of wheat, wine, and fruit, considerable areas being already under cultivation. The forests are among the most extensive within the Commonwealth, and contain some of the very finest hardwoods in the world, including jarrah (Eucalyptus marginata) and karri (Eucalyptus diversicolor). Sandalwood (Santalum cygnorum) is also found. The forests are rich in gums and resins, and barks containing tannin. Gold, coal, and other minerals in abundance are found in many parts.

In Western Australia, in 1911, there were 53,587 persons engaged in various forms of primary production. Of these, 21,566 were directly engaged in agriculture; 4,200 in pastoral pursuits; 5,868 in forestry, and 18,199 in mining and quarrying. There were, on December 31, 1920, a total of 998 industrial establishments in the State, employing either machinery or at least four hands. The total number of persons employed by them was 17,977, as against 18,799 in 1914, the highest number previously reached. The combined output of these establishments in 1920 was computed at 13,141,000*l.* The total estimated value of Western Australian production during 1920 was 22,973,000*l.*, distributed as follows:—agricultural, 8,733,000*l.*; pastoral, 4,380,000*l.*; dairy, poultry, and bee-farming, 1,033,000*l.*; forestry and fisheries, 1,850,000*l.*; mining, 3,259,000*l.*; manufacturing, 3,718,000*l.* (value added to the raw material by the production of the industrial establishments).

Up to June 30, 1921, of the entire acreage of the State, 9,197,088 acres had been alienated; on that date 15,034,959 acres were in process of alienation; the area alienated and in process of alienation thus amounting to 24,232,047 acres. At the same date there were in force leases comprising an area of 258,504,334 acres, of which 254,688,286 acres were pastoral, and 1,667,123 acres were timber, while 66,383 acres were under mining leases, and 36,401 acres were Miners' Homestead leases. The area under crop in 1918 was 1,679,772 acres; in 1919, 1,605,088 acres; in 1920, 1,628,163 acres; and in 1921, 1,804,986 acres. The chief crops for two recent years were as follows:—

¹ Of this acreage, only 914 acres were productive for wine-making in 1919-20, and 960 acres in 1920-21.

The area under wheat in 1921-22 is forecasted at 1,545,026 acres (for grain and hay).

The principal areas occupied by the more important trees of Western Australia, and the quantity cut in two years, according to the official Industrial Returns, were as follows:—

	Acres.	1919 Super. ft. cut.	1920 Super. ft. cut.
Jarrah (with blackbutt and red gum)	8,000,000	112,162,248	121,635,201

² The acreage of timbered country given is that of the regions in which the various timbers are found. The approximate present area of prime forests of Jarrah, Karri, Wandoo, and Tuart, fit for reservation for all time, is 4,918 sq. miles, viz., Jarrah, 4,350, Karri, 400, Wandoo, 160, and Tuart, 8 sq. miles.

The live-stock at the end of 1920 consisted of 178,664 horses; 849,803 cattle; 6,532,965 sheep; 60,581 pigs; 31,097 goats; 5,995 camels; and 7,563 mules and donkeys.

¹ This does not include wool exported on skins, which, during 1920, amounted to 4,189,190 lbs.

Many millions of acres are available for pastoral purposes.

Gold was first obtained in Western Australia in 1886. The sensational gold finds at Coolgardie and Kalgoorlie in 1892 and 1893 gave an impetus to Western Australian gold mining, which, in a few years' time, placed this State at the head of all the Australian Colonies as regards gold output. The aggregate output to the end of 1920 was 33,748,391 fine ozs., valued at 143,354,051*l*. There were in the State, in 1920, 1,347 leases of gold mines; men employed in the mines, 6,919, viz., 3,167 above and 3,752 underground; output of gold, 617,842 fine ozs., value 2,624,427*l*. (standard mint value; the actual prices realised were estimated at 3,381,642*l*.).

The total mineral wealth of the State for two years is shown in the following table:—

Commerce and Communications.

The external commerce of Western Australia, exclusive of inter-State trade, is comprised in the statement of the commerce of Australia, given under the heading of the Commonwealth.

The total value of the imports and exports, including inter-State trade, in 6 years is shown in the subjoined statement:—

June	1915-16	1916-17	1917-18	1918-19	1919-20	1920-21

The most important of the exports for 1920-21 were wheat (2,930,179*l.*) and flour (957,011*l.*), wool (2,388,119*l.*), gold specie (1,354,666*l.*), timber (1,137,223*l.*); pearls and shell (280,525*l.*), hides and skins (379,674*l.*), silver (55,847*l.*), sandal-wood (176,399*l.*), fruit (121,344*l.*).

There were on the West Australian register on December 31, 1920, 56 steamers of 12,307 tons, and 360 sailing vessels of 11,939 tons; total, 416 vessels of 24,246 tons. Tonnage inwards and outwards, 1920-21, from and to ports outside the State, 6,233,845.

For the year ending June 30, 1921, the State had 3,539 miles of State Government railway, and 450 miles of Commonwealth line, the latter being the western portion of the Trans-Australian line (Kalgoorlie-Port Augusta), which links the State Railway System to those of the other States of the Commonwealth.

Money and Credit.

There are seven banks in Western Australia (an additional bank is about to start operations), besides the State Government Savings Bank and the Commonwealth Bank of Australia and Savings Bank. The total paid-up capital of the cheque paying banks (including the Commonwealth Bank) in the quarter ended June 30, 1921, was 16,284,868*l.*; the notes in circulation (1921) were 26,362*l.*; deposits, 12,248,654*l.*; total average liabilities, 12,823,948*l.*; total assets, 16,562,224*l.*

State Government Savings Bank.—The amount due to depositors on June 30, 1921, inclusive of interest, was 5,845,247*l.*, whilst in addition an amount of 53,090*l.* was due under the head 'Schools Savings Bank.'

Branches of the Commonwealth Savings Bank were opened in this State at the beginning of 1913. On March 31, 1921, 1,711,344*l.* stood to the credit of 52,127 depositors.

TASMANIA.

Constitution and Government.

Abel Jans Tasman discovered Van Diemen's Land (Tasmania) on November 24, 1642. The island became a British settlement in 1803 as a dependency of New South Wales; in 1825 its connection with New South Wales was terminated; in 1851 a partially elective Legislative Council was established, and in 1856 responsible government came into operation. On January 1, 1901, Tasmania was federated with the other Australian States into the Commonwealth of Australia.

Parliament consists of a Legislative Council and a House of Assembly. The Council has 18 members, elected on a property qualification of 10*l.* freehold or 30*l.* a year leasehold. Certain professional men and all 'returned soldiers' are also electors. Members sit for 6 years, and retire in rotation. There is no power to dissolve the Council. The House of Assembly has 30 members, elected for 3 years by adults with six months' residence in the State. Members of both Houses are paid 800*l.* a year. Women received the right to vote in 1903. Proportional representation was adopted in 1907, after a partial trial in 1896. The method is the single transferable vote in 6-member constituencies. By-elections are superseded (from 1919) by a recount of the votes at the preceding General Election.

State of parties, June, 1921: Nationalists, 16; Labour 13; Independent, 1.

Governor.—(Vacant, Feb. 1922.) (Salary, 2,750*l.*)

Chief Justice.—Hon. Sir H. Nicholls, Kt.

The Governor is aided in the exercise of the executive by a Cabinet of responsible ministers, as follows (came into office in April, 1916):—

Premier, Chief Secretary and Minister for Education.—Hon. Sir W. H. Lee, K.C.M.G., M.H.A.

Attorney General and Minister for Railways.—Hon. W. B. Propsting, C.M.G., M.L.C.

Minister for Works.—Hon. J. B. Hayes, C.M.G., M.H.A.

Minister for Lands.—Hon. A. Hean, C.M.G., M.H.A.

Treasurer and Minister for Mines.—Hon. Sir Neil E. Lewis, K.C.M.G., M.H.A.

Honorary Ministers.—Hon. H. Hays, M.H.A., and Hon. T. Shields, M.H.A.

Each of the ministers has a salary of 950*l.* per annum. The Premier has an additional 200*l.* a year. A minister must have a seat in one of the two Houses.

Agent-General in London.—A. H. Ashbolt.

Secretary.—Herbert W. Ely.

Offices.—Australia House, Strand, W.C. 2.

Area and Population.

Area, with Macquarie (170 square miles), 26,215 square miles or about 16,778,000 acres, of which 15,571,500 acres form the area of Tasmania Proper, the rest constituting that of a number of small islands, in two main groups, the north-east and north-west.

The population has increased as follows (census returns):—

Year	Population	Increase per Ct. per Annum	Year	Population	Increase per Ct. per Annum
1861	89,977	2·44	1901	172,475	1·64
1871	99,328	1·13	1911	191,211	1·04
1881	115,705	1·38	1921	213,877	1·12
1891	146,667	2·36

In 1921 there were 107,767 males and 106,110 females. The average density is 8·16 persons to a square mile. Of the total population in 1911, 79·2 per cent. were natives of Tasmania, 11·5 per cent. natives of the United Kingdom, and 7·3 per cent. natives of other Australasian colonies. There were 676 Chinese and other coloured aliens, and 227 half-caste aboriginals. The pure aboriginal is extinct.

The population shows the usual Australian excess of males, fairly steady before the war, vanishing during the war, and since partly recovered, by June, 1921, to an excess of one male in every 100 of population.

The births, deaths, and marriages for five years were as follows:—

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1914	6,017	1,543	1,918	4,099
1917	5,376	1,138	1,768	3,608
1918	5,280	1,131	1,802	3,478
1919	5,310	1,513	2,192	3,118
1920	5,740	1,999	2,036	3,704

For the decade 1911-20, the birth-rate was 28·7, the death-rate 10·1, and the rate of natural increase of population 18·6 per 1,000, the highest in the Commonwealth. For the last 4 years, 1917-20, the infant mortality averaged 61 per 1,000. Tasmania, with a high natural increase and small area, has been a source of population for the mainland States since the days when Tasmanians founded Melbourne and colonised Victoria. For the decade, the average loss by migration has been about 1,780 per annum, or 9·0 per 1,000, leaving a net annual rate of increase of population of 9·6 per 1,000.

Population of the capital, Hobart and Suburbs (census April 4, 1921), 52,163, of Launceston and Suburbs, 26,318.

Religion.

In 1911, belonging to the Church of England, 88,158; Roman Catholics, 28,581; Catholics (undefined), 4,080; Methodists, 24,975; Presbyterians, 15,735; Independents, 6,000; Baptists, 4,757.

Instruction.

Primary education is free and secular, and compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14. Nine-tenths of the primary teaching is at State schools. The average monthly enrolment at all schools is about 88 per cent. of the total children of 'compulsory' age, and the average attendance is 81 per cent. of the enrolment. The cost of primary education to the State in 1920 was 6*l.* 1*s.* per head of average attendance, exclusive of buildings, which cost annually about 1*s.* per head. Secondary education is about equally divided between the new State High Schools and the older endowed schools. The 4 State High Schools in 1920 had an average attendance of 886, at a cost of 13*l.* per head, exclusive of buildings.

There are 4 Technical Schools, and 4 junior Technical Schools, with a total enrolment of 1,470. A large Trade School in Hobart for repatriation purposes provides courses for 14 trades, and others are being organised. The total number of returned soldiers being trained in this way is 220.

The University of Tasmania, established 1890, confers degrees in arts, science, law and commerce. A complete engineering course with degree comes into operation in 1921. There were in 1920, 221 students taking courses for degrees. University expenditure in 1920 (exclusive of capital expenditure) was about 13,000*l.* In 1920, 15 Tutorial Classes were provided by the University at different centres for the Workers' Educational Association, mostly in economics and history. Total average attendance 288. Medical inspection of children in primary schools (State and private) has been carried out since 1906. Dental treatment was commenced in 1916. The total cost in 1920 was 1*s.* 10*d.* per child on the roll.

Justice and Crime.

There are a Supreme Court, courts of petty, general, and quarter sessions, the latter presided over by a stipendiary magistrate, assisted by justices of the peace. According to the Police Report, during the year 1920-21, 5,189 persons were summarily convicted, and 131 persons were committed for trial. The figures for crime generally are higher than during the war, but show no appreciable increase over 1914 either for all offences, indictable offences, or offences against the person. The total police force on June 30, 1921, was 233. There were 2 gaols, with 90 male and 5 female inmates, at the end of June, 1921.

Old Age Pensions.

'Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are paid by the Commonwealth Government. The number of pensioners in Tasmania on June 30, 1921, was : Old age, 5,085 ; Invalid, 2,023 ; War, 9,795.

Revenue and Expenditure.

The revenue is derived chiefly from taxation (income, land, death duties and taxation of betting), and from the rental and sale of Crown lands. Public services, on the whole, do not pay interest on capital cost. The customs and excise duties are now in the hands of the Commonwealth, and an amount equal to 25s. per head of population is returned to the State, with an additional special grant from 1911 to 1921, amounting to about 9s. per head.

—	1913-14	1917-18	1918-19	1919-20	1920-21

The public debt of Tasmania amounted June 30, 1921, to 18,776,306l., of which 30 per cent. has been spent on railways, 10 per cent. on hydro-electric works, and 27 per cent. on roads and bridges. The railways earned 2·3 per cent. on their capital, which bears an average interest of 3½ per cent.

State taxation amounts to 3l. 6s. 7d. per head, of which income tax provides 32s. 8d., land tax 8s. 5d., death duties 5s., lottery and totalisator taxation 8s. 3d. Land and income taxes and death duties are also collected by the Commonwealth, averaging 3l. 6s. 11d. per head, and customs and excise of 5l. 19s. per head. The Commonwealth contribution to the State revenue represents about 28 per cent. of the customs and excise collected on account of the State.

Defence.

For defence, see under Commonwealth of Australia.

Production and Industry.

The total area of the colony is 16,778,000 acres, including 1,206,500 acres islands and lakes. Unalienated land, principally heavily timbered or mineral-bearing, amounts to about 8,500,000 acres.

The value in 1920-21 of agricultural and pastoral products was 4,885,000l., of mining products, 1,428,000l., and of manufactures (output less raw materials), 2,918,000l. ; total, 9,231,000.

Agricultural production and yield per acre :—

	1920-21			1920-21
	Crop	Yield per Acre		Crop	Yield per Acre
Wheat, bushels.	565,874	20·01	Potatoes, tons .	88,879	2 77
Oats " .	1,514,155	30·00	Hay " .	176,798	1 56
Pease " .	321,228	20·27	Fruit, bushels .	2,797,872	89·00

Wheat-production was 2½ times as great as in 1919-20. The production of oats, pease, potatoes and hay is steady, with seasonal variations. Fruit-growing (chiefly apples) is increasing. The season 1920-21 was the best for several years. Live-stock in 1921: Horses, 39,117; cattle, 208,202; sheep, 1,570,832; pigs, 38,116. The numbers of all live-stock remain steady, in general, but there was a serious shortage of sheep in 1921. The wool-clip, 8 million pounds in 1920-21, is a little below the average.

Forests cover a considerable part of the island. The mills cut 63,108,290 super feet of timber in 1920. The export of logs is not recorded.

Chief mineral products for the year ended June 30, 1921:

Mineral	Quantity	Value	Mineral	Quantity	Value
Copper . . . tons	5,264	466,141	Osmiridium . . oz.	1,521	62,011
Tin . . . tons	1,029	234,840	Coal . . . tons	73,786	70,267
Silver . . . oz.	532,109	109,206	Gold . . . oz.	5,320	28,334
Lead . . . tons	2,992	88,755

In addition, zinc to the value of 251,130*l.* was extracted by the Electrolytic Co. from Broken Hill ores. The total mineral production has averaged 1,500,000*l.* for the last 20 years, increased prices balancing decreased quantities. Copper, tin and coal remain fairly steady in total value, but gold has fallen away greatly. Osmiridium is growing in importance, and silver-lead mining gives promise of revival. Tungsten ores (wolfram and scheelite) fell greatly in price in 1920, and production is decreasing, the output in 1920 being valued at 31,531*l.* The low price for all metals in 1921 is seriously threatening many productions.

MANUFACTURES.—The two important manufactures for export are metal extraction and fruit-preserving. Others that have an output beyond local requirements are woollen mills and breweries. The carbide works at North-West Bay are expected to supply the needs of all Australia. The chief recent industrial development has been the provision, by a State department, of cheap hydro-electric power for manufacturing purposes. The Great Lake scheme is designed to supply 70,000 h.p. At present 18,000 h.p. are being generated, and an extension to 42,000 h.p. under construction. The total power so far surveyed for practicable schemes is 216,000 h.p. Power in large blocks has been sold as low as 2*l.* per h.p. per annum. Important applications of this power are to metal extraction and manufacture of carbide of calcium. The Electrolytic Zinc Works at Risdon, with an output of 15 tons per day, are being enlarged to a capacity of 100 tons per day. This plant will treat the complex ores of the West Coast, as well as the Broken Hill ore, on which it is now operating.

Commerce, Shipping, &c.

The commerce of Tasmania, exclusive of inter-State trade, is comprised in the statement of the commerce of Australia, given under the heading of the Commonwealth. Imports and exports:—

Direct Oversea Trade.	1913 [*]	1917-18†	1918-19	1919-20	1920-21
	£	£	£	£	£
Total imports	1,025,081	459,240	608,786	813,341	2,264,983
Total exports	522,865	951,556	1,002,093	2,010,503	1,329,583

Excluding bullion and specie.

424 THE BRITISH EMPIRE:—NORTHERN TERRITORY

The Commonwealth alone collects statistics relating to imports and exports, which are restricted to trade external to Australia. No information is available as to inter-State or to indirect foreign trade.

The exports are chiefly wool, copper, silver, tin, timber, fruit and jam, potatoes, hops, grain, hides and skins, bark.

The registered shipping in 1920 consisted of 84 sailing vessels of 3,417 tons, and 105 steamers of 9,935 tons; total, 189 vessels of 13,352 tons.

For shipping, railways, posts and telegraphs, see under Commonwealth of Australia.

Savings Banks.

The number of depositors in Savings Banks, including the Commonwealth Savings Bank, 1920, was 106,757, and the amount on deposit 3,748,0487.

THE NORTHERN TERRITORY OF AUSTRALIA.

Government.

The Northern Territory, after forming part of New South Wales, was annexed by Royal Letters Patent, dated July 6, 1863, to South Australia. On the establishment of Federation in 1901, the Territory entered the Commonwealth as a corporate part of the State of South Australia. The Commonwealth Constitution Act of 1900 made provision for the surrender to the Commonwealth of any territory by any State, and under this provision an agreement was entered into on December 7, 1907, by the Commonwealth and South Australia for the transfer of the Northern Territory to the former. After the necessary legislation approving this agreement had been passed by the two parliaments concerned, the Territory formally passed under the control of the Commonwealth Government on January 1, 1911. The Commonwealth at the same time assumed responsibility for the State loans contracted by South Australia on behalf of the territory; it took over by purchase the railway from Port Augusta to Oodnadatta; and it undertook to construct a transcontinental railway from Pine Creek southwards to the boundary of South Australia, and to connect these two railways. On June 30, 1919, the public debt was 5,584,5207.

Administrator.—F. C. Urquhart.

Area and Population.

The Northern Territory is bounded by the 26th parallel of south latitude, and the 129th and 138th degrees of east longitude. Its area is 523,620 square miles. The area alienated at the end of 1920 amounted to 741 square miles absolutely; 211,480 were held under leases and licences; and the remainder, 311,399 square miles, was unoccupied. The coast line is about 1,040 miles in length. The Territory possesses many fine rivers and several good harbours, the principal harbour being Port Darwin, where Darwin is situated. The greater part of the interior consists of a tableland rising gradually from the coast to a height of about 1,700 feet. On this tableland there are large areas of excellent pasturage. The southern part of the territory is generally sandy with a small rainfall, but it can be watered by means of artesian bores. The climate is tropical, but varies considerably over the whole Territory. The proximity of the sea in the north keeps it fairly equable in the coastal region, but further south the climate is of a continental type, showing a great variation between the hottest and coldest months.

Population.—The population, excluding aborigines, has varied as follows:—

Year	Europeans	Others	Totals
1881	670	2,781	3,451
1891	1,144	3,754	4,898
1901	1,055	3,756	4,811
1911 (Census)	1,418	1,892	3,310
1916 (31st Dec.)	3,839	928	4,767
1920 (30th June)	2,770	1,161	3,931
1921 (Census)	—	—	3,870

Of the 1921 Census total 1,049 were females. In June 1918, Asiatics in the Territory numbered 1,177. The aborigines are estimated to number about 20,000.

The tribes inhabiting the Northern Territory are Larakaya and Worgait at Port Darwin, Melville Island Tribe, Port Essington Tribe, Djanan Tribe at Katherine Creek, Yangman Tribe round Elsey Creek, Mungarai Tribe along the upper part of the Roper River, Nullakun Tribe middle part of the Roper River, and the Mara Tribe south of the Roper River.

Finance.

The revenue and expenditure for 6 years were as follows:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure ¹	Year	Revenue	Expenditure ¹
	£	£		£	£
1913-14	73,657	532,535	1917-18	101,483	535,456
1915-16	97,180	746,698	1918-19	139,541	497,301

The chief sources of revenue for the year ending June 30, 1920, were the Customs and Excise, 3,995*l.*; Railways, 31,783*l.*; and Postal revenue, 10,922*l.* The chief items of expenditure (excluding interest, loans, &c.) were as follows:—Buildings, roads, bridges, farms, &c., 17,410*l.*; interest and sinking fund, Port Augusta Railway, 118,286*l.*; railways, 50,647*l.* The Commonwealth is also liable for interest on loans and redemption, in respect of Northern Territory and the Port Augusta Railway. The deficiency for the year was 375,736*l.*

Production and Industry.

The soils of the Territory differ greatly, but it is stated that most products known to the tropical and temperate zones can be grown successfully. At present, however, agriculture is insignificant. In most parts the natural grasses are extremely rich in nutriment, and provide food for cattle, horses, sheep, and other stock. The numbers of stock at the end of 1919 were :—Cattle, 610,534 ; horses, 35,539 ; sheep, 8,811 ; pigs, 1,675.

The Territory is rich in mineral resources, though these are very little developed. The aggregate value of the minerals produced to June 30, 1919, and in the year 1919-20, was as follows :—

—	Total to June 30, 1919	1919-20	—	Total to June 30, 1919	1918-19
	£	£		£	£
Gold . .	2,262,687	3,192	Silver & lead	62,216	299
Copper . .	230,930	780	Other Metals	179,221	46,130
Tin . .	484,786	27,610
			Total .	3,219,840	78,011

Commerce.

The oversea imports and exports are given as follows :—

Year	Imports	Exports	Year	Imports	Exports
	£	£		£	£
1913	20,977	67,911	1918-19	25,140	377,258

TERRITORIES OF THE AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH. TERRITORY OF PAPUA (BRITISH NEW GUINEA).

This possession is the south-eastern part of the island of New Guinea, with the islands of the D'Entrecasteaux and Louisiade groups and all islands between 8° and 12° S. latitude, and 141° and 155° E. longitude. Area 90,540 square miles, of which about 87,786 are on the mainland of New Guinea, and 2,754 on the islands above mentioned. On June 30, 1920, the population was as follows :—European, 1,096 ; coloured (other than Papuan), 296 ; Papuans (estimated), 250,000. (For the part of New Guinea lately possessed by Germany and now administered by Australia, see next section.)

The government of British New Guinea is founded on the British New Guinea Act of November, 1887, and on Letters Patent issued June 8, 1888. The cost of the administration to the extent of 15,000*l.* a year was formerly contributed in equal proportions by New South Wales, Victoria, and Queensland. The Federal Government took over the control in 1901; the political transfer was completed by the Papua Act of the Federal Parliament in November, 1905, and on September 1, 1906, a proclamation was issued by the Governor-General of Australia declaring that British New Guinea was to be known henceforth as the Territory of Papua. There is an executive council composed of 6 official members, and a legislative council composed of the executive councillors and three non-official members nominated by the Governor-General of Australia.

Lieut.-Governor and Chief Judicial Officer—J. H. P. Murray, C.M.G.
Government Secretary.—Herbert William Champion.

Tribes have in large areas settled down to peaceful habits. Four missionary bodies are at work; many hundreds of natives are being taught by these bodies. Approximately 229,283 acres of land have been leased, principally by planters, the principal cultures being coconuts (44,328 acres at December 31, 1920), rubber (7,251 acres), sisal hemp (5,857 acres). On December 31, 1920, there were 58,347 acres of plantations. By the Papua Act, 1905, freehold alienation is prohibited, but leases may be obtained at low rentals for long terms. Indigenous sago is plentiful in the western portion of the Territory, and there are considerable numbers of native-owned coconut trees. The forests contain valuable timbers, in most cases easily accessible by river. A regulation, which is strictly enforced, requires that each native shall plant a certain number of coconut trees or other economic trees or plants if his land is suitable.

There are three ports of entry—Port Moresby, Samarai, and Daru.

There are 8 magisterial districts, each in charge of a resident magistrate. There are also 2 relieving and 17 assistant resident magistrates, and 12 patrol officers. There is a Central Court at Port Moresby, but it holds sittings wherever and whenever necessary. For native government some simple regulations have been passed. There were (1921) 821 village policemen; armed constabulary, 307 (exclusive of Europeans who are officers of armed constabulary).

Throughout the Territory there are numerous schools belonging to the various Christian missions; the attendance of native children at these schools is compulsory if English is taught. The Native Taxes Ordinance came into force on January 15, 1919, imposing a tax not exceeding 10*s.* per head on indentured native labourers, and not exceeding 20*s.* per head on other natives. After expenses of collection are paid the balance is to be devoted firstly, to native education, and secondly, to other purposes having for their object the direct benefit of the natives. The education will be chiefly undertaken by the missions aided by grants from the taxation fund.

Years ended 30 June	Local Revenue	Expenditure	Imports	Exports	Tonnage entered and cleared
	£	£	£	£	Tons
1917	62,920	83,740	271,640	156,535	231,008
1918	72,594	103,176	283,792	220,599	121,727
1919	73,121	102,962	258,112	176,247	60,108
1920	85,537	118,437	422,741	270,405	59,189
1921	82,316	146,827	484,770	171,404	67,624

Revenue is mainly from customs duties. An annual subsidy is given by the Australian Government (40,000*l.* in 1920-21). In addition, 27,500*l.* has been loaned to the Territory for the establishment of Government plantations, to be repaid from profits on the plantations. On December 31, 1920, the Government plantations covered 1,532 acres. Commonwealth grants are also made for various purposes. It is hoped that Papua will soon be self-supporting.

The minerals include gold, copper, tin, lead, zinc, cinnabar, iron, osmiridium, gypsum, manganese, sulphur, graphite, chromite, brown coal, and petroleum. There are 8 proclaimed mineral fields, seven of which are gold fields, and 1 copper. Gold mining is one of the most important industries, and claims the attention of about 88 adult Europeans. Gold is obtained in the Louisiade Islands, on the mainland, and on Woodlark Island. A large area near Port Moresby with promising copper deposits has been proclaimed a mineral field, and this is being vigorously developed by a strong company, which is now (1921) building a railway from the field to the coast where smelters are to be erected. Electric power from the Rouna Falls is also to be developed. Copper ore exports in 1917-18, 1,112 tons valued at 11,572*l.*; in 1918-19, 224 tons valued at 1,613*l.* In 1919-20 no copper ore was exported; but in 1920-21, 255 tons, valued at 1,830*l.* In 1917-18 the gold output was valued at 32,931*l.*; 1918-19, 21,550*l.*; 1919-20, 21,747*l.*; and in 1920-21, 9,890*l.* Indications of petroleum have been found over an area of 1,000 sq. miles, and boring by the Anglo-Persian Oil Company is now (1921) proceeding on behalf of the Australian Government. The trade is principally with Queensland and New South Wales. The chief imports are food-stuffs, tobacco, drapery and hardware; exports, copra (1919-20, 4,079 tons, 124,007*l.*; 1920-21, 2,984 tons, 68,579*l.*); sisal hemp (1919-20, 337 tons, 12,284*l.*; 1920-21, 188 tons, 7,723*l.*); pearl shell, gold, pearls, mangrove bark, copper ore, timber, rubber (1919-20, 242 tons, 41,542*l.*; 1920-21, 220 tons, 28,966*l.*). Number of horses (1920), 225; cattle, 768; mules, 44.

Large steamers trade between Sydney and Port Moresby every three weeks, and small coastal steamers run at frequent regular intervals between the various inter-territorial ports. Oil launches and numerous cutters are also employed on the local trade. Ocean-going shipping entered and cleared 1920-21, 67,624 tons. There are wireless telegraph stations at Port Moresby, Samarai, Misima, Vailala, and Popo.

There are branches of the Bank of New South Wales at Port Moresby and Samarai. Commonwealth Government notes are legal tender. The currency and its legal tender are the same as in the United Kingdom and Australia.

TERRITORY OF NEW GUINEA.

(LATE GERMAN NEW GUINEA.)

German New Guinea was the name given to all those territories held by Germany in the Western Pacific which were governed from Rabaul, the capital of these Possessions. It included : Kaiser Wilhelm's Land (acquired in 1884), Bismarck Archipelago (acquired in 1884), The German Solomon Islands, Nauru, the Caroline Islands, the Marshall Islands, and the Marianne or Ladrone Islands (excepting the Island of Guam). The possessions were territories protected by the German Imperial Authorities (Schutzgebiete). There were no local legislators, and the Governor appointed by the Imperial Crown was all-powerful. These Possessions were occupied by an Australian Force on September 12, 1914. The islands north of the Equator, namely, the Marshall, Caroline, Pelew, and Ladrone (Marianne) Islands are to be administered by Japan as mandatory. Those south of the Equator, namely, the Bismarck Archipelago, those of the Solomon Islands formerly owned by Germany, and (late) German New Guinea, are assigned to Australia. (German Samoa is assigned to New Zealand.) The mandate from the League of Nations is dated December 17, 1920, and on May 9, 1921, the Australian Government established its civil administration in the Territory. The laws of the Commonwealth, subject to local modifications as necessary, may be applied to the mandated territories. The military training of the natives, except for local police or defence purposes, is prohibited, and no naval or military base or any fortifications may be established.

Nauru, a small islet just south of the Equator, is assigned to the British Empire as mandatory (see p. 449).

German New Guinea was divided into seven districts, each controlled by a District Officer, with certain judicial powers, as follows : Rabaul District, comprising New Britain and adjacent islands ; Morobe, Madang, and Eitape on the mainland of Kaiser Wilhelm's Land ; Kieta, which includes the German Solomons ; Manus, which includes the Admiralty Islands and the archipelagos adjacent, and Kaewieng district comprising a portion of New Ireland, &c. The Headquarters of the Administration were at Rabaul. The laws of Prussia were the basic laws, and were supplemented by ordinance emanating from the Emperor, Chancellor, and the Governor of the Protectorate. German New Guinea had a financial status of its own under a special law of 1892, and was no part of the Zollverein.

Judicially, there was no appeal from the local tribunal to the Supreme Court of the Empire, but the German Emperor could be appealed to by virtue of the protective right of the Emperor over the Possessions.

The present Administrator of the late German Possessions is Brigadier-General E. A. Wisdom, C.B., the seat of Administration being at Rabaul.

The territory (now called the Territory of New Guinea) is divided into 10 Administrative Districts, viz.: Rabaul, comprising the north-eastern portion of New Britain; Talasea, comprising the northern and north-western portion of New Britain; Gasmatta, comprising southern and western New Britain; Kæwieng, comprising the northern portion of New Ireland, and including New Hanover and St. Mathias Islands; Namatanai, comprising the southern portion of New Ireland, and groups of islands to the east and north-east thereof; Kieta, which includes the islands of Bougainville and Buka, and groups to north and north-east; Manus, comprising the Admiralty Islands, Hermit Islands, and Ninigo Group; and Morobe, Madang, and Eitope on the mainland of New Guinea, which districts include the whole of the mainland of late German New Guinea and off-lying islands.

1. NEW GUINEA.—Kaiser Wilhelm's Land, the northern section of south-east New Guinea, was declared a German protectorate in 1884. It lies between 2° 15' and 8° south latitude, and 141° 30' and 148° east longitude. The area, including Vulcan or Manam, Dampier or Karkar, Long, Bagabag or Rich, Schouten, Le Maire, and some smaller islands, is 70,000 square miles. The native population has been variously estimated at from 110,000 to 530,000, but so little is known of the interior that any figures are very conjectural. The coastal districts have a native population of two to the square mile. The territory was under the control and development of the New Guinea Company from 1885 to 1899. The first settlement was formed at Finschhafen, which is situated about 80 miles north of the Papuan border. Out-stations were formed at Konstantine and Hatzfeldt harbours. The principal station on the mainland is at Frederick Wilhelm's Haven, now called Madang. The coast-line is very little broken, and there are few good harbours. From the 141st to 144th meridian there are no good harbours with the exception of Angriff's Haven (Wanimo), and the only anchorages are open roadsteads under the lee of islands. There are high ranges running parallel with the coast plain, which is from 20 to 100 miles wide and broken with steep spurs in some places extending to the actual coast-line. The ranges in the interior have been little explored, and some of their summits are known to exceed 12,000 feet. The principal rivers are the Kaiserin Augusta, or Sepik, which is navigable for over 250 miles. It rises in the Dutch territory and flows east. The Ramu, or Otilie, rises in the south-east, and flows into the sea about 20 miles south-east of the mouth of the Sepik. The Markham is another large river, which flows into Astrolabe Bay. The climate is hot and the rainfall large. The European population in 1914 was 300—chiefly German. There are three missionary societies at work in Kaiser Wilhelm's Land: the Neuendettelsauer Mission (Lutheran), the Rheinische Mission (Lutheran Calvinistic), and the Catholic Mission of the Holy Ghost Society. These missions are also planters and traders. The chief harbours are: Frederick Wilhelm's Haven (now Madang), Finsch Haven, Erima Haven, Adolph Haven (now Morobe), and Angriff's Haven (now Wanimo). Frederick Wilhelm's Haven and Erima Haven are in Astrolabe Bay. Inter-island trade is carried on by small steamships and motor-schooners. There is a two-monthly oversea service from Madang.

The area of cultivation in 1914 was 16,800 acres, which showed a decrease on the previous two years. The greater part of this area is planted with coconuts (about 14,000 acres). Rubber and cocoa are also grown. Tropical fruits grow very abundantly. The staple articles of food of the natives are yams, taro, sago, and bananas. There is very little land used for pasture in Kaiser Wilhelm's Land. The land is rich in mineral wealth, but no minerals are worked on account of the difficulty of transporting mining machinery. Native labour is used to work the plantations, and the natives are recruited either from the adjacent villages or from other parts of the Possessions. There are upwards of 6,000 native labourers so recruited for plantation purposes.

The chief towns are : Madang and district (white population about 200) ; Morobe and district (white population, 40) ; Eitape and district (white population, 50).

2. BISMARCK ARCHIPELAGO.—In November, 1884, a German Protectorate was declared over the New Britain Archipelago and several adjacent groups of islands, and in May, 1885, they were renamed the Bismarck Archipelago. The chief islands are Neu Pommern formerly, and now called New Britain, area 10,000 square miles ; Neu Mecklenburg formerly, and now called New Ireland, area 4,600 square miles ; Neu Hannover, 530 square miles ; Neu Lauenburg, or Duke of York Islands, area 22 square miles ; the Admiralty Islands (principal island, Manus), area 600 square miles. The Archipelago lies between $141^{\circ} 30'$ and 156° east longitude, and the Equator and 8° south latitude. The other groups included in this Archipelago are St. Matthias Islands, Gardner Islands, Abgaris or Fead Islands, Nissan or Sir Charles Hardy Islands, The French Islands, Rook Islands, Hermit Islands, Ninigo Group, Anchorite and Commerson Islands. In these various groups there are upwards of 100 small islands. The total native population of the Archipelago has been estimated at 188,000.

New Britain, the largest island of this group, is a long island of crescent shape lying east and west. It has a mean breadth of 50 miles and a length of 300 miles. The island is practically undeveloped except for the peninsula in the north, which is called Gazelle Peninsula, and four plantations on the northern coast, and six plantations on the southern coast, west of Henry Reid Bay. A Government station has been established about midway along the southern coast. The interior of the island is little known. The native population numbers about 50,000. The European population in 1914 was 600, chiefly Germans, and is now about the same, but chiefly British. There are about 1,000 Chinese and about 60 Japanese. All populations are exclusive of the occupying force. A mountain chain traverses the entire length of the island, and in the centre consists of several irregular ranges. There are several active volcanoes, and the range shows signs of great volcanic activity in the past. The highest known peak is the Father, about 7,500 feet high, which is an active volcano. This island has very fine harbours ; the best is Simpson's Harbour in Blanche Bay, which affords a good anchorage in all weathers. Others are, Matupi Harbour, Jacquinot Bay, Rugen Haven, Arawe, Lindenhafen, and Powell Haven on the east and south coasts ; and Rein Bay, Talasea Harbour, and Garua Haven on the north coast. The only one visited by oversea shipping is Simpson Harbour. The principal settlement is around the shores of Blanche Bay ; the chief crop is coconuts. There are two missionary societies at work in this island : the Wesleyan, with headquarters near Rabaul, and the Catholic Mission of the Sacred Heart, with headquarters at Herbertshoehe (now Kokopo). The chief town is Rabaul (population, including Asiatics, 1,200), which since 1910 is the seat of the Government. The old capital was at Kokopo, which is situated 14 miles south-east of Rabaul. At Rabaul there is an anchorage for all ships and a fine jetty has been built. Rabaul is well laid out and has a fine public garden.

New Ireland, the second in size and importance of the Bismarck Archipelago, is situated north of New Britain, from which it is separated by St. George's Channel. The chief town is Kaewieng (European population, about 140), at the north-west extremity of the island. The only other town is Namatanai (European population, about 40), on the south-east coast. The island has a long range of mountains running through it. It is of older formation than New Britain, and does not show any signs of recent volcanic activity. The principal harbour is Nusa, on the north coast of which Kaewieng, the seat of the local administration, is situated. The interior of the island, with the exception of the extreme southern end, is fairly well known. The native population is about 28,000. The soil is fertile and the climate similar to that of New Britain. The chief industry is coconut growing. There are numerous plantations around the coast near Kaewieng. Total population of the island, about 200 Europeans, now chiefly British.

The Admiralty Islands are the most important of the small groups. The chief island is Manus, sometimes called Great Admiralty Island. The chief town is Lorengau (population, including district, about 40) on the north-east coast. The native population of the group is 4,000. Coconuts are the chief article of culture, and there are valuable pearl and other shell fisheries.

3. SOLOMON ISLANDS.—Germany owned part of this group, including the islands of Bougainville (area 3,500 square miles, native population 15,000) and Buka (area 300 square miles, native population 2,000), but Choiseul, Isabel or Mahaga, and various smaller islands to the east of Bougainville were transferred to Great Britain in 1899. These islands are very mountainous. Of the several volcanic cones, Bagano is the only active volcano. The highest mountain is the dormant volcano Mount Balbi, 10,170 feet high, situated in the centre of the island. Both peaks are in the Crown Prince range. The principal harbour is Kieta, situated on the east coast of Bougainville, where there is a Government station. Other good harbours are: Rawa and Tinputz on the north-east coast of Bougainville. There is a good harbour on the west side of Buka, named Carola Hafen. Missionary work amongst the natives is carried on by the Marist Brothers of the Roman Catholic Mission. As the plantations are new there is comparatively little export trade. The natives grow bananas, coconuts, taro, and sweet potatoes. The European population is 60.

NEW ZEALAND.

Government and Constitution.

By Order in Council of September 9, 1907, and by Proclamation, the designation of the Colony of New Zealand was changed to the Dominion of New Zealand (officially established as a Colony in 1840), on and from September 26, 1907. The present form of government was established by Statute 15 & 16 Vict., cap. 72, passed in 1852. The Colony was divided into six provinces, afterwards increased to nine, reduced later to eight, and again increased to nine. By a subsequent Act of the Colonial Legislature, 39 Vict., No. xxi., passed in 1875, the provincial system of government was abolished, and the powers previously exercised by superintendents and provincial officers were ordered to be exercised by the Governor (Governor-General from June 1917), or by local boards. The legislative power is vested in the Governor-General and a "General Assembly" consisting of two Chambers—a Legislative Council and a House of Representatives. The Governor-General has the power of assenting to or withholding consent from bills, or he may reserve them for His Majesty's pleasure. He summons, prorogues, and dissolves the Parliament. He can send drafts of bills to either House for consideration, but in case of appropriations of public money must first recommend the House of Representatives to make provision accordingly before any appropriations can become law. He can return bills for amendment to either House.

The Legislative Council consists (September, 1921) of forty-one members, who are paid at the rate of 350*l.* per annum. Those appointed since September 17, 1891, hold their seats for seven years only, unless reappointed. One life-member was appointed before that date. Provision has been made for the Legislative Council to be made elective at a date to be fixed by Proclamation. Twenty-four members are to be elected at the first election and 40 at subsequent elections. Three Maori members may be appointed by the Governor-General. Present sitting members hold office till the end of the term of their appointment.

The House of Representatives consists of eighty members, including four Maoris, elected by the people for three years. They are paid at the rate of 500*l.* per annum. Every man registered as an elector is eligible as a member of the House of Representatives. Women are also eligible. For European representation every adult person (of either sex), if resident one year in the Dominion and one month in an electoral district, can be registered an elector for such Electoral District. No person may be registered on more than one electoral roll. Every adult Maori resident in any of the four Maori electoral districts can vote, provided he (or she) be not registered on any European roll. Registration is not required in Native districts.

*The result of the general election of December, '1919, was: Reform Party, 48; Liberal Party, 18; Labour Party, 10; Independent Members, 4. The Government holds 50 seats, and the opposition parties, 30 seats. The number of votes cast, excluding the Maoris, was 517,000.

Governor-General and Commander-in-Chief.—His Excellency Viscount Jellicoe of Scapa, G.C.B., O.M., G.C.V.O. • Salary 5,000*l.*, and 2,500*l.* allowances.

The Cabinet (September, 1921) is as follows :—

Prime Minister, Minister of Finance, Railways, Mines, Stamp Duties, Land and Income Tax, State Advances and Imperial Government Supplies.—Rt. Hon. W. F. Massey, P.C.

Attorney-General, Commissioner of State Forests, Minister in Charge of Valuation Department, Minister of Marine and Leader of Legislative Council.—Hon. Sir Francis Bell, K.C.M.G., K.C.

Member of Executive Council without Portfolio.—Hon. Sir W. Fraser, K.C.V.O.

Minister of Lands, Lands for Settlement, Discharged Soldiers' Settlement, Scenery Preservation and Repatriation.—Hon. D. H. Guthrie.

Minister of Agriculture, Immigration, in Charge of Tourists and Health Resorts and Legislative Departments.—Hon. W. Nosworthy.

Minister of Public Works, Postmaster-General, Minister of Telegraphs, Native Minister, in Charge of Public Trust, Native Trust, Roads, Public Buildings, and Government Life and Accident Insurance Departments.—Hon. J. G. Coates, M.C.

Minister of Justice, External Affairs, in Charge of Industries and Commerce, Police, and Prisons.—Hon. E. P. Lee.

Minister of Education, Public Health, in Charge of Hospitals and Charitable Aid and Mental Hospitals Departments.—Hon. C. J. Parr, C.M.G.

Minister of Labour, Minister in Charge of Printing and Stationery, Pensions and State Fire Insurance Departments.—Hon. G. J. Anderson.

Minister of Defence, and War Pensions.—Hon. Sir R. H. Rhodes, K.B.E.

Minister of Customs, Minister of Internal Affairs, High Commissioner's, Audit, Museum, Registrar-General, Census and Statistics Laboratory, Electoral, Advertising and National Provident Fund.—Hon. W. D. Stewart.

Member of Executive Council representing Native Race, Minister in Charge of Cook Islands.—Hon. Dr. M. Pomare, C.M.G.

Each member has a salary of 1,300*l.*, with the exception of the Prime Minister, who has 2,000*l.*, and Minister representing Native Race, 1,100*l.*; with House Allowance of 200*l.* if no Government residence is provided.

Department of the High Commissioner in London :—

High Commissioner.—The Hon. Sir James Allen, K.C.B., 415, Strand, W.C. 2.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

For purposes of local government New Zealand is divided into counties and boroughs. The counties are subdivided into ridings. County councils are empowered to constitute road districts on petition being made. Besides the road districts, which are very numerous, there are town, drainage, electric supply, water supply, river, tramway, local railway, and harbour districts.

The ratepayers in the road districts of a county are qualified as electors for the purposes of the county council, and the members of each road board are elected by the ratepayers of the district.

Area and Population.

There are two principal islands, the North and South Islands, besides Stewart Island, and small outlying islands, including (since 1901), the Cook and some other islands in the Pacific Ocean. The group is 1,000 miles long, and 180 miles across at the broadest part; coast line 3,000 miles. New Zealand is about 1,200 miles east of Australia. Area, excluding islands annexed in 1901, 103,581 square miles. North Island, 44,130 square miles, South Island 58,120, Stewart Island 662 square miles. Acreage 66,292,232 acres, exclusive of the Cook and other islands (179,200 acres), and up to March, 1920, 31,442,819 acres had been alienated, including lands reserved and set apart by the State for special purposes (13,591,041 acres). Estimated population, June 30, 1921, 1,221,447, exclusive of Maoris, 52,554, and residents of Cook and other annexed Islands, 13,269 in 1921. Census population, exclusive of aborigines :—

Instruction.

In 1916, 95·0 per cent. of the population over 5 years of age (excluding Maoris) were recorded at the census as able to read and write, 0·8 per cent. as able to read only, and 4·2 per cent. as unable to read.

The University of New Zealand is solely an examining body, with an annual grant of 4,000*l*. The number of graduates admitted after examination was, in 1920, 2,571. There are four affiliated colleges—the Otago University at Dunedin, with 55 professors and lecturers; the Canterbury College at Christchurch, with 29 professors and lecturers; the Auckland University College, with 24 professors and lecturers; and the Victoria University College at Wellington, with 24 professors and lecturers; students attending lectures in the four affiliated colleges (1920), 3,672. They are all endowed with lands. The Canterbury Agricultural College is a recognised school of agriculture.

At the end of 1920 there were 35 incorporated or endowed secondary schools, with 400 (excluding part-time) teachers and 9,196 pupils (excluding 815 in lower departments). Of the total income more than half is from endowments and Government payments. There are also 59 District High Schools with 110 teachers and 2,157 scholars. Children receiving secondary instruction at Technical High Schools (nine) numbered 2,766 in 1920. Of private secondary schools there were 18 registered, with 1,439 pupils. Ten secondary schools for Maoris had 474 pupils.

For primary schools there is an Education Department (which also exercises certain functions in regard to both university and secondary schools). There are 9 Local Education Boards. At the end of 1920 there were 2,437 public primary schools, 6,335 teachers (including 580 probationers), 199,802 scholars on the rolls; average attendance (1920), 171,402. Education is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14. The instruction given at the public schools is secular only, and for the ordinary standard course entirely free. Where there are no schools classes may be formed in the public school for extra subjects, for which special subsidies are given.

The Education Department's functions include: (a), maintenance, etc., of destitute children; (b), care of epidemic orphans; (c), training of uncontrollable and delinquent children; (d), supervision of adopted children; (e), education, etc., of all afflicted children (deaf, blind, and feeble-minded). There are 7 schools of mines; 4 normal schools; 5 central schools of art; 13 industrial schools, with 3,839 (1920) children or young persons; a school for the deaf; an institute for the blind (at Auckland); special schools for mentally backward boys in Otago and Nelson; and a similar school for girls at Richmond, Nelson. There were also, at the end of 1920, 221 registered primary private schools, with 22,193 pupils.

There were 119 Native village schools, with 263 teachers and 5,508 scholars. Total net expenditure by the State on Native schools in 1920-21 was 71,430*l*. Total expenditure out of public funds in 1920-21 upon education of all kinds 3,224,000*l*.

Justice and Crime.

There are eight supreme court judges, and thirty-three stipendiary magistrates. There are numerous magistrates' courts and justices of the peace.

Pauperism.

The Dominion is divided into districts, with elective boards for the administration of the public hospitals and charitable relief. The Government subsidises bequests at the rate of 10s. in the pound; voluntary contributions, 24s. in the pound; and contributions by local authorities, according to a sliding scale, ranging from 12s. 3d. in the pound to 24s. 3d. in the pound, according to the value of rateable property within the district. The total expenditure on Charitable Aid during the year ended March 31, 1920, was 174,397*l*. During 1920 the benevolent and orphan asylums accommodated 5,827 inmates, and 3,839 children (2,257 boys and 1,582 girls) were wholly or partly maintained by the State in industrial schools and other institutions in 1920.

Old Age and Widows' Pensions.

In 1898 an Act, amended in 1905 and consolidated and amended in 1913, provided for old-age pensions. Every person, not an alien or an Asiatic, who fulfils certain conditions is entitled to a pension of 26*l*. a year. The joint annual income of a married couple in receipt of pensions must not exceed 100*l*. (including pensions). An Act of 1917 increased the rates of pensions payable during the period of the war and twelve months after. Pensions are also granted to widows, to miners incapacitated as a result of miners' phthisis, and to veterans of the Maori war. In addition are those pensions granted in respect of the recent war.

Defence.

In 1909 New Zealand passed a Defence Act, amended 1910, which provided for the gradual military training of every male New Zealander between the ages of 12 and 25, with further service in the Reserve up to age of 30. Under this Act a boy serves from 12 to 14 as a junior cadet, from 14 to 18 as a senior cadet, from 18 to 25 he becomes a soldier in the Territorial Force, and from 25 to 30 he serves in the Reserve. Senior cadets do 50 drills and a musketry course annually. The soldier in the Territorial Force does 30 drills, 6 whole-day parades, and 7 days continuous annual training. The pre-war strength of the Territorial Force was about 30,000, and the present strength is 23,188.

The Territorial Force is organised in the military districts, each of which furnishes an infantry brigade, with a proportion of the other arms and services. During the war New Zealand raised 124,211 men; of this number 91,941 were recruited voluntarily, the remainder under a compulsory system introduced in 1916. 100,444 men were sent overseas to serve in New Zealand units and 3,370 are known to have joined British or Australian units. In addition Samoa was occupied and garrisoned by the Dominion. Quotas were contributed by Cook Islands and Niue, and the Maoris maintained a battalion. The total casualties were 16,688 killed, and 41,315 wounded; total, 58,003.

During the war two schools of instruction were formed in New Zealand for the Dominion Air Force, and at the time of the Armistice 142 cadets were in training. Three hundred New Zealand officers served in the British flying services during the war, and the Dominion presented 6 aeroplanes to the Empire and lent two.

Down to March 31, 1921, the war expenditure reached 79,289,454*l*.

The Naval Defence Act, 1920, provided for the establishment of a New Zealand Naval Force, to be raised and maintained by voluntary enlistment only, enlistment being for a prescribed period not less than two years. In time of war the Naval Force (including vessels acquired for defence purposes) is at the disposal of the British Government. The Naval force consists of training ship Philomel and cruiser Chatham which was recently presented by the Imperial Government. The establishment of a New Zealand Royal Naval Reserve is also provided for under the Act. A Naval Board was constituted in June 1921, which is charged with the control of all matters relating to the Naval Forces, of which it has executive command.

Production and Industry.

AGRICULTURE.

Two-thirds of the surface of New Zealand are suitable for agriculture and grazing. About 17,000,000 acres are still under forest. The total area under cultivation (including 16,125,265 acres in sown grasses and 81,760 in fallow) in 1920 was 18,004,776 acres. The area of Crown lands surveyed and open for selection on March 31, 1920, was 593,964 acres.

The largest freehold estates are held in the South Island. The extent of occupied holdings of or over one acre in 1920 (exclusive of holdings within borough boundaries) was as follows:—

Sizes of Holdings		Number of Holdings	Acres	Sizes of Holdings		Number of Holdings	Acres
1 to	10 acres	15,554	72,191	5,001 to 10,000 acres		550	3,824,623

Deducting Crown lands under pastoral leases, the area of occupied land in 1920 was 30,115,662 acres; in 1911, 29,236,793 acres; in 1901, 26,982,486 acres; in 1891, 19,951,925 acres.

In 1920 there were 132,249 persons (99,685 males and 32,564 females) engaged in agricultural, pastoral, and dairying pursuits.

The acreage and produce for each of the principal crops are given as follows (area and yield for threshing only, not including that grown for chaff, hay, ensilage, &c.) :—

Commerce.

In 1920 the imports duty-free amounted to 29,915,638*l.*; subject to duty, 31,680,190*l.*; total 61,595,828*l.*

Years	Total Imports	Exports of Domestic Produce	Exports of other Produce	Total Exports

1920	61,595,828	45,592,294	849,652	46,441,946

The value of imports is taken as the fair market value in the country exporting same, plus a uniform charge of ten per cent. for freight, &c. For exports the 'free-on-board in New Zealand' value is given; but, as regards the main items, the Collector of Customs examines carefully the amounts stated and compares them with current price lists, to prevent any over-estimate. Beginning with 1914 the country of origin of imports is obtained, as well as country of shipment. The country of shipment is obtained in cases of exports, but this may or may not be the country of ultimate destination. Very little cargo in transitu passes through New Zealand.

The principal imports and exports in 1920 are given as follows:—

Receipts of Post and Telegraph Department for year ended March 31, 1921, 2,590,440*l.*; working expenses, 2,591,786*l.* The officials numbered 9,507 on March 31, 1921.

The telegraph system is Governmental. On March 31, 1921, there were 13,724 miles of line and 51,228 of wire. Number of telegrams despatched during the year, 14,000,851. The telephone (Governmental) is very generally used. The telegraph and telephone revenue for the year 1920-21 was 1,237,763*l*.

Money and Credit.

There were, in December, 1918, six banks of issue doing business. Two of these were wholly New Zealand institutions, having a paid-up capital of 4,375,000*l*., besides which the Bank of New Zealand has 529,988*l*. of 4 per cent. guaranteed stock. The total average liabilities for 1920, in respect of New Zealand transactions, were 67,818,469*l*., and the average assets 61,361,657*l*. The average amount on deposit was 59,405,341*l*. The value of the notes in circulation in March, 1921, was 7,830,206*l*. Gold has almost entirely disappeared from circulation.

There are the post-office savings-bank and 5 private savings banks. The former had, December 31, 1919, 794 branches; the latter have not more than one or two branches each; number of depositors in Post Office Savings Banks at end of 1919, 630,783; amount deposited during year, 29,758,447*l*.; withdrawn, 25,962,377*l*.; amount on deposit at end of year, 38,393,130*l*. At 31st March, 1920, 3,557,895*l*. was on deposit in private savings banks to the credit of 95,472 depositors.

Attached to New Zealand are the following islands:

Auckland Islands, 50° 31' S., 166° 19' E., 200 miles S. of Stewart Island. Area of largest about 330 square miles. Uninhabited. The New Zealand Government maintains a dépôt of provisions and clothing for the use of shipwrecked mariners on the largest island of the group.

Chatham Islands, 43° 50' S., 177° W., 536 miles E. of New Zealand. Area 375 square miles; population (April, 1921) 445 (210 Europeans and 235 Maoris and Morioris).

The Cook and other South Pacific Islands were annexed to New Zealand in June, 1901. They lie between 8° and 23° S. lat., 157° and 170° W. long. The names of the islands with their populations (1921) are as follows:—

	Population		Population
Rarotonga	3,503	Palmerston Is. . . .	83
Mangaia	1,230	Penrhyn (Tongareva) . .	376
Atiu	837	Manahiki	432
Aitutaki	1,373	Rakaanga	310
Mauke (Parry Is.) . .	578	Danger (Pukapuka) . .	530
Mitiaro	207	Suvarrow	—
Hervey Islands	—
Niue (Savage Is.) . .	3,750	Total	13,209

Total area of the Cook and other islands about 280 square miles.

Rarotonga is 20 miles in circumference; Atiu, 20 miles; Aitutaki, 21 miles; Niue (or Savage Island), 40 miles. Laws for the Cook Islands have been made since 1890 by a general Legislature, and are administered by an Executive Council, of which the Arikis, or native chiefs, are members. At Rarotonga and Niue there are (New Zealand) Resident Commissioners, whose approval is required for all enactments. The customs tariff of New Zealand is enforced. In 1915 an Act was passed by the New Zealand Parliament consolidating the laws relating to the Islands, and providing for the appointment of a member of the Executive Council of New Zealand as Minister of the Cook Islands. The Minister is charged with the administration of the Islands. The Act provides for the constitution of Island Councils, lower and higher Courts of Justice, and native land court, as well as for the establishment of public schools, &c. In 1919 the numbers of births, marriages, and deaths were respectively 481, 232, and 361. Education: there are 10 primary schools and one technical school in the group, with an attendance of over 1,400 scholars. Revenue, financial year 1919-20, 29,443*l.*; expenditure, 20,722*l.* The trade for 1919 was:—Imports, 164,708*l.*, including 112,241*l.* from New Zealand and 27,605*l.* from United Kingdom; exports 163,706*l.*, including 89,201*l.* to New Zealand, 63,855*l.* to United States of America. Chief exports, 1919:—Bananas, 18,330*l.*; oranges, 36,030*l.*; tomatoes, 9,820*l.*; coconuts, 1,490*l.*; coffee, raw, 1,400*l.*; copra, 76,264*l.*; pearl-shell, 14,480*l.*; hats, 3,367*l.* A wireless station has been completed at Rarotonga, and is now in use.

Kermadec Islands, 36° S., 178° 30' W., 600 miles N.N.E. of New Zealand. Area 15 square miles. Now uninhabited. The largest of the group is Raoul or Sunday Island, 20 miles in circuit; Macaulay Island is 3 miles in circuit.

Small uninhabited islands are: The Campbell Islands, the Three Kings Islands, the Antipodes Islands, and the Bounty Islands.

TERRITORY OF WESTERN SAMOA.

The former German Samoan Islands, now the Territory of Western Samoa, include Savaii and Upolu, the largest of the Samoan or Navigators' Islands. Samoa is a group of islands in the Western Pacific, lying in 13½ deg. to 14 deg. S. lat., and 168 deg. to 173 deg. W. long. The islands are some 130 miles N. of Tonga and between 400 and 500 miles N.E. of Fiji. The group consists of nine islands, in addition to rocks and islets. They are all, with the exception of Rose Island, of volcanic formation, and are, for the most part, surrounded with coral reefs. The four largest islands are Savaii, Upolu, Tutuila and Manua. By the Anglo-German Agreement of November 14, 1899, ratified by the United States in January, 1900, Great Britain renounced all rights over the islands in favour of Germany as regards Savaii, Upolu, Apolima and Manono, and in favour of the United States as regards Tutuila and other islands. Under the German Imperial Governor there was a native High Chief with a native council, the several districts being administered by chiefs. Justice was administered by native as well as European judges and magistrates.

On August 29, 1914, the British occupied German Samoa. By the Treaty of Peace, 1919, Germany surrendered her possessions abroad, and Samoa is assigned under a mandate from the League of Nations to His Majesty the King in right of his Dominion of New Zealand, which has been empowered to govern Western Samoa. The mandate is dated December 17, 1920, and under that authority the Governor-General of New Zealand in Council has made laws for Western Samoa. The military training of the natives, except for local police or defence purposes, is prohibited, and no naval or military base or any fortifications may be established.

Provision has been made for a nominated Legislative Council, consisting of not less than four official members, and unofficial members not exceeding in number the official members. The Administrator is entitled to preside over every meeting of the Council. No person is qualified for appointment to the Legislative Council unless he is either a natural born British subject or a Samoan, or was born in Samoa. The civil administration was inaugurated on May 1, 1920.

Savaii, with a length of 48 miles and a breadth of 25 miles, has an area of about 660 square miles; Upolu has an area of between 550 and 600 square miles. Both islands are mountainous, fertile, and well watered. Several adjacent islets, exceedingly fertile, were included in the German dependency. The port of Apia is in Upolu. The inhabitants of the islands are Polynesians, professing Christianity (Protestants, Catholics, and Mormons). Population of Western Samoa, according to the census of April 1921, 37,051, distributed as follows:—Whites, 2,026 (British, 1,035, Americans, 292, Swedes, 49, Germans, 402, others, 248); Samoan natives, 32,953; coolie labourers, 1,314; other islanders, 758. The native population suffered heavily during the influenza epidemic of 1918, the number of deaths being about 7,500. There were (1917) 2 Government schools with 784 pupils, and mission schools with over 8,000 pupils. There are 60 miles of good roads. The chief product is copra, and other products are cocoa, rubber, cardamoms, sugar. The revenue collected in Western Samoa for the year ended March 31, 1921, was 149,027*l.* (mainly customs, 92,905*l.*; Court fees, &c., 8,368*l.*; native taxes, 9,138*l.*; wireless station, 6,369*l.*; post office, 4,820*l.*); the ordinary expenditure was 149,327*l.* There was an excess of assets over liabilities of 27,329*l.* on March 31, 1921. Imports for 1920, 561,193*l.*; exports for 1920, 386,587*l.* In 1920, 96 vessels (50,837 tons) entered at the port of Apia and 95 vessels (50,270 tons) cleared. There is regular steam communication with New Zealand. A wireless station has been erected at Apia.

The currency before the British occupation was in marks, but English and American gold and silver coin were legal tender. Since the occupation, however, the German currency has been replaced by New Zealand bank notes and specie. A branch of the Bank of New Zealand was opened at Apia in April, 1915.

The Hon. E. P. Lee, Minister of External Affairs for New Zealand, is in charge of Samoa and other late German Islands assigned to New Zealand.

NAURU ISLAND.

Nauru was surrendered by the Germans on September 9, 1914; it was, however, not until November 6 of the same year that it was effectively occupied by troops (Australian) from Rabaul. In accordance with the terms of the capitulation, local laws and customs were continued, as far as practicable, and a Civil Administration was established on January 1, 1915. The change from German to British rule was effected without any break in the ordinary life of the island—the main difference between the two systems, from a native point of view, being that whereas under the German rule, the people were left entirely to themselves, provided the poll-tax was paid regularly, under the new régime they found themselves called upon to take part in the improvement of the island hygienically, socially, and administratively. The mandate for its administration has been conferred on the British Empire. The mandate, as approved by the League of Nations, is dated December 17, 1920. The military training of the natives, except for local police or defence purposes, is prohibited, and no naval or military base or any fortifications may be established. Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand have agreed that Australia shall appoint the first Administrator for a term of five years, and the expenses of administration are to be defrayed out of the proceeds of the sale of phosphates.

The island lies just south of the Equator, about 400 miles from the nearest Marshall Islands. It is a circular atoll of approximately 12 miles in circumference, surrounded by a reef. There is no anchorage adjacent to the island. There is an extensive plateau bearing phosphate of a high grade, the mining rights of which are vested in the British Phosphate Commission. It is chiefly on the fertile section of land between the sandy beach and the plateau that the natives have established themselves, and from which they obtain the necessary food for themselves and families. With the exception of a small fringe round a shallow lagoon, about one mile inland, the plateau which contains the phosphate deposits has but few inhabitants.

Population, 1920: 91 Europeans, 599 Chinese, 1,068 Nauruana, 227 other South Sea Islanders; total, 1,985.

Education.—There are no Government, nor assisted Government, schools on the island for natives. The Roman Catholic and Protestant Missions maintain schools. Daily average number of children attending these schools: Roman Catholic Mission, 72; Protestant Mission, 170.

A school for European children has also been established, and a teacher has been obtained on loan from the Victorian Education Department to act as master of the European school, and inspector of the native schools.

Finance.—The revenue and expenditure of the island, from January 1, 1915, have been as follows:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1915	9,651	4,775	1918	8,557	5,042
1916	8,403	5,872	1919	6,761	4,727
1917	9,474	16,531	1920	10,611	4,818

Assets, December 31, 1920, 17,699*l.*; liabilities, 672*l.* An amount, which cannot be estimated, still remains to be paid by the Nauru Administration, in connection with the maintenance of the Wireless Station at Nauru, as its share of expenditure since 1917.

Since the British occupation, no change has been made in the German Customs Regulations. Import duties are imposed on beer, spirits, wines, and tobacco, and a 10% ad valorem duty on practically all other goods, but by a concession obtained in 1905 from the German Government, the Phosphate Commission receives exemption for all materials and plant used for the exploitation of phosphates, as well as for provisions required for its employees. An export duty of 10*s.* per ton is charged on copra. A poll-tax of 15*s.* per year is collected from all adult male natives. A Royalty of 6*d.* per ton to the Government, and one halfpenny per ton to the native landowners is paid for every ton of phosphate shipped, and the Phosphate Commission contributes also 1,000*l.* a year to the upkeep of the police.

Commerce.—The export trade of the island consists, with the exception of a small quantity of copra, almost entirely of phosphate, mined on the island by the British Phosphate Commission, and shipped by the Commission to Great Britain, Australia, and New Zealand. Phosphate exported (in tons): 1916, 105,012; 1917, 101,267; 1918, 76,440; 1919, 69,336; and 1920, 149,609.

The imports consist almost entirely of food supplies, and machinery for the British Phosphate Commission, for use in connection with their works. Value of imports: 1918, 55,840*l.*; 1919, 45,977*l.*; 1920, 109,119*l.*

Shipping.—Practically the whole of the shipping coming to the island consists of steamers under charter to the British Phosphate Commission to carry phosphate to Great Britain, Australia, and New Zealand, and occasionally to Japan. Numbers of vessels entered and cleared: in 1919, 34 of 989,575 tons; in 1920, 52 of 129,289 tons.

Communications.—Mail communication to and from Australia and other parts of the world is almost solely by the chartered vessels of the British Phosphate Commission; generally speaking, there is a fortnightly service between Nauru and Australia, but there is no regular service.

Wireless Station.—The outstanding feature of Nauru, apart from the phosphate works, is the Wireless Station of 65 kilowatt power, which was erected by the Germans to link up the island with their other Pacific possessions and Tsingtau. It was opened in December 1913, and though partially dismantled shortly after the outbreak of war, was soon restored, and has been in use ever since.

Administrator.—Brigadier-General T. Griffiths, C.M.G., C.B.E., D.S.O.

FIJI.

Constitution and Government.

Fiji was ceded by the chiefs and people of Fiji on October 10, 1874. The government is administered by a Governor appointed by the Crown, assisted by an Executive Council consisting of the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, other official members appointed by the Governor, and two nominated members selected by the Governor from the elected members of the Legislative Council. Laws are passed by the Legislative Council, of which the Governor is president. It comprises twelve nominated members, seven elected members, and two native members.

Governor of Fiji and High Commissioner for the Western Pacific.—Sir Cecil Hunter Rodwell, K.C.M.G. (appointed, 1918). Salary 3,000*l.* as Governor of Fiji, and 1,000*l.* as High Commissioner for the Western Pacific.

The Governor is High Commissioner and Consul-General for the Western Pacific.

There is a constabulary consisting of Fijians and Indians, and a Defence Force (Europeans, half-castes, and Fijians).

For the purposes of native government the colony is divided into 17 provinces, in 6 of which a superior native chief exercises, under the title of Roko Tui, a form of rule which recognises to a large degree the principles of native administration by which the people formerly governed themselves. In seven of the provinces there are European commissioners. About 180 native officials are employed in subordinate administrative capacities. There are also 30 native stipendiary magistrates associated with 19 District Commissioners in the administration of justice. A European commissioner, who is also Government medical officer, resides in Rotuma.

Area and Population.

Fiji comprises a group of about 250 islands (about 80 inhabited) lying between 15° and 21° south latitudes and 177° east and 178° west longitude. The largest is Viti Levu, area 4,063 square miles; next is Vanua Levu, area 2,130 square miles. The island of Rotuma, between 12° and 15° of south latitude, and 175° and 177° east longitude, was added to the colony in 1880. Total area, including Rotuma, 7,435 square miles.

At the census of April 2, 1911, the population was 139,541; the Europeans, 3,707 (2,403 males, 1,304 females); Fijians, 87,096 (46,110 males, 40,986 females); Rotumans, 2,176 (1,043 males, 1,133 females); Indians, 40,286 (26,073 males, 14,213 females); Polynesians, 2,758 (2,429 males, 329 females); Chinese, 305 (276 males, 29 females); others, 3,213 (1,674 males, 1,539 females). On December 31, 1920, the estimated population was 162,604, including 88,680 Fijians and 59,695 Indians.

Among Europeans the birth-rate in 1920 was 31·13 per 1000 and deaths 7·88 per 1,000; among Fijians, birth-rate, 35·01, death-rate, 22·88; among Indians, birth-rate, 35·96, death-rate, 6·51.

Suva, the capital, is on the south coast of Viti Levu; European population (census of April 24, 1921), 1,443, suburbs, 298, total, 1,741.

Religion and Instruction.

Attending at Methodist native churches in 1920, 78,670; Roman Catholic Mission, 11,072. The Methodist Mission comprises 20 European missionaries, 20 European mission sisters, 110 native ministers, 193 catechists, 757 teachers, and 3,851 local preachers, 4,422 class leaders, with 738 churches, and 366 other preaching places. The Roman Catholic Mission has 30 European ministers and 287 native teachers, 50 European sisters, 76 churches and chapels, 3 native training institutions.

There are two government grammar schools at Suva, one for boys and one for girls; and one for both sexes at Levuka. In 1920 there were 430 scholars. The Queen Victoria School, also State-supported, is a boarding school for Fijian boys. There were 72 pupils in 1920. The Government pays grants-in-aid to 22 assisted primary schools and to 19 assisted vernacular schools. During 1920 the Wesleyan Mission had 863 schools with 13,400 scholars; the Roman Catholic had 122 schools with 2,700 scholars. The Roman Catholic Mission maintains 3 schools for Europeans, with 195 children in 1919. Expenditure on education, 1920, 19,990*l*.

Shipping and Communications.

Fiji is in regular steam communication with New Zealand, Australia, Tonga and Samoa, Honolulu and Canada. During 1920 the number of merchant vessels entered at the ports of entry was 111 steamers of 320,292 tons, and 36 sailing vessels of 17,428 tons. Total tonnage entered and cleared in 1920, 671,790 (British, 631,584). Registered shipping, 1920, 15 vessels of 1,860 tons net; local vessels holding coasting licences (1920), 269 of 3,881 tons. There is also a subsidised inter-island steamer.

The volume of transactions in postal matter during 1920 was as follows: letters and postcards, 1,291,910; newspapers, books, and book-packets, 807,051; parcels, 29,402. There is a Money Order system with the United Kingdom, Canada, the Australian States, New Zealand, Tonga, and India. There is telegraphic communication between Suva and Levuka, 54 miles, of which $11\frac{1}{2}$ miles is by submarine cable. An overland telephone from Suva to Lautoka, 125 miles. Wireless telegraph stations have been erected at Suva, Labasa, Taveuni and Savusavu.

The Government Savings Bank had, at the end of 1920, 1,913 depositors, whose deposits amounted to 41,586*l.*, being 21*l.* 14*s.* 9*d.* per head. The headquarters are at the Treasury, Suva, and there are twelve branches throughout the Colony.

The Bank of New South Wales has three branches and the Bank of New Zealand has two in the Colony. Practically all of the notes issued by these banks have now been withdrawn from circulation in favour of the Government notes issued by the Commissioners of Currency. The currency notes in circulation on December 10, 1920, amounted to 312,868*l.* The coin portion of the note guarantee fund amounted to 81,000*l.*, and the securities forming the investment portion of the fund amounted to 191,236*l.*, while the amount in transit for investment was 41,250*l.*

Money, weights, and measures are the same as in the United Kingdom.

PACIFIC ISLANDS.

TONGA.

(FRIENDLY ISLANDS.)

The Tonga or Friendly Islands continued up to 1899 to be a neutral region in accordance with the Declaration of Berlin, April 6, 1886. By the Anglo-German Agreement of November 14, 1899, subsequently accepted by the United States, the Tonga Islands were left practically under the Protectorate of Great Britain. A Protectorate was proclaimed over Tonga on May 19, 1900. In December, 1900, the British High Commissioner, with the assent of the King and native chiefs, assumed the exercise of civil and criminal jurisdiction over all subjects of Foreign Powers in Tonga, and the supervision of the financial administration.

Queen.—Salote, succeeded on the death of her father, George II, on April 29, 1918.

There is a Legislative Assembly which meets annually, composed of seven nobles elected by their peers, seven elected representatives of the people, and the Ministers of the Crown, numbering seven, or twenty-one members in all. The elections are held triennially.

The kingdom consists of 3 groups of islands, called respectively Tonga tabu, Haabai, and Vavan, together with the outlying islands of Ninatobu-tabu, Taofahi, and Ninafoo, and lies between 15° and 23° 30' south, and 173° and 177° west, its western boundary being the eastern boundary of Fiji. The main group was discovered by Tasman in 1643. Total area, approximately 385 square miles; Capital, Nukualofa; population, census, April, 1911, 23,011 Tongans; 346 other Pacific islanders, and 380 Europeans. Estimated population 1919, 22,689 Tongans, 250 half-castes, 247 other Pacific islanders, and 376 Europeans; total, 23,562. The natives are Christian, there being about 16,000 adherents of the Free Church of Tonga, 4,000 Wesleyan Methodists, and 3,000 Roman Catholics. At the end of 1919, there were 64 public primary schools, with 2,742 pupils on the roll. At Tonga College there were 8 teachers and 65 students on December 31, 1919. The revenue amounted in 1919-20 to 79,927*l.*, and the expenditure to 55,533*l.* Native produce consists almost entirely of copra, of which the export in 1920 (chiefly to America) amounted to 10,992 tons, valued at 380,157*l.* Total imports, 1918, 177,151*l.*; exports, 169,757*l.* The imports include drapery, flour, biscuits, fish, hardware, timber, sugar, meats; and the exports, copra, fungus, live-stock. The trade is with New Zealand, Australia and the United States of America. Steamer communication with the outside world since the war has been limited practically to one vessel of the Union Company's Fleet which maintains a four-weekly service with New Zealand, via Fiji and Samoa.

Since May 1, 1905, British coin is the only legal tender. The weights and measures are the same as in Great Britain. Accounts are kept in pounds, shillings, and pence.

High Commissioner and Consul-General for the Western Pacific.—Sir Cecil Hunter Rodwell, K.C.M.G. (T. E. Fell, C.M.G., acting.)

Agent and Consul.—Islay McOwan. (C. E. de F. Pennefather, acting.)

In the sections devoted to New South Wales and New Zealand mention is made of various annexed Pacific Islands. The following summary (omitting islands described elsewhere) gives the names and positions of islands which are unattached:—

Ducie Island, 24° 40' S. lat., 124° 48' W. long. Pitcairn Island, 25° 5' S., 130° 5' W.; area 2 sq. m.; pop. in 1914, 140 (35 adult males, 39 adult females, 66 children). The affairs of the island are conducted by a Council of 7 members, with a President, who acts also as Chief Magistrate, and a Vice-President, who is also Government Secretary, subject to the control of the High Commissioner for the Western Pacific. In religion the islanders (descendants of the mutineers of the Bounty) are 'Seventh Day Adventists.' The products of the island are sweet potatoes, beans, sugar cane, yams, taro, melons, pumpkins, oranges, bananas, pineapples, and arrowroot, which is prepared in limited quantities with antiquated appliances. Excellent coffee also grows, and its cultivation will probably extend. On the Island there are about 200 wild goats and a small stock of chickens. Phoenix Group between 2° 30' and 4° 30' S. lat., and 171° and 174° 30' W. long. Eight islands: Mary, Enderbury, Phoenix, Birney, Gardner, McKean, Hull, Sydney; area of group, 16 sq. m., pop. 59.

Gilbert and Ellice Islands Colony. The islands in this group were proclaimed as Protectorates in 1892 and annexed (at the request of the native governments) as Gilbert and Ellice Islands Colony, on November 10, 1915. The Colony includes several groups of islands. (1) The Union, or Tokelau Group, between 8° 30' and 11° S. lat., and 171° and 172° W. long. Five clusters of islets, the principal of which are Fakaofu or Bowditch, Nukunono or Duke of Clarence, Atafu or Duke of York; area of group, 7 sq. m.; pop. 1,000 natives approximately. (2) The Ellice Islands, between 5° 30' and 11° 20' S. lat., and 176° and 180° E. long. The principal islands are Funafuti, Nukufetau, Vaitupu, Nui (or Netherland), Niutao (or Lynx or Speiden), Nanumaga (or Hudson), Nanomea (or St Augustine), Nukulaelae (or Mitchell); area of group, 14 sq. m.; pop. (1911), 3,084 natives, 6 Europeans, and 1 Asiatic. (3) Fanning Island, 3° 50' N., 159° W.; area 15 sq. m., pop. 150, and Washington Island, 4° 40' N., 160° 20' W., area 6 sq. m., and Ocean Island. (4) Christmas Island, annexed to the Colony in November, 1919, Anatole, 90 miles in circumference, annexed to the Crown in 1888. A trading firm collects mother-of-pearl shells on its shores. There are no permanent inhabitants. (5) The Gilbert Islands on the equator. The principal islands are Butaritari, Makin, Tarawa, Abaian, Marakei, Maiana, Abemama, Kuria, Ananuka, Nonouti, Tapiteuqa, Beru, Nikunau, Onotoa, Tamana, Arorae, and Ocean Islands. Area, 166 sq. m.; estimated pop. (1911), 26,417 natives and 446 foreigners. Education is in the hands of various missions. Revenue of the Colony for the year ended June 30, 1920, 32,182*l.* (chief items: Customs, 9,387*l.*; native taxes, 14,213*l.*; licences, &c., 4,033*l.*; royalty on phosphate, 2,152*l.*); and expenditure, 31,349*l.* Principal crops: pandanus fruit and coconuts. The trade in 1919-20 amounted to 129,788*l.* for imports, and 213,042*l.* for exports (phosphates, 158,751*l.*, and copra, 54,010*l.*). The Colony is administered by the High Commissioner through a Resident Commissioner, whose headquarters are at Ocean Island.

Resident Commissioner.—H. R. McClure.

British Solomon Islands, about 8° S. and 160° W., are Guadalcanar, Malaita, Isabel, San Cristoval, New Georgia, Choiseul, Shortland, Mono (or Treasury), Vella Lavella, Ronongo, Gizo, Rendova, Russell, Florida, Rennell, and numerous small islands (the Lord Howe Group or Ontong Java, the Santa Cruz Islands, Tucopia and Mitre Islands, and the Duff, or Wilson Group, are also included in the Solomon Islands Protectorate). Area 11,000 sq. miles; European population (1919), 675; native population, about 150,000. Asiatics, 75. They are under British Protection. Revenue, 1920-21, 52,315*l.* expenditure, 41,662*l.* About 30,000 acres planted by white planters were under coconuts in March, 1914, and about 300 acres under rubber; sweet potatoes, pineapples, bananas are grown. Copra exported, 1919-20, 8,160 tons. The value of imports in 1919-20 was 181,162*l.*; and of exports, 212,542*l.* Foreign-going vessels entered, 1919-20, 12,435 tons; cleared, 12,387 tons. A paper currency was issued in 1917-18. Little gold is in circulation, and only 4,600*l.* Protectorate paper money. The chief medium of exchange is Commonwealth bank notes. There is a Resident Commissioner, whose headquarters are at Tulagi, a small island off the south coast of Florida. (For part of the Solomon Islands lately owned by Germany and now administered by Australia, see section on late German New Guinea, p. 432).

Resident Commissioner.—R. R. Kane, M.C.

Starbuck Island, 5° 30' S. lat., 155° W. long.; area 1 sq. m., uninhabited. Malden Island, 4° S. lat., 155° W. long.; area 35 sq. m., pop. 168. Jarvis Island, on the equator, 159° W., area 1½ sq. m., pop. 30. Palmyra, 6° N., 162° 30' W., area 1½ sq. m. Baker Islands, on the equator.

These islands are mostly of coral formation; most of them grow coconut trees, and some of them are valuable for their guano.

The High Commissioner of the Western Pacific, assisted by deputies, has jurisdiction, in accordance with an Order in Council of 1893, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the Pacific Islanders' Protection Acts of 1872 and 1875, and to settle disputes between British subjects living in these islands. The jurisdiction of the High Commissioner extends over all the Western Pacific not within the limits of Fiji, Queensland, or New South Wales, or the jurisdiction of any civilised Power, and includes the Southern Solomon Islands, and the various small groups in Melanesia.

The New Hebrides, however, are under the joint administration of English and French officials, as arranged by the Anglo-French Convention of February, 1906, ratified October, 1906. This convention guarantees the interests of French, British, and natives, respectively; fixes the conditions of land-holding in the Islands; and provides for the regulation of the recruitment of native labourers. Within the Islands Great Britain is represented by a Resident Commissioner, who reports to the High Commissioner for the Western Pacific. The larger islands of the group are Espiritu Santo, Mallicolo, Epi, Élaté or Sandwich, Erromanga, Tanna, Futuna or Erromang, and Aneityúm. Area, 5,500 square miles; population about 60,000. At the end of 1920 there were within the group 317 British and 1,300 French subjects. There are 3 French Catholic mission schools, and many Presbyterian. Settlers have acquired large areas within the islands; and though there are many disputes as to rightful possession, and much of the land is still uncleared, coconuts (for copra), maize, millet, coffee, cocoa, cotton, and bananas are grown, and a timber factory on Aneityúm prepares Kauri wood for export. The distillation and importation of spirits are prohibited. The revenue in 1920 amounted to 20,507*l.*, and the expenditure to 16,425*l.* An expenditure of 12,262*l.* on purely British services was also incurred. There are several French and British trading companies. Imports, 1920, 159,174*l.*; exports, 215,187*l.* The trade is mostly with Sydney and Nouméa (New Caledonia). The imports are provisions and foodstuffs, clothing, metal-work, and furniture; the exports are maize (1,200 tons in 1916), copra (4,100 tons), coffee (260 tons), cotton (1,700 tons), sandalwood (110 tons), cocoa (228 tons), and other island products. Vessels visit the islands frequently, including the repeated voyages of one British and two French companies, whose steamers provide for communication with Sydney, Nouméa, the Solomon Islands, and sometimes the Gilbert Islands.

PART THE SECOND

THE UNITED STATES

UNITED STATES.

(UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.)

Constitution and Government.

THE Declaration of Independence of the thirteen States of which the American Union then consisted was adopted by Congress July 4, 1776. On November 30, 1782, Great Britain acknowledged the independence of the United States, and on September 3, 1783, the treaty of peace was concluded.

The form of government of the United States is based on the Constitution of Sept. 17, 1787, to which ten amendments were added Dec. 15, 1791; an eleventh amendment, Jan. 8, 1798; a twelfth amendment, Sept. 25, 1804; a thirteenth amendment, Dec. 18, 1865 (slavery abolished); a fourteenth amendment, July 28, 1868; a fifteenth amendment, March 30, 1870 (equal rights for white and coloured citizens); a sixteenth amendment, February 25, 1913 (income tax authorised); a seventeenth amendment, May 31, 1913; an eighteenth amendment, January 29, 1919 (liquor prohibition amendment); and a nineteenth amendment, August 26, 1920 (woman suffrage).

By the Constitution, the government of the nation is entrusted to three separate authorities, the Executive, the Legislative, and the Judicial. The executive power is vested in a President, who holds his office during the term of four years, and is elected, together with a Vice-President chosen for the same term, in the mode prescribed as follows:—'Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress: but no senator or representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an elector.' The practice is that in every State the electors allotted to the State are chosen by direct vote of the citizens on a general ticket, on the system known in France as scrutin de liste. The Constitution enacts that 'the Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes, which day shall be the same throughout the United States'; and further, that 'no person except a natural-born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States'.

The quadrennial election is held every fourth (leap) year. Electors are chosen in the several States on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November; the electors meet and give their votes at their respective State capitals on the second Monday in January next following their appointment; and the votes of the electors of all the States are opened and counted in the presence of both Houses of Congress on the second Wednesday in February. The presidential term begins on March 4, in the year following leap years.

The President is commander-in-chief of the army and navy, and of the militia in the service of the Union. The Vice-President is ex-officio President of the Senate; and in the case of the death or resignation of the President, he becomes the President for the remainder of the term.

President of the United States.—Warren Gamaliel Harding, of Ohio, born near Blooming Grove, Morrow County, in Ohio, November 2, 1865; educated at Ohio Central College ; journalist since 1884 ; senator in the legislature of Ohio, 1899-1903 ; Lieutenant-Governor of Ohio, 1904-1906 ; defeated candidate for Governor, 1910 ; United States Senator from Ohio, 1915-1920.

Vice-President of the United States.—Calvin Coolidge, of Massachusetts, born at Plymouth, Vermont, July 4, 1872 ; graduated at Amherst College, 1895 ; admitted to the Bar, 1897 ; member of the State Senate, 1912-1915 ; President of the Senate, 1914 and 1915 ; Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts, 1916-1918 ; Governor, 1919 and 1920.

Since the adoption of the Constitution the offices of President and Vice-President have been occupied as follows :—

By a law which came into force Jan. 19, 1886, in case of removal, death, resignation, or inability of both the President and Vice-President, the Secretary of State, and after him, in the order of the establishment of their departments, other members of the Cabinet, shall act as President until the disability of the President is removed or a President shall be elected. On the death of a Vice-President the duties of the office shall fall to the President pro tempore of the Senate, who receives the salary of the Vice-President.

The administrative business of the nation is conducted by ten chief officers, or heads of departments, who form what is called the 'Cabinet.' They are chosen by the President, but must be confirmed by the Senate. Each of them presides over a separate department, and acts under the immediate authority of the President. They are, in the order prescribed by law for their succession to the Presidency, in case both the President and the Vice-President die or become unable to take office:—

1. Secretary of State.—Charles Evans Hughes, of New York, born in New York, 1862; graduated at Brown University, 1881; admitted to the Bar in New York, 1884; Lecturer and Professor of Law in Columbia and Cornell Universities, 1891-1900; Governor of New York, 1907-1910; Associate Justice Supreme Court of the United States, 1910-1916; defeated candidate for President, 1916. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

2. Secretary of the Treasury.—Andrew William Mellon, of Pennsylvania, born in Pennsylvania, 1852; educated at the University of Pittsburgh; prominent in the development of coal, coke, and iron industries, and in banking. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

3. Secretary of War.—John Wingate Weeks, of Massachusetts, born in New Hampshire, 1860; graduated at Annapolis Naval Academy, 1881; member of Congress., 1905-1913; Senator from Massachusetts, 1913-1919. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

4. Attorney-General.—Harry M. Daugherty, of Ohio, born in Ohio, 1860; university education; admitted to the Bar, 1881; member of the Ohio legislature, 1888–1893. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

5. Postmaster-General.—Will H. Hays, of Indiana, born in Indiana, 1879; Chairman (1920) of the Republican National Committee. Present appointment, March 4, 1921; retired March 4, 1922. For successor, see Additions and Corrections.

6. Secretary of the Navy.—Edwin Denby, of Michigan, born in Indiana, 1870; graduated at the University of Michigan Law School, 1896; admitted to the Bar, 1896; gunner's mate, U.S. Navy, in the Spanish War, 1898; member of the Michigan legislature, 1902–1903; member of Congress, 1905–1911; enlisted private U.S. Marine Corps, 1917; promoted sergeant and major, 1919. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

7. Secretary of the Interior.—Albert Bacon Fall, of New Mexico, born in Kentucky, 1861; Associate Justice and Attorney-General of New Mexico (Territory); United States Senator from New Mexico (State), 1912–1921. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

8. Secretary of Agriculture.—Henry Cantwell Wallace, of Iowa, born in Illinois, 1866; educated at Iowa State College; editor of papers devoted to agriculture; Chairman of war work, and member of the International Committee of the Y.M.C.A. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

9. Secretary of Commerce.—Herbert Clark Hoover, of California, born in Iowa, 1874; graduated civil engineer, Leland Stanford Jr. University, 1895; engaged in mine development in America, Australia, and China; Chairman (in London) of the American War Relief Committee, 1914–1915; American Food Administrator, 1917–1919; Administrator of Food Relief for Belgium, 1915–1918; Commander of the French Legion d'honneur. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

10. Secretary of Labour.—James John Davis, of Illinois, born in Wales, 1873; prominent officer in Labour organisations. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

The Ministry for Labour was created in 1913.

Each of the above ministers has an annual salary of 12,000 dollars, and holds office during the pleasure of the President.

The whole legislative power is vested by the Constitution in a Congress, consisting of a Senate and House of Representatives. The Senate consists of two members from each State, chosen by popular vote for six years. Senators must be not less than thirty years of age; must have been citizens of the United States for nine years; and be residents in the States for which they are chosen. Besides its legislative functions, the Senate is entrusted with the power of ratifying or rejecting all treaties made by the President with foreign Powers, a two-thirds majority of senators present being required for ratification. The Senate is also invested with the power of confirming or rejecting all appointments to office made by the President; and its members constitute a High Court of Impeachment. The judgment in the latter case extends only to removal from office and disqualification. The House of Representatives has the sole power of impeachment.

The House of Representatives is composed of members elected every second year by the vote of citizens who, according to the laws of their respective States, are qualified to vote for members of the State legislature. By amendments of the Constitution, disqualification on the ground of race, colour, or sex, is forbidden. Accordingly the electorate consists practically of all citizens of both sexes over 21 years of age. But the franchise is not universal. There are requirements of residence varying in the several States as to length from three months to two years; differing requirements as to registration; in some States the payment of taxes is necessary to qualify for the suffrage; in others the ability to read—in Massachusetts the ability to read English. Some of the Western States admit to the franchise unnaturalised persons who have formally declared their intention to become citizens. Several of the Southern States have adopted methods—which differ from one another—too complicated for explanation here, with the expressed avowed purpose of excluding the negroes from the franchise and yet avoiding the constitutional consequences of discriminating 'on account of race, colour, or previous condition of servitude.' Untaxed Indians are excluded from the franchise, in most States convicts, in some States duellists and fraudulent voters; in Massachusetts voters are required to be able to read English. In some Southern States they are required to give a reasonable explanation of what they read. Women by the Federal Constitution 19th amendment, 1920, have the vote and eligibility for both the Federal and the State Legislatures on the same terms as men.

The number of members of the House of Representatives to which each State is entitled is determined by the census taken every ten years. By the Apportionment Act consequent on the census of 1910 the number of representatives is 433.

In 1912 with the admission of Arizona and New Mexico it became 435, distributed as follows:—

Alabama . . . 10	Maryland . . . 6	Oregon . . . 3
Arizona . . . 1	Massachusetts . . 16	Pennsylvania . . 36
Arkansas . . . 7	Michigan . . . 13	Rhode Island . . 3

		Total . 435

On the basis of the census of 1910 there is one representative to every 210,415 inhabitants. Although the census of 1920 provides the numbers necessary to make a fresh apportionment of representatives, Congress has not yet (February, 1921), made such an apportionment. The House of Representatives has passed a Bill fixing the number at 435 representatives, as at present, and distributing them among the States, but the Senate has not acted upon the Bill.

The popular vote for President in 1920 was 26,661,606, or about one in four of the entire population.

According to the terms of the Constitution, representatives must not be less than twenty-five years of age, must have been citizens of the United States for seven years, and be residents in the States from which they are chosen. In addition to the representatives from the States, the House admits a 'delegate' from each organised Territory, who has the right to speak on any subject and to make motions, but not to vote. The delegates are elected in the same manner as the representatives.

Each of the two Houses of Congress is made by the Constitution the 'judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members'; and each of the Houses may, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.

The Congress of the United States has the power to propose alterations in the Constitution, by the 5th article of the same. The article orders that the Congress, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to the Constitution, or, on the application of the Legislatures of two-thirds of all the States, shall call a convention for proposing the amendments, which in either case shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or other mode of ratification may be proposed by Congress.

The salary of a senator, representative, or delegate in Congress is 7,500 dollars per annum, with an allowance, based on distance, for travelling expenses. The salary of the Speaker of the House of Representatives is 12,000 dollars per annum.

No senator or representative can, during the time for which he is elected, be appointed to any civil office under authority of the United States which shall have been created or the emoluments of which shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States can be a member of either House during his continuance in office. No religious test is required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States, or in any State.

The period usually termed 'a Congress' in legislative language continues for two years; as, for example, from noon, March 4, 1921, until noon, March 4, 1923, at which latter time the term of the representatives to the 67th Congress will expire, and the term of the new House of Representatives will begin. The term of one-third of the Senators expires at the same time.

The 67th Congress (1921-23), elected November, 1920, is constituted as follows: Senate, 59 Republicans, 37 Democrats; House of Representatives, 301 Republicans, 133 Democrats, 1 Socialist.

The National Government has authority in matters of general taxation, treaties and other dealings with foreign powers, army, navy, and (to a certain extent) militia, commerce, foreign and inter-State, postal service, coinage, weights and measures, and the trial and punishment of crime against the United States.

Slavery was abolished throughout the whole of the United States by the thirteenth Amendment of the Constitution, passed December 18, 1865. The vast change in the political and social organisation of the Republic made by this new fundamental law was completed by the fourteenth and fifteenth Amendments of the Constitution, passed in 1868 and 1870, which gave to the former slaves all the rights and privileges of citizenship.

STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

The Union comprises 13 original States, 7 States which were admitted without having been previously organised as Territories, and 28 States which had been Territories—48 States in all. Each State has its own constitution, which must be republican in form, and each constitution derives its authority, not from Congress, but from the people of the State. Admission of States into the Union is granted by special Acts of Congress, either (1) in the form of 'enabling Acts,' providing for the drafting and ratification of a State constitution by the people, in which case the Territory becomes a State as soon as the conditions are fulfilled, or (2) accepting a constitution already framed, and at once granting admission.

Each State is provided with a Legislature of two Houses, a Governor, and other executive officials, and a judicial system. Both Houses of the Legislature are elective, but the Senators (having larger electoral districts) are less numerous than the members of the House of Representatives, while in some States their terms are longer and, in a few, the Senate is only partially renewed at each election. Members of both Houses are paid at the same rate, which varies from 150 to 1,500 dollars per session, or from 1 to 8 dollars per day during session. The duties of the two Houses are similar, but in many States money bills must be introduced first in the House of Representatives. The Senate has to sit as a court for the trial of officials impeached by the other House, and besides, has often the power to confirm or reject appointments made by the Governor. In most of the States the sessions are biennial, the Governor having power to summon an extraordinary session, but not to dissolve or adjourn. State Legislatures are competent to deal with all matters not reserved for the Federal Government by the Federal constitution, or falling within restrictions imposed by the State constitutions. Among their powers are the determination of the qualifications for the right of suffrage, and the control of all elections to public office, including elections of members of Congress and electors of President and Vice-President; the criminal law, both in its enactment and in its execution, with unimportant exceptions, and the administration of prisons; the civil law, including all matters pertaining to the possession and transfer of, and succession to, property; marriage and divorce, and all other civil relations; the chartering and control of all manufacturing, trading, transportation, and other corporations, subject only to the right of Congress to regulate commerce passing from one State to another; the regulation of labour; education; charities; licensing, including regulation of the liquor traffic; fisheries, and game laws. The revenues of the States are derived chiefly from a direct tax upon property, in some cases both real and personal, in others on land and buildings only. The prohibition upon Congress to levy direct taxes save in proportion to population, contained originally in the national constitution, left this source of revenue to the States exclusively until 1913, when an amendment was adopted authorising the imposition of an income tax by Congress.

The Governor is chosen by direct vote of the people over the whole State. His term of office varies from 1 year to 4 years and his salary from 1,000 to 10,000 dollars. His duty is to see to the faithful administration of the law, and he has command of the military forces of the State. His power of appointment to State offices is usually unimportant. He may recommend measures, but does not present bills to the legislature. In some States he presents estimates. In all but two of the States the Governor has a veto upon legislation, which may, however, be overridden by the two houses, in some States by a simple majority, in others by a three-fifths or two-thirds majority.

The officials by whom the administration of State affairs is carried on (secretaries, treasurers, members of boards of commissioners, &c.) are usually chosen by the people at the General State elections for terms similar to those for which governors hold office, the party in power appointing its own adherents.

In the Territories of Hawaii and Alaska there is a local legislature, the form of which has been prescribed by the National Government. These bodies have powers similar to those of the States, but any of their acts may be modified or annulled by Congress. The Governor of a Territory is appointed for 4 years by the President to whom he makes an annual report. The President appoints also the Territorial secretaries and other officials, together with the Territorial judges. Porto Rico, although not designated as a 'territory' in the technical sense, is self-governing. Its government is organised on a system almost identical with that of the territories. The Philippine Islands are governed by a civil Governor and elected Upper and Lower Legislative Chambers.

The District of Columbia is the seat of the United States Government, provided by the State of Maryland for the purposes of government in 1791. It is co-extensive with the city of Washington, and embraces an area of 60 square miles. The district has no municipal legislative body, and its citizens have no right to vote either in national or municipal concerns. By an Act of Congress of 1878, its municipal government is administered by three commissioners, appointed by the President.

The unit of local government in the North, especially in the New England States, is the rural township, governed directly by the voters who assemble annually or oftener if necessary, and legislate in local affairs, levy taxes, make appropriations, and appoint and instruct the local officials (select men, clerk, school-committee, &c.). Where cities exist the township government is superseded by the city government. Townships are grouped to form counties, each with its commissioners and other paid officials who have charge of public buildings, lay out highways, grant licences, and estimate and apportion the taxation necessary for county purposes. In the South the counties are themselves the units, though subdivided for educational or other special purposes. Their officials have in general additional functions, as the care of the poor and the superintendence of schools. In the Middle and North-Western States the two systems of local government are mixed. In the West all the public land is already divided into townships six miles square.

Area and Population.

I. PROGRESS AND PRESENT CONDITION.

Population of the United States at each census from 1790. Residents of Hawaii, Alaska, Porto Rico, the Philippine Islands, Guam, Samoa, Virgin Islands, and Panama Canal zone, and persons in the military and naval service stationed abroad are not included in the figures of this table. The residents of Indian reservations are not included prior to 1890.

II. MOVEMENT OF POPULATION.

The registration area for births was established in 1915, and the birth rates are computed from returns for certain areas for which the registration of births is accepted by the Bureau of the Census as approximately complete. In 1919 these areas included Connecticut, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, and Wisconsin, California, Oregon, South Carolina, and the District of Columbia. The estimated population of this area was 61,474,111, or 58.6 per cent. of the total estimated population of the United States, and the number of births (exclusive of stillbirths) returned was 1,373,438, or 22.3 per 1,000 population.

Death rates are computed from returns for certain areas where local registration records are kept. In 1917 these areas included California, Colorado, Connecticut, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island,

South Carolina, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin, the District of Columbia, and the territory of Hawaii, and 43 cities in non-registration states. The estimated population for the registration area was 75,527,486, or 72.7 per cent. of the total estimated population of Continental United States and the territory of Hawaii; and the number of deaths returned for that year was 1,072,642 (including the deaths of 2,221 soldiers, sailors and marines after the beginning of the war), corresponding to a death rate of 14.2 per 1,000 population.

Marriage rate per 10,000, (for 1916) based on total population, 105. Divorce rate per 10,000, based on total population, 112.

It is estimated that, from the foundation of the Government up to 1820, about 250,000 alien passengers arrived.

The total number of immigrants from 1820 to 1920 (June 30) was 33,200,103. In the following statement, immigrants from Canada and Mexico are included in the total:—

Year	British Isles	Germany	Sweden, Norway, and Denmark	Austria-Hungary	Italy	Russia and Finland	France	Total Immigrants
1916	24,702	2,877	14,761	5,191	33,665	7,842	4,156	298,826
1917	16,141	1,857	13,771	1,258	34,596	12,716	3,187	205,403
1918	2,847	447	6,506	61	5,250	4,242	1,798	110,618

1920	48,062	1,001	13,444	352	95,145	1,751	8,945	430,001

Of the total number in 1920, 247,625 were males, and 182,376 were females.

The total number of immigrants from China between 1820 and 1920 was 348,219. In the year 1920 there were 2,148 Chinese immigrants; in the year 1919, 1,697. In 1912 there were 6,172 Japanese immigrants; in 1918, 10,168; in 1919, 10,056; and in 1920, 9,279.

Increase of native white, and foreign-born white population from 1850 to 1920, by decades:—

1920	81,108,161	12,721,749	18.6	13,712,754	367,209	2.8

Of the total increase of 13,733,354 in the population of the country between 1910 and 1920, whites contributed 13,088,958; negroes, 635,368; and other races, 14,028. The increase in the native population was 13,333,548, and that in the foreign-born 404,806.

The percentage of increase for the whites was 16.0, and for the negroes, 6.5. The native white population increased 18.6 per cent., and the foreign-born white, 2.8 per cent.

In 1920 whites constituted 89.7 per cent. of the total population, as compared with 88.9 per cent. in 1910. Native whites constituted 76.7 per cent. of the total in the later year and 74.4 in 1910, while foreign-born whites formed 13 per cent. of the total in 1920, as compared with 14.5 per cent. ten years earlier.

Instruction.

Each State of the Union has a system of free public schools established by law. The work of these is largely supplemented by private and parochial schools. In 1880 the percentage of illiterates in the population above ten years of age was 17 per cent., in 1890 13.3 per cent., in 1900 10.7 per cent., in 1910 7.7 per cent. The following statistics are for 1910.

	Total Population	Per cent. of total population	Population 10 years of age and over

The United States Government has set aside for elementary schools in each of the newer States, from two to four 'sections' (or square miles) in each township six miles square, the proceeds from the sale of which form the chief part of the permanent school funds of those States, the income alone being used for the support of the schools. This income is supplemented by State and local taxation, so that it constitutes about 3.3 per cent. of the total school revenue of all the States. In 1918 the amount expended on public schools of elementary and secondary grades was 644,595,145 dollars. In 1918 the 554 universities and colleges, including the 330 co-educational colleges, the 125 colleges for men only, and the 100 colleges for women only, had an income of 137,055,415 dollars from productive funds, from fees, and from United States Government, State, and Municipal appropriations.

In 1920 there were in the United States 2,398 daily newspapers, 14,008 weeklies, 487 semi-weeklies, 3,156 monthlies, 293 semi-monthlies, and 670 other periodicals. The total number of periodicals was in 1916, 23,024 (in 1918, 22,842); in 1870 the total number was 5,871; in 1900, 20,806; and in 1911, 22,806.

Justice and Crime.

The judicial system, like the executive and legislative systems, is dual. The Federal or National Government maintains courts for the trial of civil and criminal cases under national laws which include Admiralty, Patent, Banking, Bankruptcy, and other laws, both civil and criminal, of the United States; the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts includes cases between citizens of different States when the amount involved is in excess of 3,000 dollars; and of crimes against the laws of the United States. The State Courts have jurisdiction over all civil and criminal cases arising under State laws which do not conflict with the National Constitution and laws enacted by Congress. The State Courts also have jurisdiction of proceedings in probate and divorce.

In the separate States the lowest courts are those of Justices of the Peace but in many towns and cities of fairly substantial population, Police Judges have jurisdiction as Examining Magistrates in criminal matters and to hear and determine misdemeanours for violation of the municipal laws. In all matters, except in misdemeanours for violation of the municipal laws, the Justices of the Peace have also jurisdiction in such towns or cities as examining magistrates, as well as to hear and determine civil cases involving usually not more than 200 dollars, and also to hear, determine and sentence for certain petty crimes which are not heinous.

The States are divided into counties and the latter into towns, cities, villages and townships, and there is usually a circuit or district court for each county, in some of which there are one or more judges for the county, while in others the judge's jurisdiction embraces the courts of two or more counties and he goes from county to county to hold terms of court therein. These are the highest State Courts of original jurisdiction and they have grand and petit juries.

The highest court in each State is the Supreme or Appellate Court with a Chief Justice and Associate Justices and, in some States, commissioners who hear and determine cases under assignment of the Chief Justice and the Associate Justices. The Chief Justice and Associate Justices are usually elected by the people, but sometimes are appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the State Senate; they usually hold office for a term of years, but sometimes for life or during good behaviour. Their salaries range from 2,500 to 17,500 dollars.

The Judges of the United States Courts, which include the District Courts, the Circuit Courts of Appeal, and the Supreme Court of the United States, are appointed for life, but retire, with full pay, at the age of 70 years, if they so desire, and if they have served the full period of ten years.

The United States District Courts are the lowest of the Federal Courts. There are 81 of these, each State forming one or more districts. These Courts appoint Commissioners, who have the power of Examining Magistrates, but may not finally adjudge and determine, except in the Territory of Alaska, where they have jurisdiction equivalent to that of the Justices of the Peace and Probate Courts of the counties of the States. The United States District Courts try all criminal cases arising under the Laws of the United States, as indicated above, including capital offences, which are punishable by death when the crime is committed on land or territory owned by the Federal Government.

The Supreme Court consists of the Chief Justice and 8 Associate Justices, appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate. The United States is divided into 9 circuits, to each of which the Chief Justice or an Associate Justice is assigned, and such Chief Justice or Associate Justice, respectively, has primary jurisdiction of applications for peremptory orders in any such district respectively. The Supreme Court has jurisdiction of cases on appeal or in error from the inferior Courts, and has original jurisdiction in cases affecting foreign Ministers and those between the different States. The salary of the Chief Justice is 15,000 dollars, and that of each of the Associate Justices 14,500 dollars.

The District of Columbia, in which the seat of the National Government is located, has a Municipal Court, a Supreme Court, and a Court of Appeals. The Municipal Court has jurisdiction in matters equivalent to those of the Justices of the Peace and Police Magistrates of cities and towns; the Supreme Court is the highest Court of original jurisdiction, and is equivalent to the District or Circuit Courts of the States, and the District Courts of the United States. The Circuit Court of Appeals has jurisdiction in cases of appeal or in error from the Supreme Court of the District, and is equivalent to the Supreme Court or Court of Appeals of the various States, and the Circuit Courts of Appeals of the United States.

The territories and insular possessions have different judicial systems, generally following the State organizations, but having as well jurisdiction of cases under the Federal Laws, except Porto Rico, which has a United States District Court, separate and distinct from the Municipal, Circuit, and Territorial Supreme Courts.

Finance

The following table gives what the Treasury terms 'Ordinary receipts and expenditures.' 'Ordinary receipts' include receipts from customs, internal revenue, direct tax, public lands, and 'Miscellaneous,' but do not include receipts from loans, premiums, or Treasury notes, or revenues of Post-Office Department. 'Ordinary expenses' include disbursements for War, Navy, Indians, pensions, payments for interest, and 'Miscellaneous,' but do not include payments for premiums, principal of public debt, or disbursements for postal service paid from revenues thereof.

On June 10, 1921, the President approved An Act to provide a National Budget System and an independent Audit of Government Accounts. This provides for an annual budget system for the first time in the history of the United States.

On June 30, 1921, the cash balance in the Treasury, inclusive of reserve fund (152,979,025 dollars) and trust funds (919,643,386 dollars), after deducting current liabilities, amounted to 532,898,330 dollars.

National debt on the 1st of July at various periods from 1870 :—

Year	Capital of Debt	Year	Capital of Debt
	Dollars		Dollars
1870	2,480,672,427	1915	3,057,836,873
1880	2,120,415,370	1919	25,482,034,418
1900	2,136,961,092	1920	24,297,918,411
1910	2,652,665,838	1921	23,976,250,608

The gross debt was made up as follows :—Debt bearing no interest, 227,958,908 dollars ; matured debt on which interest has ceased, 10,939,620 dollars ; and interest-bearing debt (between 2 and 6 per cent) 23,976,250,608 dollars. The net debt—that is, what remains after deducting the cash in the Treasury—was 22,127,666,280 dollars on June 30, 1921.

In 1900 the true value of property was estimated at 88,517,366,775 dollars ; in 1904, at 107,104,192,410 dollars, and in 1912 at 187,739,071,090 dollars.

STATE FINANCE.

The revenues required for the administration of the separate States are derived from direct taxation, chiefly in the form of a tax on property real and personal ; and the greater part of such revenue is collected and expended by the local authorities, county, township, or school district.

For details see the separate States.

Defence.

I. ARMY.

The Army of the United States, as authorised under the Act of Congress of June 4, 1920, consists of the Regular Army, the National Guard while in the service of the United States, and the Organised Reserves, including the Officers' Reserve Corps and the Enlisted Reserve Corps.

Original enlistment in the Regular Army is for a period of one or three years at the option of the soldier, and re-enlistments are for a period of three years. Men who are in the service at the outbreak of war, or enlist during the war, remain therein until six months after its termination. Enlisted men are classified in seven grades. The pay of the lowest grade, or private, is 30 dollars per month (about 4 shillings a day at normal exchange rates), and that of the highest grade, or master sergeant, is 74 dollars per month. In addition enlisted men receive an increase of 10 per cent. of their base pay for each 5 years of service in the army, the total increase not to exceed 40 per cent. Certain enlisted men also receive additional pay as specialists, the maximum addition under this head being 25 dollars per month. Recent legislation grants temporary increases of pay to the higher grades of enlisted men, making their total pay, in some cases, as much as 142 dollars per month. These increases are to continue only until June 30, 1922.

The authorised strength of the Regular Army, including the Philippine Scouts, is as shown in the following table:—

	Officers	Enlisted men	Total
Infantry	4,201	58,401	62,602
Field Artillery	1,901	19,573	21,474
Coast Artillery	1,201	18,110	19,311

Warrant Officers	—	—	1,215
Finance Department	163	709	872
Total	16,607	157,882	175,704

The actual strength at the end of August, 1921, was 165,252.

The war organisation and establishments of the regular army on mobilisation are as follows:—

Army Corps	83,850	Infantry Brigade	6,408
Infantry Division	19,997	Artillery Brigade	3,400
Cavalry Division	7,463

At the end of August, 1921, the Regular Army troops stationed abroad were as follows:—

Philippines	18,017	Porto Rico	1,144
Germany	12,406	Alaska	1,058
Hawaii	13,759
Panama	7,590	Total	53,974

The Officers' Reserve Corps consists of officers of all grades, including general officers, organised into sections corresponding to the various branches of the Regular Army. It is at present composed almost exclusively of men who served as officers during the World War, and on August 31, 1921, had a strength of 66,886. These officers may be called for training not exceeding 15 days each year, and with their own consent may be ordered to active service at any time and for any period, provided that the authorised estimates of expenditure are not exceeded.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps, maintained for the purpose of keeping up the strength of the Officers' Reserve Corps, is organised into units at civil educational establishments. It is divided into a Senior Division, formed mainly at the universities, and a Junior Division, formed mainly at the secondary schools. In August, 1921, over 90,000 students were enrolled in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, divided about equally between senior and junior units. Students of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps before being commissioned in the Officers' Reserve Corps must graduate from Reserve Officers' Training Corps camps, to be maintained each summer for a period of six weeks.

The Enlisted Reserve Corps consists of men voluntarily enlisted therein who have qualifications making them eligible for enlistment in the Regular Army. Provided the authorised estimates of expenditure are not exceeded, enlisted reservists may be called up for training not exceeding fifteen days each year, and with their own consent may be ordered to active service at any time and for any period.

The National Guard,* or organised militia, is maintained by the several States with the aid of grants from the Federal Government. It is organised into the same arms of the service as the Regular Army, and is supplied by the Federal Government with uniforms, arms, and equipment of the same type as issued to the Regular Army. Service in the National Guard is purely voluntary. When Congress shall have authorised the use of the armed land forces of the United States for any purpose requiring the use of troops in excess of those of the Regular Army, the President may draft into the military service of the United States any or all members of the National Guard, to serve for the period of the war or emergency. The present authorised enlisted strength of the National Guard is about 424,000, but only about one-third of that number had been organised since the armistice to August, 1921. Enlistment is for three years. Minimum training required includes 48 drill periods of one and one half hours each year, in addition to fifteen days' training in encampments or manoeuvres. For these drill periods, pay for each drill attended is provided, under certain instructions, for officers and men at approximately one-thirtieth of the monthly pay for like grades in the Regular Army.

The Militia comprises all able-bodied male citizens and applicants for citizenship between the ages of 18 and 45. The total number of men registered during the war between these ages was 24,234,021. No arrangement is made during peace times for the organisation and training of the entire body of the Militia.

The President is Commander-in-Chief of both the Army and Navy. The Secretary of War controls the Army with the aid of an Assistant Secretary and a Chief of Staff. The former has supervision of the procurement of all military supplies, and is charged with the mobilisation of industrial establishments for wartime needs, while the latter is entrusted with the general supervision of the Army.

Although the infantry during the war were chiefly armed with a modified Enfield rifle, the Springfield rifle, of American design, remains the standard small arm. The 75 mm. field gun and 155 mm. howitzer have been adopted as the principal light mobile artillery weapons.

II. NAVY.

The administration of the American Navy is in the hands of the Secretary of the Navy, acting directly under the President; and the Secretary, now Mr. Edwin Denby, is solely responsible. The system has been developed by the institution of a Naval Department Council, regularly advising the Secretary. Its most important member is the Chief of Operations, who is in practice Chief of the Staff, and is concerned with every part of the work and operations of the Fleet: education, training, and the sufficiency of bases, supplies, &c. The other members of the Council are the Chief of the Department of the Personnel (under the name of Bureau of Navigation), and the Chiefs of the following Bureaux: Construction and Repair; Engineering; Aeronautics (newly constituted 1921-22); Supplies and Accounts; Yards and Docks; Ordnance; and Medicine and Surgery; also the Commandant of the Marine Corps and the Judge Advocate-General. The Chief of Operations is also President of the Naval General Board, which is an advisory body of senior officers, ex-officio and other, who are consulted on large questions of policy, including the shipbuilding programme.

The United States entered upon a course of great naval expansion in 1916-17, which led to a considerable increase in expenditure, due mainly to the adoption for the first time of a continuous shipbuilding programme. The period was of 3 years, the total cost was to be about 103,000,000*l.*, and in the first year 4 battleships, 4 battle-cruisers, 4 scouts, 30 submarines and 20 destroyers were to be laid down. A new programme came before Congress, designed, according to Mr. Daniels, then Secretary of the Navy (January 1, 1919), to make the United States Navy "second to none." This programme included 6 additional battleships, 2 additional battle-cruisers, 6 additional scouts, and over 100 destroyers, submarines, &c. The scheme was included in the Estimates of 1919-20, beginning with a comparatively small appropriation. The late Secretary repeatedly said that the United States must have the most powerful navy in the world. The limitation of armaments policy necessarily changes the whole scheme. The gross appropriations have recently been as follows: 1919-20, 130,768,292*l.* (excluding supplementary appropriations); 1920-21, 134,468,717*l.* (with a possible supplementary vote); 1921-22, 184,352,204*l.* (At the rate of exchange in August 1921 this last sum would represent about 112,000,000*l.* During these three years the amounts for naval new construction have been severally 30,412,003*l.*; 21,370,597*l.*; 18,493,784*l.*

The Government Naval Stations and construction and repairing establishments are at Portsmouth, N.H.; Boston, Mass.; Brooklyn, N.Y.; League Island, Pa.; Washington, D.C.; Norfolk, Va.; Pensacola, Fla.; Mare Island, Cal.; and Puget Sound; and naval stations are at Newport, R.I.; New London, Conn.; Charleston, S.C.; Port Royal, S.C.; Key West, Fla.; New Orleans, La.; Guantanamo, Cuba; Hawaii; Guam; Tutuila, Samoa; Cavite, P.I. A naval base is being established on San Francisco Bay.

The following is a classified statement of the strength of the United States Navy on December 31, 1919, 1920, and 1921. A new system of classification has come into force, the whole Fleet now being separated into the First Line and Second Line, the latter comprising the older ships which have little fighting value. Most of them are to be scrapped. Vessels unserviceable for war purposes, gunboats, yachts, tugs, training-ships, &c. not included :—

	Effective at end of
	1919	1920	1921
First Line Battleships	19	19	18
Second Line Battleships	20	19	17
Scout Cruisers, First Line	—	—	8
Armoured Cruisers	8	8	8
Other Cruisers	10	10	7
Monitors	6	6	6
Destroyers, First Line	150	250	284
Mining Destroyers	—	—	14
Submarines (94, First Line, 1921)	92	110	144

With reference to the foregoing summary, it may be noted that the total number of destroyers built, building, and provided for, was 318, and of submarines, 138, in addition to which would be 6 fleet submarines, but a number of these will not be constructed.

A table follows of the United States fleet of vessels built and building. It has been the practice to retain on the list for service a considerable number of old vessels of little value. The lists show the existing American Navy, with indications of how it is to be changed and reduced.

In the armament column, guns of lesser calibre than 3 inch are not given.

Ships in italics are not expected to be completed by the end of the present year.

The other vessels of the United States navy may be summarised. There are 6 old second line monitors; 2 air-craft carriers, Langley and Wright, completed; 4 mine-layers; 284 first line destroyers now completed; about 20 second line destroyers, some of which are being sold out; 14 new first line destroyer mine-layers; 94 first line submarines (O. R. and S. classes), 48 second line submarines (A. to H. classes; 6 fleet submarines building; about 50 small 'eagle' patrol vessels, and 100 (number being reduced) submarine-chaser patrol vessels; about 30 old gunboats, cruisers, and yachts rated as patrol vessels; 9 tenders for destroyers and 7 for submarines; 4 repair ships; 12 colliers and 13 oilers; and a large number of auxiliary mine-sweepers and tugs. The most modern destroyers are of over 1,200 tons and have a speed of 35 knots. The latest submarines (S class) have not been described. The O class displace 569 tons (surface), and 680 tons (submerged), with corresponding speeds of 14 knots and 11 knots; the R. class 495-598 tons, with 14-11 knots speed.

The public lands are divided into two great classes. The one class have a dollar and a quarter an acre designated as the minimum price, and the other two dollars and a half an acre, the latter being the alternate sections, reserved by the United States in land grants to railroads, &c. Titles to these lands may be acquired by location under the homestead laws; or, as to some classes, by purchase for cash. The homestead laws give the right to 160 acres of a-dollar-and-a-quarter lands to any citizen or applicant for citizenship who will actually settle upon and cultivate the land. The title is perfected by the issue of a patent after three years (law of June 6, 1912) of actual settlement. The only charges in the case of homestead entries are fees and commissions. On July 1, 1920, 553,101,888 acres were unappropriated and unreserved, of which 352,781,760 were in Alaska. During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1920, the area patented was 11,850,401 acres, of which 9,981,043 acres were patented under the homestead laws. It is provided by law that two sections, of 640 acres of land, in each 'township,' are reserved for common schools, so that the spread of education may go together with colonisation.

•The power of Congress over the public territory is exclusive and universal, except so far as restrained by stipulations in the original cessions.

The Reclamation Service (organised under the Reclamation Act of June 17, 1902) is engaged in the investigation, construction, and operation of irrigation works in the arid and semi-arid States of the West. Thirty projects have been authorised for construction or operation for irrigation of lands in Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming. These projects aggregate 3,200,000 acres, and the major works aid in serving an additional 1,000,000 acres under private canals that generally get stored water from the Government reservoirs. The funds for this work have come chiefly from the sale of public lands, and the money expended is returned to the fund by easy payments of settlers, usually in twenty annual instalments without interest, in accordance with the Reclamation Extension Act of August 13, 1914. The Service has built on the 30 projects over 12,000 miles of canals, ditches and drains, including 100,000 canal structures, and involving the excavation of 174,000,000 cubic yards of materials. In connection with this work there have been constructed 100 storage and diversion dams with an aggregate volume of 13,700,000 cubic yards, including the Arrowrock dam, the highest in the world (349 feet), the Elephant Butte dam on the Rio Grande, forming the largest artificial irrigation reservoir in the United States. The net construction cost to June 30, 1919, was 123,853,000 dollars.

In 1920, 4,917,305 farms were occupied by native whites, 581,054 by foreign-born whites and 950,007 by negroes and other non-whites. Of the occupants, 3,925,095 were owners, 68,525 managers, 480,027 cash tenants, 1,117,730 share tenants, 127,834 share-cash tenants and 729,115 not reporting.

The estimated gross value at farm of all crops and animal products was, in 1918, 22,480,000,000 dollars; in 1919, 24,982,000,000 dollars; and in 1920 (preliminary estimate), 22,000,000,000 dollars.

The areas and produce of the principal cereal crops for three years are shown in the subjoined tables.

The output of cane sugar in 1918-19 amounted to 568,800,000 pounds; and in 1919-20, 244,250,000 pounds; and the preliminary estimate for 1920-21 was 385,974,000 pounds. The beet sugar production in 1918-19 was 1,521,900,000 pounds; and in 1919-20 was 1,452,902,000 pounds, and the preliminary estimate for 1920-21 was 2,219,200,000 pounds.

Cotton acreage and production (excluding "linters"), for the last six years were:—

Years	Acres harvested	Bales (500 lbs. gross)	Years	Acres harvested	Bales (500 lbs. gross)
1915	31,412,000	11,192,000	1918	36,008,000	12,041,000

1917	33,841,000	11,302,000	1920	36,383,000	12,087,000

The estimated cotton production in 1920 was grown in the following States: Texas, 4,200,000 bales; South Carolina, 1,530,000; Georgia, 1,400,000; Oklahoma, 1,300,000; Arkansas, 1,160,000; Mississippi, 885,000; North Carolina, 840,000; Alabama, 660,000; Louisiana, 380,000; Tennessee, 310,000; California (including some grown in Mexico), 150,000; Arizona, 110,000; Missouri, 85,000; Virginia, 19,000; Florida, 18,000; all other, 15,000 bales.

In 1920 there were under tobacco 1,894,400 acres, which yielded 1,508,064,000 lbs. of tobacco. The chief tobacco-growing States were Kentucky, 550,000 acres, yielding 467,500,000 lbs.; North Carolina, 582,000 acres, yielding 384,120,000 lbs.; Virginia, 243,900 acres, yielding 177,390,000 lbs.; Tennessee, 117,000 acres, yielding 85,410,000 lbs.; South Carolina, 103,000 acres, yielding 66,950,000 lbs.; Wisconsin, 50,000 acres, yielding 62,400,000 lbs.; Ohio, 63,000 acres, yielding 60,480,000 lbs.; Pennsylvania, 40,000 acres, yielding 60,400,000 lbs.; Connecticut, 24,400 acres, yielding 36,112,000 lbs.; Maryland, 35,000 acres, yielding 30,625,000 lbs.; Indiana, 20,000 acres, yielding 18,000,000 lbs.; Georgia, 26,700 acres, yielding 16,020,000 lbs.; Massachusetts, 10,200 acres, yielding 15,810,000 lbs.; West Virginia, 13,000 acres, yielding 10,400,000 lbs.

The following table exhibits the number of farm animals in 1900 (June 1), 1910 (April 15), 1920 and 1921 (January 1):—

Live Stock	1900 (Census)	1910 (Census)	1920 (Estimate)	1921 (Estimate)
Horses . . .	18,267,020	19,833,113	20,785,000	20,183,000
Mules . . .	3,264,615	4,209,769	5,041,000	4,999,000

Sheep . . .	61,503,713	52,447,861	47,114,000	45,067,000
Swine . . .	62,868,041	58,185,676	71,727,000	68,649,000

The value of farm animals in the United States on January 1, 1921, was:—Cattle other than milch cows, 1,346,665,000 dollars; milch cows, 1,491,900,000 dollars; total value of all farm animals, 6,235,569,000 dollars.

In 1914, the factories used 8,431,426,426 lbs. of milk and 2,384,034,699 lbs. of cream, made 786,003,489 lbs. of butter, 377,513,409 lbs. of cheese, and 883,112,901 lbs. of condensed milk. The total value of the products manufactured was 370,688,431 dollars.

In 1901 the estimated production of wool was 302,502,328 pounds; in 1918, 298,870,000 pounds; in 1919, 313,638,000 pounds; and in 1920, 302,207,000 pounds.

The census reports for 1914 show that the value of canned vegetables was 84,413,667 dollars; of canned fruits, 24,897,174 dollars; of dried fruits, 34,771,912 dollars; of canned soups, 7,877,057 dollars; and of all other products, including preserves, pickles, sauces, cider, and vinegar produced in canning establishments, 6,055,892 dollars. The total value of canned products, in 1914, was 158,015,702 dollars.

II. FORESTS AND FORESTRY.

The United States forests cover 463,000,000 acres, or about one-fifth of the whole country. The original forests of the United States covered 822,000,000 acres, with a stand of not less than 5,200 billion feet of merchantable timber, of which about 2,215 billion board feet still remains. Forests publicly owned contain a little over 27 per cent. of all timber standing, forests privately owned contain at least 70 per cent., and States and municipalities together hold less than 3 per cent. of the total stand. There are five great forest regions—the northern, the southern, the central, the Rocky Mountain, and the Pacific. The standing timber in the United States is being cut and destroyed at the rate of 26 billion cubic feet per year, or more than four times as fast as new timber is growing.

The heavy demands for timber have been rapidly pushing the great centres of lumber industry toward the South and West. In consequence, the State of Washington now leads in lumber production, followed closely by Louisiana, Oregon, Mississippi, and Alabama.

The annual consumption, including waste in logging and in manufacture, is more than 24,000,000,000 cubic feet of wood. It includes over 110,000,000 cords of firewood, more than 40,000,000,000 board feet of lumber, 650,000,000 feet logs for veneer, 87,500,000 ties, nearly 1,296,000,000 staves, over 82,000,000 sets of heading, over 333,000,000 barrel hoops, over 4,550,000 cords of native pulpwood, 250,000,000 cubic feet of round mine timbers, 900,000,000 fence posts, 1,550,000 cords of wood for distillation, 1,250,000 cords for tanning extract, 200,000 cords for excelsior, and 4,250,000 telegraph and telephone poles, 8,350,000,000 shingles, and 2,375,000,000 lath.

The present net area of the 149 national forests, including those in Alaska and Porto Rico and lands acquired by purchase in the White Mountains and Southern Appalachian regions for national forest purposes, is 156,666,045 acres.

The operating costs of the national forests are about 4,000,000 dollars annually. For improvements (roads, trails, telephone lines, bridges, cabins, etc.) there is an annual appropriation of 400,000 dollars, plus ten per cent. of the receipts. In addition, the Federal Aid Roads Act in 1916, made available 1,000,000 dollars yearly for ten years, for roads and trails within or partly within the national forests. There was also included in the Post Office appropriation bill, which was approved February 28, 1919, an item of 3,000,000 dollars a year for three years for road work. The total regular appropriation for the support of the Forest Service, including its diversified investigative and co-operative work, for the fiscal year 1922 is 6,899,302 dollars, including 300,000 dollars for fire-fighting and 400,000 dollars for co-operative fire protection.

The receipts from the several sources for the last three fiscal years were as follows.

Fiscal Year	Timber	Grazing	Special Uses, &c.	All Sources
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
1919	1,540,100	2,609,170	209,145	4,358,414
1920	2,067,395	2,486,040	240,046	4,793,482
1921	1,775,901	485,079	243,955	2,504,935

The receipts for the fiscal year 1921 are much less than for prior years. The principal reason for this is that the Agricultural Appropriation Act, approved March 3, 1921, contained a provision that the payment of grazing fees, to the amount of approximately 1,900,000 dollars, for the calendar year 1921, might be paid on September 1.

Under the law 25 per cent. of the receipts is paid to the States in which the national forests are located, to be expended for roads and schools. This is in addition to the 10 per cent. of the receipts already mentioned as available for improvements, which is expended under the direction of the Secretary of Agriculture for road and trail building in national forests in co-operation with State authorities or otherwise.

The grazing receipts for 1921 were paid by the holders of 31,560 permits to graze 2,050,715 cattle, 78,871 horses, and 3,177 swine, and of 6,541 permits to graze 7,400,412 sheep and 43,190 goats.

The following table shows, by States, the total cut under sale of timber from the national forests in the fiscal year 1921:

State	Board Feet	State	Board Feet	State.	Board Feet
California . .	141,909,000	New Mexico .	24,716,000	Georgia . . .	2,850,000
Oregon . . .	130,312,000	South Dakota .	22,469,000	Florida . . .	1,515,000
Idaho	125,422,000	Arkansas . . .	13,991,000	Nevada . . .	1,232,000
Washington .	88,961,000	Utah	11,868,000	Michigan . . .	1,175,000
Montana . . .	63,445,000	North Carolina	9,993,000	West Virginia.	441,000
Arizona . . .	46,318,000	Minnesota . . .	9,528,000	Alabama . . .	15,000
Colorado . . .	45,549,000	Tennessee . . .	7,779,000
Wyoming . . .	34,845,000	Virginia	4,820,000	Total (1921).	833,164,000
Alaska	36,881,000	New Hampshire	3,785,000	Total (1920)	806,121,000

Besides Government protection of national forests against fire, co-operation in fire protection on the forested watersheds of navigable streams is extended to individual States, under provisions of Federal law. In order to obtain this co-operation, the State must provide by law for a system of forest-fire protection and must expend each year at least as much as the Federal Government in maintaining the system. The number of States now co-operating is 27. Altogether, 150 million acres are fairly well protected against forest fires under this law by the combined private, State, and Federal appropriations, at an average cost of less than two cents per acre.

The movement for national forestry has been followed by a widespread development of State forest activities. To-day, 33 States have forest departments, and practically all show recognition of the need for a State forest policy. Many States have established Forest Reserves which are administered independently. There are approximately 227 such State forests, with a total acreage of more than four million. Michigan has the greatest total number of forest reserves, but the acreage of the reserves in either Pennsylvania or New York exceeds that of any other State by a large margin.

III. MINING.

The following are the statistics of the metallic products of the United States in 1919 and 1920 (long tons, 2,240 lbs.; short tons, 2,000 lbs.). The values are: For iron, at point of production; for nickel and platinum, the values at New York City; for copper, lead and zinc, the values are those of sales; for quicksilver, the value at San Francisco.

^c Figures not yet available.

The total value of the mineral products in 1917 was 4,992,996,000 dollars; in 1918, 5,540,000 dollars.

The total production of coal from 1807, the date of the earliest record, to the close of 1920 was 13,981,797,100 short tons.

The precious metals are mined mainly in California, Colorado, Alaska, and Nevada for gold, and Montana, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, and Colorado for silver. The production of gold and silver in the United States from 1792 to 1920 was as follows :—

Year	Gold		Silver
	Quantity	Value	Quantity	Value
	Ozs. troy	Dollars	Ozs. troy	Dollars
1792-1847 . . .	1,187,170	24,537,000	309,500	404,500

Precious stones are found in considerable varieties in the United States the total production was valued in 1916 at 217,793 dollars, in 1917 at 131,012 dollars, in 1918 at 106,523 dollars, in 1919 at 111,763 dollars, and in 1920 at 107,500 dollars (estimated). The stones found are sapphires (in Montana), turquoise, tourmaline, garnets, beryl, agates, amethyst, ruby, topaz, &c.

IV. MANUFACTURES.

The following table shows the condition of manufacturing industries in the United States as reported at each census from 1880 to 1919. The censuses of 1905, 1910, 1915, and 1919, unlike the earlier censuses, did not include hand and neighbourhood industries, but were confined to establishments conducted under the factory system or producing goods for the general market. The statistics for each census cover the preceding calendar year :—

² Excluding hand and neighbourhood industries.

³ Includes officers, firm members, clerks and wage earners.

⁴ Includes salaried officials, clerks, &c., and wage earners; does not include proprietors and firm members.

The censuses of 1890, 1900, and 1905 cover Alaska; the census of 1910 covers Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico; the census of 1914 covers Continental United States.

The census of manufactures for 1909 and 1914 (not including Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico) were confined to establishments under the factory system, to the exclusion of neighbourhood industries and hand trades such as custom dress-making,* tailoring, carpentering, grist and saw-milling. The census results were as follows :—

¹ Includes, for 1919, 139 establishments, engaged primarily in other industries, which manufactured butter, cheese and similar commodities as subsidiary products.

In the combined textile industries for the census years 1914 and 1909, the number of producing spindles at work was :—

Year	Cotton	Silk	Woollen	Worsted	Total
1914	31,703,663	2,100,012	2,079,626	2,227,739	38,111,240
1909	28,178,862	1,777,962	2,156,824	1,752,806	33,866,054

The number of power-looms at work for each of the years was :—

—	Carpets and rugs	Cottons	Silk goods	Woollens	Worsted goods	Total
1914	9,821	677,920	85,058	28,866	40,581	848,246
1909	11,796	665,652	75,406	33,148	39,476	825,478

The value of the output of certain textile industries in 1919 and 1914 was :—

Nature of products	1919	1914
	Dollars	Dollars
Carpets and rugs	123,116,000	69,128,185
Cotton goods	2,195,568,000	701,300,933

In 1914 there were 353 blast furnaces in active plants with a daily capacity of 109,426 tons; in 1909, 388, with a daily capacity of 101,447 tons. In 1919 the output of pig-iron was 30,543,167 tons, value 785,960,400 dollars; in 1914 it was 23,269,731 tons, value 312,761,617 dollars. Bessemer, or modified Bessemer, steel plants in 1914 had 115 converters; in 1909, 112; total daily capacity of ingots or direct castings, double turn, in 1914, 53,106 tons; in 1909, 49,005 tons. Open-hearth steel plants in 1914 had 864 basic and acid furnaces; in 1909, 706; in 1904, 489; daily capacity of steel, in 1914, 93,650 tons; in 1909, 62,161 tons. The total value of products of the steel works and rolling mills in 1919 was 2,814,179,000 dollars; in 1914, 918,664,565 dollars. The value of output comprised :—

Products	1919	1914
	Dollars	Dollars
Steel rails	92,849,000	54,009,918
Iron and steel bars, &c.	393,079,000	110,480,914

Crucible ingots	64,300	72,765
Electric and miscellaneous ingots	287,700	15,207

The output of tin plates in 1919 was of the value of 165,846,100 dollars; in 1914, 60,258,024 dollars. The output of terne plates in 1919 was of the value of 11,351,500 dollars; in 1914, 6,012,321 dollars.

The output of sawed lumber in 1919 amounted to the value of 1,043,932,000 dollars; in 1914, to 684,479,859 dollars. The output of the leather, tanned, and curried industry, in 1919, was valued at 928,668,200 dollars; in 1914, at 367,201,705 dollars. The boot and shoe products manufactured in 1919 were valued at 1,152,016,000 dollars; in 1914, at 501,760,458 dollars; leather gloves and mittens, products, 1919, 46,841,633 dollars; in 1914, 21,614,109 dollars.

The value of the output of paper and wood-pulp products in 1919 was 789,548,000 dollars; in 1914, 332,147,175 dollars. The value of the output of printing and publishing industries including bookbinding and blank books, engraving steel and copper plate, lithographing, book and job music, and newspapers and periodicals, in 1919, were valued at 966,920,000 dollars; in 1914, 901,534,801 dollars.

The output of the chemical and allied industries for 1914 and 1919, comprised products to the values shown below :—

Products	1914	1919
	Dollars	Dollars
Chemicals (acids, &c.)	183,151,613	686,190,000
Cotton seed products (crude)	156,036,437	569,230,000

In the United States the values are fixed not according to average prices, but according to invoices or shipping papers, which the importers and exporters have to produce. For imports the invoices are signed by an American Consul; for exports the shipping papers are signed by the exporter or agents at the port of shipment. The quantities and values are determined by declarations.

The 'most favoured nation' treatment in commerce between Great Britain and the United States was agreed to for 4 years by the treaty of 1815, was extended for 10 years by the treaty of 1818, and indefinitely (subject to 12 months' notice) by that of 1827.

Internal Communications.

Railway history in the United States commenced in the year 1828. According to Poor's Railway Manual, the extent of railways in operation in 1830 was 23 miles; it rose to 52,922 miles in 1870; to 167,191 miles in 1890. According to the Interstate Commerce Commission's corresponding mileage, it was (year ended on June 30) in 1900, 198,964; in 1910, 249,992; in 1915, 264,378; in 1916 (year ended December 31), 263,381; in 1917, 266,059; in 1918, 264,233; in 1919, 263,707. The ordinary gauge is 4 ft. 8½ in.

The following table, based on the figures of the Interstate Commerce Commission, shows some railway statistics for 4 years :—

Year	Mileage	Miles of line		Railways having annual operating revenues above 1,000,000 dollars per 100 square miles of land area	per 10,000 of the population	Number of passengers	Weight of freights in tons
1916 ¹	251,046	8.54	25.21	1,039,012,308	2,316,088,894
1917 ¹	253,626	8.53	24.82	1,066,638,474	2,270,085,053
1918 ¹	253,529	8.53	24.47	1,044,997,806	2,306,824,940

The total capital invested in railways (stock, funded and unfunded debt) on December 31, 1919, was 20,950,175.145 dollars, and the total amount paid in dividends and interest was 739,331,391 dollars. The number of locomotives was 64,618.

The telegraphs of the United States are largely in the hands of the Western Union Telegraph Company, which had (December 31, 1920) 246,214 miles of line, 1,449,710 miles of wire, and 24,881 offices; the number of messages sent in 1912 (the latest available returns) was estimated at 90,000,000, not including messages sent over leased wires or under railroad contracts; the receipts in 1920, 121,473,685 dollars; expenses 108,134,041 dollars; and profits (corporate and Federal), 13,339,644 dollars.

The following table relates to the business of another important company; the figures of the table do not represent the operations of one company, but the aggregation of the figures of many companies which go to make up the telephone system which is generally known as the American Telephone and Telegraph Company ('Bell Telephone System') on January 1 of each year:—

There are (1921) 52,168 offices. The total expenditure of the department during the year 1920-1921 was 620,993,675 dollars; total receipts, 463,491,274 dollars; postal funds lost by burglary, fire, bad debts, &c., 15,289 dollars; excess of expenditure, 157,502,398 dollars, to which was added postal funds lost by burglary, fire, &c.

For the year ending June 30, 1921, mails were transported by rail on a length of 232,358 miles. The total number of employees in the railway mail service was 20,620, and the annual expenditure upon them was 42,236,991 dollars.

On June 30, 1921, the postal savings deposits amounted to 152,389,603 dollars, a loss of 4,886,419 dollars over the previous year.

Currency and Credit.

The monetary system is monometallic, and has been so since 1873, gold being the standard.

The Act of February 28, 1878, commonly known as the Bland-Allison Act, required the purchase by the Secretary of the Treasury of silver bullion at the market price of silver of not less than 2,000,000 dollars or more than 4,000,000 dollars worth per month, the same to be coined as fast as so purchased into silver dollars. 378,166,793 silver dollars were coined under the Bland-Allison Act. The Act of July 14, 1890, known as the Sherman Act, required the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces of fine silver monthly, which was paid for in Treasury notes issued as the silver was purchased. The total amount of silver purchased under this Act from August 13, 1890, to November 1, 1893, date of repeal of the purchasing clause, was 168,674,682 five ounces, costing 155,931,002 dollars, the coinage value of which was 218,084,438 in silver dollars. From the bullion purchased under the Act of July 14, 1890, there were coined to December 31, 1901, 149,710,163 silver dollars. Under the Act of March 3, 1891 for re-coining of trade dollars, 5,078,472 silver dollars were coined, making a total of 532,955,428 standard silver dollars coined from March 1, 1878, to December 31, 1901.

There is no Central National Bank in the United States, but the Federal Reserve Act, adopted on December 23, 1913, set up a Federal Reserve Bank in each of the 12 districts into which the United States is divided for the purpose. The 12 Federal Reserve Banks, their paid-in capital (50 per cent. of the subscribed capital), and their surplus funds on November 23, 1921, are shown as follows:—

Every National Bank is required to become a stockholder, to the extent of 6 per cent. of its capital and surplus (of which 50 per cent. must be paid in), in the Federal Reserve Bank of the district in which it is situated. State banks and Trust companies may also become member banks under certain conditions. On June 30, 1921, there were 8,150 National Banks members of the Federal Reserve System and 1,595 Member State Banks and Trust Companies giving a total of 9,745 member banks. The largest district was Chicago with 1,427 member banks, the smallest Boston with 438 members.

The Federal Reserve Banks, except for open market purchases, do no banking business with the public, but only with their member banks. They may issue Federal Reserve notes against gold or commercial paper with a minimum gold reserve of 40 per cent. The whole system is under the control of the Federal Reserve Board, composed of the Secretary of the Treasury and the Controller of the Currency, both ex-officio, together with five other appointed members.

The following is a statement of the combined resources and liabilities of the 12 Federal Reserve Banks on November 23, 1921, and November 26, 1920 :

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The dollar of 100 cents is of the par value of 49·32*d.*, or 4·8665 dollars to the pound sterling.

The monetary unit, in accordance with the monetary law of March 14, 1900, is the gold dollar of 25·8 grains (or 1·6718 gramme) ·900 fine. The Government undertakes to maintain parity between gold and silver coin, and a fund of 150,000,000 dollars in gold has been established for the repayment of United States notes and Treasury notes in gold at sight.

Gold coins in common use are 20, 10 and 5-dollar pieces called double eagles, and half-eagles. The eagle weighs 258 grains or 16·71818 grammes ·900 fine, and therefore contains 232·2 grains or 15·0464 grammes of fine gold.

The silver dollar weighs 412·5 grains or 26·730 grammes ·900 fine, and therefore contains 371·25 grains or 24·057 grammes of fine silver. Subsidiary silver coins contain 347·22 grains of fine silver per dollar.

British weights and measures are usually employed, but the old Winchester gallon and bushel are used instead of the new or imperial standards. They are :—

Wine Gallon = 0·83333 gallon.

Ale Gallon = 1·01695 „

Bushel = 0·9692 imperial bushel.

Instead of the British cwt. a Cental, of 100 pounds, issued; the short ton contains 2,000 lbs. ; the long ton, 2,240 lbs.

ALABAMA.

Constitution and Government.—The State of Alabama was admitted into the Union on December 14, 1819. The legislature consists of a Senate of 35 members and a House of Representatives of 106 members; all the legislators being elected for four years.

Governor.—Thomas E. Kilby, 1919–1923 (7,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—William P. Cobb.

The State is divided into 67 counties. The State Capital is Montgomery.

Area and Population.—Area 51,998 square miles, of which 719 square miles is water. Census population Jan. 1, 1920, 2,348,174.

Years	Population
	White	Coloured	• Total	Per Sq. Mile
1890	884,892	678,489	1,513,401	29.5
1900	1,001,390	827,807	1,828,697	35.7
1910	1,228,832	908,282	2,138,093	41.7
1920	1,447,032	901,142	2,348,174	45.8

By sex and race the population in 1920 was thus distributed :—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	733,039	439,779	76	211	1,178,105
Female	713,993	460,873	9	194	1,175,069
Total	1,447,032	900,652	85	405	2,348,174

The foreign-born numbered 17,662, of whom 2,427 were German, 1,665 English, 1,291 Irish, and 454 Scotch. The large cities (census population in 1920), Birmingham 178,270; Mobile, 60,777; Montgomery (capital), 43,464. Of the total population in 1920, 21.7 per cent. was urban.

Religion, Instruction and Charity.—Protestant churches are in the ascendancy in the State. The order of strength of different religious bodies is: Baptist, Methodist, Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, Disciples or Christians.

The 6,297 public elementary schools in 1920 had 2,042 male and 9,457 female teachers, and 534,093 enrolled pupils; the 196 public high schools had 1,008 teachers and 34,201 pupils. In 1920 the 7 public normal schools had 139 teachers and 2,402 pupils; the 10 agricultural schools 49 teachers and 1,412 enrolled pupils. Total expenditure on education (1920) 9,118,691 dollars (excluding private and denominational schools). For superior and professional education there are various institutions, the most important (1919) being (for men and both sexes):—

Founded	Institutions	Instructors	Students
1881	University of Alabama (State)	125	1,800
1859	Southern University, Greensboro' (M. E. So.)	12	103
1872	Alabama Polytechnic Institute	80	930
1909	Woman's College of Alabama	27	282
1880	Tuskegee Normal & Industrial Inst. (Coloured)	206	1,736

Within the State are 48 benevolent institutions (hospitals, homes, orphanages, &c.). On January 1, 1910, the number of paupers in almshouses was 739, being 34·6 per 100,000 of the population, and of prisoners in penal institutions, 3,687, being 172·4 per 100,000 of the population.

Finance.—The revenue is derived partly from occupation taxes, but mostly from taxes on property of all kinds, the assessment being made at 60 per cent. of the cash value for State and county purposes by the county assessors on the sworn statements of the taxpayers.

The receipts and disbursements in the year 1919, were:—

	Dollars
Balance in hand, Oct. 1, 1918	273,052
Receipts, 1918-19	12,686,004
Total, 1919	12,959,056
Disbursements, 1919	12,702,744
Balance, Sept. 30, 1919	256,312

The bonded debt of the State in 1919 amounted to 15,851,702 dollars. The assessed value of real property and of personal property in 1919 was 675,162,002 dollars.

According to the Council of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders, Alabama has a defaulted debt estimated at 30,000,000 dollars, but the State denies any liability for such estimated indebtedness, having legally adjudicated all claims. The amount so claimed is made up of unauthorised charges, for which no lawful warrant ever existed.

Production and Industry.—Alabama is largely an agricultural State; the number of farms in 1920 was 256,099; the farm area was 19,576,856 acres, of which 9,893,407 acres were improved land; the value of all farm property was 690,848,720 dollars. The chief crops are maize, 62,651,000 bushels in 1921; wheat, 210,000 bushels; oats, 6,776,000 bushels; potatoes, 2,400,000 bushels. Other crops are hay and vegetables. Tobacco, 1,500,000 pounds. Sugar-cane is largely grown and 8,760,000 gallons of syrup were manufactured. On January 1, 1921, the live-stock comprised 158,000 horses, 322,000 mules, 507,000 milch cows, 791,000 other cattle, 123,000 sheep, and 1,861,000 swine. In 1921 the area under cotton was 2,352,000 acres; the yield was 635,000 bales of cotton, valued at 50,800,000 dollars. The wool clip for 1920 yielded 364,000 pounds.

In 1914 there were 3,242 manufacturing establishments with capital amounting to 227,505,000 dollars, employing 78,717 wage-earners who earned 33,897,000 dollars, used raw material worth 107,411,000 dollars, and turned out products valued at 178,978,000 dollars. The pig-iron output amounted to 2,302,962 tons in 1920; 14,910,714 tons of coal were mined the same year; other large industries being railway-car construction, the manufacture of fertilisers, of cotton-seed oil and cake, and of turpentine and resin.

The chief port of Alabama is Mobile, through which there is a large trade. The exports comprise raw cotton (over 12,062,000 dollars annually), timber, lumber, &c. (6,800,000), cereals and flour (2,950,000), and lard (1,800,000), besides cattle, sheep and other animals, nuts, hops, fruit, flax-seed and oil, sugar, tobacco, &c. The port is the outlet not only for products of Alabama, but for those of neighbouring States. The imports at Mobile are mostly from Mexico and consist largely of bananas, other tropical fruits, and sisal grass. The harbour channel is deepened to 22½ ft.

The larger rivers in the State are navigable (except at low water) for several hundred miles; the Alabama river for 400 miles. In 1918 the railways within the State had a length of 5,412 miles, exclusive of 362 miles of electric railway.

In 1916 there were 16 savings banks in the State with 229,000 depositors who had to their credit 13,311,009 dollars, making an average of 58 dollars to each depositor.

ARIZONA.

Government.—Arizona was admitted into the Union as a Sovereign State on February 14, 1912. In the laws which the first State Legislature of Arizona enacted, the affairs of State government are placed under direct control of the people, who can at any time exercise the machinery of the Initiative, Referendum and the Recall. Among the amendments to the Constitution upon which the people voted in 1912 was one giving the State power to engage in industrial pursuits.

The State Senate consists of 19 members, and the House of Representatives 35. The State is represented in the National Congress by one member of the lower house and two Senators.

Governor.—Thomas E. Campbell, 1921–23 (6,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Ernest R. Hall.

The State capital is Phoenix (population in 1920, 29,063). Tucson had a population of 20,292 in 1920. The State is divided into 14 counties.

Area, Population and Instruction.—Area of 113,810 square miles of which 146 square miles is water. The Indian reservations had an area of 29,017 square miles in 1920, with a population of 42,400. According to the 1920 census, population is 333,903.

The population in four census years was:—

Years	Population	Per Sq. Mile	Years	Population	Per Sq. Mile
1890	88,243	0·8	1910	204,354	1·8
1900	122,931	1·1	1920	334,162	2·9

In 1920 the population by race and sex was:—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	159,345	5,859	1,370	17,028	183,602
Female	132,104	2,146	349	15,961	150,560
Total	291,449	8,005	1,719	32,989	334,162

In 1920, 78,099 were foreign born, of whom 2,882 were English, 60,325 Mexicans, 1,962 Canadians, and 1,516 Germans. Of the total population in 1920, 35·2 per cent. was urban.

The order of strength of religious bodies is: Roman Catholic, Latter-day Saints, Presbyterian, Methodist, Congregationalists.

School attendance is compulsory for children between the ages of 8 to 16 years during the entire school term. Instruction is free for children from 6 to 21 years of age. The enrolled pupils in 1919-20 in the grade and high schools was 73,546, and there were 2,175 teachers. Two public normal schools at Tempe and Flagstaff had 685 students in the year 1919-20. Total expenditure for elementary and high schools 1919-20 was 6,339,288 dollars. The State University of Arizona, at Tucson, founded in 1891, had 167 professors and 860 students in 1919-20. There is a State Agricultural School also at Tucson.

Charity.—The State has reform and industrial schools and 11 penal and benevolent institutions. On January 1, 1910, the number of paupers in almshouses was 271, being 132·6 per 100,000 of population, and of prisoners in penal institutions 645, being 315·6 per 100,000 of the population. There were 539 patients at the State Hospital for the Insane for the year ending June 30, 1920.

Finance.—Revenues are derived mainly from the general property tax levied on all property not specially exempted. The revenue and expenditure in the year ending June 30, 1920, were:—

	Dollars
Balance in hand July 1, 1919	74,326
Receipts, 1919-20	8,747,419
Total	8,821,745
Disbursements, 1919-20	6,847,091
Balance, June 30, 1920	1,974,654

The bonded debt, June 30, 1920, amounted to 2,991,925 dollars. The net value of taxable real and personal property amounted to 884,455,682 dollars for 1920.

Production and Industry.—Arizona, with its dry climate, is not well suited for agriculture, but along the watercourses and where irrigation is used the soil is productive. In Maricopa County 80,000 acres of long staple Egyptian cotton is under cultivation. The wide pasture-lands in this State are favourable for the rearing of cattle and sheep. Several large reservoirs for the storage of water have been and are being constructed by the United States and State Government, notably the Roosevelt dam, which supplies water to the rich Salt River Valley District, of which Phoenix is the principal city. The Government completed the Yuma project, by which the waters of the lower Colorado River are brought to the Arizona side under the river by means of an inverted siphon.

In 1920 Arizona contained 9,975 farms, of which 537 were Indian. There were 712,803 acres, of improved land. The most important crops were as follows:—Cotton, 40,000 bales; wheat, 840,000 bushels; corn, 1,015,000 bushels; barley, 928,000 bushels; hay, 450,000 tons; oats, 630,000 bushels; beans, 68,000 bushels; and potatoes, 460,000 bushels. On January 1, 1921, there were 120,000 horses, 12,000 mules, 45,000 milk cows, and 1,100,000 other cattle, 1,200,000 sheep, and 40,000 swine. The wool clip in 1920 amounted to 5,970,000 pounds of wool. The national forests in the State have an area (1920) of 11,367,632 acres, and just recently the Grand Canyon has been made a National Park.

The mining industries of the State are important. The output of gold, silver, copper, lead, and zinc from mines in Arizona in 1919 had a total value or about 108,707,000 dollars. The production of gold was 4,231,000 dollars. The mine output of silver in 1919 was 4,927,000 ounces, and the valuation 5,479,800 dollars. The mine output of copper 522,000,000 and the valuation was 98,296,000 dollars. The mine production of lead amounted to 10,100,000 pounds, and the value of it was 575,000 dollars. The output of recoverable zinc was about 1,717,000 in 1919, and the total valuation 125,000 dollars.

The capital invested in manufacturing industries in the State in 1914 amounted to 40,300,000 dollars; the raw material used cost 39,283,000 dollars, and the output was valued at 64,090,000 dollars. By far the most important of the industries is copper smelting and refining, for which there were 8 establishments with a capital of 21,487,000 dollars, employing an average number of 3,129 wage-earners, using material costing 12,486,782 dollars, and giving an output valued at 29,242,000 dollars. Other industries are car construction and repair by railway companies showing an output worth 2,394,000 dollars; lumber and timber working, and flour and grist milling with an output of 1,082,000 dollars.

The lower course of the Colorado river is the only navigable waterway of the State. In 1920 there were 2,477 miles of railroad, the principal lines being the Southern Pacific, the Santa Fé Pacific, and the Santa Fé Prescott and Phoenix. There are 57 miles of electric railway.

In 1920 there were 3 savings banks in the State with 10,000 depositors, who had to their credit 3,915,524 dollars.

ARKANSAS.

Government.—The State was admitted into the Union on June 15, 1836. The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 35 members, elected for four years, partially renewed every two years, and a House of Representatives of 100 members elected for two years. The Sessions are biennial and limited to 60 days unless extended by a two-thirds vote of each House. Senators and Representatives must be citizens, the former 25 years of age and the latter 21, and both must have resided in the State two years, and in the county or district one year next before election. The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and seven Representatives.

Governor.—Thomas C. McRae (1921-23) (4,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—T. J. Terral.

The State is divided into 75 counties. The State Capital is Little Rock.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area 53,335 square miles (810 square miles being water). Census population on Jan. 1, 1920, 1,752,204.

Years	Population

Balance, March 31, 1919	1,149,501

The State debt on June 30, 1919, amounted to 2,266,410 dollars, consisting of 3 per cent. interest-bearing bonds. The assessed value of real and personal property (1919) was 553,485,082 dollars. According to the Council of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders, the State has a defaulted debt estimated at about 8,700,000 dollars.

Production and Industry.—Arkansas is an agricultural State. In 1920 the total farm area was 17,566,353 acres, of which 9,238,893 was improved land. The value of all farm property was 924,895,483 dollars. In the north maize (60,148,000 bushels in 1921), wheat (958,000 bushels), oats, potatoes, hay and forage crops are grown; in the south, cotton and tobacco. For 1921 the cotton area was 2,572,000 acres, and the yield 860,000 bales, valued at 69,230,000 dollars. In the north-west, fruits, especially apples and peaches, are grown. The cultivation of roses (for perfumes) is pursued locally. Live stock on January 1, 1921, comprised 258,000 horses, 327,000 mules, 429,000 milch cows, 643,000 other cattle, 191,000 sheep, and 1,459,000 swine. The wool clip in 1920 yielded 443,000 pounds of wool. The national forests in Arkansas in 1920 had an area of 915,649 acres.

The State has a large coal area, 2,062,500 tons were mined in 1920. The State also produces manganese ores and lead, whetstones (from nevaculite), bauxite (for aluminium); the phosphate rock deposits are little worked. The quarries yield limestone, sandstone, granite, and slate, besides asphalt, mineral waters, and natural gas.

Of the industries the cutting and working of timber is the most important (1,697 establishments), the State having a forest area of 25,600,000 acres. Arkansas, according to the census of manufactures of 1914, has 2,604 manufacturing establishments employing 3,544 salaried officials, and 41,979 wage-earners. Their united capital amounted to 77,162,000 dollars, the cost of materials used in a year to 44,907,000 dollars, and the value of output in a year 83,941,000 dollars. Statistics of 6 leading industries are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, p. 490.

The foreign trade of the State is carried on through the port of New Orleans, cotton and lumber transported down the Mississippi being the chief exports. In 1919 there were in the State 5,219 miles of railway and (in 1920) 129 miles of electric railway.

CALIFORNIA.

Constitution and Government.—California, though unexplored and practically unknown to Europeans, was from its discovery down to 1846 politically associated with Mexico. On July 5, 1846, the American flag was hoisted at Monterey, and a proclamation was issued declaring California to be a portion of the United States, and on February 2, 1849, by the treaty of Guadalupe, the territory was formally ceded by Mexico to the United States, and was admitted to the Union September 9, 1850.

The State Legislature is composed of the Senate of forty members, elected for terms of four years—half the number being elected each two years—and the Assembly, eighty members, elected for two years. Regular sessions are held ~~once~~ in two years.

The qualifications for eligibility to the Senate or Assembly are citizenship or the State for three years and residence in the district for one year.

California is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 11 Representatives.

Governor.—William D. Stephens, 1919-23 (10,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—F. C. Jordan.

California is divided into fifty-eight counties, one of which—San Francisco—has a combined county and city government. In each county government the legislative authority is vested in a board of five members elected from districts. The seat of the State Government is at Sacramento.

Area and Population.—Area 158,297 square miles (2,645 square miles being water). Population on Jan. 1, 1920, 3,426,861.

The population at the date of each of the Federal censuses was as follows :

Years	White ¹	Coloured	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1870	555,975	4,272	560,247	3·6
1900	1,474,008	11,045	1,485,053	9·5
1910	2,355,904	21,645	2,377,549	15·3
1920	3,388,098	38,763	3,426,861	22·0

In 1920 the population by sex and race was :—

	White	Negro *	Chinese	Japanese	Indian
Male	1,710,223	19,837	24,230	45,414	9,085
Female	1,554,448	18,926	4,582	28,538	8,275
Total	3,264,711	38,763	28,812	71,952	17,360

Of the total population in 1920, 1,813,591 were males, and 1,613,270 were females; and 68.0 per cent. was urban.

There are about 25 Indian reservations in the State, their total area (1920) being 677 square miles, with a population of 16,241.

Three-fourths of the population of California are of American birth. Of the 681,662 persons of foreign birth in 1920, 67,180 were German, 45,308 Irish, 58,572 English, 16,597 Scotch, 59,556 Canadian, 20,387 French, 88,502 Italian, and 31,925 Swedish, with a sprinkling of Portuguese, Swiss, Russians, and Armenians.

According to the census of 1920 the population of the larger cities was: San Francisco, 506,676; Los Angeles, 576,673; Oakland, 216,861; San Diego, 74,683; Sacramento, 65,857; Berkeley, 55,886; Fresno, 45,086; Pasadena, 45,354. In 1920 the death-rate was 13.5 per 1,000; the birth-rate, 19.3; and the marriage-rate, 13.4.

Religion and Instruction.—In the matter of religious association all churches are represented in California, the Roman Catholic being much stronger than any other single church; next are Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists, and Congregationalists.

Education is compulsory for children 8-16 years of age for at least five months in the year. In the 3,473 State elementary schools there were, in 1919-20, 500,357 enrolled pupils (257,569 boys and 242,788 girls), with 15,319 teachers. In 1919-20, the 318 public high schools had 5,026 teachers and 162,650 pupils (77,283 boys and 85,367 girls); 7 State normal schools had 205 teachers and 2,198 students. In 1919-20, 32,944 pupils (16,441 boys and 16,503 girls), with 756 teachers, were enrolled in the public kindergartens. The total expenditure for education was (1920) 54,223,090 dollars.

There are in California two great universities—the State University, or University of California, at Berkeley (established in 1868) and Leland Stanford Junior University. The former comprises the colleges of letters and science, commerce, mechanics, mining, civil engineering, chemistry and agriculture, as well as the Lick Astronomical Department. In 1921 the University had at Berkeley 486 professors and teachers with 9,609 students. Leland Stanford Junior University near Palo Alto was chartered in 1885, and opened its doors to students in 1891. An endowment, now amounting to about 22,000,000 dollars in interest-bearing funds, besides large landed estates, was given by Mr. and Mrs. Leland Stanford in memory of their son. In 1921 it had 347 professors and teachers and 2,711 students. The University of Southern California at Los Angeles (Meth. Episcopal) had 113 instructors and 2,187 students (1921). There are several other prosperous colleges in the State.

California is the only State in the American Union having a comprehensive library system, at the head of which stands the State Library at Sacramento with about 275,000 volumes (including the Sutro Branch at San Francisco).

Charity.—In the State there are 153 benevolent institutions. On June 30, 1918, the number of paupers in almshouses was 6,904. On June 30, 1921, there were 2,905 prisoners in the state penal institutions.

Finance, Defence.—For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, the receipts and disbursements of all State funds was as follows:—

	Dollars
Cash on hand, July 1, 1920	9,485,886
Receipts, 1920-21	68,527,870
Total	78,013,756
Disbursements, 1920-21	65,598,516
Cash in hand, June 30, 1921	12,415,240

The assessed value of taxable property on June 30, 1921, was 4,929,479,508 dollars. The net bonded debt amounted to 54,806,500 dollars on June 30, 1921.

The Mare Island Navy Yard, the most important of the Federal naval establishments on the Pacific coast, is situated in California about 25 miles north of San Francisco, and there are United States Army posts at San Francisco, Benicia, Monterey, and San Diego.

Agriculture and Forestry.—At the date of the Federal census (1920) there were 117,670 farms, comprising 29,365,667 acres, of which 11,878,339 acres were improved. The value of farms was 3,431,021,861 dollars, and the value of the annual product 587,600,591 dollars. Total forest area (1920) is 18,391,161 acres. California is the only State in which the best European varieties of grapes are successfully cultivated, and this gives great importance to the wine product, but owing to the prohibition law the latter must soon be discontinued. Extending seven hundred miles from north to south, and being intersected by several ranges of mountains, California has almost every variety of climate, from the very wet to the very dry, and from the temperate to the semi-tropical. Irrigation is extensively practised, being necessary in the more arid districts and beneficial in a larger area.

The wheat industry has declined in relative importance, while horticulture has made rapid strides. The cereal crops in 1921 were maize, 4,060,000 bushels; wheat, 8,355,000 bushels; oats, 3,780,000 bushels; barley, 29,700,000 bushels. Apples, pears, peaches, figs, apricots, plums, grapes, oranges, lemons, and other fruits are grown in vast quantities. Olives, honey, hops, walnuts, and almonds are also largely produced.

On January 1, 1921, the farm animals were 380,000 horses, 57,000 mules, 577,000 milch cows, 1,683,000 other cattle, 2,950,000 sheep, and 930,000 swine. The wool clip (1920) produced 13,165,000 pounds of wool. There are 9 ostrich farms in the State.

Mining, Manufactures, etc.—Gold was first discovered in 1848. In 1920 the gold output was valued at 14,311,043 dollars, and the silver output valued at 1,244,464 dollars. Other mineral products were (1920) copper, 12,947,299 pounds (2,382,303 dollars), and 4,903,738 pounds of lead (392,300 dollars); quicksilver, 10,287 flasks (of 75 pounds net), valued at 775,527 dollars. California produces more petroleum than any other State of the Union, with the exception of Oklahoma; in 1920 the output reached 103,377,361 barrels, valued at 178,394,937 dollars. Granite and stone, &c., were valued at 7,299,289 dollars; Portland cement (6,709,160 barrels), valued at 14,962,945 dollars. From California comes all of the borax produced in the United States. The output in 1920 was 127,065 short tons, valued at 2,794,205 dollars. The State also produced pyrite, 146,001 short tons (530,581 dollars); salt, 230,538 tons (972,648 dollars); mineral waters, 2,391,791 gallons (421,643 dollars); magnesite, 83,695 short tons, value 1,033,491 dollars. Bismuth, asbestos, manganese, lithium, tungsten, chromium, infusorial earth, ochre, and a great variety of precious stones are found in the State. In 1920 there were 50 different mineral substances, exclusive of a segregation of the various stones grouped under Gems. The value of all the minerals produced in 1919 was 196,473,560 dollars; in 1920, 242,099,667 dollars.

In California in 1914 there were 10,057 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 736,105,000 dollars, employing 26,637 salaried officials and 139,481 wage-earners, using materials costing 447,475,000 dollars, and giving an output worth 712,801,000 dollars. Statistics of the more important industries are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, p. 494.

The coast and river fisheries are important, giving employment to 5,000 persons. A year's catch is thirty to forty million pounds, worth about 4,000,000 dollars. Salmon is the most valuable variety of fish taken, but as many as one hundred and thirty different varieties of fish are found in the markets of San Francisco.

Commerce and Transportation.—The chief commercial port of California is San Francisco, through which in 1920 the imports amounted to the value of 211,928,222 dollars, and the exports to 225,827,836 dollars.

Railways have been built in California to the extent of 8,355 miles (1919) for steam roads and about 3,322 miles (1920) for electric railways. San Francisco is now the terminus of three trans-continental railways.

In September, 1921, there were 103 savings banks in the State, and 236 savings departments of departmental banks with 1,590,346 depositors who had to their credit 898,871,966 dollars, being an average of 565 dollars to each depositor.

British Consul-General at San Francisco.—H. B. Livingston.

There are British Vice-Consuls at San Francisco, Los Angeles, and San Diego.

Total	924,103	11,318	2,825	1,383	939,629

In 1920 the foreign-born population numbered 116,954, of whom 9,534 were English, 3,357 Scottish, 6,191 Irish, 11,992 German, 10,112 Swedish, 7,621 Canadian. Denver, the capital, had a population in 1920 of 256,491, Pueblo, 43,050; Colorado Springs, 30,105; Trinidad, 10,906; Boulder, 11,006. Of the total population in 1920, 48.2 per cent. was urban.

Religion and Instruction.—Roman Catholics outnumber other denominations, Methodists and Presbyterians ranking next, then Baptists and Congregationalists.

The public schools are under the general supervision of the Superintendent of Public Instruction. In 1921 the 2,938 public elementary and the 262 high schools had 8,647 teachers with 224,289 enrolled pupils. Public school teachers are trained at the State Teachers' College, which in 1921-22 had 100 teachers and 2,000 students. Another State normal school has been established at Gunnison, having (in 1919) 38 teachers and 991 students. Public School expenditure, ending June 30, 1921, 17,825,090 dollars. For superior education there are several colleges. Colorado College, founded in 1874 at Colorado Springs, had 72 professors and 595 students in 1918-19; the University of Colorado, opened in 1877 at Boulder, had 249 professors and 2,172 students. The University of Denver, founded by Territorial Charter in 1864, had 150 professors and teachers and 2,800 students in 1921; the Chamberlin Observatory in University Park stands at an altitude of 5,280 feet above sea-level. There are also an Agricultural College, at Fort Collins, with 72 teachers and 855 students in the main College, and 958 in Secondary Institutions; and a School of Mines with 39 teachers and 458 students in 1921.

On January 1, 1916, the number of paupers in almshouses was 473, being 49·8 per 100,000 of the population, and of prisoners in penal institutions 1,356, being 142·9 per 100,000 of the population.

Finance, Defence.—The revenue and expenditure for the 2 years ending December 1, 1920, was as follows:—

	Dollars
On hand December 1, 1918	8,090,804

CONNECTICUT.

Government.—Connecticut has been an organised commonwealth since 1637. In 1639 a written constitution was adopted which, it is claimed, was the first in the history of the world formed by a social compact. This was confirmed by a charter from Charles II. in 1662, and replaced in 1818 by a State Constitution, framed that year by a constitutional convention. Connecticut was one of the thirteen original States of the Union.

The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. All citizens (with necessary exceptions) 21 years of age, resident in the State for a year and in the town for six months preceding the election, have the right of suffrage provided that they can read the Constitution in English. The Senate at present consists of 35 members, the House of Representatives of 258 members. Members of each House are elected for the term of two years, and each receives 300 dollars for that term and one mileage each way for each session, at the rate of 25 cents per mile. Legislative sessions are biennial.

Governor.—Everett J. Lake, 1921–23 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary.—Donald J. Warner.

The State is represented in the Federal Congress by two Senators and five Representatives. For local administration the State is divided into eight counties which are sub-divided into towns within which are cities and boroughs. The State Capital is Hartford.

Area, Population, and Instruction.—Area 5,004 square miles, of which 145 square miles is water area. Census population on Jan. 1, 1920, 1,380,631.

DELAWARE.

Government.—Delaware is one of the thirteen original States of the Union. The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 17 members elected for four years and a House of Representatives of 35 members elected for two years. Senators must be 27 years of age, and Representatives 24; both must be citizens who have resided three years in the State, and one year in the electoral district immediately preceding the election.

With necessary exceptions all citizens, registered as voters, who have resided in the State one year, in the county three months, and in the district 30 days next preceding the election have the right to vote. But no person who shall attain the age of 21 after the year 1900 has the right to vote unless he is able to read English and to write his name; United States soldiers and sailors merely stationed in the State are not considered resident.

Delaware is represented in Congress by two Senators and one Representative.

Governor.—William D. Denney, 1921–25. (4,000 dollars.)

Secretary of State.—Alden R. Benson.

The State capital is Dover (population 3,720 in 1915). Delaware is divided into three counties.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area 2,370 square miles, of which 405 square miles is water. Census population on Jan. 1, 1920, 223,003.

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per sq. mile
1800	49,852	14,421	64,273	32.7
1900	154,038	30,697	184,735	94.0
1910	171,141	31,181	202,322	103.0
1920	192,662	30,341	223,003	118.5

In 1920 the population by sex and colour was :—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . . .	93,049	15,655	49	2	113,755
Female . . .	94,566	14,680	2	—	109,248
Total . . .	192,615	30,335	51	2	223,003

The foreign-born (1920) numbered 19,810, of whom 2,895 were Irish, 1,682 German, 1,497 English, and 4,136 Italian.

The largest city in the State is Wilmington, with a census population of 110,168 in 1920. Other towns (1915), Dover, 3,720; Milford, 2,603. Of the total population in 1920, 54·2 per cent. was urban.

The most numerous denominations of the State are, Methodist, Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, Episcopalian, and Baptist.

The State has free public schools and compulsory school attendance, separate schools being provided for white and coloured children. In 1919-20, the 446 public schools had 961 teachers and 37,135 enrolled pupils. The 26 high schools had 173 teachers and 3,045 pupils. Total expenditure for school purposes, 1,738,884 dollars. The State has two normal schools, agricultural and mechanical colleges and at Newark, Delaware College, founded in 1834, having, in 1919, 52 professors and 296 students. A college for coloured students at Dover has 6 professors and 136 students.

Charity.—The State has a hospital and an industrial school for girls. It grants assistance to indigent soldiers and sailors, and to widows with children of school age, and contributes to institutions for the support and training of the deaf, dumb, and blind outside the State. An institution for the care of the feeble-minded is being erected in the State.

In each county the sole charge of the poor and of almshouses is in the hands of trustees of the poor. They appoint the overseer of their almshouse, who must provide employment for the inmates. County liability for support of paupers is determined by settlement, which is obtained in various ways (by the applicant having held public office for a year, having paid poor taxes for any two years, having paid a rent of at least 50 dollars for a year, &c.). Parents and grand-parents are liable for support of pauper children, and vice versa. There is a penalty for bringing paupers into a county.

Finance.—For the year ending January 13, 1921, the receipts and disbursements of the State General Fund were:—

	Dollars
Cash in hand, January 12, 1920	207,616
Receipts 1920-21	885,130

Cash in hand January 13, 1921	99,856

On January 13, 1920, the outstanding debt amounted to 2,066,785 dollars.

Production and Industry.—Delaware is mainly an agricultural State, 85 per cent. of the land being in farms, which in 1920 numbered 10,140. and had a total area of 944,511 acres, 653,052 acres being improved land. The total value of all farm property was 80,137,614 dollars. The chief crops are maize and wheat, but fruit and tomato-growing are important. About 16,000 acres are devoted to tomatoes. Delaware stands second in the States of the Union in the quantity of tomatoes packed. On January 1, 1921, the State had 83,000 horses, 6,000 mules, 8,000 sheep, 68,000 pigs, 45,000 milch cows, and 22,000 other cattle. The wool clip in 1920 yielded 32,000 pounds.

The State has oyster and other fisheries which are receiving increasing attention.

The mineral resources of Delaware are not extensive.

The capital invested in manufacturing industries in the State in 1914 amounted to 69,824,000 dollars; the persons employed (owners, firm members, clerks, &c., and wage-earners) numbered 25,533; the cost of materials used was 31,649,000 dollars, and the output was valued at 56,035,000 dollars. Statistics of the chief industries are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, p. 503.

The leather output comprised 11,005,292 goatskins valued at 10,232,463 dollars. Other industries are fruit-canning, and the manufacture of hosiery and knitted goods.

In 1918 the length of railway in the State was 335 miles, besides 158 miles of electric street railway track in 1920.

There is an active coastwise trade, particularly with New York, which is connected with Wilmington by a line of steamers. Chesapeake Bay and Delaware Bay are connected by a canal. There is some foreign commerce direct through Wilmington.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Government.—The District of Columbia is the seat of Government of the United States, and consists of an area of about 70 square miles which was ceded by the State of Maryland to the United States as a site for the National Capital. It was established under the authority and direction of Acts of Congress approved July 16, 1790, and March 3, 1791, which were passed to give effect to a clause in the eighth section of the first article of the Constitution of the United States, giving Congress the power:—

'To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cession of particular States and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of the Government of the United States, and to exercise like authority over all places purchased, by the consent of the legislature of the State in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dockyards, and other needful buildings.'

The authority of the United States over it became vested on the first Monday of December, 1800.

The present form of local government, which dates from July 1, 1878, is a municipal corporation, and is administered by a board of three Commissioners having in general equal powers and duties. Two of these Commissioners are appointed from civil life by the President of the United States, and confirmed by the Senate of the United States, for a term of three years each. The other Commissioner is detailed from time to time by the President of the United States from the Engineer Corps of the United States Army. This Commissioner is selected from among the captains or officers of higher grade having served at least fifteen years in the Corps of Engineers of the Army of the United States. The Commissioners are in a general way vested with jurisdiction covering all the ordinary features of municipal government, except that the Congress of the United States, only, has authority to enact legislation and appropriate money for the municipal expenses. Congress has, by sundry statutes, empowered the commissioners to make and enforce reasonable and usual police regulations for the protection of lives, health, quiet, &c., of all persons, and the protection of all property within the District, and other regulations of a municipal nature. They have also been constituted a 'Public Utilities Commission.'

Secretary to the Board of Commissioners.—Daniel E. Garges.

Area and Population.—The area of the District of Columbia originally was ten miles square, but by the retrocession to the State of Virginia, in the year 1846, of the portion derived from that State, was reduced to 69·245 square miles, 60·01 of which are land.

The population in 1800 numbered 14,093; in 1860, 75,080; in 1880, 177,624; in 1900, 278,718; in 1910, 331,069; in 1914, 353,378. Population on February 21, 1920, was 437,571, of whom approximately 115,000 were negroes or of negro descent.

A portion of the District of Columbia embracing 6,654 acres is known as the City of Washington, "The Federal Capital." But that name is, and has been since February 11, 1895, a geographical distinction only, as the territory it includes is not a municipality separate from the rest of the District, but is subject to the same government in every respect.

Religion and Instruction.—The most numerous religious bodies are: Roman Catholic, Baptist, Methodist, Protestant, Episcopal, Presbyterian, Lutheran, and Christian Science.

The public schools of the District in 1921 had 1,515 white teachers and 46,695 white pupils, and 683 negro teachers and 20,369 negro or coloured pupils. Total number of pupils, 67,064. There were 9 public high schools with 428 teachers and 9,271 pupils; and 26 private schools with 2,500 pupils. For the instruction of teachers there were 2 public normal schools with 28 teachers and 240 pupils. Total expenditure on public education (1921), 471,120,203 dollars, exclusive of sites and buildings.

Superior education is given in Georgetown University, an institution under the management of the Jesuit Order, founded in 1795; it has 221 professors and 2,360 pupils: the George Washington University, non-sectarian, founded in 1821, has 249 instructors, and 3,333 students; the Howard University, principally engaged in the higher education of negroes, was founded in 1867, and has 121 instructors and 1,018 pupils; the Catholic University, a post-graduate institution, was founded in 1884, and has 86 professors and 850 students; the American University has 15 instructors and 690 students.

Finance.—The revenues of the District are derived from the general real property tax, taxes on corporations and companies, and licences for various businesses and from appropriations by the United States of approximately three sevenths of the total revenues.

In 1921 the finance of the District of Columbia was as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, July 1, 1920 . . .	8,432,805
Receipts to July 1, 1921 .. .	24,947,424
Total	33,379,729

Disbursements, 1920-21	24,268,676
Balance, July 1, 1921	9,111,053 ¹

The net bonded debt at the end of the year 1921 amounted to 1,166,626 dollars. The District of Columbia has no other debt.

In 1921 the assessed valuation of the real property within the municipality amounted to 454,795,000 dollars; and of tangible personal property such as furniture, horses, wagons, ships, etc., 116,928,920 dollars and intangible personal property such as stocks, bonds, etc., 323,949,583 dollars; total 440,878,503 dollars.

Production and Industry.—The District has considerable industries, the products of which are mainly for local consumption. The United States census of manufactures in 1920 showed that the capital invested in such industries amounted to 63,808,179 dollars; the salaried officials, superintendents, managers and clerks numbered 3,104; and the average number of wage-earners employed during the year was 10,482; the raw material used cost 30,940,100 dollars, and the output was valued at 68,326,570 dollars.

Within the District are 215 miles (1920) of electric street railway track, as single track.

On June 30, 1921, there were in the District 47 national banks, trust companies and savings banks. Their aggregate resources and liabilities balanced at 217,082,000 dollars. Their paid-in capital stock stood at 20,965,000 dollars; surplus funds at 11,840,000 dollars; individual deposits at 156,901,000 dollars; United States deposits at 3,007,000 dollars; national bank notes outstanding, 5,772,000 dollars; and loans and discounts at 116,884,000 dollars.

The State Capital is Tallahassee (population 5,637 in 1920). The State is divided into 52 counties.

Area, Population, Religion, Instruction.—Area 58,666 square miles, of which 3,805 square miles is water. The Indian reservations had an area in 1920 of 36 square miles, and a population of 457.

Census population on January 1, 1920, 968,470. Population in census years as follows :—

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per sq. mile
1880	142,808	126,690	269,493	4.9
1910	443,950	308,669	752,619	13.7
1915	559,787	360,394	920,181	15.7
1920	638,983	329,487	968,470	17.7

In 1920 the population by sex and birth was as follows :—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indians	Total
Male . . .	327,644	167,156	249	271	495,320
Female . . .	310,509	162,331	63	247	473,150
Total . .	638,153	329,487	312	518	968,470

Of the total, the foreign-born (1920) numbered 43,008, of whom 8,700 were from the West Indies, 4,451 from England, 3,534 from Germany, 4,745 from Italy, 4,121 from Canada, and 4,091 from Spain. The largest cities in the State are Jacksonville, with a census population of 91,558 in 1920; Tampa, 51,608; Pensacola, 31,035; Miami, 29,549; Key West, 18,749. Of the total population in 1920, 36.7 per cent. was urban.

Of the church members of the State 41.6 per cent. are Baptist, and 37.2 per cent. Methodist. Others are chiefly Roman Catholics, Protestant Episcopalians, and Presbyterians.

Attendance at school is not compulsory. There are no provisions as to religious instruction in public schools. Separate schools are provided for white and coloured children.

In 1920 the 2,584 public elementary schools had 6,296 teachers and 212,465 enrolled pupils. In 125 public high schools there were 525 teachers and 12,695 pupils in 1920. Total expenditure on education (1920), 7,003,188 dollars. The State provides higher education in a University of the State of Florida at Gainesville (founded 1884) with (1919) 43 professors and 988 students, and a State College for Women (founded at Tallahassee in 1905), with 598 students; Rollins College at Winter Park (founded 1885) has 25 professors and 175 students. There is also the John B. Stetson (Baptist) University at De Land (founded in 1887), with 32 professors and 649 students.

On January 1, 1910, the number of paupers in almshouses was 207, being 27.5 per 100,000 of the population, and of prisoners in penal institutions 1836, being 243.9 per 100,000 of the population. Number of convicts in 1915, 1,082.

Finance.—For the year 1921 the receipts and disbursements amounted to the following sums :—

	Dollars
Balance Jan. 1, 1921	2,270,950
Receipts in 1921	8,552,405
Total	10,823,355
Disbursements in 1921	9,127,882
Balance Jan. 1, 1922	1,695,473

On January 1, 1922, the public debt of the State consisted of refunding bonds to the amount of 601,567 dollars at three per cent. interest, all of which were held by State educational funds. The assessed value of real property for 1920 is 253,785,338 dollars; for personal property, 104,664,992 dollars; railroad and telegraph property, 51,138,608 dollars; making a total for 1920 of 409,588,938 dollars.

Production and Industry.—Florida is largely a peninsula stretching from north to south, between the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico. The surface is generally level. No elevation exceeds 301 feet above the level of the sea. The climate is semi-tropical, but liable at times to severe frost which destroys the fruit crops. Agriculture is pursued generally in all parts of the State. In 1920 there were 154,005 farms, with a total acreage of 6,046,691, of which 2,297,271 acres were improved. Total value of all farm property in 1920, 330,301,317 dollars. The chief products are pineapples and oranges, the former fruit being grown almost nowhere else in the United States. Other crops are tobacco, 3,600,000 pounds in 1921; rice, 88,000 bushels in 1921; besides maize, oats, peas, and peanuts. In 1921 the cotton area was 77,000 acres, and the yield 13,000 bales, valued at 1,170,000 dollars. On January 1, 1921, the State had 58,000 horses, 40,000 mules, 89,000 sheep, 1,493,000 pigs, 156,000 milch cows, and 917,000 other cattle. The wool clip in 1920 yielded 391,000 lbs. Forests of valuable timber cover three-fourths of the State, and large quantities of pitch-pine are exported as well as oak timber for ship-building. Tar, turpentine, and rosin are prepared in increasing quantities. The total forest area on June 30, 1920, was 303,408 acres.

The chief mineral product is phosphate rock; Fullers' earth, lime, and mineral waters are also produced.

Florida, with its long coast line, has extensive fisheries, which, though not fully developed, are more important than those of any other Gulf State. The chief fishery products are shad, red snappers, mullet, turtles, and sponges, of which Florida has almost a monopoly. Pensacola is said to be the most important fresh fish market on the Gulf. From this port tar, resin, and turpentine are exported to the value of over 500,000^l. sterling annually, and also cotton (1,806,000^l.), tobacco, and phosphate produced in other States.

The manufacturing industries of Florida in the year 1917 had 5,493 establishments, with a capital invested of 85,061,746 dollars; the average number of wage-earners was 69,955; the amount paid in wages was 40,075,037 dollars.

The tobacco industries are prosperous, and Key West and Tampa compete with Cuba in the manufacture of fine cigars. In 1917 the output of cigars numbered 469,301,042, valued at 30,127,941 dollars, and of cigarettes 7,800,000, valued at 154,000 dollars.

The State has facilities for transportation both by land and water. A large trade is carried on through Pensacola, where the domestic exports were largely cottons; other merchandise being forest products, phosphate, tobacco, wheat, flour, &c. The harbour channel is now 30 feet deep at low tide. At Jacksonville harbour improvements are being carried out. In 1918 there were 5,221 miles of steam railway, and 218 miles (1920) of electric railway. The Atlantic Coast railway and the Louisville and Nashville railway run through the State. The Florida East Coast Railway extension to Key West was opened January 22nd, 1912. The U.S. Government is deepening the channel at Key West and making other improvements.

In 1920 there were 3 savings banks in the State, with 6,931 depositors who had to their credit 1,486,609 dollars, being 214·40 dollars to each depositor.

GEORGIA.

Government.—The colony of Georgia (so named from George II.) was founded in 1733. Georgia entered the Union as one of the thirteen original States.

The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 51 members and a House of Representatives of 193 members. Both Senators and Representatives are elected for two years. Legislative Sessions are annual and limited to 50 days. There is manhood suffrage, but residence and United States citizenship are required. The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and 12 Representatives.

Governor.—T. W. Hardwick, 1921-1923 (7,500 dollars).

Secretary.—G. L. McLendon.

Georgia is divided into 155 counties. The State Capital is Atlanta.

Area and Population.—Area 59,265 square miles, of which 540 square miles are water. Population on January 1, 1920, 2,895,832 (census).

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per sq. mile
1800	102,261	60,425	162,686	2·8

In 1920 the population by sex and birth was :—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . .	854,109	590,443	203	68	1,444,823
Female . .	835,005	615,922	25	57	1,451,009
Total .	1,689,114	1,306,365	228	125	2,995,832

Of the total population (1920) 16,186 were foreign-born, of whom 1,936 were from Germany, 1,112 from Ireland, 1,593 from England, and 3,452 from Russia. The largest cities in the State are Atlanta (capital) with census population (1920) of 200,600 ; Savannah, 83,252 ; Macon, 52,995 ; Augusta, 52,548 ; Columbus, 31,125. Of the total population in 1920, 25.1 per cent. was urban.

Religion, Instruction.—Baptists and Methodists predominate, Baptists having more than half of the religious membership of the State.

Since 1916 education has been compulsory. At the head of the State school system is a State Superintendent of Schools, elected by the people for two years. In 1920 the 8,359 public elementary schools had 723,077 enrolled pupils and 16,409 teachers, while the 132 public high schools had 47,860 pupils and 1,499 teachers. Three public normal schools had 126 teachers and 2,514 pupils in 1918-19. Total expenditure for education (1920), 15,540,781 dollars.

For higher education the more important State institutions are as follows :—

Began	Institutions	Professors (1920-21)	Students (1920-21)
1801	University of Georgia, Athens . . .	72	1,243
1888	Georgia School of Technology . . .	92	2,850
1872	North Georgia Agricultural College . .	16	172

Finance.—The amounts received and disbursed in the year 1919 are stated as follows :—

	1919 Dollars
Balance, January 1, 1919	813,139
Receipts in 1919	9,413,311
Total, 1919	10,226,450
Disbursements, 1919	9,316,825
Balance, January 1, 1920	909,625

On January 1 1920, the bonded debt of the State amounted to 5,818,202 dollars, including an unfunded debt of 90,202 dollars on which interest at seven per cent. per annum was paid to the University trustees. According to the Council of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders the State has a defaulted debt estimated at 13,000,000 dollars. The assessed valuation of real and personal property in 1919 amounted to 1,079,236,826 dollars.

Production and Industry.—In 1920 there were 310,732 farms in the State, having an area of 25,437,072 acres, of which 13,054,010 acres were improved land. Total value of all farm property in 1920 was 1,356,904,896 dollars; 41 per cent. of the farms are operated by negroes, and 86 per cent. of negro farms are rented. The negro farmers raise little but cotton, in the production of which Georgia ranks second among the States, while it is the largest producer of sea-island cotton. For 1921 the cotton yield was 840,000 bales as against 1,400,000 bales in 1920, the area under cultivation being 4,140,000 acres and the value of the yield 69,720,000 dollars. In the northern part of the State the cultivation of cereals is of importance, corn being grown on five times the area of other cereals. The yield of corn (maize) in the State in 1921 was 69,975,000 bushels. Oats and wheat are also grown, while rice is an important product of coast counties (78,000 bushels in 1921). The growth of sugar cane is increasing. Forests of pines, &c., cover 42,000 sq. miles. On January 1, 1921, the farm animals were 132,000 horses, 347,000 mules, 470,000 milch cows, 763,000 other cattle, 119,000 sheep, 3,102,000 swine. The wool clip in 1920 yielded 418,000 lbs.

The fisheries of the State are of some importance, especially the oyster and shad fisheries.

The State has considerable mineral resources, gold, silver, coal, iron, and manganese ores, iron pyrites, bauxite, graphite, lime, ochre, infusorial earth, natural cement, talc and soapstone, marble and other quarries, and mineral springs being worked. The marble of Georgia has a high reputation all over the States. The clay-working industries (bricks, tiles, pottery) are also important.

In 1914 Georgia had 4,639 manufacturing establishments with a total capital of 258,325,811 dollars, employing 118,565 persons (salaried and wage-earning), using material costing 160,088,609 dollars, and giving an output worth 346,452,413 dollars.

The chief manufacturing industries are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, p. 511.

In 1914 there were 153 cotton mills, 41,881 looms and 2,092,834 spindles.

The means of transportation by sea and land are ample. The principal port is Savannah, which has 8 miles of river frontage, and which, by harbour improvements, is to be made accessible to vessels of large tonnage. The river is being deepened, and now has a mean low water depth of 26 feet, and a depth of 32 at high tide on the bar. From this port in 1919-20 the imports amounted to 39,199,507 dollars, and the exports to 311,171,389 dollars, chiefly cotton, cotton seed, and meal and cake of cotton seed, besides turpentine and lumber.

The railways in the State have a length (1918) of 7,555 miles, besides 491 miles (1919) of electric railway.

In 1918, Georgia had 23 savings banks with 48,000 depositors who had to their credit 11,874,016 dollars, being 247.38 dollars to each depositor.

British Consul at Savannah.—Arthur M. Brookfield.

There is a British Vice-Consul at Brunswick and Darien.

IDAHO.

Government.—Idaho was admitted into the Union on July 3, 1890. The Legislature for 1921-1922 consists of a Senate of 44 members, and a House of Representatives of 54 members, all the legislators being elected for two years. Sessions are held biennially. The electorate of the State consists of citizens, both male and female, over the age of 21 years, who have resided in the State over six months. The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and two Representatives.

Governor.—D. W. Davis, 1921-23 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Robert O. Jones.

The State is divided into 44 counties. The capital is Boise (census population, 21,893 in 1920). Pocatello had a population of 14,961 in 1920.

Area, Population, Religion, Instruction.—Area 83,888 square miles, of which 534 square miles is water. Area of Indian reservations in 1920, 85 square miles, with a population of 4,048. In the last 5 census years the total population was :—1880, 32,610 (0.4) ; 1890, 84,385 (1.1) ; 1900, 161,772 (1.9) ; 1910, 325,594 (3.9) ; 1920, 431,866 (5.2).

In 1920 the population by sex and birth was :—

	White.	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	230,186	585	1,621	1,577	238,919
Female	195,532	335	559	1,521	197,947
Total	425,668	920	2,180	3,098	431,866

Of the total population 38,963 were foreign-born, 4,451 being English, 4,148 German, 4,954 Canadian, 5,112 Swedish, 2,482 Norwegian, and 1,410 Irish. Of the total population in 1920, 27.6 per cent. was urban.

The population is partly Mormon, other religious denominations, in the order of their numbers, being Catholics, Methodists, Presbyterians, and Disciples or Christians.

For supervision of the public schools there is a State Board of Education. In 1920-21 the 1,716 public elementary schools had 4,350 teachers, and 141,996 enrolled pupils. The 214 high schools had 14,840 pupils ; number of teachers, 932. The two public normal schools had 425 pupils in 1921 and 54 teachers. Total expenditure on education (1920-21) was 8,314,657 dollars. Superior instruction is given in the Presbyterian College of Idaho at Caldwell, the State University of Idaho, founded at Moscow in 1892, which had 90 professors and 1,330 students in 1919. The State has an industrial training school, and a school for the deaf and blind. There are also 5 sectarian colleges or schools to which, however, pupils are admitted without respect to their religious belief.

On January 1, 1910, the number of paupers in almshouses was 97, being 29.8 per 100,000 of the population, and of prisoners in penal institutions 287, being 88.1 per 100,000 of the population.

Finance.—For the biennium ending September 30, 1920, the receipts and disbursements were as follows :—

	Dollars
Cash in hand, October 1, 1918	705,187
Receipts, 1918-20	18,461,455
Total	19,166,642
Disbursements, 1918-20	16,967,502
Balance, September 30, 1920	2,199,140

On Sept. 30, 1920, the State bonded debt amounted to 3,880,750 dollars, and the assessed value of real and personal property for 1920 to 377,865,027 dollars.

Production and Industry.—A great part of the State is naturally arid, but extensive irrigation works have been carried out irrigating 3,266,386 acres, and there are now being constructed works to cost 18,811,000 dollars for the irrigation of 480,000 acres in the State. In 1920 the number of farms was 42,106, with a total area of 8,375,873 acres, of which 4,511,680 acres were improved land. Total value of all farm property in 1920, 716,137,910 dollars. The most important crop is wheat, to which, in 1921, 1,123,000 acres were devoted, the yield amounting to 27,079,000 bushels. Other crops in 1921 were oats, 7,740,000 bushels; barley, 2,784,000 bushels; besides potatoes and hay. Fruit and vegetables are also grown. There is an active live-stock industry, the number of horses on January 1, 1921, being 284,000; mules, 7,400; sheep, 2,623,000; milch cows, 137,000; other cattle, 505,000. The wool clip (1920) was 21,702,000 pounds. The State contains (June 30, 1920) 18,682,031 acres of national forest.

The State has rich deposits of gold, silver, and other metals. About 7,000 miners are employed. Coal is mined, but not to a great extent. Iron, nickel, cobalt, mica, phosphate rock, antimony, tungsten, granite, sandstone, limestone and lime, pumice, and salt are worked more or less.

Besides the agricultural and mining industries the State has manufactures of considerable importance. In 1919 there were together 922 industrial establishments, employing a total of 16,248 persons, including 13,917 wage-earners, with a total capital of 96,061,709 dollars, cost of material being 43,948,505 dollars and value of output 80,510,749 dollars. The chief of these industries are the working of lumber and timber, (capital, 17,872,000 dollars; wage-earners, 8,291; cost of material, 3,345,000 dollars and value of product, 30,088,000 dollars), and flour and grist milling (capital, 2,038,000 dollars; wage-earners, 304; cost of material, 2,025,000 dollars, and value of product, 13,501,000 dollars). Within the State there are 260 lumber mills; one at Potlatch is said to be one of the largest in the world and can cut 750,000 feet daily. Idaho has also 78 flour mills.

The State has (1918) 2,884 miles of railway, besides 102 miles (1920) of electric railway track. The principal railways crossing the State are the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific, Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul, and the Oregon Short Line. In 1915 (May 5), the Celilo Canal, on the Oregon side of the Columbia River, was opened and Idaho now has a seaport, Lewiston. Vessels can pass from the Pacific to Lewiston, a distance of 480 miles.

ILLINOIS.

Government.—Illinois was first discovered by Joliet and Marquette, two French explorers, in 1673. In 1763 the country was ceded by the French to the British. In 1783, Great Britain recognised the title of the United States to Illinois, which was admitted into the Union on December 3, 1818. The Legislature consists of a Senate of 51 members elected for four years (about half of whom retire every two years), and a House of Representatives of 153 members elected for two years. Sessions are biennial. Qualified electors are all citizens 21 years of age, resident in the State one year, in the county 90 days, and in the district 30 days next before the election.

The State is divided into Senatorial districts, in each of which one Senator and three Representatives are chosen. For the election of Representatives each elector has three votes, of which he may cast one for each of three candidates, or one and a half for each of two, or all three for one candidate.

Governor.—Len Small, 1921–25 (12,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Louis L. Emmerson.

The Constitution in effect in Illinois at the present time is that of 1870. In 1917 the 50th General Assembly adopted a resolution to submit to the electors of the State the question of calling a Constitutional Convention. This resolution was approved by a majority of all votes cast at the election on November 5, 1918. In 1919 the 51st General Assembly passed an Act calling a "Convention to revise, alter or amend the Constitution of the State of Illinois" to meet January 6, 1920. The revision, alteration or amendments prepared by the Convention will be submitted to the electors for ratification or rejection at an election within six months after the adjournment of the Convention. The Constitutional Convention adjourned on June 12, 1920, without coming to a decision, but will reconvene in January, 1922.

Illinois is divided into 102 counties, the most important being Cook County, within which is the city of Chicago. The State capital is Springfield.

Area, Population.—Area of 56,665 square miles, of which 622 square miles is water. Census population on Jan. 1, 1920, 6,485,280.

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per sq. mile

On January 1, 1910, the number of persons in almshouses was 735, being 43.5 per 100,000 of the population, and of prisoners in penal institutions 1,537, being 90.9 per 100,000 of the population.

Finance.—For the year ending June 30, 1919, the total receipts and disbursements were :—

	Dollars
Cash Balance, July 1, 1918	175,615
Receipts, 1918-19	5,784,683
Total	5,960,298
Disbursements, 1918-19	5,605,707
Balance, July 1, 1919	454,591

The State had no bonded debt in 1919; the assessed valuation of real and personal property was 3,437,541,808 dollars.

Production and Industry.—Kansas is pre-eminently agricultural, but suffers from lack of rainfall in the west. In 1920 there were 165,286 farms, with an area of farmland of 45,425,179 acres, of which 30,600,760 acres was improved land. The total value of farm property was 3,302,806,187 dollars. The chief crops are maize (102,142,000 bushels in 1921), wheat (128,695,000 bushels), and hay, but oats, barley, rye, potatoes and flax are grown. The production of Kaffir corn is mostly confined to this State. Various orchard fruits are cultivated. The State has an extensive live-stock industry comprising, on January 1, 1921 1,108,000 horses, 250,000 mules, 898,000 milch cows, and 2,075,000 other cattle, 405,000 sheep, and 1,810,000 swine. The wool clip in 1920 yielded 2,087,000 pounds.

Kansas has coal-fields with an area of about 15,000 square miles, from which 5,982,143 long tons were mined in 1920. In Kansas there are also found oil fields (the yield of crude petroleum in 1920 was 38,501,000 barrels), natural gas, and zinc. The quarries yield sandstone, limestone, gypsum, and there is a large output of Portland cement. The State also produces salt, which is important both for live-stock and dead-meat industries.

In the manufacturing industries in 1914 there were 3,136 establishments with 3,247 proprietors or firm members, 7,536 clerks, &c., and 41,259 wage-earners. The raw material used during the year cost 261,948,000 dollars, and the output was valued at 323,234,000 dollars. The slaughtering and milling industries are the most important. Further statistics of these and other industries are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1917, p. 524.

Kansas, traversed by numerous rivers and six important trunk railways, has abundant transport facilities. There were 9,386 miles of railway line in 1918 and 515 miles of electric railway track (1920) within the State.

In 1919 there was 1 savings bank with 744 depositors, who had to their credit 295,000 dollars, being 396.51 dollars to each depositor.

FINANCE—PRODUCTION, ETC.—BOOKS OF REFERENCE 555

Finance.—For the year ending June 30, 1921, the receipts and expenditure were as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, July 1, 1920	429,008
Receipts, 1920-21	16,222,062
Total	16,651,070
Disbursements, 1920-21	14,360,008
Balance, July 1, 1919	2,291,062

The bonded debt of the State is 6,285,962 dollars, and the assessed value of real and personal property was 2,248,356,058 dollars in 1919.

Production and Industry.—Kentucky is largely an agricultural State. In 1920 there were 270,626 farms with an area of 21,612,772 acres, of which 13,975,746 acres was improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 1,511,901,077 dollars. The central portion of the State contains the "blue grass region" which, having a rich soil, produces cereals, grasses and fruits of fine quality. In 1921 the maize crop amounted to 82,150,000 bushels; and the wheat crop to 6,340,000 bushels, other farm products being hay, potatoes, sweet potatoes, water-melons, and fruits of many sorts. Besides hemp is grown some cotton, and also sorghum. The chief crop, however, is tobacco, under which in 1920 were 550,000 acres, yielding 467,500,000 pounds, valued at 70,125,000 dollars.

Stock raising is important in Kentucky, which has long been famous for its horses. The live-stock on January 1, 1921, consisted of 420,000 horses, 250,000 mules, 466,000 milch cows, 562,000 other cattle, 1,137,000 sheep, and 1,429,000 swine. In 1920 the wool clip yielded 3,115,000 pounds of wool.

The principal mineral product of Kentucky is coal, 27,678,572 tons being mined in 1920. Output of petroleum for 1920, 8,692,600 barrels. The quarries also yield sandstone and limestone, and the clay working establishments turned out bricks, tiles, pottery, &c. Other mineral products are iron, lead, stone, barytes, lime, natural cement, asphalt, natural gas, and mineral waters.

In 1914 the census of manufactures showed there were 4,184 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 193,423,000 dollars; 64,586 wage-earners who earned 31,830,000 dollars, and turned out manufactures worth 230,249,000 dollars. The output of the flour and grist industries was valued at 22,365,000 dollars; lumber and timber products, 21,381,000 dollars; tobacco, 18,598,000 dollars; spirits and ales, 44,360,000 dollars; men's clothing, 3,276,000 dollars.

The Ohio and Mississippi rivers provide natural facilities for transport. In 1918 the State had 3,871 miles of railway besides 455 miles (1920) of electric railway track. The principal railway lines are the Louisville and Nashville the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Illinois Central, and the Southern.

LOUISIANA

Government.—Louisiana was admitted into the Union on April 8, 1812. The Legislature consists of a Senate of 39 members and a House of Representatives of 101 members, Senators and Representatives being chosen for four years. Sessions are biennial.

Qualified electors are (with the usual exceptions) all registered citizens resident in the State for two years and in the parish one year next before the election. For registration, however, the citizen must show his ability to read and write, or must own property worth 300 dollars, or must prove that his father or grandfather was entitled to a vote on January 1, 1867, but in this case the applicant must have resided in the State for five years next before the election.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and eight Representatives.

Governor.—John M. Parker, 1920–1924 (7,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—James J. Bailey.

Louisiana is divided into 64 parishes (corresponding with the counties of other States). The State Capital is Baton Rouge.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 48,506 square miles (3,097 square miles being water). Census population on January 1, 1920, 1,798,509.

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per sq. mile

Most of the white population are descended from the early French settlers. In 1920 the foreign-born numbered 44,871, of whom 16,264 were Italian (31.4 per cent.), 5,147 German, 4,182 French, 2,000 Irish, and 1,819 English. The largest city in the State is New Orleans with a census population of 387,219 in 1920. Other cities are Shreveport, 43,874; Baton Rouge (Capital), 21,782. Of the total population in 1920, 34.9 per cent. was urban.

Most of the Southern States are strenuously Protestant, but over 61 per cent. of the population of Louisiana are Roman Catholic. Of Protestants in the State, Baptists and Methodists are the most numerous, then Protestant Episcopalians and Presbyterians.

According to the State constitution no funds raised for the support of the public schools of the State shall be appropriated to or used for the support of any private or sectarian school. In 1919-20 the 3,180 elementary public schools had 8,060 teachers and 339,687 enrolled pupils; 222 public high schools had 906 teachers and 14,392 pupils. The 4 public normal schools had 134 teachers and 3,439 students in 1919. Expenditure on education (1919-20) was 11,088,689 dollars. Superior instruction is given in the Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College. The university was opened in 1860, and the college in 1874; on June 1, 1877, they were by law united into one and the same institution with its seat at Baton Rouge. In 1920 it had 81 professors and 1,503 students. Tulane University (founded in 1834) in New Orleans had, in 1919, 348 professors and 2,908 students. This university has State support to the extent of the remission of certain taxes. The Roman Catholics have Jefferson College at Convent with 19 professors and 180 students, and a University (Loyola University, founded 1904) at New Orleans with 65 professors and 530 students. The New Orleans University (established 1874) is for coloured persons. It had 20 instructors and 492 enrolled students in 1920. There is an Industrial Institute at Ruston and another at Lafayette. The State has also an institution for the deaf and dumb and another for the blind, both at Baton Rouge.

Louisiana has 56 benevolent institutions, most of which have been provided by private persons or ecclesiastical bodies. They comprise ten hospitals (four public), 25 orphanages, 17 homes for adults (two public), and three schools for the deaf and blind (two public).

On January 1, 1910, the number of paupers in almshouses was 187, being 11·3 per 100,000 of the population, and of prisoners in penal institutions, 2,400, being 144·9 per 100,000 of the population.

Finance, Defence.—For the year 1919 the receipts and the disbursements were:—

	Dollars
Balance in hand, January 1, 1919	1,944,629
Receipts, 1919	15,863,852
Total	17,808,481
Disbursements, 1919	16,404,803
Balance December 31, 1919	1,403,678

The bonded and floating debt of the State up to March 1 1919, amounted to 14,345,981 dollars. According to the Council of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders the State has a defaulted debt estimated at 6 million dollars. The assessed valuation of property in 1919 amounted to 726,291,145 dollars.

The militia or State National Guard, with headquarters at Baton Rouge consists of infantry, artillery, and cavalry, with a mounted signal corps. There is also a naval militia.

Production, Industry.—The surface of the State is chiefly a great plain sloping from north and north-east to the Mississippi delta. The State is divided into two parts, the uplands and the alluvial and swamp regions of the coast. A delta occupies about one-third of the total area. Louisiana surpasses the other States in extent of navigable waterways—3,782 miles. The Gulf coast line is 1,250 miles in length. The climate is semi-tropical, the summers being long and hot, the winters more severe than in corresponding latitudes. Agriculture is the leading industry.

In 1910 the State had 120,546 farms; in 1920, 135,642 with an area of 10,019,822 acres, of which 5,626,226 acres was improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 589,826,679 dollars. The products and manufactures of Louisiana are very various. The chief crops in 1921 were corn, 1,796,000 acres, producing 35,022,000 bushels; rice grown on 480,000 acres, yielding 16,560,000 bushels. For 1921 the cotton area was 1,282,000 acres, and the yield 295,000 bales, valued at 22,125,000 dollars. Oats, potatoes, and tobacco are also grown, but not extensively. On January 1, 1921, the State contained 211,000 horses, 166 mules, 209,000 sheep, 1,250,000 swine, and 382,000 milch cows. In 1920 the wool clip yielded 612,000 pounds.

Louisiana has valuable fisheries. Oyster reefs extend almost continuously along the coast, and the oyster fisheries are the most valuable south of Virginia, the area suitable to planting and growing oysters being over 7,000 sq. miles.

Rich sulphur mines are found in Louisiana, and wells for the extraction of sulphur by means of hot water and air at the surface are in operation. The yield of crude petroleum in 1920 was 35,649,000 barrels.

The manufacturing industries are chiefly those associated with the products of the State: sugar, lumber, cotton-seed, rice. In 1914 there were 2,211 manufacturing establishments which employed altogether 8,499 clerks, &c., and 77,655 wage-earners. The material used cost 157,886,000 dollars, and the output was valued at 255,313,000 dollars. The statistics (1910 census) of the more important industries are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, p. 531.

Brewing, confectionery, printing, and other works are also prosperous.

A large international trade is carried on through the port of New Orleans, where in 1920 the imports amounted to 252,587,790 dollars, and the exports to 589,409,222 dollars. The exports consisted of cotton and cotton-seed products, wheat, flour, rice, and other produce.

The State has ample facilities for traffic, having, besides 24,900 miles of public roads, the Mississippi and other waterways, with 4,794 miles of navigable water. In 1918 the railways in the State had a length of 5,276 miles, besides (1920) 322 miles of electric railway track. The principal lines are operated by the Illinois Central, Louisville and Nashville, Texas and Pacific, the Gulf Coast Line, the Rock Island, and the Southern Pacific systems.

In 1918, there were 14 savings banks in the State with 100,000 depositors having to their credit 38,863,885 dollars, which is 338.64 dollars to each depositor. The bank clearings at New Orleans in 1918 amounted to 2,575,655,000 dollars.

British Consul-General at New Orleans.—Lt.-Col. C. Braithwaite-Wallis.

The foreign-born population numbered 107,349, of whom 38,570 were English Canadian, 35,580 French Canadian, 5,748 Irish, and 5,149 English. Within the State, especially in the north, there is a strong French and French-speaking element.

The largest city in the State is Portland with an census population of 69,196 in 1920. Other cities and towns (with population in 1920) are : Lewiston, 31,707 ; Bangor, 25,948 ; Biddeford, 18,008 ; Auburn, 16,985 ; Augusta, 14,144 ; Bath, 14,731 ; Waterville, 13,351. Of the total population in 1920, 39·0 per cent. was urban.

The largest religious body is Roman Catholic ; then come Baptists, Congregationalists, Methodists, and Protestant Episcopalians.

Education is free for pupils from 5 to 21 years of age, and compulsory from 5 to 14. Cities and towns have elective school attendance committees. In 1921 the 4,516 public elementary schools had 4,781 teachers and 118,233 enrolled pupils. The 202 public high schools had 951 teachers and 19,831 pupils. For the training of teachers in 1921 there were five public Normal Schools with 101 teachers and 1,000 students. The University of Maine, founded in 1868 at Orono, had (1919) 155 professors and teachers and 691 students. It is endowed by and receives large appropriations from the State. Bowdoin College, founded in 1794 at Brunswick, had (1919) 28 professors and 425 students, Bates College at Lewiston 29 professors and 447 students, and Colby College at Waterville 25 professors and 360 students.

Public schools are mainly supported by appropriations from the towns or cities and from the State, and by the income from school funds. Total expenditure on education in 1921, 8,048,535 dollars.

On January 1, 1910, the number of paupers in almshouses was 945, being 127·3 per 100,000 of the population, and of prisoners in penal institutions, 730, being 98·3 per 100,000 of the population.

Finance.—For 1921 (January 1, to December 31) the amount of revenue and expenditure was as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance from 1921	5,550,703
Receipts in 1921	13,340,226
Total	18,890,929
Payments, 1921	17,615,156
Balance, January 1, 1922	1,275,773

The bonded debt on January 1, 1922 amounted to 8,483,300 dollars.

In 1921 the assessed value of real property amounted to 484,754,706 dollars, and of personal property to 152,648,727 dollars.

Production, Commerce, Railways.—The products of Maine are derived chiefly from agriculture, forestry, quarrying, and fisheries. The State has, besides other attractions, excellent hunting and fishing, and is a favourite summer resort. The soil is not generally fertile, an important exception being that of the Aroostook valley, which is well adapted for the growing of fruit and vegetables. In 1920 the State contained 48,227 farms with a total acreage of 5,425,968 acres, of which 1,977,329 acres was improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 270,526,733 dollars. The chief crops are oats (1921), 4,340,000 bushels; maize, 1,500,000 bushels; buckwheat, potatoes, and hay. On January 1, 1921, the farm animals comprised 104,000 horses, 171,000 milch cows, 129,000 other cattle, 140,000 sheep, and 97,000 swine. The wool clip in 1920 amounted to 973,000 pounds of wool.

The commercial mineral products of Maine are, considering the size and population of the State, few in number and of minor importance. Only in one mineral, feldspar, has Maine ranked first during the last 3 years.

In the State are large granite works, cotton mills, paper mills, manufactures of clothing, &c. In 1914, according to the census of manufactures of that year, the State had 3,378 manufacturing establishments employing all together 5,265 salaried officials and 82,149 wage-earners. Their aggregate capital amounted to 233,844,000 dollars; the cost of raw materials in a year to 117,655,000 dollars, and the value of a year's output to 200,450,000 dollars. Statistics of some of the leading industries are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, p. 535.

In 1918 there were 2,269 miles of railway and 519 miles (1920) of electric railway within the State. The railways are connected with the Canadian railway systems.

In June, 1919, there were 44 savings banks in the State, with 235,277 depositors, having to their credit 97,253,000 dollars, being 413·35 dollars to each depositor.

At Portland there is a British vice-consul.

MARYLAND.

Government.—Maryland was one of the thirteen original States. The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Delegates. There are 27 senators and 102 Delegates. The Senators serve for four years, and the Senate is renewed to the extent of half every two years. Delegates are elected for two years.

There is universal suffrage for United States citizens who have resided one year in the State, six months in the Congressional District, and one day in the precinct next preceding election. It is necessary for a person entering the State to declare his intention of becoming a resident of the State one year before he is entitled to register as a voter.

Maryland is represented in Congress by two Senators and six Representatives.

Governor.—Albert C. Ritchie, 1920-24 (4,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Philip B. Perlman.

The State is divided into 23 counties and Baltimore City. The State Capital is Annapolis.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 12,327 square miles, of which 9,941 square miles is land and 2,386 are water, the Chesapeake Bay alone occupying 1,203 square miles. The extreme breadth from north to south is 128 miles; the extreme length from east to west is 315 miles. Census population on January 1, 1920, 1,449,661.

Years	Population	Per sq. mile	Years	Population	Per sq. mile
1820	407,350	41·3	1910	1,295,346	130·3
1900	1,188,044	119·5	1920	1,449,661	145·8

In 1920 the population by sex and race was:—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	605,601	123,453	401		729,455
Female	599,136	121,026	44		720,206
Total	1,204,737	244,479	445	82	1,449,661

Of the total population 102,177 were foreign born, of whom 22,032 were from Germany (21·5 per cent.), 6,580 from Ireland, 24,791 from Russia and Russian Poland, and 5,095 from England.

The largest city in the State and also the chief manufacturing and commercial centre, is Baltimore, with a census population in 1920 of 733,826. Other cities, with population in 1920, are Cumberland, 29,837; Hagerstown, 28,029; Frederick 11,066; Annapolis (Capital), 11,214. Of the total population in 1920, 68 per cent. was urban. Nearly 51 per cent. of the population of the State live within the corporate limits of the City of Baltimore.

The prevailing forms of religion are Protestant, but Roman Catholics have 35·3 per cent. of the Church membership in the State.

Education is compulsory for children 8 to 12 years of age in the entire State since September 1, 1916, and 8 to 16 unless legally employed.

In 1920, there were in the 2,423 public elementary and high schools of the State, 181,547 white (92,964 boys and 88,583 girls) and 43,543 coloured (21,091 boys and 22,452 girls) elementary pupils and 15,541 white (6,825 boys and 8,716 girls), and 987 (278 boys and 709 girls) high school pupils. The State had 3 normal schools, with 74 teachers and 350 pupils in 1920. The total expenditure on education in 1920 was 8,916,441 dollars.

The most important institution for higher education is Johns Hopkins University, organised in 1876. It is non-sectarian, and in 1919 had 350 instructors and 2,000 students. Its hospital with educational features is famous. Goucher College, formerly the Woman's College of Baltimore, founded in 1888, has 60 instructors and 712 students. Other institutions are the Peabody Institute for the Education of Music, the Maryland Institute School of Art and Design, Walter's Art Gallery, Maryland University, Maryland Agricultural College with 40 professors and 224 students; the Princess Anne Academy for Coloured Youths, with 4 teachers and 47 students.

The Enoch Pratt Free Library has 11 branches, and a recent donation made by Andrew Carnegie of 500,000 dollars provides for 20 additional branches.

For charitable purposes the State contains (besides almshouses and asylums for the insane) 117 institutions nearly all provided by private or ecclesiastical charity. They comprise 32 hospitals (one public), 10 dispensaries (two public), 38 orphanages, three day nurseries, 30 homes for adults, and four schools for the deaf and blind (two public).

Finance, Defence.—For the year ending September 30, 1920, the total receipts and disbursements were as follows :—

	Dollars
Balance, Sept. 30, 1919	2,445,716
Receipts, 1919-20	13,083,601
Total	15,529,317
Disbursements, 1919-20	12,304,346
Balance, Sept. 30, 1920	3,224,971

On September 30, 1920, the gross debt of the State amounted to 23,364,880 dollars, and the net debt to 18,343,876 dollars. In 1919 the assessed valuation of real and personal property amounted to 1,392,944,923 dollars.

The Militia or National Guard consists of infantry, cavalry, a signal corps, and a hospital corps. The naval militia has 21 officers and 188 enlisted men. The Federal authorities have a navy recruiting rendezvous and a navy pay office at Baltimore. The United States Naval Academy, for the education of boys intended for the Federal naval service, is at Annapolis.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture is an important industry in the State, about 82 per cent. of the area being in farms mostly worked by their owners. In 1920 there were 47,908 farms with an area of 5,057,140 acres, of which 3,354,767 acres was improved land. The total value of farm property in 1920 was 436,638,120 dollars. The chief crops are wheat (568,000 acres, producing 7,952,000 bushels in 1921), maize (25,155,000 bushels, valued at 12,326,000 dollars), hay, potatoes (49,000 acres, 3,185,000 bushels, valued at 3,504,000 dollars in 1921), vegetables and fruit. In 1921 the yield of tobacco was 18,590,000 pounds, valued at 3,532,000 dollars. Maryland canned 29.4 per cent. of the tomatoes put up in the United States in 1920. The dairy output in 1910 was worth 4½ million dollars; the poultry products, 3,650,000 dollars. The flour mills in 1910 gave an output of 1,015,866 barrels of wheat-flour, besides corn meal, feed, and offal. The farm animals in the State on January 1, 1921 were: horses, 158,000; mules, 25,000; milch cows, 180,000; other cattle, 136,000; sheep, 220,000; swine, 427,000. The wool clip in 1920 yielded 825,000 pounds of wool.

Of mining industries in the State the most important is coal mining, which, in 1920, gave an output of 3,616,071 short tons. Second in importance is clay working. Quarrying is also of importance. Other products were sand, talc, slate, lime, and natural rock cement.

The fisheries of the State are valuable, especially the oyster fisheries, which yield more than any other State in the Union. Other fishery products are shad, bass, perch, and various shell-fish.

According to the Census report of 1915, Maryland had 4,799 manufactories, capital employed 295,934,000 dollars; persons engaged in manufactories 131,333; proprietors and firm members 5,014; salaried employees 14,801; average number of wage-earners 111,518; salaries 18,008,000 dollars; wages 53,821,000 dollars; cost of material 238,982,000 dollars; value of products 377,764,000; an increase over 1910 of 19.7 per cent.

The State has ample facilities for traffic both by sea and land, having a network of roads nearly 1,000 miles in extent (1920), railways with (1918) 1,440 miles of line in the State and 707 miles of electric railway (1920), while 87 steamboat lines enter the port of Baltimore, which is one of the best ports on the Atlantic coast.

The construction of a Chesapeake and Delaware ship canal by the Federal Government is progressing. The Inter-coastal commission has recommended its purchase at a cost of 2,500,000 dollars (514,400%), and that it be increased to a width of 250 feet on the surface and a depth of 25 feet. It further recommended that the canal be continued from Norfolk to North Carolina by the purchase of the existing Albemarle and Chesapeake Canal, linking the Elizabeth River near Norfolk with Currituck Sound in North Carolina. This canal is to have a depth of 12 feet. The entire section, from the Delaware to Beaufort, is estimated to be fully completed within four years after construction has been begun.

There were 193 State banks and trust companies in the State on December 31, 1920, including 15 branches with resources of 267,648,738 dollars; 19 saving institutions with 108,406,807 dollars resources. The total amount of deposits in all the banks of Maryland on December 31st, 1920, was 166,473,063 dollars.

On June 30, 1919, there were 17 mutual savings banks in the State, with 264,940 depositors, who had to their credit 116,086,000 dollars, being 438·14 dollars to each contributor.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Constitution and Government.—In 1614, the Plymouth Company undertook exploring expeditions to New England, and obtained a Royal Charter granting sovereign powers over the region lying to the north of Virginia. It is supposed that the coast of Massachusetts was visited by the Norsemen as early as the year 1,000, but the first permanent settlement within the borders of the present state was made at Plymouth in December, 1620, by the Pilgrims from Holland, who were separatists from the English Church. This was the nucleus of the Plymouth Colony. In 1628 another company of Puritans settled at Salem, and from that beginning the Massachusetts Bay Colony was formed. In 1630 Boston was settled. In 1629 the whole region called New England was formed into a province. By a special Charter the Government was divided between the colony of Plymouth and that of Massachusetts Bay, but in 1692 they were re-united, and thenceforward acted together both in peace and war. In the struggle which ended in the separation of the American colonies from the mother country, Massachusetts took the foremost part, and became one of the thirteen original States of the Union.

There is a legislative body consisting of a Senate and a House of Representatives, styled collectively the General Court of Massachusetts. The Senate consists of 40 members elected biennially by popular vote, the State being divided into 40 senatorial districts each of which returns one senator. The House of Representatives consists of 240 members, elected in 165 districts, each of which returns one, two, or three representatives according to population. There is an annual session of the Legislature.

All citizens of the United States who can read and write may vote in all State elections, provided they are not paupers or under guardianship, and provided they have lived one year in the State and six months in the election district or precinct.

The State sends 2 Senators and 16 Representatives to the Federal Congress.

Governor.—Channing H. Cox, 1922 (salary, 10,000 dollars).

Secretary of the Commonwealth.—Frederic W. Cook, 1922.

There are 14 counties in the State, varying largely in population, and there are 38 cities and 317 towns. The State Capital is Boston.

Area and Population.—Area 8,266 square miles (227 square miles being water.) The population as determined by the Federal Census of January 1, 1920, was 3,852,356.

The population at the date of each of the Censuses was as follows:—

Years Census)	White	Coloured	Total	Per sq. mile
1890	2,215,373	23,574	2,238,947	284.8
1900	2,769,764	35,582	2,805,346	356.2
1910	3,324,926	41,490	3,366,416	427.4
1915	3,644,273	49,037	3,693,310	468.9
1920	3,803,524	48,832	3,852,356	479.2

In 1920 the population by sex and race was :

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . . .	1,864,317	22,912	2,785		1,890,014

Production, Industry, Commerce.—In 1920 the number of farms in Massachusetts (a farm being defined for census purposes as 'any tract of land of three or more acres used for agricultural purposes, and also any tract containing less than three acres which produced at least 250 dollars' worth of farm products in the year 1919') was 32,001, with an area of 2,494,477 acres, of which 908,834 acres was improved land. The value of all farm property (including land valued at 127,653,607 dollars) in the State in 1920 was 300,471,743 dollars. Of the 32,001 farms in the State approximately 87 per cent. were operated by the owners, 5 per cent. by managers, and 7 per cent. by tenants. The total value of the agricultural products of the State during the year 1919, was 53,700,925 dollars, representing an increase of 66 per cent. over the corresponding total for the year 1909. The principal crops in 1921 with their values were: Hay and forage, 529,000 tons, valued at 14,283,000 dollars; potatoes, 3,335,000 bushels, valued at 5,069,000 dollars; maize, 3,120,000 bushels, valued at 2,402,000 dollars; tobacco, 13,700,000 pounds, valued at 4,932,000 dollars. On Jan. 1, 1921, there were in the State 47,000 horses, 157,000 milch cows, 100,000 other cattle, 28,000 sheep, and 130,000 pigs. In 1920 the wool-clip yielded 131,000 pounds.

In the last half of the nineteenth century so many industrial enterprises came into existence that Massachusetts has been quite transformed from an agricultural into a manufacturing community. At present nearly three-fourths of the population dwell in the cities or closely settled places.

The census of manufactures in the State in 1919 showed that the total capital invested in manufactures was 2,939,836,821 dollars, employing on the average 713,836 persons, who earned 766,623,337 dollars, using raw material valued at 2,260,713,036 dollars, and turned out products worth 4,011,181,532 dollars (in 1905, 1,124,092,051 dollars).

Condensed statistics of the more important industries are given in the following table (Massachusetts Statistics of Manufactures, 1919):—

There is very little mining within the State. The principal minerals, as in most of the New England States, are from the stone quarries and the clay pits. There are large stone quarries at Quincy, Rockport, Worcester, and Milford.

A large foreign trade is carried on through the Massachusetts Customs District (i.e., Boston and eight minor ports) by twenty-two Trans-Atlantic steamship lines. In the calendar year 1920 the imports were valued at 392,752,807 dollars and the exports (including foreign, transhipped) at 192,866,178 dollars.

In 1920 the vessels engaged in foreign trade which entered the Massachusetts District had a tonnage of 2,249,870; and those which cleared, 1,337,972.

The total number of immigrant aliens from Trans-Atlantic ports admitted at the port of Boston during the year 1920, arriving for the first time and intending to remain permanently, was 7,081.

On December 31, 1920, there were 2,107 miles of main and branch steam railroads in the State. The 3 principal railroads, the Boston and Albany (New York Central lessee), the Boston and Maine, and the New York, New Haven and Hartford, each having a terminus in Boston, have operated about 96 per cent. of the railroad mileage and conducted over 96 per cent. of the entire passenger and freight business as expressed in gross revenue from those sources. On December 31, 1920, the total length of electric railways (main and second track, surface and elevated) within the State was 2,766 miles. The elevated track is confined to Boston and Cambridge.

In September, 1921, there were 147 National banks in operation in the State, of which 15 were in Boston. The total assets of the 159 National banks amounted to 897,752,000 dollars. On October 31, 1921, there were in operation in the State 196 savings-banks with assets of 1,354,846,586 dollars and 206 co-operative banks with assets of 196,125,048 dollars. and 104 trust companies having aggregate assets of 1,015,293,047 dollars. For many years there have been no State banks, strictly so called, in Massachusetts, but two such banks were incorporated during the year 1917. On October 31, 1920, the total assets of both amounted approximately to 996,708 dollars. The total clearings of the Boston Clearing House during the calendar year 1921 amounted to 14,327,564,663 dollars.

MICHIGAN.

Government.—Michigan was admitted into the Union on January 26, 1837. According to the revised constitution adopted in 1908 the legislative authority is vested in a Senate of 32 members elected by the counties or groups of counties for 2 years, and a House of Representatives of 100 members, the electoral districts being re-arranged according to population every 10 years. Electors are all citizens over 21 years of age resident in the State for 6 months next preceding the election, and resident at the time of the election in the district, county, or township for which the election is held.

The State is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 13 Representatives.

Governor.—Alexander J. Groesbeck, 1921–23 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Charles J. De Land.

For local government the State is organised in counties, cities, townships, and villages. There are 83 counties, each of which is a corporate body with a Board of Supervisors as its administrative authority. Cities must have each a population of not less than 3,000, but a few which have been long incorporated have a smaller population. Cities hereafter incorporated must have at least 2,000 inhabitants and 500 persons per square mile. Villages in the legal sense have a population of at least 300 within an area of a square mile. The State Capital is Lansing.

Area, Population, Education.—Area, 57,980 square miles, of which 500 square miles is water. • This is exclusive of 16,653 square miles of Lake Superior, 12,922 square miles of Lake Michigan, 9,925 square miles of Lake Huron, and 460 square miles of Lakes St. Clair and Erie. The total length of Michigan coast line is 1,620 miles.

Population 1920 census, 3,668,412.

1820	8,722	174	8,896	0·1
1860	742,314	6,799	749,113	13·0
1910	2,793,058	17,115	2,810,173	48·9
1920	3,608,330	60,082	3,668,412	63·8

In 1920 the population by sex and birth was :—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	1,890,265	84,249	3,922		1,928,436
Female	1,711,862	25,833	2,781		1,739,976
Total	3,601,627	60,082	1,089	5,614	3,668,412

Of the total population in 1920, 726,635 were foreign-born, of whom 164,502 were from Canada, 86,047 from Germany, 47,150 from England, 45,313 from Russia, 103,929 from Poland, 16,531 from Ireland, 24,707 from Sweden, 30,091 from Finland, 13,175 from Scotland, 6,888 from Norway, 30,216 from Italy, 22,004 from Austria, and 136,072 from all others. In 1920 the area of the Indian reservations was 191 acres, and the population 5,613.

According to the census of 1920 the population of the principal cities was :—

Cities	Pop.	Cities	Pop.	Cities	Pop.
Detroit . . .	923,678	Jackson . . .	48,374	Port Huron . .	25,944
Grand Rapids .	137,634	Bay City . . .	47,554	Ann Arbor . . .	19,510

Kalamazoo . .	48,858	Pontiac . . .	34,273	Marquette . .	12,718

Of the total population in 1920, 61.1 per cent. was urban.

The death-rate per 1,000 of population in the State was 14.4 in 1916; 14.7 in 1917, 16.7 in 1919, and 13.7 in 1920.

The more important religious bodies are the Roman Catholic, Episcopal, Methodist, Lutheran, Baptist, Presbyterian, and Congregational.

Education is compulsory for the school term for children from 7 to 16 years of age. The total net expenditure for graded and ungraded public schools, for the fiscal year 1919-20, was $37,151,445 dollars; for the University, State colleges, normal and State schools, $5,229,799 dollars. In 1920 the public schools had 663,948 enrolled pupils and 24,302 teachers. The State had 4 normal schools with 301 teachers and 6,559 pupils in 1920. The highest education provided by the State is given in the University of Michigan, founded in 1841 at Ann Arbor; in 1919 it had 555 professors and teachers and 8,857 students. There is a State Agricultural College at Lansing, founded in 1857; it had, in 1920, 171 professors and 2,085 students. There is a College of Mines at Houghton, founded in 1886; in 1920 it had 22 instructors and 180 students.

Poor Relief.—The whole number of poor persons maintained in the infirmaries during the year ending September 30, 1919, was 8,339, of whom 6,377 were males and 1,962 females. The number of persons temporarily relieved outside the infirmaries was 36,358. The number of permanent indigent persons maintained outside the infirmaries was 3,516, the number of persons supported at public institutions 1,801, and the whole number of different persons who received assistance in any form during the period was 50,014. The whole amount expended in the care and support of the poor is reported at 2,777,802 dollars. There are 14 charitable institutions, 3 penal, and 2 juvenile reformatory institutions maintained by the State; there are also 54 licensed child-placing agencies, 58 licensed maternity hospitals, 1,185 licensed boarding homes for children, and 24 private institutions for the aged and defective.

Finance.—For the year ending June 30, 1921, the revenue and expenditure were as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, July 1, 1920	23,511,157
Receipts, 1920-21	60,959,694
Total	84,470,851
Disbursements, 1920-21	64,636,190
Balance, June 30, 1921	19,834,661

The total bonded indebtedness of the State was 113,500,000 dollars on June 30, 1921.

In 1920 the total assessed valuation of the State as equalised by the State Board of Equalization amounted to 5,319,702,886 dollars.

Production and Industry.—The State is largely agricultural. In 1920 it contained 196,447 farms with a total area of 9,340,204 acres. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 1,437,862,310 dollars. In 1921 the chief crops were oats, 28,101,000 bushels; corn, 66,417,000 bushels; wheat, 14,072,000 bushels; hay, 2,928,000 tons; potatoes, 27,200,000 bushels; beans, 2,972,000 bushels. The estimated yield of sugar beets was 1,108,000 tons. On January 1, 1921, there were in the State 2,135,000 sheep, 614,000 horses, 856,000 milch cows, 727,000 other cattle, and 1,435,000 swine. In 1920 the wool-clip yielded 9,554,000 pounds of wool.

Michigan ranks sixth among the States in production of mineral wealth. It yields iron ore and copper. Copper output in 1920 amounted to 153,432,952 lbs. Other minerals are silver, coal, clay and clay products (brick, tile, pottery), graphite, asbestos, grindstones, gypsum, sandstone, limestone, mineral waters, and (in small quantity) petroleum are worked. The value of the salt mined in 1919 was 9,456,138 dollars, and of Portland cement 838,300 dollars. The mineral output in 1917 was valued at 162,484,767 dollars; in 1918, at 199,264,604 dollars.

The industries of the State are concerned chiefly with lumber, timber, agricultural products, metal-working, and the manufacture of automobiles, furniture, stoves, and machinery. In 1919, the number of workshops and manufacturing establishments inspected was 16,405, with an aggregate daily wage of 3,115,272.09 dollars, 18,932 superintendents and 662,653 employees.

For the year 1917, the production of automobiles in Michigan was estimated at 1,250,000. Michigan manufactures about 75 per cent. of the entire output of motor vehicles in the United States. Detroit holds fourth place as a manufacturing city.

Other industrial products are butter and cheese, beet sugar, chemicals, and various forms of iron and steelwork. Slaughtering and meat-packing have also considerable importance. The fish catch for the Great Lakes is estimated at 50,000,000 lbs. for 1920.

In 1920 there were 8,927 miles of railway in operation, besides 976 miles of electric railway, and city mileage of 320. During 1920 a tonnage of 79,282,496 net tons with 68,451 passengers passed through the St. Mary's Falls Ship Canal. This canal is located at Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, and serves as a gateway between the lakes; it is the largest ship canal in the world.

On Dec. 1, 1920, there were 559 State banks and trust companies, and 113 national banks in Michigan, having to their credit 159,570,000 dollars.

MINNESOTA.

Government.—Minnesota was admitted into the Union on May 11, 1858. The legislature consists of a Senate of 67 members, one being elected in each of the legislative districts, and a House of Representatives of 131 members elected in the same districts in numbers proportioned to population. Senators are elected for 4 years, all terms expiring at the same time. Representatives are elected for 2 years.

Governor.—J. A. O. Preus, 1921-23 (7,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Mike Holm.

There are 86 counties, few of which contain less than 400 square miles and 2,000 inhabitants. Townships, as in other western States, are geographically, areas of land 6 miles square, each divided into 36 sections of one square mile, numbered on a uniform principle. When organised they are corporate bodies with a town-meeting, 3 supervisors, and other officers elected for one year. Incorporated villages have not less than 175 inhabitants; they form separate election and assessment districts and have each a village council. The State Capital is St. Paul.

Area, Population, Education.—Area 84,682 square miles, of which 3,824 square miles is water. This is exclusive of 2,514 square miles of Lake Superior. Census population on Jan. 1, 1920, 2,387,125.

The population at the date of each of the Federal Censuses was as follows :

Year	White	Coloured	Total	Per sq. mile
1890	1,296,408	13,875	1,310,283	16.2
1900	1,737,036	14,358	1,751,394	21.7
1910	2,059,227	16,481	2,075,708	25.7
1920	2,368,936	18,189	2,387,125	29.5

In 1920 the population by sex and race was :—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . .	1,235,723	4,851	4,958		1,245,537
Female . .	1,133,208	3,958	4,422		1,141,588
Total . .	2,368,936	8,809	619	8,761	2,387,125

The foreign born inhabitants in 1920 numbered 486,164 comprising 74,634 Germans, 112,117 Swedes, 90,188 Norwegians, 26,936 English Canadians, 10,289 Irish, 16,904 Danes, 6,796 French Canadians, and 10,958 English. The Indian Reservations in the State have an area (1920) of 865 square miles and contain 12,681 Indians.

The largest towns are Minneapolis with a population of 380,582 in 1920 ; St. Paul (the administrative capital), 234,680 ; Duluth, 98,917 ; Winona, 19,143 ; Hibbing, 15,089 ; St. Cloud, 15,873. Of the total population in 1920, 44.1 per cent. was urban.

The chief religious bodies are : Roman Catholic, Lutheran, Methodist, Presbyterian, and Baptist.

In 1921 the 8,834 public elementary schools of the State had 15,756 teachers and 444,854 enrolled pupils; 243 public high schools had 4,096 teachers and 60,253 pupils. For the instruction of teachers there were 6 public normal schools with 200 teachers and 4,000 pupils in 1921. Total expenditure on education in 1920, 38,358,555 dollars. The University of Minnesota at Minneapolis, founded in 1868, had 800 professors and 9,027 students in 1920. Hamline University, at St. Paul, founded in 1854, had 30 instructors and 418 students. St. John's (Roman Catholic) University, at Collegeville, founded in 1857, had 51 instructors and 420 students. Carleton College, at Northfield, founded in 1866, had 58 instructors and over 800 students in 1921.

Within the State there are (besides almshouses and asylums for the insane, &c.) 86 benevolent institutions, 74 of which have been provided by private persons or ecclesiastical bodies. They comprise 44 hospitals (seven public), three dispensaries (one public), 16 orphanages (one public), three day nurseries, 18 homes mainly for adults (one public), a school for the deaf and another for the blind (both public). On January 1, 1920, the number of paupers in almshouses was 856, being 33.1 per 100,000 of the population, and of prisoners in penal institutions, 1,289 (June 30, 1921), being 77.7 per 100,000 of the population.

Finance, Defence.—The revenue and expenditure for the year ending July 1, 1921, were:—

	Dollars
Balance on July 1, 1920	9,158,962
Receipts to June 30, 1921	54,370,555
Total	63,529,517
Payments to June 30, 1921	49,609,631
Balance July 1, 1921	13,919,886

State debt (1921), 20,199,800 dollars. The assessed value of property was (1920): 2,552,066,737 dollars.

The National Guard of the State of Minnesota on June 30, 1921, contained 4,502 officers and men.

Production and Industry.—Minnesota is largely an agricultural State. In 1920 it contained 178,478 farms with a total area of 30,221,758 acres, of which 21,481,710 acres was improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 3,787,420,118 dollars. In 1921, 3,427,000 acres of land under maize yielded 140,507,000 bushels. Other crops were wheat, 24,943,000 bushels; oats, 94,176,000 bushels; barley, 17,720,000 bushels; flax-seed, 2,726,000 bushels. On January 1, 1921, the farm animals included 932,794 horses, 2,080,469 milch cows, and 940,842 other cattle; 509,064 sheep, and 2,380,862 swine. In 1920 the wool-clip amounted to 3,536,000 pounds of wool. The total national forest area on June 30, 1921, was 1,047,857 acres.

The mining of iron ores, mostly red hematite, in the Mesabi and Vermilion ranges has reached great importance. Certain quarry products also are of value, viz., granite, sandstone, and limestone and clay products.

Other industries are connected with the traffic in cattle, sheep, and swine, while important manufacturing industries are the making of boots and shoes, clothing, furniture, metal goods, and machinery. According to the census of manufactures of 1914 there were in the State 5,974 manufacturing establishments with a total capital of 354,434,000 dollars, employing 92,834 wage-earners, who were paid in the year 22,084,000 dollars; the cost of raw material used was 336,849,000 dollars, and the output was valued at 493,345,000 dollars.

Minneapolis is an important centre of the grain trade. Duluth is the chief port on Lake Superior.

In 1920, Minnesota had 9,045 miles of railway, besides 732 miles of electric railway track (1919). From St. Paul 10 railways, with a total length of 64.517 miles radiate. The Great Northern Railway Company of St. Paul has a line of steamers which sail between Puget Sound and China, Japan, and the Philippines, the railway of the company carrying vast loads of merchandise from St. Paul to the port of shipment at very low freights.

On June 30, 1921, there were 1,160 State banks, 9 savings banks, 26 trust companies and 341 national banks.

Government.—The State was admitted into the Union on December 10, 1817. The Legislature consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives, both elected for four years.

Qualified as electors are all United States citizens who have resided in the State two years and in the election district for one year (clergymen for six months) next before the election, have paid the legal taxes, and have been registered. The applicant for registration must be able to read the State Constitution or show that he understands it when it is read to him.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and eight Representatives.

Governor.—Lee M. Russell, 1920–24 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—J. W. Power.

The State capital is Jackson (population in 1920, 22,679). Mississippi is divided into 79 counties.

Area, Population, Education.—Area 46,865 square miles, 503 square miles being water. Census population on January 1, 1920, 1,790,618.

The foreign-born inhabitants in 1920 numbered 8,019, of whom 929 were German, 1,841 Italian, and 412 Irish. In 1920 the urban population was 13·4 per cent. of the whole; the larger cities (with population in 1915) being: Meridian, 23,436; Vicksburg, 17,931; Hattiesburg, 13,270.

About half the church-going inhabitants of Mississippi are Baptists and one-third are Methodists. The remainder are mostly Roman Catholics, Presbyterians and Christians.

There is no law for compulsory attendance at school; white and coloured children are taught in separate schools. In 1918 the public elementary schools had 11,611 teachers (2,560 men and 9,051 women), 540,756 enrolled pupils. In 1918 172 public high schools had 1,041 teachers and 29,139 pupils. One public normal school in 1918 had 27 teachers and 837 students. For higher education Mississippi has 6 universities and colleges. These institutions comprise the University of Mississippi, established 1848, which in 1919 had 36 instructors and 601 students; Mississippi College (1826), Clinton (Bapt.), with 16 professors and 495 students; Rust University, for coloured students (1872), Holly Springs (M.E.), with 16 professors and 463 students; and Millsaps College (1892), Jackson (M.E.So.), with 15 professors and 320 students. The Agricultural and Mechanical College (founded 1880) has 61 professors and 1,200 students. The Alcorn Agricultural and Mechanical College for coloured youths has 25 professors and 456 students. The Mississippi Industrial Institute and College, founded in 1885 at Columbus for the education of the young women of the State, has 62 teachers and 816 students.

Charity.—Within the State are (apart from almshouses, &c.) 17 benevolent institutions, of which 13 have been provided by private persons or ecclesiastical bodies. They comprise six hospitals (two public), six orphanages, three homes, mainly for adults, a school for deaf, and one for blind children (both public). On January 1, 1910, the number of paupers in institutions was 436, being 24·3 per 100,000 of the population, and of prisoners in penal institutions, 2,283, being 127 per 100,000 of the population.

Finance.—The receipts and disbursements for the year ending Sept. 30, 1919, were as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance in hand Oct. 1, 1918 . . .	1,705,401
Receipts to Sept. 30, 1919 . . .	5,529,938
Total . . .	7,235,339
Disbursements to Sept. 30, 1919 . . .	5,837,692
Balance in hand October 1, 1919 . .	1,397,647

In 1919 the bonded debt of the State amounted to 8,443,254 dollars. According to the Council of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders the State has a defaulted debt of 7,000,000 dollars. For 1919 the assessed valuation of real property and personal property amounted to 649,644,340.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture is the chief industry of the State, which has a semi-tropical climate and a rich soil. In 1920 the farms numbered 272,101 with an area of 18,253,579 acres, of which 9,325,677 acres was improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 964,751,855 dollars. The chief product is cotton, which was grown on 2,668,000 acres, and yielded 70,000 bales in 1921, valued at 72,210,000 dollars. Other crops are maize, 57,096,000 bushels in 1921; rice, wheat, oats, potatoes. On January 1, 1921, there were in the State 256,000 horses, 312,000 mules, 571,000 milch cows, 680,000 other cattle, 149,000 sheep, and 1,783,000 swine. In 1920 the wool-clip yielded 550,000 lbs.

Though there are mineral deposits in Mississippi such as hydraulic limestone, coal, gypsum, and rich clay, there is no mining enterprise.

In 1914 there were 2,209 establishments engaged in the manufacturing industries; their aggregate capital amounted to 81,005,000 dollars; they employed 3,189 clerks, &c., and 46,702 wage-earners; the raw material used cost 41,340,000 dollars, and their output was valued at 79,500,000 dollars. The most important industries are associated with the products of the State, and statistics are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, p. 555.

The State in 1918 had 4,447 miles of railway, besides 97 miles of electric railway (1920). The railroads with greatest length of line in the State are the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley, the Illinois Central, the Southern, the Mobile and Jackson and Kansas City, the Mobile and Ohio, and the Gulf and Ship Island railways. The Mississippi river and the Gulf Coast provide natural facilities for transport.

In 1918, there were 11 savings banks in the State, with 15,000 depositors who had to their credit 4,493,451 dollars, being 299.56 dollars to each depositor.

MISSOURI.

Government.—Missouri was admitted to the Union on March 2, 1821. The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 34 members elected for four years (half their number retiring every two years), and House of Representatives of 142 members elected for two years.

The right of suffrage extends (with the usual exceptions) to all citizens and to aliens who, not less than one nor more than five years before the election, have declared their intention of becoming citizens; but all who vote must have been resident in the State one year, and in the county or city 60 days next before the election.

Missouri is represented in Congress by two Senators and 16 Representatives.

Governor.—Arthur M. Hyde, 1921-25 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Charles N. Becker.

The State is divided into 114 counties. Jefferson City is the State Capital.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area 69,420 square miles (693 square miles water). Census population on Jan. 1, 1920, 3,404,055.

On January 1, 1910, the number of paupers in almshouses was 2,388, being 72·5 per 100,000 of the population, and of prisoners in penal institutions 3,523, being 107 per 100,000 of the population.

Finance.—For the year 1921 the revenue and expenditure were:—

	Dollars
Balance, January 1, 1921	12,449,030
Receipts, 1921	32,086,559
Total	44,535,589
Disbursements, 1921	29,732,403
Balance, Jan. 1, 1922	14,803,186

On January 1, 1922, the bonded debt of the State amounted to 5,598,839 dollars (interest being payable to State funds). The assessed value of real property (1921) was 3,348,437,983 dollars; of personal property, 920,527,673 dollars.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture is the chief occupation in the State. In 1920 the number of farms was 263,004, with a farm area of 34,774,679 acres, of which 24,832,966 acres was improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1921 was 3,591,068,085 dollars. The chief crops are cereals. In 1921 the maize crop amounted to 182,880,000 bushels, wheat to 34,462,000 bushels, and oats 42,960,000 bushels. Potatoes and sorghum are grown throughout the State. In the south-eastern lowlands the important product is cotton, the area under which (1921) was 117,000 acres, and the yield 78,000 bales, valued at 5,850,000 dollars. In 1920, 6,000 acres were under flax, yielding 45,000 bushels of flax-seed. The acreage in 1921 under tobacco was 4,000, from which the crop was 3,700,000 pounds, valued at 740,000 dollars. There are many orchards, and small fruit is grown. Stock-raising is important, especially the raising of hogs, of which, on January 1, 1921, there were 4,047,000 in the State; there were also 873,000 milch cows, 1,659,000 other cattle, 1,388,000 sheep, and 1,030,000 horses. The wool-clip in 1920 yielded 8,296,000 pounds of wool.

Missouri leads all the other States in the production of zinc and lead. The productive coal-fields of Missouri have an area of about 14,000 square miles, and employ 11,104 miners. In 1920, 5,133,929 tons of coal were produced. Other minerals are zinc and lead. The lead ores at Mine La Motte, Missouri, contain cobalt and nickel. Other products are Portland cement, grindstones, pig-iron, copper, blue and white lead, limestone, sandstone, and granite.

Missouri has prosperous manufacturing industries, the more important of which depend on agriculture and forestry. In 1914 there were 8,386 industrial establishments; the capital invested in all the industries of the State amounted to 522,548,000 dollars; the number of persons employed in them (including proprietors, clerks, and wage-earners) was 188,266, and the year's output was valued at 637,952,000 dollars. The chief industries, with their capital, their wage-earners, and their output in 1910, are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, p. 558.

St. Louis and Kansas City are important centres of the traffic in grain and live stock.

In the State there were in 1918, 8,193 miles of railway, besides 1,166 miles of electric railway track (1920). The northern portion of the State is better supplied with railways than the southern. The principal lines in the State are the Missouri Pacific, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé; the St. Louis and San Francisco; and the St. Louis South Western. St. Louis is the terminal for the larger river steamers, and there is a heavy traffic between it and the Gulf of Mexico. The market for the grain and animal produce of the Western States is largely reached via Missouri.

There is a British Vice-Consul at Kansas City and another at St. Louis.

Balance on July 1, 1921	3,061,305
Receipts, 1921	9,530,931
Total	12,592,236
Disbursements, 1921	8,773,367
Balance, December 31, 1921	3,818,869

The bonded debt of the State on January 1, 1922, was 6,077,576 dollars. The assessed valuation of real property was 996,499,612 dollars, and of personal property in 1921 was 585,857,064 dollars.

Production and Industry.—Montana has considerable undeveloped agricultural and mineral resources, and opportunity is offered to prospective settlers of acquiring land and becoming permanent residents. In 1920 there were 57,677 farms with an area of 35,070,656 acres, of which 11,007,278 acres was improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 985,961,308 dollars. In 1920 there were 10,807 farms irrigated. The area irrigated was 1,071,769 acres, but the enterprises were capable of irrigating 2,647,419 acres. The total forest area in 1920 was 5,942,821 acres. Lands open to homestead entry in 1915 aggregated 19,065,121 acres; in June 1920 there were open to entry only 5,973,741 acres.

The chief crop is wheat, amounting in 1921 to 28,168,000 bushels, and worth 23,943,000 dollars; oats, 10,787,000 bushels, value 3,668,000 dollars; barley, 1,200,000 bushels, value 720,000 dollars; flax seed, 1,125,000 bushels, value 1,575,000 dollars; potatoes, 5,060,000 bushels, value 4,048,000 dollars; hay, 1,881,000 tons, value 16,365,000 dollars. Fruit is now very widely cultivated in the State; there were 1,161,441 fruit-bearing trees in 1920. The raising of sheep, cattle, &c., is a very important industry. Montana has more sheep and produces more wool than any other State in the Union. The wool-clip in 1920 yielded 15,800,000 pounds of wool. On January 1, 1921, there were 2,450,000 sheep; horses, 520,000; milch cows, 185,000; other cattle, 918,000; swine, 200,000.

Montana has great mineral resources, including coal (3,964,286 tons in 1920), copper, lead, gold, silver, zinc, tungsten, grindstones, corundum, mineral waters, and sapphires.

The manufacturing industries of the State are prosperous. In 1914 there were 939 manufacturing establishments. The salaried officials numbered 1,827. Their wage-earners, 13,704. The wages paid amounted to 13,001,000 dollars; the salaries paid, to 2,779,000 dollars; the cost of materials used, to 46,744,000 dollars; the value of output, to 84,446,000 dollars; value added by manufacture, to 37,702,000 dollars. By far the most important of the industries is the smelting and refining of copper, but details of copper and some other works are necessarily withheld. Details of other industries are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, p. 561.

In 1920 there were 6,914 miles of railway in the State, besides (1920) 856 miles of electric railway. The telegraph lines had a length of 9,556 miles, and the telephone lines 5,384 miles.

In Nov. 1920, the total resources of all State and national banks doing business in Montana were 230,694,195 dollars, compared with 114,742,763 dollars in 1915. Their combined deposits in Nov. 1920, were 165,108,266 dollars compared with 85,654,485 dollars in 1915.

NEBRASKA.

The Nebraska region was first reached by white men from Mexico under the Spanish general Coronado in 1541. It was explored by French for traders in the period 1700-1800, and claimed by France, Spain and England in the early colonial period, ceded by France to Spain in 1763, retroceded to France in 1801, and sold by Napoleon to the United States as part of the Louisiana purchase in 1803. Fort Atkinson on the Missouri River, the farthest western post of the United States, was established in 1819, abandoned in 1827. Bellevue, the present oldest continuous settlement, was established by French fur traders about 1820. The creation of Nebraska territory was part of the programme of the United States government in 1844 as a step in establishing a military highway to hold Oregon, then in controversy with Great Britain. On May 30, 1854, Nebraska became a territory and on March 1, 1867, a State. "Arbor Day," now a world-wide institution observed with planting of trees, originated in Nebraska on January 4, 1872.

Government.—The Legislature consists of a Senate of 33 members and a House of Representatives of 100 members. The Legislators are elected for two years. The franchise extends only to native born citizens, including women, and to persons of foreign birth, who shall become citizens of the United States by naturalisation at least thirty days prior to an election. Voters must have resided in the State for six months, in the county for 40 days, in the precinct for ten days next before the election.

The present constitution was adopted in 1875. Important amendments adopted in 1912 provide for legislation through the initiative and referendum, for a State Board of Control over sixteen State institutions, for biennial instead of annual elections, and permit cities of more than 5,000 inhabitants to frame their own charters.

Nebraska is represented in Congress by two Senators and six Representatives.

Governor.—S. R. McKelvie, 1921-23 (2,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—D. M. Amsberry.

There are 93 counties in the State. The State Capital is Lincoln.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area 77,510 square miles, of which 702 square miles is water. The population in decennial census years from 1880 was :—

Years	Population	Per sq. mile	Years	Population	Per sq. mile
1880	452,402	5.9	1910	1,192,214	15.5

Balance, November 30, 1920	681,230

The State has no debt. In 1919 the assessed valuation of real and personal property (under a law requiring the assessed value to be 20% of the actual value) amounted to 568,456,926 dollars, of which 212,697,098 dollars was personal, and 355,759,828 dollars real property.

Production and Industry.—Nebraska is one of the most important agricultural States. In 1920 it contained 124,421 farms with a total area of 42,338,836 acres, of which 24,587,786 acres was improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 4,193,825,242 dollars. The Federal irrigation district in Western Nebraska embraces 300,000 acres, two-thirds of which is already under water. The principal crops are cereals, hay, potatoes, and apples. In 1921 the yield of maize was 207,732,000 bushels; wheat, 59,875,000 bushels; oats, 70,054,000 bushels. Beet-sugar is also produced, 125,000,000 pounds being the estimate for 1916. The live-stock industry is pursued on a large scale. On January 1, 1921, the State contained 965,000 horses, 99,000 mules, 560,000 milch cows, 2,650,000 other cattle, 290,000 sheep, and 3,063,000 swine. From 236,000 sheep in 1920 the wool-clip yielded 1,886,000 pounds of wool.

Nebraska has some quarries and mines. The more important of these are sand quarries, limestone quarries, potash plants, and brick and tile plants. There are also possibilities of oil and gas. The Nebraska potash industry is the largest in the United States.

The most important manufacturing industries are associated with the pastoral and agricultural produce of the State. In 1914 there were 2,492 manufacturing establishments in the State; their aggregate capital amounted to 121,008,000 dollars; the persons owning or working them (proprietors, firm members, clerks, &c., and wage-earners) numbered 33,695; the material used cost 174,114,000 dollars, and the output was valued at 221,616,000 dollars. The chief of these industries is slaughtering and meat-packing, which has its centre at South Omaha. Statistics of four industries are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, p. 564.

Other industries are printing and publishing, soap and candle making, brick and tile work, smelting, sugar manufacture, &c. The Alkali Lakes of Nebraska have become the largest producers of potash for the American market. The estimated production in 1918 was 15,000 tons.

In 1918 there were 8,332 miles of railway in the State, besides the 301 miles of electric railway track (1920). Omaha is a centre whence 9 trunk lines of railway radiate. Commercial navigation of the Missouri river, which was abandoned for 35 years, has been resumed, steamboats and barges carrying grain and live stock ply between Omaha and Sioux City every week.

In September, 1919, there were 999 State banks and 176 National banks in the State, with total resources of 1,032,365,000 dollars. In June, 1918, there were also 19 savings banks with 19,940 depositors, who had to their credit 4,357,988 dollars, being 218.55 dollars to each depositor.

There is a British Vice-Consul at Omaha.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Government.—New Hampshire was one of the thirteen original States of the Union. The sense of the people as to the calling of a convention for the revision of the Constitution must be taken every seven years. If a convention is held the amendments to the Constitution which it proposes must be laid before the people, and approved by two-thirds of the qualified voters present and voting on the subject. The Legislature consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. The Senate consists of 24 members, elected for two years. The House of Representatives consists of from 419 to 422 members, the number varying slightly with each session, as representation is on the basis of population. Electors are all citizens 21 years of age, resident six months in the place to be represented, able to read and write, duly registered and not under sentence for crime or paupers.

Governor.—Albert O. Brown, 1921–23 (3,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Edwin C. Bean.

New Hampshire is represented in the Federal Congress by 2 Senators and 2 Representatives. The State is divided into 10 counties. The State Capital is Concord.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area 9,341 square miles, of which 310 square miles is water. Census population on Jan. 1, 1920, 443,083.

The population at the date of the Federal censuses was as follows:—

1900	410,791	797	411,588	45·6
1910	429,906	666	430,572	47·7
1920	442,331	752	443,083	49·1

In 1920 the population by sex and race was:—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . .	221,667	333	112		222,112
Female . .	220,664	288	19		220,971
Total . .	442,331	621	103	28	443,083

Of the total population in 1920, 91,233 were foreign born, of whom 1,886 were Swedes, 3,467 Russians, 1,714 Germans, 4,367 English, 7,908 Irish, 52,274 Canadian.

The largest city of the State is Manchester, with a population of 78,384 in 1920. Other cities are Nashua, 28,379; Concord (capital), 22,167; Dover, 13,629; Berlin, 16,014; Portsmouth, 13,569; Laconia, 10,897; Keene, 11,210; Rochester, 9,673. Of the population in 1920, 63·1 per cent. was urban.

The prevailing form of religion is the Roman Catholic, which has 63 per cent. of the Church membership; other bodies are Congregational, Baptist, Methodist, and Protestant Episcopal. Religious instruction is not given in the public schools. The Roman Catholics maintain parochial schools in all the cities and some of the large towns.

The State law requires that at least 36 weeks of schooling must be provided in every town annually. School attendance is compulsory for children from 8 to 14 years of age during the whole school term; and if they have not completed the elementary grades the school age extends to 16. In 1920 the public elementary schools of the State had 2,648 teachers, and 64,205 enrolled pupils; 86 public high schools had 673 teachers and 13,055 pupils. The 2 normal schools had 31 teachers and 286 students in 1920. The principal colleges within the State are Dartmouth College, at Hanover, founded in 1769, and the New Hampshire College of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts, at Durham, founded in 1868. They are non-sectarian. Dartmouth had (1919) 125 instructors and 1,127 students; the State College 62 instructors and 659 students. Expenditure on Education in 1920, 3,960,075 dollars.

On August 31, 1918, the number of paupers in almshouses was 754, and of prisoners in penal institutions in 1918, 140.

¹ Fiscal year changed in 1921 to end June 30.

The net indebtedness on June 30, 1921, amounted to 2,314,306 dollars. The assessed value in 1919 of real property was 419,417,059 dollars and of personal property 121,736,955 dollars.

The militia of the State, called the New Hampshire State Guard, consists of artillery and infantry.

There is no federal naval establishment within the State, though the navy yard at Kittery, Me., is known as the Portsmouth Navy Yard, because Portsmouth, N.H., is its port of entry.

Production and Industry.—The majority of the population is employed in agriculture, but manufacturing interests are not far behind. The total land area of the State is 5,779,840 acres, of which 1,441,000 acres are cultivated, 720,000 acres uncultivated, and 3,602,000 acres under forest. In 1920 there were 20,523 farms with a total acreage of 2,603,806 acres, or 126.8 acres to each farm, and of this 702,902 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 118,656,115 dollars. The chief crops are (1921) in order of importance, hay (428,000 tons), corn (1,325,000 bushels), potatoes (2,240,000 bushels), oats (630,000 bushels); the chief fruit crop is apples. On January 1, 1921, the farm animals in the State were 39,000 horses, 101,000 milch cows, 70,000 other cattle, 31,000 sheep, and 57,000 swine. In 1920 the wool-clip yielded 204,000 pounds.

Minerals are little worked, but granite and mica are quarried, and mineral waters and scythe stones are worked.

The manufacturing interests, aside from forest products, are largely confined to the Southern part of the State. In 1914 the capital invested in manufactures amounted to 156,749,000 dollars; the wage-earners numbered 78,993; the raw materials used were valued at 114,993,000 dollars, and the output at 182,844,000 dollars. Boots and shoes rank first, followed by cotton and woollen goods. An important occupation in the State is the summer entertainment of guests in the mountain and lake regions.

The Boston and Maine Railroad owns or leases all the steam railroad lines within the State except the Grand Trunk in the extreme north. In 1918 the length of steam railway in the State was 1,253 miles, and of electric railway in 1920, 251 miles.

In 1919 there were 11 savings banks in the State, with 29,308 depositors, who had to their credit 10,857,000 dollars, being 370 dollars to each depositor. There were also 45 mutual savings banks, with 215,028 depositors, who had to their credit 110,241,000 dollars, being 512 dollars to each depositor.

There is no State debt.

The military forces of the State consist of four battalions of State militia of 1,500 men, and 1 regiment of infantry of 1,000 men of the National guard. There is a State camp ground and rifle range at Sea Girt on the Atlantic Ocean.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture, market-gardening, fruit-growing, horticulture, and forestry are pursued within the State. In 1920 New Jersey had 29,702 farms with a total area of 2,282,585 acres, of which 1,555,607 acres was improved land. The value of all farm property in 1920 was 311,847,948 dollars. In 1921 the chief crop was maize, acreage 241,000, producing 11,327,000 bushels, valued at 6,003,000 dollars; of hay there was an acreage of 300,000 acres, producing 396,000 short tons, valued at 7,128,000 dollars. The yield of potatoes in 1921 was 9,025,000 bushels. The farm animals on January 1, 1921, comprised 87,000 horses, 151,000 milch cows, 73,000 other cattle, 29,000 sheep, and 182,000 swine. In 1920 the wool clip yielded 109,000 pounds.

New Jersey has valuable fisheries, the lakes and streams being stocked with trout, perch, black bass, &c., while there are shad, menhaden, and sturgeon fisheries on the Delaware River and Bay and round the coast. Value of shell fish for the year ending September 1919, 6,700,000 dollars.

The mineral deposits consist of magnetic iron, zinc, manganese, talc, soap-stone, and graphite. Clay and clay-products led in 1918 with a total output valued at 21,837,396 dollars; the chief product being sanitary ware, in which New Jersey is pre-eminent. New Jersey ranks second in the production of zinc ore; it mined 668,449 tons in 1918. The iron ore mined in 1918 was valued at 1,945,651 dollars. The chief stone quarried is trap rock, the total output in 1918 being valued at 1,475,358 dollars. Limestone was also quarried to the value of 674,397 dollars. In 1918 sand and gravel to the value of 2,462,864 dollars was produced. New Jersey also produces Portland cement, coke, lead and zinc pigments, mineral waters, peat, green-sand marl (from which potash salts are being made), and other products of minor importance.

The manufacturing industries within the State are prosperous. In 1918, the manufacturing establishments numbered 3,216 and employed 499,279 wage-earners; the raw material used was valued at 1,834,560,122 dollars, and the output at 2,990,939,855 dollars. The principal industries (with value of output in 1918) are oil refining (1918, 328,120,677 dollars), high explosives (197,074,042 dollars), foundry and machinery (184,085,155 dollars), silk goods (120,075,052 dollars), chemical products (189,117,335 dollars), drawn wire and wire cloth (93,350,127 dollars).

In 1918, according to State statistics, there were 44 establishments for canning fruit and vegetables, employing 4,610 persons, who packed 4,134,117 pounds of fruit, and 144,727,505 pounds of vegetables, of a total value of 5,797,094 dollars.

In 1919 the length of railroad within the State was 2,461 miles; electric railway track, 1,593 miles; the length of canals was 175 miles.

On June 30, 1919, there were 27 savings banks in the State with 374,839 depositors who had to their credit 173,756,000 dollars, being 465.55 dollars to each depositor. There are 24 State Banks having time deposits amounting to 12,619,889 dollars; and trust companies having 767,239 depositors and 372,282,783 dollars on deposit.

NEW MEXICO.

Constitution and Government.—New Mexico from the time of its discovery by Europeans was politically associated with Mexico. On May 11, 1846, the Mexican war began; when peace was made February 2, 1848, New Mexico was recognised as belonging to the United States. On September 9, 1850, the Organic Act of the Territory was passed by the United States Congress. The boundaries of the Territory had been made to include part of Texas, but Utah was formed into a separate Territory; in 1861 part of New Mexico was transferred to Colorado, and in 1863 Arizona was disjoined, leaving to New Mexico its present area. On June 20, 1910, Congress passed an Enabling Act permitting the Territory of New Mexico to frame a State Constitution, and in November, 1911, New Mexico was admitted to Statehood.

The State legislature consists of 24 members of the Senate and 49 members of the House of Representatives.

Governor.—M. C. Mechem, 1921–23 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Manuel Martinez.

For local government the State is divided into 29 counties. The administrative capital of the State is Santa Fé, population (as shown by the census of 1920), 7,236.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 122,634 square miles (131 square miles being water area). Census population on January 1, 1920, 360,350.

In five census years the population was :—

Years	Population	Per sq. mile	Years	Population	Per sq. mile
1880	119,565	1.0	1910	327,301	2.7
1890	160,282	1.3	1920	360,350	2.6
1900	195,310	1.6

In 1920 the population by sex and race was :—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	175,350	4,593	10,513		190,456
Female	159,323	1,140	9,431		169,894
Total	334,673	5,733	432	19,512	360,350

In 1920 29,077 were foreign-born, of whom 1,178 were Germans, 19,906 Mexicans, 888 English, 423 Austrians, and 1,678 Italians.

Of the total population in 1920, 18 per cent. was urban.

The largest towns are Albuquerque, with population of 15,157 in 1920; Raton, 5,544; Roswell, 7,062; and Santa Fé with 7,236. Indian reservations with an area of 6,287 square miles in 1920, have Indian population of 21,530, chiefly Navaho, Apache, and Pueblo (or town) Indians.

The prevailing form of religion is Roman Catholic, but various Protestant bodies have schools and churches within the State. Religious instruction in public schools is prohibited by law, but boards of directors may open school-houses for the use of religious societies, &c., at times outside the regular school hours.

Elementary education is free, and all children between 6 and 16 years of age are compelled to attend school. The use of the English language is enforced in schools. There are (1920) 1,430 public elementary schools in the State with 81,399 enrolled pupils, and 2,752 teachers; and 71 public high schools with 257 teachers and 3,870 pupils in 1920. Besides, there are 26 Indian schools with 2,291 pupils, and 141 teachers (maintained by the Federal Government). Three public normal schools had 60 teachers and 2,009 students. Total expenditure on education (1920), 3,301,712 dollars. For special and higher instruction there are various institutions; a College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, founded in 1890, with 40 professors and 386 students, a School of Mines, founded at Socorro in 1895, with 8 professors and 34 students, a Military Institute, an Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, an Orphans' School, and a Reform School. At Albuquerque is the University of New Mexico, founded in 1891; it has 25 professors and 531 students in 1919. The State schools are maintained by funds assigned by the State Government, and by the proceeds of the school tax levied by the commissioners of each county, municipality and district.

Finance.—For the year ending November 30, 1921, the revenue and expenditure were as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, December 1, 1920	2,594,070
Receipts for year 1920-21	7,489,134
Total	10,083,204
Disbursements for year 1920-21	6,638,694
Balance, December 1, 1921	3,444,510

The total bonded indebtedness of the State on June 30, 1921, was 3,997,500 dollars. The assessed value of real and personal property in 1921 was 363,721,981 dollars.

Production and Industry.—New Mexico produces cereals, vegetables, fruit, and cotton. The principal crops in 1921 were: maize, 6,409,000 bushels; wheat, 3,088,000 bushels; potatoes, 296,000 bushels. Irrigation, which is indispensable over wide tracks of fertile country, is extending, in 1911 the irrigated area had reached 750,000 acres. The Rio Grande project provides for reservoir construction for the irrigation of 180,000 acres in New Mexico and Texas. Private enterprise also is devoted largely to reservoir and canal construction. In 1920 there were 29,844 farms with an area of 24,409,633 acres, of which 1,717,224 acres was improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 325,185,999 dollars. The farm animals on January 1, 1921, comprised 225,000 horses, 91,000 milch cows, 1,406,000 other cattle, 2,666,000 sheep, and 85,000 swine. In 1920 the wool-clip amounted to 15,528,000 pounds of wool. The national forest area (1917) covers 8,381,768 acres, and there are about 4,000,000 acres of heavily forested country in private ownership.

The State has valuable mineral resources, comprising gold, silver, copper, coal (3,348,217 tons were produced in 1920), lead, and zinc. The quarries yield granite, sandstone, limestone, and marble. Turquoise is profitably worked in four localities within the State; the sands contain traces of platinum.

The manufactured output of New Mexico in 1914 amounted to the value of 9,320,000 dollars, of which nearly half was for car construction and repair by railway companies. The industries next in importance are lumber and timber work, and flour and grist milling. There are also woollen mills and cement works. The aggregate capital of all industries was 8,984,000 dollars; the number of wage-earners was 3,776, earning in a year 2,695,000 dollars, and the cost of materials used was 4,430,000 dollars.

In 1918 there were 2,978 miles of railway and 11 miles of electric railway track within the State (1920).

NEW YORK STATE.

Constitution and Government.—From 1609 to 1664 the region now called New York was under the sway of the Dutch; then it came under the rule of the English, who governed the country till the outbreak of the War of Independence. Between July 9, 1776, and April 20, 1777, a Convention framed a Constitution under which New York was transformed into an independent State, afterwards, in 1788, entering the Union as one of the 13 original States.

The legislative authority is vested in a Senate of 51 members elected every two years, and an Assembly of 150 members elected annually. There are annual sessions.

The right of suffrage resides in every citizen 21 years of age, who has been a citizen for 90 days, and has resided in the State for a year preceding the election. A voter must also have resided four months in the county, and 30 days in the election district.

The question whether there shall be a Convention to revise the Constitution has to be submitted to the people every 20 years, beginning with 1916, 'and also at such times as the Legislature may by law provide.'

The State is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 43 Representatives.

Governor.—Nathan L. Miller, 1921–23 (10,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—John J. Lyons.

The seat of the State executive is at Albany.

For local government the State is divided into 62 counties.

Cities are in 3 classes, the first class having each over 175,000 inhabitants and the third under 50,000. Each is incorporated by charter, under special legislation. The government of New York City is vested in a board of Aldermen, elected for 2 years. Its members are the President, elected by the city; the presidents of the 5 city boroughs (Bronx, Manhattan, Brooklyn, Queens, and Richmond); 67 aldermen, one elected in each of the 67 districts, constituting a board of 73 members. The chief executive officer is the Mayor, elected for 4 years; he appoints all the heads of departments, except the Comptroller, who is elected by the city.

Area, Population.—Area 49,204 square miles (1,550 square miles being water). Census population on January 1, 1920, 10,384,829. Population in census years :—

Of the total population in 1920, 82·7 per cent. was urban. Indian reservations in 1920 covered an area of 137 square miles and had a population of 6,432.

In 1915 the death-rate in cities was 14·8 per 1,000 of population, in rural districts 15·5; in the whole State, 15·6.

The chief churches are Roman Catholic, Methodist, Presbyterian, Protestant Episcopal, and Baptist.

Education.—Education is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 16. Instruction in physical training and kindred subjects of all pupils above 8 years of age in the elementary and secondary schools of the State is made compulsory by an amendment of 1916 to the Education Law. In 1919-20 the children enrolled in the 11,824 public schools numbered 1,719,559; the number of teachers was 54,253. There were 978 public high schools and academies with 207,372 pupils and 8,705 teachers. There were 10 public normal schools with 371 teachers and 7,370 students. There were 132 vocational schools employing 1,423 teachers with 76,250 pupils. Total expenditure on education in 1920 was 151,899,914 dollars. There were 132 universities, colleges, professional and technical schools with 6,232 professors and teachers, and 62,129 students.

The University of the State of New York is governed by a Board of Regents, whose members are at all times three more than the existing judicial districts of the State—at present 9 districts and 12 Regents. The University is the State Education Department. The Regents elect by ballot the President of the University and the Commissioner of Education.

The names, year of foundation, and numbers of instructors and students in 15 of the 46 colleges and universities in 1919-20 were as follows :—

The total funded debt of the State, June 30, 1920, amounted to 236,024,000 dollars. The assessed value of real property in 1920 was 12,625,190,013 dollars; of personal property 364,248,720 dollars; total, 12,989,433,733 dollars.

The City of New York, January 1, 1920, had a gross bonded debt of 1,238,260,597 dollars.

Defence.—Under the provisions of the Military Law of the State a new active organisation was created September 1st, 1917, to take the place of the National Guard then in the Federal service. This was known as the New York Guard. Since the return of the National Guard divisions from France, the formation of a new National Guard, under Federal regulations, has made steady progress, until of the aggregate enlisted and commissioned strength of 20,079 in the organised militia on September 1st, 1921, 17,830 were federalised National Guard, and 2,249 New York Guard, which will be further reduced by federalisation of its organisations as they comply with Federal regulations.

In the same way the Naval Militia, while it was never federalised in the same sense as the National Guard, was actually in the Federal service as a part of the Naval Reserve. On September 1st, 1921, the new Naval Militia included 2,056 officers and men.

Production, Industry, Commerce.—New York has large agricultural interests. In 1920 it contained 193,195 farms of a total area of 20,632,803 acres, of which 13,158,781 acres was improved land. The total value of all farm property was 1,908,483,201 dollars. Common agricultural crops are raised; market-gardening, fruit-growing, sugar-beet production, and tobacco culture are pursued. In 1921 the crops comprised corn, 36,708,000 bushels; wheat, 8,747,000 bushels; oats, 24,912,000 bushels, besides potatoes, hay, and other products. The area under tobacco was 2,000 acres; the yield, 2,500,000 pounds. Beet sugar is produced. The farm animals on January 1, 1921, comprised 536,171 horses, 7,323 mules, 2,081,074 dairy cattle, and 63,170 other cattle, 578,726 sheep, and 600,560 swine. The wool-clip in 1920 yielded 3,044,650 pounds of wool.

Other productive industries are mining and quarrying. In 1919 the mines within the State yielded 710,326 tons of iron ore, valued at 4,037,215 dollars. The output of gypsum in 1919 was 591,153 tons, valued at 3,530,743 dollars. Salt produced amounted to 13,913,064 barrels valued at 7,159,547 dollars. Mineral springs yielded 6,537,966 gallons, valued at 815,615 dollars. The output of Portland cement was 4,441,250 barrels, valued at 7,700,406 dollars. The output of talc was 62,495 tons, valued at 750,565 dollars. The quarry products of granite, trap rock, sandstone, marble, limestone, and lime was valued at 6,988,735 dollars. The value of brick, tile, and pottery was estimated at 13,000,000 dollars. The yield of crude petroleum in 1919 was estimated at 906,000 barrels, valued at 5,436,000 dollars; the value of natural gas produced in 1919 at 6,000,000 dollars. The State also produces crystalline quartz, diatomaceous earth, emery, feldspar, garnet, graphite, millstones, molding sand, pyrite, slate, slip clay, and zinc. The total value of mineral output in 1919 was estimated at 58,000,000 dollars.

Manufacturing Industries.—The statistics of the manufacturing industries of New York State according to the census results of 1905 and 1910 are summarised thus:—

		1905	1910
Establishments	Number	37,194	44,985

Value of output	"	2,488,345,579	3,369,490,000

For the more important industries (or groups of industries), judged by the value of output in 1910, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1917, p. 572.

In 1920 there were 2,093 newspapers, &c., of which 208 were dailies, 971 weekly, 27 semi-weekly, 7 tri-weekly, 713 monthly, 46 semi-monthly, 28 bi-monthly, 69 quarterly, and 13 miscellaneous. In English 1,874 were published; of the foreign languages there were 28 in Spanish, 24 in Italian, 22 each in German and Yiddish, 12 in Hungarian, 11 in Polish, 10 in French, 7 in Bohemian, 6 each in Arabic, Greek, Portuguese and Swedish, 5 in Russian, 4 each in Lithuanian, Slovak and Slovenian, 3 in Chinese, Croatian, Finnish and Serbian, 2 each in Albanian, Hebrew, Japanese, Judæo-Spanish, Swiss, Welsh, 1 each in Armenian, Danish, Lettish, Norwegian, Persian, Roumanian and Ukrainian.

New York City now ranks as the first shipping port of the world. The imports, including specie and bullion, during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, amounted to the value of 2,904,648,933 dollars, and the exports to the value of 3,383,638,588 dollars. The exports consist largely of grain, flour, cotton, sugar, tobacco, apples and other fruits, preserved provisions, cattle, and frozen meat. Most of the great railway lines which bring merchandise from the west have their terminals on the New Jersey side of the harbour, but there are ample facilities for the transfer of goods to the docks on the eastern side by means of lighters and of barges which carry the loaded cars across.

In 1920 the bank clearings in New York City amounted to 252,338,249,466 dollars.

In New York State there were in 1918 8,389 miles of railway track and 5,772 miles (1920) of single track electric railway. The canals of the State, used for commercial purposes, have a length of 638 miles, of which the Erie canal has 361 miles. The State Barge Canal to connect New York City with Buffalo by means of a deep water route of 790 miles, having a minimum depth of 12 feet, is completed. It has a capacity of 20,000,000 tons per season.

In the year ending Nov. 30, 1920, there were 141 savings banks in the State, with total resources of 2,588,328,940 dollars, and total deposits of 2,318,328,940 dollars.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Government.—North Carolina is one of the thirteen original States of the Union. The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 50 members, and a House of Representatives of 120 members, elected for two years.

All citizens of the United States, resident in the State one year, and in the county six months next before the election, and registered, have a vote. For registration, the requirement is ability to read any section of the Constitution in the English language.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and ten Representatives.

Governor.—Cameron Morrison, 1921–25 (6,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—J. Bryan Grimes.

North Carolina is divided into 100 counties. The State Capital is Raleigh.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 52,426 square miles, of which 3,686 square miles is water. Population of census in 1920, 2,559,123.

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per sq. mile
1820	419,200	219,629	638,829	13.2
1900	1,269,341	624,469	1,893,810	38.9
1910	1,508,444	697,843	2,206,287	45.3
1920	1,795,716	763,407	2,559,123	51.8

In 1920 the population by sex and birth was:—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	899,081	373,965	94	5,972	1,279,062
Female	884,748	389,442	19	5,852	1,280,061
Total	1,783,779	763,407	113	11,824	2,559,123

Of the total in 1920, 7,099 were foreign-born, 703 being German and 967 English. Urban population formed 19.3 per cent. of the whole. Cities (with population in 1920) are: Charlotte, 46,338; Winston-Salem, 48,395; Wilmington, 33,372; Durham, 21,719; Asheville, 28,504; Raleigh, (capital), 27,076; Greensboro, 19,861. Indian reservations in 1920 covered an area of 98 square miles and had a population of 8,268.

About half of the church members are Baptist, and one-third Methodist. The others are mostly Presbyterian, Lutheran, or Protestant Episcopal.

School attendance is compulsory. Separate schools are provided for white and for coloured children. In 1920 the 7,557 public elementary schools of the State had 16,854 teachers, and 691,249 enrolled pupils. There were 455 public high schools with 982 teachers and 30,868 pupils in 1920. Teachers are trained in 9 public normal schools, with 105 teachers and 1,362 students in 1911. Total expenditure in 1920, 12,214,258 dollars.

Higher instruction is given in 15 university and college institutions, the more important of which are the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill (founded in 1795) in 1921 with 110 professors and 1,650 students; and the Agricultural and Engineering College at West Raleigh (founded in 1889) with 94 professors and 1,032 pupils. Higher education for young women is given in the State College for Women (Greensboro) which, in 1921, had 107 professors and 960 students. There are large sectarian colleges, and also schools and colleges for coloured youths.

Charity.—North Carolina has a State Board of Charities and Public Welfare. The county is the unit. Each county has a Superintendent of Public Welfare and a juvenile court to care for the children. These are compulsory in every county of the State. There are three hospitals for the insane, one for negroes, two for whites; a school for the blind and deaf of each race; a school for the white feeble-minded children and women under thirty; a reform school for white boys; a training school for delinquent girls and women; and epileptic colonies at the hospitals for the insane. A hospital-school for crippled children is in course of construction. The State also maintains a home for Confederate Veterans and a home for Confederate women.

Child-caring institutions are private, but must be licensed and inspected by the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare. Maternity homes and societies for children are also under this law. Twenty-five institutions and societies have been licensed.

Private hospitals for the care and treatment of insane, feeble-minded, and inebriates must be licensed. Five are so licensed.

The poor are cared for in County Homes. At the close of the fiscal year 1930, the number of inmates reported was 1,471.

Finance.—The State had receipts and disbursements in the year ending November 30, 1920, as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, December 1, 1920	1,039,543
Receipts, 1919-20	26,944,237
Total	27,983,780
Disbursements, 1919-20	25,069,879
Balance, December 1, 1920	2,913,901

In 1920 the outstanding debt amounted to 11,513,400 dollars. The assessed value of personal and real property in 1920 was 3,158,480,072 dollars. According to the Council of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders the State has a defaulted debt estimated at 12,600,000 dollars. The State declares these bonds to have been fraudulently and corruptly issued during reconstruction days.

Production and Industry.—The chief occupation of the inhabitants of the State is agriculture. In 1920 the State had 269,763 farms, while the area of the farm land was 20,021,736 acres, of which 8,198,409 acres was improved land. The total value of all farm products in 1920 was 1,250,166,995 dollars. Wheat and maize are grown, the yield of the former in 1921 having been 4,500,000 bushels, and of the latter, 49,254,000 bushels. The chief crop, however, is cotton, of which the area for 1921 was 1,491,000 acres, and the yield 800,000 bales (of 500 pounds gross weight). Another important product is tobacco, grown on 582,000 acres, which yielded in 1920, 384,120,000 pounds, valued at 97,182,000 dollars. Other products are peanuts, potatoes, oats, and rye. The rice crop in 1920 amounted to 10,000 bushels. Stock-raising is not important, but there is a growing dairy industry. On January 1, 1921, the farm animals were 179,000 horses, 231,000 mules, 331,000 milch cows, 386,000 other cattle, 138,000 sheep, and 1,528,000 swine. The wool-clip in 1920 yielded 420,000 lbs.

In the eastern portion of the State there are shad and oyster fisheries, both valuable.

Minerals in great variety, but not in large quantities, are found in the State, the chief being mica, iron, talc, and soapstone barytes, feldspar, coal, phosphate rock, gold, silver, sand and gravel. The quarries yield granite, limestone, and sandstone. Monazite and zircon, used in the manufacture of incandescent light mantles, are also found.

The prosperity of North Carolina is associated chiefly with cotton, tobacco, and lumber, but within the State a variety of other industries are pursued. The value of the output of all manufactures in the State in 1918 was put at 658,547,476 dollars.

The chief seaport is Wilmington, the exports from which, in 1919, amounted to 33,941,084 dollars, nearly all for cotton grown in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Alabama, and shipped mostly to Bremen, Liverpool, and Ghent. Harbour improvements are in progress.

The State has several navigable rivers; in 1919 it contained 4,954 miles of steam railway, and 285 miles of electric railway track. The chief railway lines are the Atlantic coastline, the Seaboard Air line, the Southern railway, and the Norfolk and Southern railway, the latter being formed by the union of about half-a-dozen independent lines.

In 1921, deposits in savings banks amounted to 80,366,033 dollars.

There is a British Vice-Consul at Wilmington.

Balance in hand, June 30, 1921	3,054,390

Bonded debt on July 1, 1921, 2,367,300 dollars; assessed valuation of real and personal property in 1919, 496,978,049 dollars.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture is the chief pursuit of the North Dakota population. In 1920 there were 77,690 farms, with an area of 36,214,751 acres, of which 24,563,178 acres was improved land. The assessed valuation of all farm property in 1920 was 1,759,742,995 dollars. The area to be irrigated within the State under the Federal Reclamation Act extends to 40,000 acres. The chief products are cereals, potatoes, hay and flax. The wheat crop in 1921 amounted to 73,264,000 bushels; oats, 49,761,000 bushels; barley, 16,988,000 bushels. In the same year the area under flax (grown for the seed) was 396,000 acres, and the yield amounted to 2,534,000 bushels of seed, valued at 3,624,000 dollars. The State has also an active live-stock industry, chiefly horse and cattle-raising. On January 1, 1921, the farm animals were: 800,000 horses, 464,000 milch cows, 604,000 other cattle, 272,000 sheep, and 402,000 swine. The wool-clip yielded 1,737,000 pounds of wool in 1920.

The mineral resources of North Dakota are inconsiderable. Cement is made and there are coal mines.

In the State in 1914 there were 699 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 14,213,000 dollars, employing 3,275 wage-earners, using raw material costing 14,484,000 dollars, and giving an output valued at 21,147,000 dollars. The most important of these industries was flour and grist milling. The value of the dairy and creamery industry (butter, cheese, and condensed milk) amounted in 1918 to 16,901,267 dollars. Quantity of cream sold in creameries, 19,694,669 pounds.

In 1919 there were 5,316 miles of steam railway in the State, and 27 miles of electric railway (1920). The principal lines are the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, and the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Sault Ste. Marie.

The daily average number of paupers in the county homes during 1920 was 6,722, being 116·7 per 100,000 of population, and the average daily number of prisoners in the penal institutions during the year ending July 1, 1920, was 3,575, being 62·1 per 100,000 of the population.

Finance.—The receipts and disbursements, for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1921, were :—

	Dollars
Cash in hand, July 1, 1921	11,706,557
Income, 1920-1921	50,394,364
Total	62,100,921
Disbursements, 1920-21	47,774,248
Balance, July 1, 1921	14,326,673

The public debt of the State on June 30, 1921, amounted to 1,665 dollars, being the Canal Loan not bearing interest.

Production and Industry.—Ohio is extensively devoted to agriculture. In 1920 it contained 256,699 farms, a decrease in number of 15,346, or 5.6 per cent: since 1910. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 3,095,666,336 dollars. The chief crops are cereals, hay, potatoes, fruits and vegetables, besides tobacco. The maize crop in 1921 amounted to 159,326,000 bushels, and the wheat crop to 28,697,000 bushels; oats, 37,122,000 bushels. The area under tobacco (42,000 acres in 1921) yielded 38,640,000 pounds. Beet sugar to the amount of 51,000 short tons was produced in 1920. Horse-rearing, cattle-breeding, and dairy farming are important. On January 1, 1921, the live-stock in the State was 795,000 horses, 28,000 mules, 1,009,000 milch cows, and 998,000 other cattle, 2,773,000 sheep, and 3,921,000 swine. The wool-clip in 1920 yielded 12,449,000 pounds of wool. The farm products and live-stock industries give rise to the manufacture of butter and cheese, and the meat-packing industries. The corn crop in 1921 amounted to 146,341,000 bushels; the wheat crop to 27,125,000 bushels; oats, 35,395,000 bushels; sugar beets to the amount of 294,000 tons were produced in 1921, while the tobacco yield was 35,245,000 pounds. The wool-clip yielded 13,200,000 pounds of wool.

Ohio has also extensive mineral resources; it is the fourth State in the Union for mineral output. The two leading products are coal and manufactures from clay. In 1920, 40,178,572 tons of coal were mined and 8,533,470 tons of pig-iron were produced by 79 furnaces.

In 1914 the capital invested in manufacturing industries in the State was 1,677,552,000 dollars; the amount paid in salaries and wages was 424,189,000 dollars; the raw material used cost 1,020,782,000 dollars, and the value of the output was 1,782,808,000 dollars. The value of the corresponding output in 1900 was 748,670,855 dollars. The chief manufacturing industries, according to the census results for 1910; are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, p. 590.

The railways of the State had in 1920 a length of 9,195 miles, besides 4,169 miles of electric railway track. Ohio has also facilities for traffic by water, and its most important city, Cleveland, has sprung up on the shore of Lake Erie.

On June 30, 1921, there were 757 State banks in Ohio, with a total of 1,223,067 dollars deposits; 375 national banks having 627,496 dollars deposits, and 745 building and loan associations having 186,199,802 dollars deposits, making a grand total of 1,877 institutions for saving in Ohio having in the aggregate, 188,050,365 dollars deposits.

OKLAHOMA.

Government.—The State of Oklahoma, comprising the former Territory of Oklahoma and Indian Territory, was constituted on November 16, 1907, by Proclamation made by the United States President under the enabling act of June 16, 1906. The constitution provides for the initiative and the referendum, 8 per cent. of the legal voters having the right to propose any legislative measure and 15 per cent. to propose amendments to the constitution by petition. The referendum may be ordered (except as to laws necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety) either by petition signed by 5 per cent. of the legal voters or by the Legislature. The referendum applies to municipalities as well as to the State. The control of railways and other public service corporations is vested in a commission of 3 members elected for six-year periods, from whose decision an appeal lies only to the Supreme Court, no other court having power to interfere with its duties.

The Legislature consists of a Senate of 44 members who are elected for 4 years, and a House of Representatives elected for 2 years, and consisting of not less than 99 nor more than 102 members. Qualified as electors are (with necessary exceptions) all citizens resident six months in the State, 60 days in the county or town, 30 days in the precinct. Indians, to be qualified as voters, must have severed tribal relations.

Governor.—J. B. A. Robertson, 1919-23 (4,500 dollars).

Secretary.—Joe S. Morris 1919-23.

The State is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 8 members of the House of Representatives. The State capital is Oklahoma City.

Area and Population.—Area, 70,057 square miles, of which 643 square miles is water. Census population on January 1, 1920, 2,028,283. Indian reservations in 1920 had an area of 5 square miles with a population of 119,255.

[For the history of the relations between the Indians and the Federal Government see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1907, p. 593.]

The population at the date of each of the Federal censuses was :—

Year	White	Coloured	Total	Per square mile
1900	670,204	120,187	790,391 ¹	10·31
1910	1,444,531	212,624	1,657,155	23·9

In 1920 the population by sex and race was:—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	952,691	76,294	29,059		1,058,044
Female. . . .	868,503	73,114	28,622		970,239
Total	1,821,194	149,408	344	57,337	2,028,288

In 1920, 39,968 were foreign born, of whom 17,029 were Germans, 5,005 Russians, 2,122 Italians, 1,393 Austrians, 2,686 English, 2,475 Canadians, and 1,120 Scotch.

Of the total population in 1920, 26.6 per cent. was urban. The most important cities are Oklahoma City (population in 1920, 91,258), Muskogee (30,277), Tulsa (72,075), Enid (16,576), McAlester (12,095), Shawnee (15,348), Okmulgee (17,430), Guthrie (11,757), Ardmore (14,181).

Religion, Education.—The chief religious bodies are Methodist, Baptist, Roman Catholic, Disciples (Christians), and Presbyterians.

The State has a school system embracing elementary and high public schools, normal schools, and also colleges for superior instruction. Separate schools have to be provided for whites and negroes, all children not negroes being classed as white. In 1918 there were in the State public elementary schools 510,139 white and 41,276 negro pupils and 14,181 teachers; 605 public high schools with 34,932 enrolled pupils and 1,954 teachers in 1916. There were in 1918 7 normal schools with 125 teachers and 4,660 students. Total expenditure on education (1918) 13,803,861 dollars. The University (founded at Norman in 1892) had, in 1919, 150 professors and 3,683 students; the Agricultural and Mechanical College (founded in 1891 at Stillwater) had 106 professors and 1,769 students; while the coloured Agricultural and Normal University (founded 1897 at Langston), with 27 instructors, has 823 students.

Oklahoma has 3 hospitals, 6 orphanages, and 2 homes for adults and children, a school for the deaf and one for the blind.

Finance.—Income and expenditure for the year 1920:—

	Dollars
Balance in hand, Jan. 1, 1920	7,649,020
Receipts, 1920	41,374,406
Total	49,023,426
Disbursements, 1920	38,922,356
Balance in hand, Jan. 1, 1921	10,101,070

On Jan. 1, 1920, the State debt amounted to 2,972,900 dollars. The assessed value of real and of personal property was 1,664,448,745 dollars.

Production and Industry.—Oklahoma is mainly agricultural. In 1920 it had 191,987 farms with a total area of 31,939,950 acres, of which 18,488,105 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property was 1,660,435,973 dollars. The yield of maize in 1921 was 76,925,000 bushels; of wheat, 47,325,000 bushels; of oats, 35,300,000 bushels. Other products are potatoes, hay, sorghum, fruits, and cotton. The cotton crop for 1921 on 2,206,000 acres amounted to 530,000 bales, valued at 40,810,000 dollars. Flax is also widely grown. The western part is devoted to stock-raising. On January 1, 1921, the stock comprised 549,000 milch cows, and 1,118,000 other cattle; 836,000 hogs, 110,000 sheep, 667,000 horses, and 292,000 mules. Wool-clip yielded 526,000 lbs. in 1920.

Oklahoma has become an important mineral State in the last few years principally because of the increase in the production of petroleum, which followed the discovery of oil in 1904. In 1920, 105,725,000 barrels of crude petroleum were produced. Natural gas is also obtained. Coal, 3,750,000 tons in 1920, lead and zinc are also worked.

There are few manufacturing industries, flour and grist-milling, cotton ginning, the manufacture of cotton-seed oil and oil cake being the more important. In 1914 the State had a total of 2,518 industrial establishments, employing 17,443 wage-earners, with a total capital of 65,478,000 dollars, the cost of material being 70,970,000 dollars, and the value of the output 102,006,000 dollars. Statistics of leading industries are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, p. 593.

In 1918 Oklahoma had 6,527 miles of steam railway besides 331 miles of electric railway (1920). The principal lines are the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé; the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific; the Choctaw, Oklahoma and Gulf; and the St. Louis and San Francisco; the Missouri, Kansas and Texas; the St. Louis and San Francisco; and the Santa Fé Pacific Railways.

OREGON.

Government.—Oregon was admitted into the Union on February 14, 1859. The Legislative Assembly consists of a Senate of 30 members, chosen for four years (half their number retiring every two years), and a House of 60 Representatives, elected for two years.

The Constitution was amended in 1902, under the terms of which amendment the people reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and amendments to the Constitution and to enact or reject the same at the polls independent of the Legislative Assembly, and also reserve the power at their own option to approve or reject at the polls any Act of the Legislative Assembly. This is known as the initiative and referendum. Not more than eight per cent. of the legal voters are required to propose any measure to be voted upon by the people at the next ensuing general election. Measures thus initiated are enacted or rejected at the polls independently of the Legislative Assembly. Under the referendum, any Bill passed by the Legislative Assembly, except such as are for the preservation of the public peace, health, and safety, may, by petition signed by five per cent. of the legal voters, be referred to the people to be voted on for approval or rejection at the next ensuing general election.

At the General Election held November, 1912, suffrage was extended to women and "every citizen of the United States of the age of 21 years and upwards who shall have resided in the State during the 6 months immediately preceding such election shall be entitled to vote."

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and three Representatives.

Governor.—Ben. W. Olcott, 1919–1923. (5,000 dollars.)

Secretary of State.—Sam A. Kozier.

The State Capital is Salem. There are 36 counties in the State.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 96,699 square miles, 1,092 square miles being water.

The population at the date of each of the Federal censuses was :—

Years	Population	Per sq. mile	Years	Population	Per sq. mile
1880	174,768	1.80	1910	672,765	7.00
1900	413,536	4.40	1920	783,389	8.10

In 1920 the population by sex and race was :—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . . .	407,159	1,197	7,978		416,334
Female . . .	361,987	947	4,121		367,055
Total . . .	769,146	2,144	7,510	4,589	783,389

The foreign-born in 1920 numbered 102,151 of whom 13,740 were German, 13,744 Canadian, 7,953 English, 10,532 Swedish, 4,203 Irish, 4,324 Italian, 1,928 Greeks, and 6,955 Norwegian. The Indian reservations in 1920 comprised 1,860 square miles with a population of 6,629 Indians.

Of the total population in 1920, 49.9 per cent. was urban. The largest towns, according to the 1920 census, are Portland, with a population of 258,288; Salem, 17,679; Medford, 5,756; Eugene, 14,027; Astoria, 10,595.

The chief religious bodies in the State are (in order of strength) Catholic, Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist, Disciples of Christ, and Congregational denominations.

School attendance is compulsory for the full school term for children 9 to 15 years of age. For school year ending June 30, 1921, the 2,527 public schools had 6,915 teachers and 160,924 enrolled pupils, 235 standard 4 year high schools had 1,164 teachers and 29,235 pupils; and the public normal school had, in 1921, 42 teachers and 1,350 pupils. Total expenditure on public school education (1919) 14,783,718 dollars. The State supports an Agricultural College at Corvallis, founded in 1870, which has an instructional staff of 230 to Dec. 1, 1921, and 3,400 students, and a University, known as the University of Oregon, organised at Eugene in 1876. In 1921 it had 153 professors, and 2,164 students. There are also Methodist, Presbyterian, Catholic, Congregational, and Baptist Colleges.

On January 1, 1910, the number of paupers in almshouses was 48, being 2.9 per 100,000 of the population, and of prisoners in penal institutions 1,668, being 100.7 per 100,000 of the population.

Finance, Defence.—The receipts and disbursements of the General Fund of the State, for the year ending September 30, 1921 :—

	Dollars
Balance, October 1, 1920	16,487
Receipts, Oct. 1, 1920—Sept. 30, 1921	10,939,804
Total	10,956,291
Disbursements, Oct. 1, 1920—Sept. 30, 1921	10,885,682
Balance, September 30, 1921	70,609

On September 30, 1921, the amount of the State bonded indebtedness was 28,090,000 dollars. In 1920 the assessed value of taxable property, as equalised, was 1,040,839,049 dollars.

On November 30, 1921, the National Guard of the United States and of the State of Oregon consisted of 1 regiment and 2 companies of Infantry, 1 Headquarters company, 1 Supply Company and 1 Machine Gun Company, completely equipped and officered; also, 4 companies of Coast Artillery.

Production and Industry.—Oregon is one of the semi-arid States. In the river valley west of the Cascades there is a good rainfall and almost every variety of crop common to the temperate zone is grown. East of the Cascades lack of rainfall has been to some extent compensated for by irrigation by private companies as well as by State enterprise. Oregon has one-sixth of the standing timber of the United States; in 1920 the forest area was 20,000,000 acres, of which 10,500,000 were in forest reserves. In 1920 there were 50,206 farms with an acreage of 13,542,318, of which 4,913,851 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 818,559,751 dollars; in 1912, it was 631,317,255 dollars. The leading crops are wheat (24,317,000 bushels in 1921), hay (2,288,000 tons), and potatoes (3,870,000 bushels). Oats, barley, and flax-seed are grown to some extent. Sugar beet and hops are important crops. Fruits are grown, especially plums, apples, pears, strawberries, cherries, and loganberries. There is an active live-stock industry. Horses on January 1, 1921, numbered 276,000; milch cows, 216,000; other cattle, 675,000; sheep, 2,270,000; swine, 272,000. In 1920 the wool-clip yielded 14,040,000 pounds. The salmon, sturgeon, halibut, and oyster fisheries are abundant.

The State has not risen to much importance as a mining State, although it possesses various mineral resources, including gold, silver, copper. The output of coal in 1917 was 28,327 net tons, valued at 95,663 dollars. Granite and other building stones were extracted to the value of 413,867 dollars. Other minerals are occasional gems, cobalt, lead, gypsum, and platinum.

In 1914 the manufacturing industries of Oregon had 2,320 establishments with an aggregate capital of 139,500,379 dollars; they employed 4,431 salaried officials and 28,829 wage-earners; the cost of the raw material used was 63,257,821 dollars, and the value of the output, 109,761,951 dollars. These industries are associated with the forest, agricultural, pastoral, and fishery products of the State.

Oregon has good water facilities in the Pacific Ocean, the Columbia river, the Willamette river, and the Snake river. The Dalles and Celilo Canal, completed in 1915, opens the Columbia and Snake rivers to river navigation to a length of 570 miles from the ocean. Large ocean-going vessels can navigate the Columbia as far as Portland. Rivers and harbours are constantly dredged and improved. The value of imports at Portland for year ending December 30, 1919, was 3,151,964 dollars, and of exports, 112,464 dollars. In 1919 the State had a total railway mileage of 3,455, besides 722 miles of electric railway track. The principal lines are the Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation Company and the Southern Pacific and the so-called 'Hill lines.'

In November, 1920, there were 283 banks in the State, with total deposits of 238,560,502 dollars; of this amount 58,210,612 dollars was in savings deposits, including postal savings accounts; demand deposits amounted to 157,593,275 dollars; time deposits, 22,756,664 dollars.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Government.—Pennsylvania is one of the thirteen original States in the Union. The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. Every citizen 21 years of age, resident in the State for one year, and in the election district for two months preceding the election, is entitled to vote, provided that he has paid a State or County tax within two years and at least one month before the election. The Senate consists of 50 members chosen for four years, 25 Senators being elected at each General Assembly election bi-annually. The House of Representatives consists of 208 members chosen for two years.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and 36 Representatives.

Governor.—Wm. C. Sproul, 1919-1923 (10,000 dollars).

Secretary of the Commonwealth.—Bernard J. Myers (8,000 dollars).

For local administration the State is organised in counties, cities, boroughs, and townships. On a population basis, cities are divided into three classes and townships into two classes. There are 67 counties. The State Capital is Harrisburg.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 45,126 square miles, of which 294 square miles is water area (excluding 891 square miles of Lake Erie).

Years	Population		Years	Population
	Total	Per sq. m.		Total	Per sq. m.
1860	2,906,215	64.6	1910	7,665,111	171.0
1900	6,302,115	140.6	1920	8,720,017	193.2

In 1920 the population by race and sex was:—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Males	4,278,332	148,297		2,391	4,429,020

Of the total population in 1920, 63·3 per cent. was urban.

The chief religious bodies in the State are Roman Catholic, Methodist, Lutheran, Presbyterian, and Reformed bodies.

School attendance is compulsory for children 8 to 14 years of age for the full school term, but in fourth class (under 5,000) districts this may be reduced to 70 per cent. of the term for children over 12. In the year 1919-1920 the 42,354 public elementary schools had 37,702 teachers and 1,472,492 enrolled pupils; and the 954 public high schools had 7,160 teachers and 136,081 pupils. In the 13 State normal schools in 1920 there were 370 teachers with 3,042 students. Total expenditures on public school education (1920) 84,638,660 dollars. The Pennsylvania State College devotes special attention to modern industrial pursuits and to agriculture; in connection with the college there is an Agricultural Experiment Station which receives from the United States Government an appropriation of 110,000 dollars a year. In addition to the above expense the State normal schools receive from the State (1921) 2,159,000 dollars.

The more important academic institutions (1921) within the State are as follows:—

Begun	Institutions.	Professors	Students
1740	University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia (non-sect.)	949	11,344
1787	University of Pittsburg (non-sect.)	579	6,165

1884	Temple University, Philadelphia (non-sect.)	377	8,000
1858	Susquehanna University, Selinsgrove (Luth.)	26	327

Charity.—In Centre County a State Penitentiary has been constructed. It is considered a model for such institutions. In it all electrocutions take place. There are 31 State Institutions, of which 2 are in state of construction (10 general hospitals, 9 insane, 3 feeble-minded and epileptic, 3 reformatories, 1 home for soldiers and sailors, 2 penitentiaries, 2 deaf and dumb, 1 inebriate); and 7 semi-State institutions (1 insane, 1 feeble-minded and epileptic, 2 blind, 1 reform school, 2 deaf and dumb). There are 208 private hospitals, of which 167 receive State aid, 14 sanatoria of which 7 receive State aid, and 304 homes, of which 120 receive State aid. Of the State-aided homes 45 are for children, 10 for women and children, 6 for males, 33 for females, 9 for men, women and children; and 10 for men and women, and 8 children's aid and humane societies. In these homes there were 16,860 inmates, and 6,416 children taken care of by the children's aid and humane societies. There are 20 county insane asylums subject to State supervision. On May 31, 1920, there were 21,853 inmates of almshouses (8,665 of this number were insane), and 3,050 inmates of county jails.

Finance, Defence.—For the year ending Oct. 1, 1921, the receipts, payments, and balances were:—

	Dollars
Balance, October 1, 1920	17,874,426
Receipts, October 1, 1920, to Sept. 30, 1921 .	84,226,325

Balance in Treasury, Oct. 1, 1921	10,008,730

On October 1, 1921, the outstanding bonds of the State amounted to 39,451,110 dollars, which are partly covered by a sinking fund of 2,151,110 dollars. On October 1, 1921, the assessed value of real property amounted to 7,581,365,410 dollars, and the taxable value of personal property amounted to 1,917,340,210 dollars.

The State of Pennsylvania has been authorised under the Act of Congress, approved June 3, 1916, known as the National Defence Act, and which has been amended by the Act of Congress, approved June 5, 1920, to organise one division of National Guard troops, to be known as the 28th Division, and which is authorised to wear the insignia of the red keystone.

In addition to this Division, the War Department has authorised the State of Pennsylvania to organise one brigade of cavalry, one brigade of heavy artillery, 155 mm. howitzers, one anti-aircraft regiment, one battalion of pioneer engineers, and an extra medical regiment. Of the total number of troops authorised, consisting of 825 officers and 15,392 men, there have been enlisted and commissioned to date 648 officers and 11,672 men.

Tables of organisation provide for four infantry regiments, one engineer regiment, one medical regiment, two artillery regiments, 75 mm. rifle, and the various trains for a division.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture, market-gardening, fruit-growing, horticulture and forestry are pursued within the State. In 1920 there were 202,250 farms; the farm area was 17,657,513 acres, of which 11,847,719 acres were improved. The total value of farm property was 1,729,353,000 dollars. In 1921 the yield of wheat was 27,370,000 bushels; corn, 65,544,000 bushels; rye, 3,613,000 bushels; oats, 33,840,000 bushels; buckwheat, 4,762,000 bushels; potatoes, 17,765,000 bushels; tobacco, 52,304,000 pounds; hay, 3,247,000 tons; apples, 4,161,000 bushels; peaches, 279,000 bushels; pears, 318,000 bushels. The wool-clip for 1921 is estimated at 4,191,000 pounds. In 1921 farm animals in Pennsylvania were 539,957 horses, 45,832 mules, 897,626 milch cows, 575,578 other cattle, 585,902 sheep, and 1,081,098 swine.

Pennsylvania so far exceeds all the rest of the States in the value of its mineral products as to stand almost alone. This is due principally to the State's leadership in the production of coal. In 1920, 149,117 workers were employed in and about the anthracite coal-mines, and 184,168 in and about the bituminous coal-mines. In 1920 the output of anthracite coal was 89,636,036 short tons, and of bituminous coal, 166,029,002 short tons. Other minerals are petroleum, natural gas, iron ore (magnetite and hematite), and pig-iron. Pennsylvania has important quarries, cement works, and brick and tile works. The output of by-product coke in 1920 was 6,673,300 net tons. In 1920 the output of Portland cement was 28,222,100 barrels, value 59,883,800 dollars. Pittsburg, having abundant supplies of coal, has become the principal iron-work centre.

According to the census of manufactures in 1919, there were in Pennsylvania, 20,888 manufacturing establishments, with an aggregate capital amounting to 5,075,561,900 dollars, employing 167,572 salaried officials and 1,523,609 wage-earners. The salaries in the year 1919 amounted to 312,022,000 dollars, and the wages in the year 1919, 1,864,427,100 dollars. The value of the output was 8,853,047,600 dollars.

Statistics of the more important industries, or groups of industries (according to the census of manufactures of 1910), are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, p. 600.

The textile manufactures are chiefly worsted goods, woollens, hosiery, carpets, silk goods, and cotton goods. In 1919 there were 1,024 textile establishments, employing 118,650 workers with earnings of 118,000,000 dollars.

Pennsylvania, owing to the abundance of tanning substances, is the largest leather producing State in the Union; 60 per cent. of the glazed kid of the United States is made in Philadelphia. In 1919 the leather and rubber industries employed 36,513 workers, earning a total wage of 37,635,400 dollars, the total product being valued at 359,202,200 dollars. In 1919 there were 1,393 clothing manufacturing establishments, employing 85,932 workers earning a total of 75,142,000 dollars.

The total value of imports at the port of Philadelphia for the year ending June 30, 1921, was 205,872,494 dollars, and of exports 322,296,316 dollars. The steamship lines trading with the port are classified for the year 1920 as follows:—Regular sailings, 58 lines; occasional sailings, 20 lines; coastwise, 9 lines; oil, 8 lines; and local and inland, 12 lines. Thirty-five hundred and thirty-three vessels arrived from foreign ports, with a tonnage of 14,961,736 tons, while 4,817 vessels arrived from coastwise ports, with a tonnage of 10,105,068 tons. Of the vessels arriving from foreign ports, 1,483 were American. In 1920 Philadelphia exported 130,746 tons of anthracite coal valued at 1,467,462 dollars, and 2,492,886 tons of bituminous coal valued at 28,386,705 dollars. On Dec. 31, 1918, Pennsylvania contained 12,872 miles of steam railway, and 4,870 miles of electric railway track.

Statistics on September 1, 1921, of banks and banking institutions are :—

RHODE ISLAND.

Constitution and Government.—The earliest settlers in the region which now forms the State of Rhode Island were colonists from Massachusetts who had been driven forth on account of their non-acceptance of the prevailing religious beliefs. The first of the settlements was made in 1636; and their numbers and importance quickly increased, settlers of every creed being welcomed. In 1647 a patent was granted for the government of the settlements, and on July 8, 1663, a charter was executed recognising the settlers as forming a body corporate and politic by the name of the English Colony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations. On May 29, 1790, the State accepted the Federal Constitution and entered the Union as one of the 13 original States. The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. The Senate has 39 members, besides the Lieutenant-Governor who is ex officio President of the Senate. The House of Representatives consists of 100 members. Every citizen, 21 years of age, who has resided in the State for 2 years, and is duly registered, is qualified to vote for any State officer.

Governor.—E. J. San Souci, 1921–23 (8,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—J. Fred Parker.

The State is represented in the Federal Congress by 2 Senators and 3 Representatives.

The State is divided into 5 counties and 39 cities and towns. The State Capital is Providence.

Area, Population, Education.—Area 1,248 square miles, of which nearly 181 square miles is water. Census population on January 1, 1920, 604,397. Population of Census years:—

Years	White ¹	Negro	Total	Per sq. mile

On December 31, 1921, the outstanding debt amounted to 5,382,059 dollars. The assessed value of real property in 1921 was 215,803,782 dollars, of personal property 190,055,188 dollars.

Production and Industry.—South Carolina is an agricultural State containing in 1920, 192,693 farms, more than half of which were negro farms. The farm area covered 12,461,945 acres, 6,206,644 acres being improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 953,064,742 dollars. About 68 per cent. of the area of the State is woodland. The chief cereal crops in 1921 were wheat, 1,298,000 bushels; maize, 32,959,000 bushels; oats, 8,112,000 bushels; and rice, 175,000 bushels. Of greater importance is the cultivation of cotton, under which in 1921 were 2,593,000 acres, yielding 1,760,000 bales of upland cotton, valued at 60,800,000 dollars. Under tobacco in 1921 were 80,000 acres, yielding 50,400,000 pounds, valued at 5,544,000 dollars. On January 1, 1921, the farm animals in the State were 79,000 horses, 217,000 mules, 215,000 milch cows, 254,000 other cattle, 26,000 sheep, and 1,099,000 swine. The wool-clip in 1920 yielded 103,000 lbs.

The State has active fisheries, mainly oysters, whiting, shad, and sea-bass.

The minerals worked are phosphate rock, granite, clay products, gold, silver, manganese, iron ore, lime, and monazite in small quantities.

The manufacturing industries of the State in 1914 had a total capital of 203,211,000 dollars; the establishments numbered 1,885; their proprietors and firm members, 1,815; their clerks, &c., 3,964, and wage-earners, 71,914. The raw material used was valued at 91,099,000 dollars, and the output at 138,891,000 dollars. Statistics of the chief industries for 1912 are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1917, p. 595.

In the year ending August 31, 1920, the State had 4,966,460 spindles active.

There are also works for making and repairing carriages, waggon, cars, &c., flour and grist mills, distilleries, tobacco factories, and turpentine and rosin works. The turpentine and rosin industries, formerly prosperous, are now losing ground owing to the exhaustion of suitable timber.

In 1918 the length of railway in the State was 3,804 miles, and 147 miles of electric railway in 1920. The assessed value of the railroad in 1915 was 45,816,096 dollars.

There is a British Vice-Consul at Charleston.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Government.—South Dakota was admitted into the Union on February 22, 1889. Full rights of suffrage are enjoyed by all persons over 21 years of age who are citizens of the United States, and who have resided in the United States for one year, in South Dakota for six months, in the county for thirty days, and in the election precinct for ten days, immediately preceding any election.

Legislative power is vested in a Senate and a House of Representatives; but to the people is reserved the right that not less than 5 per cent. of the electors may (1) propose measures which the legislature shall enact and submit to a vote of the general body of electors; (2) demand a referendum in respect of laws enacted by the legislature, before such laws take effect, save in cases of urgency. The Senate consists of not less than 25 and not more than 45 members, and the House of Representatives of not less than 75, nor more than 135 members.

Amendments to the Constitution must be sanctioned by the direct vote of the people, at the first general election after such amendments have been approved by a majority of the members elected to each House of the legislature.

Governor.—W. H. McMaster, 1921-23 (3,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Charles A. Burkhardt.

The State sends two Senators and three Representatives to the Federal Congress. For purposes of local government the State is divided into 63 organised counties, which are subdivided into townships and municipal corporations. The State Capital is Pierre.

In the 4,749 elementary schools in 1920 there were 78,746 pupils (37,648 girls) and 4,873 teachers (4,458 women). 421 secondary schools had 1,018 teachers (740 women) and 12,694 pupils (7,642 girls). State educational institutions in 1920 were four Normal Schools with 156 instructors and 4,997 students; (in 1920) a School of Mines, established 1885, with 12 instructors and 143 students; an Agricultural College with 88 instructors and 1,112 students; a University, founded at Vermilion in 1882, with 84 instructors and 909 students. In addition the State maintains schools for the Blind, Deaf Mutes, and the Feeble-minded, as well as a Reform School. Colleges under sectarian control are Huron College (Presb.) with 31 professors and 475 students, Dakota Wesleyan University (Methodist) with 39 professors and 586 students, Yaukton College (Cong.) with 31 professors and 308 students. The Government maintains three Indian Schools in the State, one at Flandreau with 36 instructors and 330 enrolled pupils, one at Rapid City with 25 instructors and 250 enrolment in 1915, and one at Pierre with 21 instructors and 220 enrolment. Total expenditure on education (1920) 11,620,117 dollars.

On January 1, 1910, the number of paupers in almshouses was 145, being 24·8 per 100,000 of the population, and of prisoners in penal institutions 279, being 47·8 per 100,000 of the population.

Finance.—For the year ended June 30, 1920, the receipt and disbursements were :—

	Dollars
Balance on June 30, 1919	3,144,924
Receipts for 1919-20	12,029,445
Total	15,174,369
Disbursements for 1919-20	9,711,964
Balance on June 30, 1920	5,462,405

The Constitution limits the bonded debt of the State to 100,000 dollars over and above the debt of the Territory of Dakota assumed by the State at its foundation. The State at present has no bonded debt.

The assessed value of real and personal property in 1920 was 2,019,241,895 dollars, of moneys and credits, 104,673,631 dollars, of corporate property, 133,938,130 dollars, making a total of 2,257,853,656 dollars.

Production and Industry.—With the exception of scattered fringes of timber along the water-courses and the planted groves in the eastern part of the State, the only forest area is in the Black Hills, and in 1916 it extended to 1,115,846 acres. In 1920 there were 74,655 farms, with an acreage of 34,523,775, of which 19,051,922 acres were improved. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 2,824,413,768 dollars. The yield of wheat in 1921 amounted to 25,980,000 bushels; corn, 125,632,000 bushels; oats, 58,300,000 bushels; barley, 17,323,000 bushels. Rye and flax are also grown in considerable quantities, the latter yielding 1,404,000 bushels of seed in 1921. Hay, fruit and vegetables (particularly potatoes), dairy and creamery produce, eggs and poultry, are important. The live-stock within the State on January 1, 1921, consisted of 539,000 milch cows and 1,297,000 other cattle, 1,525,000 hogs, 680,000 sheep, 736,000 horses, and 14,000 mules. From 686,000 sheep in 1920 the wool-clip amounted to 4,804,000 pounds of wool.

The mineral products are chiefly gold, silver, copper, lead, stone of various sorts, and clay products.

The chief manufacturing industries of the State are the making of butter, cheese, and flour and grist milling. In 1914 there were 898 industrial establishments, employing 3,788 wage-earners, and having a capital of 15,060,000 dollars; the cost of materials being 17,079,000 dollars and the value of the output 24,139,000 dollars. The statistics of the chief groups of industries in 1910 are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, p. 610.

In 1915 there were in the State 4,205 miles of telegraph line and 14,586 miles of telephone line (20,723 miles of wire). In 1918 the steam railways of the State were 4,278 miles in length, besides 26 miles of electric railway.

In 1919 the deposits in the State Bank totalled 186,254,276 dollars, those in the National Bank 99,963,000 dollars, making a total of 285,617,276 dollars.

The bonded debt (including old bonds unfunded) on June 13, 1919, amounted to 17,988,352 dollars. The assessed value of property (1919) was, including real and personal property, 726,369,281 dollars.

Production and Industry.—In 1920 there were 252,774 farms in the State with an acreage of 19,510,856, of which 11,185,302 acres was improved land. Total value of all farm property in 1920 was 1,251,964,585 dollars. The most important crop is maize, amounting in 1921 to 9,713,000 bushels. The wheat yield was 4,500,000 bushels. Oats, hay, potatoes and sweet potatoes, pease, sorghum, and other products are grown, the physical conditions permitting a great diversity of crops. Peanuts are grown in the Tennessee valley. The cotton crop for 1921 covered 707,000 acres and yielded 340,000 bales, valued at 2,720,000 dollars. The tobacco crop (1921) from 105,000 acres was 78,750,000 pounds valued at 15,750,000 dollars. Fruit-trees and small fruits (notably strawberries) are cultivated. There are important forest products from about 27,300 square miles of woodland. Stock-raising in the State is falling off. On January 1, 1921, the domestic animals consisted of 338,000 horses, 277,000 mules, 386,000 milch cows, 570,000 other cattle, 526,000 sheep, and 1,636,000 swine. In 1920 the wool-clip yielded 2,052,000 pounds of wool.

The most important mineral product of Tennessee is coal. The coal-fields have an area of about 4,400 square miles, and in 1920 produced 6,026,186 tons. Other mineral products are pig-iron, copper, zinc, gold, sandstone, marble, and limestone.

The manufacturing industries include iron and steel working, but are mainly concerned with agricultural products. Flour-milling, lumbering, the manufacture of cotton-seed oil and cake, the preparation of leather and of tobacco are progressing. There are also textile manufactures. According to the results of the census of manufactures in 1914, there were in the State, 4,775 manufacturing establishments, with a total capital of 211,423,000 dollars, employing 8,999 salaried officials and 74,373 wage-earners. The salaries paid in a year amounted to 11,829,000 dollars, and the wages to 33,083,000 dollars; the cost of materials used amounted to 120,430,000 dollars and the value of the output was estimated at 212,071,000 dollars. The statistics of the more important industries in 1910 are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, p. 613.

The Mississippi and Tennessee rivers are natural waterways, and the State contains (1918) 4,082 miles of steam railway, besides 454 miles of electric railway (1920).

Two State junior agricultural colleges were created in 1917.

The Prairie View State College (Normal and Industrial) for coloured youths had 51 professors and 546 students in 1921.

On January 1, 1910, the number of paupers in almshouses was 861, being 22·1 per 100,000 of the population, and of prisoners in penal institutions, 4,227, being 108·5 per 100,000 of the population.

Finance.—The receipts and disbursements of the General Fund in the year ending August 31, 1920, were :—

	Dollars
Balance, Sept. 1, 1919	7,942,532
Receipts, 1919-20	40,360,269
Total	48,302,801
Disbursements, 1919-20	34,750,686

Balance, Aug. 31, 1920 13,552,115

The bonded debt, August 31, 1921, amounted to 4,002,200 dollars. The bonds are held entirely by State educational and charitable funds. In 1920 the total assessed value of all property was 3,367,347,912 dollars.

Production and Industry.—Texas is one of the most important agricultural States of the Union. In 1920 it had 436,033 farms with an area of 113,580,716 acres of farmland, of which 32,377,929 acres was improved land. Total value of all farm property in 1920 was 4,461,579,497 dollars. In the arid region of Texas and New Mexico an area of 160,000 acres is to be reclaimed under the Federal Reclamation Act. There are at present 2,950,488 acres of irrigable lands in Texas, of which 536,234 acres were actually irrigated in 1914. The chief crops in 1921 were (in bushels) maize, 156,920,000; wheat, 20,810,000; oats, 33,570,000; rice, 5,596,000; potatoes, 2,072,000. The yield of cotton in 1921 covered 10,979,000 acres and yielded 2,200,000 bales, valued at 177,100,000 dollars. Other products are tobacco (134,000 pounds in 1917), cane-sugar, sorghum, vegetables, and fruits (especially peaches). The State has a very great live-stock industry; on January 1, 1921, it contained 1,187,000 horses, 792,000 mules, 1,184,000 milch cows, 4,547,000 other cattle, 3,069,000 sheep, and 2,427,000 swine. The wool-clip in 1920 mounted to 17,600,000 pounds of wool.

Texas ranks second among the States in the production of quicksilver. Coal is also produced (1,607,143 tons in 1920). Other mineral products are petroleum, natural gas, salt, cement, gypsum, granite, sandstone, and limestone.

In 1914 there were in the State 5,084 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 283,543,820 dollars, 16,261 proprietors, firm members and salaried employees, and 74,853 wage-earners. The cost of material used in the year was 253,144,261 dollars, and the value of the output was 361,279,303 dollars. Statistics of some industries (1914 census) are as follows—

Other important industries are petroleum refining (ranks first as to value of product), copper and smelting refining, manufacture of ice, food preparations, cotton goods, leather goods, and ground and roasted coffee.

A large trade passes through the port of Galveston, which is by far the most important outlet for the cotton grown in the United States, and as a commercial port it is now second only to New York. Imports in 1921, 20,496,568 dollars; exports, 446,772,048 dollars. A permanent causeway over 2 miles in length, to connect Galveston with the mainland, was opened to traffic in May, 1912. The level of the town has been raised so as to protect it from storms. The railways in the State (December 31, 1920) have a total mileage of 16,049 miles. There are 989 miles of electric inter-urban railway in active operation in Texas and 472 miles are under construction or proposed. There are also 91 miles of inter-urban lines operated by gasoline power.

There are 1,047 miles of navigable water in the rivers of Texas over which there was moved 1,867,158 short tons of traffic in the calendar year 1910. The long coast line with its good harbour facilitates traffic by sea.

British Consul at Galveston.—J. E. Bell.

There is also a vice-consul at Galveston.

UTAH.

Constitution and Government.—Utah, which had been acquired by the United States during the Mexican war, was, in 1847, settled by Mormons, and on Sept. 9, 1850, organised as a Territory. It was admitted as a State into the Union on July 16, 1894.

The Legislature consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives; but the Constitution provides for the initiation of any desired legislation by the legal voters or such number of them as may be determined by law, and such voters may require any law passed by less than a two-thirds vote of each House of the Legislature to be submitted to the voters of the State before coming into effect.

The Senate (in part renewed every two years) consists of 20 members, elected for four years; the House of Representatives has 55 members elected for two years. Qualified as electors are all citizens, male or female, who, not being idiots, insane or criminals have resided one year in the State, four months in the county, and 60 days in the precinct in which the election is held.

Governor.—Chas. R. Mabey, 1921-25 (5,000 dollars.)

Secretary of State.—H. E. Crockett.

There are 28 counties in the State. The Capital is Salt Lake City.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 84,990 square miles, of which 2,806 square miles is water. The area of the Indian reservations in 1920 was 2,389 square miles, and the population, 3,057 Indians.

Census population on January 1, 1920, 449,396.

The population at the date of each of four Federal censuses was:—

Years	Pop.	Per sq. mile	Years	Pop.	Per sq. mile
1890	210,779	2·6	1910	373,351	4·5
1900	276,749	3·4	1920	449,396	5·5

In 1920 the population by sex and race was:—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . . .	227,232	834	3,985		232,051
Female . . .	214,669	612	2,064		217,345
Total . . .	441,901	1,446	3,338	2,711	449,396

Of the total in 1920, 56,455 were foreign-born, of whom 14,836 were English, 3,589 German, 3,029 Greek, 6,073 Swedes, 1,207 Irish. In 1914, 3,387 immigrants arriving at United States ports gave Utah as their destination. Of these 934 were Anglo-Saxon, 908 Latin, 136 Slav, 768 Greeks, and the others were Jews, Mongolians, or cosmopolitan.

Of the total population in 1920, 48·0 per cent. was urban. The largest city is Salt Lake City with a population of 118,110 according to the census of 1920. Ogden in 1920 had 32,804 inhabitants, and Provo, 10,303.

Latter-day Saints form about 75 per cent. of the Church membership of the State. There are Catholics, Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Christian Scientists, and Congregationalists in small numbers.

In 1910 the percentage of illiterates in the population was only 2.5, the number being 6,821, of whom 3,636 were foreign-born. School attendance for 20 weeks annually (10 consecutive), in large cities 30 weeks (10 consecutive), is compulsory on children from 8 to 16 years of age. In 1920 the 637 public elementary schools had 3,180 teachers and 83,276 enrolled pupils; 46 public high schools had 642 teachers and 14,130 pupils. A State normal school had 853 pupils in 1916 and 34 teachers; it is maintained in connection with the university. The Latter-day Saints (or Mormons) also maintain a Church Teachers' Summer School, which in 1915 had 15 instructors and 234 students. The same church also has missionary correspondence schools, which in December, 1915, had two instructors and 148 correspondent students. The University of Utah was organized 1850, and had 129 instructors and 3,431 students in 1918. Utah has a school of arts and sciences and a State school of mines. The Utah agricultural college (founded in 1890) has 86 instructors and 1,196 students. Both of these institutions receive annual grants from the State. The Mormon Church maintains the Brigham Young University at Provo, organized in 1875, which in 1918 had 75 instructors and 1,263 students; the Brigham Young College at Logan, organized in 1878, which in 1919 had 35 instructors, and 800 students; the Latter-day Saints' University at Salt Lake City, organized in 1890, had 47 instructors and 1,280 students; also 7 academies scattered throughout the State having 81 instructors and 1,749 students. Total expenditure on education (1920), 8,388,534 dollars.

Charity.—Apart from almshouses and asylums for imbeciles there are 13 benevolent institutions within the State. Eight of these are hospitals, one of which belongs to the Federal Government, one to Salt Lake City, and one to Salt Lake County. The State has an institution for the deaf, the dumb, and the blind, with 146 inmates in 1915; an industrial school with 141 juveniles under its control, and a mental hospital with 536 patients in 1915. There are three orphanages and various other charitable institutions (including seven hospitals) provided by private associations or religious bodies. On January 1, 1916, the almshouses had 219 pauper inmates. In 1915 the counties spent 196,311 dollars for relief of indigents.

Finance.—For biennium ending November 30, 1920, the revenue and expenditure were:—

	Dollars
Cash on hand, Nov. 30, 1918	1,505,512
Receipts, 1918-20	24,942,209
Total	26,447,721
Total disbursements, 1918-20	24,546,535
Cash on hand, December 1, 1920	1,901,186

The estimated assessed valuation, 1919, amounted to 675,000,000 dollars. The bonded debt of the State on November 30, 1920, amounted to 3,435,000 dollars.

By the State Statistician the total value of all property in 1915 was estimated at 674,290,211 dollars.

Production and Industry.—The area of unappropriated and unserved lands within the State on June 30, 1915, was 28,076,285 acres, of which 13,545,799 acres were surveyed and 19,818,442 acres unsurveyed.

The State contains 7,430,084 acres of state forest in 1917. In 1920 it had 25,662 farms with a total area of 5,050,410 acres, of which 1,715,380 acres were improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 311,274,728 dollars.

In 1921 the chief crops were wheat, 6,299,000 bushels; oats, 2,876,000 bushels; potatoes, 2,416,000 bushels; hay, 1,284,000 tons. Maize, barley, and rye are also grown. Much attention is paid to vegetables and fruit trees. There is a considerable live-stock industry. On January 1, 1921, the numbers were: horses and mules 148,000, milch cows 108,000, other cattle 473,000, sheep 2,245,000, swine 103,000. The wool-clip (1920) yielded 16,150,000 pounds of wool.

The State is unique in the diversity of its metal production, particularly of precious and semi-precious metals, having valuable mines, chiefly gold, silver, copper, and coal; 5,241,071 tons were mined in 1920. Other products are manganese ores, gypsum, petroleum, sulphur, zinc, and salt.

In 1914 there were 1,109 manufacturing establishments employing 2,233 salaried officials and 13,894 wage earners. Their aggregate capital amounted to 71,843,000 dollars; cost of material in a year 62,233,000 dollars; value of output 87,112,000 dollars. The statistics of the more important industries in 1910 are given in THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, p. 619.

There are no navigable streams, but singularly good facilities for transportation. In 1917 the State had 2,144 miles of main line, the principal railways being the Denver and Rio Grande (762 miles), the Oregon Short Line (242), the Central Pacific (273), the Union Pacific (75), the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake railway (503), Western Pacific (122 miles).

There were also about 448 miles of electric railway in 1920.

In 1917, there were 10 savings banks in the State with 61,000 depositors who had to their credit 16,648,228 dollars, being 272.92 dollars to each depositor.

VERMONT.

Government.—Vermont was admitted into the Union as a State on February 18, 1791. The Constitution in force at the time of admission was that of 1786. In 1793 a new Constitution was adopted which, with amendments made in 1828, 1836, 1850, 1870, 1883, and 1913, is still in force. The State legislature consists of a Senate of 30 members and a House of Representatives of 246. Electors are all citizens of the United States with certain residential qualifications.

The State sends two Senators and two Representatives to the United States Congress.

Governor.—James Hartness, 1921–1923 (3,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Harry A. Black.

The seat of the State Executive is at Montpelier. The State is divided into fourteen counties.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 9,564 square miles, of which 440 square miles is water. Census population on January 1, 1920, 352,428.

Years	Population		Years	Population
	Total	Per sq. mile		Total	Per sq. mile
1880	332,286	36.4	1910	355,956	39.0
1900	343,641	37.7	1920	352,428	38.6

The population in 1920 according to sex and race was:—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	178,504	820	80		178,854
Female	173,313	262	9		173,574
Total 1920 . .	351,817	572	15	24	352,428

The State contains a very high proportion of English. In 1920 the foreign-born population numbered 44,526, of whom 14,181 were Canadian French, 10,687 Canadian English, 2,884 Irish, 2,197 English, and 1,854 Scottish. The largest cities are Burlington, with a population in 1920 of 22,779; Rutland, 14,954; Barre, 10,008. Of the population in 1920, 31.2 per cent. was urban.

The religious denominations are: Roman Catholic, Congregational, Methodist, Baptist, and Protestant Episcopal, in the order given.

School attendance during the full school term is compulsory for children from 6 to 16 years of age. No child under 16 who has not completed the 9-year school-course may be employed in any railway, factory, mine, or quarry work, or as messenger during school hours. In 1921 the 2,158 public schools had 2,935 teachers and 61,797 enrolled pupils. The University of Vermont (1800) had, in 1921, 117 instructors and 1,038 students; Middlebury College (1800) had 39 instructors and 492 students; Norwich University (1834) had 25 instructors and 290 students.

During 1921 the number of persons receiving aid from the towns was 2,628, and on January 1, 1921, the number of persons in State institutions was as follows: House of correction, 60; State prison, 148; hospital for insane, 762; school for feeble-minded, 119; industrial school, 258.

Finance, Defence.—The revenue and expenditure for the year ending June 30, 1921, were:—

	Dollars
Cash balance July 1, 1920	1,965,122
Receipts, 1920-21	5,105,039
Total	7,070,161
Disbursements, 1920-21	5,047,229
Cash balance July 1, 1921	2,022,932

The assessed value of real property in 1921 was 191,260,519 dollars and of personal property, 69,633,874 dollars.

The National Guard on July 1, 1921, had 50 officers and 884 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture is the most important occupation within the State. In 1920 the State contained 29,075 farms with a total area of 4,233,811 acres, of which 1,691,595 acres was improved land. The total value of all farm property in 1920 was 222,736,620 dollars. In 1916 the rural population was 52 per cent. of the total population. The chief agricultural crop is hay (945,358 tons in 1921), but cereals are still grown in large quantities; in 1921 the yield of oats was 2,673,349 bushels; of maize, 4,510,000 bushels, together with 475,161 tons of silage; wheat, 126,003 bushels; and barley, 200,000 bushels. The production of potatoes in 1921 was 3,750,387 bushels; of tobacco, 165,000 pounds; apples and maple sugar and syrup are important.

Cattle raising, especially of milk cows, is one of the chief agricultural pursuits. In 1920 Vermont had 435,480 cattle on farms, or nearly one-third of all the cattle in New England. The value of live-stock on Vermont farms in 1920 was 28,502,803 dollars. Vermont leads all the States of the Union in pounds of butter per capita, pounds of butter per farm, pounds of butter per cow, and in ratio of dairy cows to population. On January 1, 1921, Vermont had 275,000 milch cows, 186,000 other cattle, 84,000 horses, 91,000 sheep, and 105,000 swine. In 1920 the wool-clip yielded 676,000 lbs.

The forests of the State provide material for extensive timber and lumber trade, and flourishing wood pulp manufacture. Other industries are flour-milling, foundry and machine-shop work and the manufacture of hosiery and other woollen goods. According to the returns of the Federal census of manufactures in 1919, there were in Vermont 1,790 manufacturing establishments with an aggregate capital of 134,314,391 dollars, paying wages to the annual amount of 41,429,114 dollars, using raw material costing 95,172,581 dollars, and giving an output valued at 168,108,072 dollars.

The statistics of the more important industries in 1920 are shown as follows:—

Industries	Capital	Wage- carriers	Cost of material	Value of output
	Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
Cotton goods	4,477,985	1,142	2,127,285	4,383,835

VIRGINIA.

Constitution and Government.—The first English Charter for settlements in America was that granted by James I. in 1606 for the planting of colonies in Virginia. The State was one of the thirteen original States in the Union. On the outbreak of the civil war in 1861, Virginia, after long hesitation, decided to join the seceding States a course objected to by the western portion of the State, which in 1863 was admitted into the Union as West Virginia.

The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Delegates, the former containing not more than 40 nor less than 33 members and the latter not more than 100 nor less than 90. Senators are elected for 4 years. The Senate contains 40 members. The House of Delegates contains 100 members, elected for 2 years. Qualified as electors are (with few exceptions) all citizens 21 years of age, resident in the State for 2 years and in the county, city, town, or precinct for which the election is held for 30 days, who have paid their State poll-taxes and registered.

The State sends to the Federal Congress 2 Senators and 10 Representatives.

Governor.—E. Lee Trinkle, 1918–1922 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of the Commonwealth.—B. O. James.

The State Capital is Richmond.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 42,627 square miles, of which 2,865 square-miles is water area. Census population on January 1, 1920, 2,309,187.
